Eldon Woolliams rose on a point of order and moved a formal motion that Mr. Diefenbaker "be now heard." It was defeated, 135 to 72.

By the time that vote was taken it was 1:17 a.m.

When Mr. Macnaughton gave the floor to Mr. Pearson, a torrent of protest rose from the Conservatives. They argued that nobody could speak after the cutoff hour.

Citing precedents, the Speaker said a number recognized before the cutoff time must be allowed to complete his speech.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) rose in a rage, accusing Mr. Macnaughton of an attempt to "turn back the clock." He demanded that the prime minister be silent.

"Closure, closure," Liberal members shouted.

MAKES OFFER

Grinning broadly, Mr. Pearson offered to use only half of his allotted time and, with unanimous consent, let Mr. Diefenbaker have the final 10 minutes.

Mr. Diefenbaker snapped: "When the Creeks produce gifts we recognize what they mean.

"The prime minister is trying to explain away a situation in which he is throttling Parliament and is tearing down the flag which has flown over this country for 100 years. He is trying to be facetious at a time like this."

By this time, both leaders were bristling. Mr. Pearson's speech was punctuated by a series of acid exchanges with Mr. Diefenbaker and other Conservative frontbenchers.

At one point Mr. Pearson said he hoped Canada "can go forward as a strong and united country with this flag as its emblem."

CHARGES FEARSON

Mr. Diefenbaker jumped to his feet and, stabbing his finger across the aisle, shouted:

"You've done more to divide Canada than any other prime minister."

Mr. Pearson paused, smiled, then shot back with:

"We should feel sympathetic towards the right honorable gentleman because he is feeling the frustration of failure."

The clash roared on with tempers mounting as both leaders getting roars of approval from their supporters. Many of the words were drowned out in sheer bedlam.

PLEADS FOR SUPPORT

Before things got to that stage, Mr. Pearson made an impassioned plea to the entire House to "rally around this red maple leaf flag.

"This is a good flag. It's a Canadian flag."

"It is an emblem "of which we and our children can be proud and under which Canada can go forward."

"Surely, when the dust of controversy clears away, when the bitterness of debate is over, we can all in this House rally around the red maple leaf flag.

". . . I appeal for us all to forget divisions and differences."

The prime minister's was the 279th speech on the flag since the issue was presented to Parliament exactly six months ago today.

Trenton Country Club Elects New Officers, Hears Reports

TRENTON — The Trenton Country Club, even as you and I, is finding itself in financial difficulties. A newly-elected executive, chosen last night at the annual meeting, has been advised by the 1965 club auditor, Peter Held, to try to devise some way of pulling the club out of its financial tailspin.

Mr. Held, comment ing on such things as increase in expenses, decrease in club revenue and the bonded debts of the club, nevertheless, praised the efforts of the 1964 executive, headed up by president Dr. Glynn Jones.

Mr. Held resigned following the reading of his report.

Newly-elected president is F. J. "Pete" Aziz, who served as golf director last year, and new directors are: Mrs. Huda Chivas, James MacArthur, Donald Kilgour and Dr. J. V. Byrne. On the board for their second year of their term of office are: Harry Lafferty and James Alexander. Lloyd Worrall was acclaimed as club auditor.

Mr. Lafferty, as 1964 house chairman, said many improvements had been carried out during the year, such as a new roof for the curling rink, interior decoration in the upstairs auditorium, air conditioning in the lounge and a new board room.

Mr. Lafferty said groups were starting to rent the auditorium for banquets to a much greater degree. He said the general concensus of persons who visit the club was that it was "one of the finest clubs between Toronto and Montreal."

Mr. Alexander, as 1964 membership chairman, said that the first job his committee had to do was to try to do away with petty bickering among the members. During the year membership had increased by 50, he said, and decreased by 66. Membership in 1963 was 426; in 1964, 390.

Dues were low when compared to other clubs, said Mr. Alexander. Service was unequalled anywhere, and with the "tree-found spirit of sportsmanship and fun," engendered by his committee, he hoped for a good year ahead.

Mr. Alexander said he thought a part-time paging relations man could do a lot for the club, by keeping the club's image before the public.

F. J. Aziz, reporting as golf director, played up the highlights of the year. He paid tribute to greenskeeper Jack Clearwater and his assistant, Tim Woods, a Queen's student, for the care taken of the course.

This year, the Ontario Golf Association rated the course and came up with a 34 for the nine-hole course — a decrease of one when compared with the older, unofficial rating.

On June 27, the first hole-in-one, No. 8 hole, was achieved by Douglas Grant of Belleville, and later in the summer, an unofficial hole-in-one on hole No. 7, a 347 uphill drive, was credited to a Napanee man.

Dr. Jack Hallett reported on curling last year and activities of this year. He praised Gordon Flynn and Clyde Mason for their work in connection with schedules and ice surface control, and mentioned that junior curlers were being briefed on the game by Mrs. Dorothy Aziz, after fours, Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Retiring president, Dr. Glynn Jones said he had the fullest co-operation from every director during the year and especially lauded club manager, Bruce Cardy, for his continuing interest in the affairs of the club. Mr. Cardy was also praised by other 1964 chairmen.

Dr. Jones sugested that in future years, elections be held to fill each board position. Under the present system, directors are elected, and special chairmen appointed by the directorate.

ASKED TO ASSIST

Following the appointment of Mr. Aziz as president, Vagn Lange moved from the floor that club members, who were holders of non-interest paying $100 debentures, be asked to forfeit these, in the interests of putting the club back on a sound financial footing. Mr. Lange said only those, who had held the $100 bonds for three years should be asked to contribute to this project. This would have the end result of raising $15,865 for the club, if every one of the 150 debenture holders complied.

Past president Alec Wilson proposed an amendment to the motion, by the terms of which bond holders would be called together and asked to co-operate. The amendment was passed, and the original motion automatically defeated. The special meeting will be called within a month, Mr. Aziz said.

Mr. Aziz promised the membership all complaints, whether submitted in writing or orally, would be dealt with by the directors. He said names would be withheld on request.

TRENTON — Last season's golf trophies were presented at the annual meeting of the Trenton Country Club last night. Golf director F. J. (Pete) Aziz, assisted by games captain Gordon Tripp, handed out the cups to the men's winners and Mrs. Audrey Aziz and Mrs. Fran Bannon, the ladies'.

A first this year, the senior men's Carling trophy went to past club president James Duncan and this was presented by Al Hardy, Carling district representative.

Asking Too Much

Two years ago the unemployment insurance fund became bankrupt. A few years earlier it had had millions.

Had all this money been legitimately distributed there would be no complaint, but the fund is subject to abuses.

And at this time of year when across Canada construction, a number of seasonal occupations, and a great deal of industry slow down, this abuse is at its greatest.

As long as the worker earns his income on an hourly wage, he is eligible for unemployment insurance no matter what his total annual earnings. If a man is paid on a salary or commission basis, at a rate above $5,460 per annum, he is not covered by unemployment insurance.

Certainly not all, but a number of lumbermen, miners and seasonal workers have developed the habit of working part of the year, at an hourly rate, earning high wages—often $6,000 to $10,000, in an eight month period—and then taking a paid vacation for the remaining four months by collecting unemployment insurance.

A number of housewives think along this same line. They work during the busy season in a factory, then commence to collect unemployment insurance, once they are laid off.

These women collect their unemployment insurance although the amount they have earned when added to their husband's income already provides a comfortable living.

These people reason that since they have paid into the fund they deserve to be supported by it when unemployed.

When one examines the figures, it is quite evident these people are suffering a delusion.

The maximum amount deductible from an employee's salary is .94 a week. This the employer matches so that the total contributed amount for any one worker is $1.88 weekly.

Over an eight month period the most any one of these people could have had paid into the fund on their behalf is approximately $65.

To be eligible for unemployment insurance one has to have been employment for 30 weeks in the past two years. For every two weeks worked in that two year period, one week of unemployment insurance can be collected. A man working eight months each year, can collect for the remaining four. To establish how much can be collected weekly a sliding scale is used.

Under the present unemployment stipulations any single claimant who earns over $90 collects $27, weekly. Anyone earning over $30 weekly, and few earn less, collects $11 weekly. If one has dependents the amount is even more.

This means that in return for the $65 contributed in an eight month period, these people are collecting, during their four months employment, a maximum of $432 and a minimum of $176.

Their claim, we repeat, is that since they paid in they deserve to collect. What, we ask, do they think qualifies them for the additional amount over $65, year after year?

Bail Is a Problem

The John Howard Society has presented a second brief to former Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Supreme Court of Ontario, now sitting as a one-man royal commission on civil rights.

The John Howard Society is traditionally interested in the lot of prisoners and ex-prisoners. In this second brief, though, the Society goes to bat for poor persons before their trial. Bail restrictions should be eased, especially in cases involving minor offences, it says.

The Society points out, with complete accuracy, that even $50 bail may be more than some men can raise, while a suspected bank robber might be able to provide large bail from his loot. If he then forfeited it, by disappearing, he would not be out of pocket.

Whenever money enters the picture in the administration of justice, be it with respect to bail or a fine, it is extremely difficult to avoid having, in effect, one law for the rich and one for the poor.

We can only hope that Mr. McRuer, out of his long experience as a lawyer and on the bench, will be able to devise some system which would at least come closer to providing equal treatment for pauper and merchant prince.

I do not want the world to be run by scientists and technologists, because science and technology are of value only as servants of society. I want to see at the head of affairs basically educated men, science-orientated humanists.—Sir Leon Bagrit, British industrialist and automation expert.

Tories Swear No Bias Intended in Coercion Cases

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Rumblings of Liberal discontent over the manner in which some Cabinet ministers are being treated by the Tories these days finally turned into an eruption last week.

Minister without Portfolio Yvon Dupuis told a public meeting that recent revelations concerning alleged bribe attempts, graft and furniture "purchases" were nothing more than concerted attempts to "smear" French-Canadian members of Parliament.

It must be admitted that this appearance has been given. Those roundly attacked by Conservative members of the Opposition do not include any English-speaking ministers.

First fish was Defence Minister Favreau, then Citizenship Minister Tremblay, then the prime minister's Parliamentary Secretary Guy Rouleau, then Mr. Tremblay again, along with Trade Secretary Lamontagne.

And it wasn't just the Liberals who were getting stymied with this — there is more than a suspicion that part of the reason for Lucien Bakerv's tiff with Opposition Leader Diefenbaker stemmed from the fact he felt French-Canadians were being hit too hard.

Two of the more level-headed Tory leaders, however (one from the Maritimes and one from Alberta), state flatly that there was no such intent in the Conservative charges.

EXPLANATION

To begin with, they point out, both Mr. Favreau and Mr. Lamontagne are among the most highly regarded members of the House of Commons.

The fact they are French-Canadian has nothing to do with this regard, but this regard has a good deal to do with the sense of shock felt by many people at suggestions they may have been involved in some questionable activities.

It was simply the fact that all the men are M.P.'s and three of them Cabinet ministers, that made it almost imperative that questions be asked in an effort to clear the air.

To set out deliberately to discredit French-Canada because they are French-Canadians would be foreign to the feelings and principles of most of Conservatives, the two men insisted, and they sounded sincere.

A reporter from England, who has been watching developments in Parliament and Canada for more than a year, offered the suggestion that the furniture affair, at least, could be readily explained by the different standards applied in the two major races in the country.

He felt that, to French-Canadians, the purchase of one's position to gain first shot at a special deal which might be in the offing was simply the course of a prudent man.

Hence, if there was anything wrong with the furniture purchases (still a large if), nobody in Quebec would notice it.

On the other hand, English-Canadian descendants of the country (particularly in Ontario) have a deep-seated abhorrence of Scandinavian descent.

In the long run the liberal Quebec attitude toward such matters will not save the ministers if they themselves are found any wrong-doing, but at least it provides some sort of explanation.

Maybe, in particular, it explains why no English-speaking Cabinet minister has been accused of anything during the current round of uproars.

Conservatives claim that the government, with its insistence on presenting a new flag to the country, is doing exactly what the three new races spurn.

They have no wish to add to any racial tensions that had to intent of doing so when they argued their cases against the ministers, they say.

Specially - ordered hearings, including testimony by Mr. Favreau and Mr. Tremblay concerning the Montreal bribe attempt, are expected.

The Conservatives will say nothing more about that until the hearings are over except that there can be no suggestion of attacking French-Canadians as such. Liberals simply happened to head the two departments involved in that possible case.

If a community's water supply is found to be contaminated or a beach hopelessly polluted the public is warned. Why not the same method to guard public health in the case of drug firms that fail to measure up to federal standards? Trusty farm horses were forced to come to the rescue of snowed-under motorized transportation in the Belleville district this week as result of the 14-inch snow-fall which threatened the city with a milk shortage and the country with a partial bread famine.

Country roads were so plugged with high drifts as to be completely impassable by wheeled vehicles, and milk for city distributors was either taken by teams and sleigh to main travelled highways where it could be picked up by trucks, or delivered directly to the distributing centre.

Conversely bread companies dependent upon motor trucks for rural delivery were stumped and farmers were forced to pull out sleighs or cutters for the drive to country stores to augment supplies.

Need Quiet Period

Montreal Star

General election at this time would undo much of the good which has been done in recent weeks. What is needed is not the sharpened controversies of an election but a prolonged period of political quiet during which the mass of moderate and sensible proposals can be considered and digested. An election would gain us nothing in this respect. It would substitute party passions for reasoned debate.

Goitre Ailments Helped By Radioactive Iodine

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you recommend radioactive iodine for goitre? Does this treatment remove it entirely, or make it less toxic? Could there be ill effects to the throat or other parts of the body from this treatment? — Mrs. A. B.

A goitre is an enlargement of the thyroid gland. A toxic goitre is one which produces symptoms of excessive thyroid activity, as distinguished from a thyroid which is merely enlarged.

Radioactive iodine (known as I 131) is a well-recognized treatment for toxic goitre. It does not remove the thyroid gland, but reduces its activity and usually its size.

In fact, sometimes it slows down the thyroid to such an extent that a hypothyroid state (underactivity) is produced. However, it is a simple matter to administer small doses of thyroid substance to bring the body's metabolism back into normal balance.

The correct dosage of radioactive iodine is very important so the treatment must be given by an expert.

Experience has established proper dosages, and no ill effects to throat or any other part of the body result.

Radioactive iodine is not used for simple, non-toxic enlargement of the gland nor can it be used if tumors have developed in the thyroid. In the latter case surgery is necessary.

Dear Dr. Molner: For 20 years an acquaintance of mine has had chest X-rays every six months. In the last two, he's a heart is enlarged.

Her ankles have been swelling so that even the best are puffed by evening, but she attributes this to humidity.

What causes the heart to enlarge? How serious is this condition?

I enclose 25 cents in coin and a long, unstamped, self-addressed envelope for your booklet, "How To Take Care of Your Heart." —A. N.

I presume the X-rays were of the type to detect tuberculosis. They sometimes show heart deviations — but only a doctor can decide on that basis alone whether the condition is serious. Other tests are necessary.

As you describe the case, the combination of enlargement and edema (the swelling) indicates that the heart muscle is gradually failing. The heart is enlarging in an effort to compensate for the lack of vigor of its muscle.

Your friend should not try to find excuses for the swollen legs. She should consult her doctor. Generally speaking, such cases are bound to become serious, sooner or later, yet with prompt (and sustained) treatment many patients live for years and years.

Dear Dr. Molner: Will severe scarlet fever in childhood cause insanity? — J. C.

No, that is another old wives' tale.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a lesion on the side of my nose about the size of a pea. It isn't painful. It won't heal and I've had it for two years. I have not consulted a doctor because I never caused any pain, but it bleeds when I unconsciously scratch it at night. If it is cancer, is it too late to have it treated? What kind of a doctor should I consult? — M. V.

If probably is not too late to have it treated, even if it is a cancer, but when a lesion doesn't heal in two weeks (not two years) it's time to have it checked. That's the insidious thing about early cancer: it is not painful.

A dermatologist is the logical specialist.

Strictly Personal

Have You Met The Stranger That Is You?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Some months ago I mentioned, in one of my goulash columns, that a person wouldn't recognize himself if he saw himself walking down the street. The self-image we have is always a gross distortion of reality.

"I thought you were exaggerating for literary effect," said a friend o' mine the other night, "but I found out last week that you were absolutely right."

It seems that, while visiting San Francisco, he walked into a bank to cash a cheque and observed a large television screen inside the door. He paused to look at the scurrying throng, and as he walked forward, he was amazed that a man on the screen did exactly what he did — and, of course, it turned out to be him, on a closed-circuit screen.

"I can't tell you how shocked I was," he said. "I looked at that man and passed over him like a perfect stranger, even though he was wearing the very clothes I put on that morning."

What is important about this shock of recognition is the humility it should give us about the many illusions we have of our self-image as compared with reality. If we don't even know our own clothes and face and body-build and gait, why do we assume that we know the secret springs of our behavior?

Our drives, our motivations, are usually concealed from ourselves, even though they may be manifest to others who scarcely know us. It is deplorably and distressingly true that sometimes one may meet us and in a half-hour have a more accurate picture of our total topography than we have gained in a lifetime of living with ourselves.

It is not simply that we cannot "see ourselves as others see us." It is that we cannot see ourselves as we really are, in the total patterning of the personality. I am not suggesting that such insight is always necessary or desirable; merely that it is the most perilous attempt to presume that we have it, and to act upon the presumption that the motives we are aware of are the "real" or the basic motives.

Everyone is a stranger to himself, in some important areas of behavior. When we speak of "humility" in its religious sense we usually mean a modesty about our talents and accomplishments; but genuine humility should also mean the acceptance of self-ignorance, the frank acknowledgement that even when we "do good," we cannot be sure of virtue.

This is the whole meaning of Jesus' hard saying, "Judge not, that ye be not judged." We dare to place the worst interpretation on the actions or words of others while placing the best on our own. Yet if we cannot even recognize our physical selves walking down the street, how can we know the shape or substance of the self we cannot see?

Champions Madison Ave

Dallas News

A favorite target of the life-is-dull-life-is-hollow school of critics in recent years has been Madison Avenue, for many of these gentlemen believe, that almost replaced Wall Street as the vis of villains in their view of commercialism. Writers, the gray-flannel set is accused of brainwashing the public, insulting its intelligence and distracting it from the finer things of culture.

The harried admen, who thought they had enough to contend with in dreaming up ads against charges that they were a menace to society. The charges, meanwhile, seem rather unfair. For one thing, these defenders of the public weal overlook the fact that the public does not want to be defended from advertising; it bought $36 billion worth of items more information on products and services.

This fact was underlined by a recent report on the ups and downs of the Fortune 500 World's Fair. The big fair had its troubles—attendance was disappointing, three big musicals folded and several restaurants and concessions met the skids.

But the fair also had its successes, and among the biggest were the exhibits put up by American corporations. These concrete commercials, or automobiles, bare deer and soft drinks presented their messages with such imagination that the industrial promenades bustled with business. While the professionals in show business looked in vain for customers, it was standing-room-only at many of the industrial buildings.

Critics of advertising ignore the fact that effective advertising is the sine qua non of mass production and the low-unit-price goods it provides. It is undeniable that the consumer wants to know more about products and services available to him. Mr. and Mrs. Consumer are discriminating. They are not easily, or permanently, fooled. Also undeniable is the power of the ad.

We have the highest standard of living in the world, and this year the gross national product will reach nearly 640 billion dollars, all of which means mass acceptance, and such acceptance is based on the knowledge and persuasion of American advertising.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Golds advanced and industrials surged during moderate morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Speculative activity was dull.

The 12 - stock gold index reached a high of 168.22 with a 1.25 gain. Dome rose ¼ to a high of 41 while Giant Yellowknife gained ¼ to its high of 16¾ and Campbell Red Lake ½ to 22, also a high.

Two reasons are advanced for golds' gain: Speculation is rampant concerning an increase in the price of gold, and gold stocks are traditionally bought as a defensive hedge in a falling market.

Fraser Companies lost a point to 33½ among industrials. Algoma Steel dropped ⅛ to 67¾ and Ahitibi, Aluminium and BA Oil ⅛ each to 12¾, 31 and 34¾.

Falconbridge gained a point to 83⅛ in senior base metals.

On index, industrials fell .07 to 163.24, the TSE index .03 to 151.93 and western oils .09 to 92.79. Base metals rose .26 to 71.54 and volume at 11 a.m. was 929,000 shares compared with 1,481,000 shares traded at the same time Monday.

On Monday gold stocks drew investor interest away from industrials in moderately heavy trading.

Golds advanced sharply with individual stocks and the 12-stock gold index established several record levels. Behind the gain was speculation that an increase in the price of gold may be forthcoming.

Dome Mines rose 2½ to a high of 40¾ and Campbell Red Lake ½ to 21½, also a high. Giant Yellowknife was ahead ¼ to 16¾ and Dickenson 20 cents to $3.70.

The gold index jumped 5.89 to a record 168.97.

Among industrials, Royal Bank and Bank of Montreal each lost ⅛ to 78 and 67¼. Robhmans fell 1¼ to 18¼, Toronto-Dominion Bank ¼ to 66¼ and Ahitibi ¾ to 13⅞.

Interprovincial Pipe rose 2¼ to 95 and Levy Industries the same amount to 14½.

Falconbridge dropped ¾ to 82¾ among senior base metals.

On index, industrials fell .28 to 162.31 and the TSE index .13 to 151.96. Base metals rose .38 to 71.26. Volume was 4,686,000 shares compared with 4,061,000 Friday.

Pilot Killed In Snowstorm At Newmarket

Emotions

tion leader was on his feet in an instant. So was Mr. Pearson and so was Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur).

The Speaker recognized the prime minister. Mr. Woollams was ready with a motion that Mr. Diefenbaker be heard, and the well - used division bells clanged again, pushing the clock past the deadline. Many thought this would end the debate.

But Mr. Pearson had been on his feet and recognized before the deadline, ruled the Speaker so he could complete his speech. This, of course, happened after Mr. Woollams' motion was defeated.

MOOD NOT JOVIAL

So the House was scarcely in a jovial frame of mind when Mr. Pearson began his last Commons speech on behalf of a new Canadian flag.

"I ask that there be no recorded vote so that we will not be in a position in this House of having honorable members vote against what will be our national flag."

"Don't be crazy," shouted Mr. Monteith. "I am going to be recorded."

Mr. Pearson offered to donate the last 10 minutes of his speaking time to the leader of the opposition.

"The prime minister," said Mr. Diefenbaker, "is trying to explain away a situation in which he is throttling Parliament and is tearing down the flag which has flown over this country for 100 years. He is trying to be facetious at a time like this."

The prime minister grew angry. "... I was offering to give him the last 10 minutes in this flag debate which began last June. Perhaps I should have learned from experience that offers of co-operation of that kind to that quarter usually do not get a very friendly reception."

RETURNS THE ATTACK

"You've done more to divide Canada than any other prime minister," charged the opposition leader.

"We should feel sympathetic towards the right honorable gentleman because he is feeling the frustrations of failure," fired back the prime minister.

Several times they stood facing each other, their voices swallowed up in the rain of words around them.

Then, suddenly, the vote was called. The new flag was given Commons approval by a vote of 163 to 78 and a group of Liberals arose and started singing O Canada.

That angered more than a few opposition members. At least two of them remained seated and walked out half-way through. Then they sang God Save the Queen. The members who walked out earlier stood rigidly at attention behind the curtain.

When the last strains had died away, delight erupted on the Liberal benches. Pauline Jewett (L — Northumberland) tossed papers in the air. Marcel Prud'homme (L—Montreal - St. Denis) stuck a new flag design of his lapel and pounded his colleagues on the back. Several booklets came flying through the air. Justice Minister Favreau crossed the floor and shook hands with Leon Balcer, the Quebec leader of the Conservatives.

Meanwhile, a group of members, mostly Liberals, carried a new flag out to the rotunda, near the Commons entrance, where they stood in front of television cameras and sang O Canada again. Mr. Balcer and some members of the Creditiste parties were included.

Noise Aggravates the Nervous and Upset

DEAR DORIS — About that whistling mother-in-law —. I think such a person should be in solitary confinement.

Anyone who is not a nervous person simply knows nothing about how barking dogs, dripping taps, squeaking signs, blaring radios, can affect a person whose nerves are all upset.

I have attended one who has been under a doctor's care for two years from the sudden passing of three sisters. Noises are terrible for her.

I think about 90 per cent could be eliminated if people were more considerate of others. — C.H.W.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR C.H.W. — Ninety per cent? In this mechanized age? Consideration can certainly help some.

A tired person is more sensitive to noise. So is an ill person. And a day-long whistle can get anybody down!

(Doris is a trained social worker and has studied human nature. Seek her help through this column.)

Unbaked Cookies Are Novelties

By MARY MOORE

The popularity of unbaked cookies never seems to subside. The first offering today is something of a confection. Your teenage or pre-teenage daughter (or son) could make both of these.

TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Grapefruit and Orange Fruit Cup; Smothered Chicken; Potato Pancakes; Crumbed Tomato Casserole; Vanilla Ice Cream with Hot Butterscotch Sauce; Coffee.

CHOCOLATE ORBS (unbaked —2 variations).

One 8-oz. package thin chocolate wafers (2 cups when finely rolled), 1 tablespoon cocoa, ½ cup finely chopped almonds (or walnuts or mixture of both), ¼ cup corn syrup or golden syrup, 2 tablespoons water.

With rolling pin crush the chocolate wafers as finely as possible. You need two cups. To them in a bowl add the cocoa, chopped nuts, syrup and water. Mix until completely blended. This amount measures 3 cups. Divide mixture in half. To one half add 2 teaspoons rum extract. Mix well, and between palms shape into 20 balls of uniform size. On top of each, place a whole walnut or pecan or blanched almond. Roll 10 in green colored sugar and 10 in red colored sugar.

To second half add 1 teaspoon almond extract and mix well. Sprinkle a sheet of wax paper generously with icing sugar. Tip chocolate mixture onto it, press and shape it into smooth roll 8" long, evenly coated with icing sugar. Let it rest for ½ hour, then with sharp knife cut into 16 even slices. On each place a whole candied cherry. If you want to be real dashing use well-drained and dried maraschino cherries with stems. Draw sides of chocolate slice up around cherry and press edges in so that only half of cherry shows in its little nest. Roll again in icing sugar.

Store these little chocolate balls in single layers between sheets of wax paper in tightly covered box, preferably in refrigerator. If you have used stem-on maraschinos for half of your batch, obviously those should be on the top layer in the cookie box. Don't keep them more than 4 or 5 days.

MARSHMALLOW SQUARES (unbaked)

40 graham wafers, rolled finely, 30 marshmallows, cut up, 1 can sweetened condensed milk, 12 glace cherries, cut, ½ cup chopped nuts, ½ cup dates, cut finely.

Mix all ingredients together. Sprinkle cocoanut on bottom of 9x12" pan. Put mixture in and press down firmly. Sprinkle cocoanut on top and chill and store in refrigerator before cutting into squares.

RESEARCHES JOB OPPORTUNITIES FOR WOMEN — Mrs. Alice Griffiths of Ottawa is author of a labor department report on physical and earth sciences, and mathematics, as suitable careers for women. Mrs. Griffiths a former librarian, is a graduate of the University of Toronto. Her report emphasized that women can overcome the obstacles facing them in scientific fields once reserved for men. Can Overcome Obstacles

Success in Science for Career Women

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—Women who want to be engineers, mathematicians or biochemists can be just as successful as men, but first they must overcome three obstacles.

They are:

1. The so-called "traditional" role of women as the "weaker" sex, which forces little girls to play with dolls, sew and bake, even if they really want to collect insects.

2. The practical problem connected with some scientific careers, notably engineering—the hard physical work frequently required in isolated areas.

3. The modern woman's continual inward conflict between her desire for marriage and children and her desire for a productive career.

This mental torment is increased for the woman who wants to become a scientist, because she knows that her career is likely to be a time-consuming one which requires intense personal dedication.

These basic difficulties are outlined in a report on the physical and earth sciences and mathematics as suitable fields of work for women, just released by the federal labor department.

It emphasizes that women can overcome the obstacles and eventually become successful in scientific fields once assigned solely to men.

COVERED WIDE FIELD

The special report was prepared for the department's women's bureau by Alice Griffiths, a former librarian, who spent six weeks on research for the 41-page document. Mrs. Griffiths, a 1937 graduate from the University of Toronto in history and library science, is the wife of Ottawa broadcaster Stuart Griffiths. They have two sons, one in university, one in high school.

She travelled to Montreal, Toronto and Kingston, Ont., and interviewed dozens of women in the scientific field including astronomers, chemists, geologists, physicists, mathematicians and librarians to learn about their work, how they entered it, and the difficulties and possibilities of their jobs.

Mrs. Griffiths finds that women's "traditional" role plays a large part in the difficulties they meet in the science world.

"The fact that society differentiates between what is man's work and what is woman's work may contribute to the feeling that science is not for girls.

"From birth, society tends to impose certain patterns of behavior and character on both boys and girls. A girl is considered 'different' if she pursues an interest in science and chooses it for a career."

The report says a recent survey conducted in several American universities found that successful women scientists usually come from two contrasting kinds of homes.

In neither type of home was the status of women or lip-service to their traditional role as wives and mothers an important factor.

The American study concluded that the girls "at the top" are secure enough to be different, while bright girls from homes where the parents had limited educational opportunities are not influenced by the need to maintain a certain status.

Mrs. Griffiths says the practical difficulties of physical labor and unprotected isolation associated with many careers in the physical sciences are being largely overcome, and are likely to be less apparent in the future.

Since all the earth sciences are linked in one way or another to the practice of engineering, so the practical difficulties encountered by women are concentrated in the engineering field.

Bill Garnet Page, secretary of the Engineering Institute of Canada, told the women's bureau researcher:

"Opportunities for women in many areas of engineering are increasing, particularly as they become more sophisticated and less of the traditional 'outdoor' type of thing."

FACED WITH DILEMMA

Perhaps the most important dilemma facing the woman who wants a career is whether she can combine her work with marriage.

The labor department report stresses that maintaining a marriage and a career is science is "particularly difficult" for a woman."

"She must keep up to date in her work and, as the developments in science are so dynamic, she can do so only if she is constantly at work. In marriage, if raising a family is part of it, very few women are able to continue to work on a full-time basis."

Mrs. Griffiths concludes that women who have successful scientific careers while raising a family are only able to do so if four factors are present. These factors seem general enough to apply to all working mothers, in any field.

—They must have jobs that are flexible, where they can set their own working hours.

—They need well - organized home situations where help is easy for children and doing housework is sufficient.

—They must have husbands who respect their wives' capacities for work and their desire to use these capacities.

—And, most important of all, they need jobs that are challenging enough to make their effort worthwhile.

Ann Landers

'Sacrificing Moms' Place Heavy Burdens on Kin

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The woman who described herself as "A mother who sacrificed everything for her children and received nothing in return" is responsible for my first letter to a newspaper.

ANN LANDERS

It is my observation that these self-styled sacrificing mothers make emotional cripples out of their children. Their favorite theme is, "Look what I've done for you. Now do something for me."

The "sacrificing mom" attaches herself like a barnacle. If a child shakes loose and becomes independent, "sacrificing mom" tries to make him feel guilty for "neglecting" her.

My mother was one of those "sacrificers." It took years of therapy to straighten me out. I vowed if I ever had children I would never make them feel obligated to me. And I've kept that vow. I asked my children for nothing, yet they are attentive, considerate and loving.

Please, Ann Landers, keep telling mothers to live their own lives and leave their children alone. What more can parents ask than that their children are also their friends? — NO STRINGS ATTACHED.

DEAR NO STRINGS — You have given your children a legacy of straight thinking to hand down to their children. How wonderful for all of you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — You are no friend to women, believe me. I almost dropped my eyeglasses in my coffee when I read your attack on wives who sometimes overlook a missing shirt button. I'm beginning to wonder if you have all your buttons, Ann Landers.

It so happens that my husband is an absolute nut about his shirts, so I check them carefully before I place them in the drawer. But what can I do when he puts on a shirt and a button pops off?

Last week it happened twice and you could have heard him hollering a block away. He refuses to admit he has put on weight and that his collars are getting tight.

Unfortunately, I'm not a fortuneteller and I can't tell from looking at a button whether it's going to be equal to the strain. Please set my husband straight. — SWEET ADELINE.

DEAR ADDIE—Sorry, Doll, but you don't need a crystal ball to check a button. All you need is a couple of fingers. When you feel a weak little fella hanging by a few threads, get busy. A stitch in time can save more than nine. It can save a big fat fight.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My 12-year-old son is missing out on so much boyhood fun it is heartbreaking.

Danny would never go to camp or spend a night away from home because he wets the bed. When we go to visit relatives I carry a rubber sheet along, which is very embarrassing for him.

I have taken Danny to two doctors and they can find nothing physically wrong with him. I've tried pills, alarm devices and a dozen things advertised in magazines and papers. Nothing works. A few friends who have had the same problem tell me Danny will outgrow it.

Why would a child almost in his teens still wet the bed? What can be done? — HELP HELP HELP.

DEAR H.H.H. — Now that the doctors have ruled out the possibility of a physical problem, face up to the fact that Danny's bed-wetting is a symptom of an emotional problem. He is troubled about something and needs special counseling. Ask the school principal to direct you.

Your friends are right when they say Danny will eventually outgrow it. But outgrowing a symptom is not the same as solving the problem, and this should be your objective.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

FIRESIDE SNACKS

BEAULIEU, England (CP)—Women in villages throughout Hampshire's New Forest area have formed teams to take snacks to voluntary firemen fighting forest blazes. The women are on call 24 hours a day.

Susanna's Family Fare

Dear Susanna: I am so glad to say that yesterday I came across a housemaker's hint for you, which was also news to me ! !

I suddenly discovered a simply wonderful (or wonderfully simple) way of making the finest, fluffiest crumbs for dressing.

Just take a loaf of bread from the freezer, and while still frozen, grate it, with the grater's coarse openings, into a bowl.

It is a most efficient process. — Cassie.

You're a bonnie lassie Cassie. Not only for thinking of us when you made your discovery, but also for taking the trouble of sending it to us right away —in time for our Christmas and New Year's turkey stuffing bees.

. . . and in many sections of our country, who needs a freezing unit? Just step outside and it's all freezer! —SUSANNA.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

The Russians are winning the "goal" war.

The superbly-conditioned musclemen from Moscow, Minsk and other points of the Soviet steppes, surprised a half-dozen juniors-bolstered slipping pros, then as a chaser whamped the helpless out of our Nationals without one side disturbing a strand of their nets.

And their trainers did not have to cool them off in a post-game walkathon. It appeared to be that easy.

Comrade Tarasov's athletes, playing under international rules, should get the nod of the boys in the back room to cop world honors when the national teams clash next year.

In fairness to our side—and I don't think it was used as an alibi—we were not at the strength which will represent the Maple Leaf at the international puck wing-ding. And from their play against the Soviets on Sunday, it appears we will need more than a little bolstering.

And what makes the Russians' effort more impressive is the fact that Canadian national team, in an exhibition whirl of minor pros and amateur clubs, compiled a good record. It appears there is a far larger gap between our top amateurs and National Hockey League clubs than meets the eye.

It is no secret that the Russians would like to cross puck rapiers with a National Hockey League club. The president of the Montreal Canadiens predicts this will happen in the "foreseeable future."

Reports from the European seals of hockey war had it the Soviets, 1964-65 edition, was in no small measure, the strongest club to come out of caviar and Vodka country. They defeated the powerful Czech team twice by shutouts in Moscow exhibitions.

But the Canadians in a nice gesture to the Russians arranged the opening game of their tour against a club that boasted a half dozen ex-National Leaguers, most of whom are not players of NHL rank of the day.

In this way the NHL sidestepped the issue of sending the Leafs or Canadiens against the invaders—just in case. As one writer put it "the game was arranged deliberately and designed to appraise the strength of Russian hockey in terms of the NHL without running the risk of loss of face on the part of either side."

He goes on: "but the pros were not silly enough to give away more edge than the international rules. If they got mussed up they had the junior amateurs to take the rap."

And you know what happened.

The decisive defeat—and the more or less case with which it was accomplished—of our National amateur club, despite the fact it was below full strength, proves something or other. Either our top amateurs are not of the calibre of those teams that used to bring home the world bauble, or the Russians are improving to the point where nothing less than a full-time National Hockey League club must be used to put them in their places.

There are some who claim the international rules with their limited body-checking favor the Russians and other European squads when playing with Canadian teams.

But after watching the Soviets throwing tough-muscled torses around, I don't believe the rules make the difference between victory and defeat. They are not averse to hitting foemen hard with the body and opening up the territory under our rules may make them that much tougher.

I do not believe the current Russian club could defeat a National Hockey League team, but with their rate of improvement and ability to adapt themselves to western rules, that "world series" of hockey may be closer than you think.

Hull Rules Out 70 Target—50 Maybe

MONTREAL (CP — Bobby Hull, setting a pace that could net him 65 goals this season, has ruled out a 70-goal target but admits he may score 50.

"It's impossible to score 70 in 70 games," Hull says, "but with the kind of start I've got I may break 50."

What can stop the Chicago Black Hawk star?

"There's physical pressure," he explains, "but it's the mental strain of an entire year that kills you when you're going for 50. We use up more energy in one game than most people do in a month."

"My big concern is for the team to win and for me to stay healthy. I'm nothing if I can't stay in shape."

Hull apparently was in excellent shape last week, bagging eight points on three goals and five assists to open up a five-point lead in the National Hockey League scoring race. He now has 23 goals in 25 games and 11 assists for 34 points.

Runnerup is teammate Stan Mikita, who picked up six points in the Hawks' four-game winning streak last week to grasp a firm hold on second place with 29 points on eight goals and 21 assists.

Claude Provost, right wing on Montreal Canadiens' production line with Henri Richard and Dave Balon, picked up a goal and six assists, to vault into a third-place tie with Detroit Red Wing centre Norm Ullman at 26 points. Ullman was held to one point in Detroit's two games.

BOBBY HULL

The most productive line is Hull, Phil Esposito and Johnny Bucyk of Boston with 63 points.

Esposito leads the scoring race with 34 goals and 29 assists for 63 points. Bucyk has 22 goals and 41 assists for 63 points.

Hull is the leading goal scorer with 34 goals and Esposito is second with 29.

Ullman is the leading assist man with 26 and Bucyk is second with 22.

Hull has been penalized 30 minutes and Esposito has been penalized 32 minutes.

Ullman has been penalized 24 minutes and Bucyk has been penalized 22 minutes.

Ullman has scored 10 goals and Bucyk has scored 8 goals.

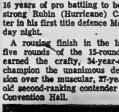
Ullman has scored 16 assists and Esposito has scored 15 assists.

Ullman has scored 26 points and Esposito has scored 24 points.

Bucyk has scored 30 points and Esposito has scored 29 points.

Hull has scored 34 points and Esposito has scored 29 points

Hurricane Nearly Blew Joey's Crown



Lost Close Verdict

By MURRAY ROSE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It was like the old matador against the young bull.

Middleweight champion Joey Giardello came perilously close to being gored but he called on every trick he had learned in 16 years of pro battling to beat strong Rubin (Hurricane) Carter in his first title defence Monday night.

A rousing finish in the last five rounds of the 15-rounder earned the crafty, 34-year-old champion the unanimous decision over the muscular, 27-year-old second-ranking contender at Convention Hall.

JOE GIARDELLO

He won on all three cards—two judges and the referee.

Giardello was cut over the left eye and shaken by a jolting left hook in the fourth round. It was Carter's big chance but he blew it. Giardello absorbed several other solid left hooks to the jaw but always managed to slip away. There were no knockdowns.

NoEDED FALL

"If I only could have made him fall," said Carter. "Just once, if I could have made him fall. That was the difference. I won it this year—at least 9 to 6—but a fall would have clinched it."

"He fought my fight and didn't press as I expected him to press," said Giardello. "He didn't fight inside and made it easy for me. That had a lot to do with it."

Giardello won the crown from Dick Tiger of Nigeria on an upset decision at Atlantic City, N.J., Dec. 7, 1963.

He has had only two non-title outings with Rocky Rivera. Now with eight straight victories to his credit, he plans to cash in with a couple more non-title fights. Then he said he would like to meet the winner of a bout between No. 1 contender Joey Archer of New York and Tiger.

Carter, a pro three years, had scored 13 knockouts in 24 pro fights. A fast puncher with a flashy left hook, he counted on the hook to undo the champion. He came close in the fourth only.

KEPT ON MOVE

The ring-scarred champion kept on the move constantly against his stalking, straight-moving opponent. With blood trickling from the cut most of the way, Giardello fought the classic fight, sticking with his left jab to the head, hooking to the body and head and making Carter miss.

Joey had the challenger slicing the air with dozens of punches in most rounds with a slip of his head or a slight move backwards or to the side. Carter landed his share but Giardello scored with more.

The officials had Giardello the winner by the following point scores, based on five points to the winner of a round: Referee Bob Felton, 73-66; judges James Minis, 71-66, and judge Dave Beloff, 72-67. The Associated Press scorecard had Giardello a narrow winner, 69-68.

In round by round scores were Polls 9-3-3, Beloff 8-5-2, and Mina 9-4-2. The AP had it 7-5-3.

Giardello weighed 160 pounds—the exact middleweight limit—to Carter's 158½.

The crowd of 7,653 paid a gross of $85,345. Giardello collected about $50,000 on his 60 per cent and paid Carter $10,000 from his end. The champ earned about $5,000 more from the television to several cities.

Who Are Golf's Real Big Two? - Venturi

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—Who are really the big two of American golf?

Is it Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, the leading money winners and recent victors in the international Canada Cup competition in Hawaii?

Or is it any combination of Ken Venturi, Tony Lema and Bobby Nichols, winners of the three big media - play championships?

Venturi, the reigning United States Open champion, would like an answer. If necessary he would like it in a head-to-head, winner-take-all match on five of the best golf courses in the country.

"I always have thought —long before this winter—that winning the U.S. Open was the major achievement in golf and that the man who grabs it should represent his country in an event like the Canada Cup," Venturi, the Professional Golfers Association's golfer of the year, said today.

"Frankly, I was offended because I wasn't chosen on the team this year. Bobby Nichols should have been equally upset.

"Between us, we won four of the six major tournaments in the matter of prestige. I won the open and the American Classic. Bobby won the PGA and the Carling World. Lema won the British Open and Palmer the Masters.

"Nicklaus and Palmer were picked to represent the United States in the Canada Cup. Rightfully, the two positions should have gone to the Open and PGA champions.

"I thought this five years ago. I'll think it next year when I may not win anything."

Venturi said he would like to team with Lema in a challenge match against Nicklaus and Palmer, the best three-of-five best-ball matches on five outstanding courses.

"Let us put up $10,000 each and they put up the same, let television sweeten the pot for perhaps a $100,000 purses and see what happens," Venturi said. "I'm sure Lema would be all for it."

On only one occasion have the Open and PGA champions represented the U.S. in the globe-circling Canada Cup matches. That was at Washington, D.C., in 1955 when Ed Furgol (Open) and Chick Harbart (PGA) won.

"The long - time policy has been for the best country to pick the American team," said Fred Corcoran, tournament director of the International Golf Association. "We submit a list of six players chosen by the PGA, and the host country rates them in order of preference."

Scores Six In First

Juniors Defeat Napanee 8-4

A five-goal explosion in the final ten minutes of the first period provided Belleville "B's" with their first win on foreign ice in OHA Eastern Junior play last night.

Belleville doubled the score on the Legion boys in Napanee, 8-4, tightening their grip on first place with the victory.

The winners potted the first goal but Napanee moved in front 2-1 by 3:15 of the period. Then came the scoring splurge.

Rutherford netted the tying goal, assisted by Woodcock, at 9:31, and seconds later Hagerman put Belleville in front to stay, aided by Boomhower.

Hagerman widened the gap with two more "B" goals. He finished a play with Fleming and Hagerman at 13:30 and made it 5-2, with Woodcock and Boyle helping, at 17:56. Fleming ended the period scoring at 18:43 on a pass from Townsend.

The teams fought through a scoreless middle heat before Napanee ripped back with two quickies to make it 6-4 early in the third. Cook at 2:50 and Gerow at 3:14 put the pressure on the "B's".

Not to be denied in this one, Belleville put the game in wraps on goals by Rutherford at 6:30 and by Boomhower at 11:30.

Penalties hogged the spotlight in the hard-fought third period. Belleville's Bill Lang was drawn a misconduct as the second period ended but all the scoring had been done before matters erupted in the third.

After a minor to Woodcock at 18:40, Jim Rutherford was given a game misconduct. One minute later Belleville's Harold Townsend and Napanee's Bob Galt got majors for fighting. Bob Boyle had a misconduct tacked on at the same time and finally, as the final whistle sounded, the "B's" Larry Stewart was also assessed a misconduct. Earlier, there had been just one minor in the first period, one in the second and another in the third.

Hagerman had scored the game's initial goal, at 1:09, but Jocko and E. Smith netted Legion markers prior to the Belleville rally.

Jim Rutherford turned in another of his high-scoring efforts to bare the Belleville attack with four goals. Linemate Grant Hagerman scored twice and helped on two more and third man on the combo, Pete Fleming, had a goal and two assists. Carl Boomhower earned a goal and assist, Bob Boyle and Jim Woodcock two assists each, Roy Maracle and Harold Townsend one.

Rick Gerow and Larry Cook each had a goal and assist for Napanee. Ron Jocko and Earl Smith also scored. Jim Stinson got two helpers, Dennis Mullins, Ron Vanelstine and Bob Galt one apiece.

Goalies Brant and Bell stopped 20 shots each.

Belleville's next start is in Picton this Thursday night.

Final Decision Today

Racing Bodies Consider Amalgamation

EDMONTON (CP)—Delegates to the annual national conference of racing agreed Monday to consider formation of an association of all thoroughbred and harness racing organizations.

A special meeting was called for today for a final decision.

Monday's meeting, at which John Mooney, president of the Jockey Club of Ontario was chairman, was closed to the press.

Sid Pratt of Ottawa, chief of race track supervision of the federal agriculture department, said formation of a nation-wide association would be a major step forward.

"As things stand now," he said in an interview, "racing is a $200,000,000 industry with no recognized central office."

The association, which would be named after lawyers study the proposed framework, would provide a central voice for all track operators and lead to uniformity which has been lacking, Pratt said.

UNDER STATE CONTROL

"A national organization would give us an opportunity to build something more solid than the United States has," he said, "because American associations are operated basically under state control."

Canada now has only four operating commissions—in British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario and Prince Edward Island.

Some provinces are governed by socities which have less authority, and the Maritimes, where harness racing is the only form of racing, is controlled by the United States Trotting Association.

Bill Connolly of Edmonton, president of Western Harness Racetways, said head office for the organization probably would be established in Ottawa, "because we've all under federal jurisdiction".

Pratt said harness racing has reached the stage in its growth where an outlook of more national scope is necessary.

In 1953, there were fewer than 100 harness racing days in Canada, he said, compared with more than 1,000 days last year.

Lightfoots Turn Back Cobourg

Seven of Belleville's eight players shared in the point production, led by Bob Smith who hooped 20 points. Don Smith was second in line with 15 points and Ian Houchin hit for 10.

Veteran Dennis Clarke sparked the Cobourg squad with a 17-point effort. Cy Sayers helped the cause with 11 points.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

One of the worst things you can do in playing the game of hockey is develop the habit of shifting in the same direction each time when you're coming down the ice and trying to evade an opponent, particularly a defenceman.

Righthanders invariably will shift to their left. And nine out of ten times, among younger players, particularly, lefthanders naturally go to their right.

You come sailing down the ice, carrying the puck two or three feet to one side.

If you have a defenceman who tries to play the puck, all you have to do is more or less give it to him, then pull it back like a yo-yo, and draw it around him.

All you have to do is worry about getting the puck around him. However, if you're in the habit of making this same move each time, the defenceman will play your body. The second you draw the puck back, boom, he's right there.

That's why it is important to vary your tactics. If the defenceman is undecided which way you may go, he has to hold his ground, be ready to go either way. He can't commit himself and play position, anticipating your move.

Bruce MacGregor was getting into the dangerous habit of coming down the right side, then pulling in towards centre ice to get around the defenceman. He was flirting with "Murderer's row."

It's "Murderer's row" because the other defenceman may be staggered behind him, in the mood to hit you. Or you could have the centreman or the other wingman coming in there.

You can really get clipped hard in this position because it's your blind side. You're pulling into it and a fellow can crease you real good.

Now when Bruce comes down the right side, he takes a look. If the ice is clear, he will manoeuvre in this spot. If not, he goes the other way. He has learned to go either way, breaking himself of a bad habit.

Minor Hockey

Belleville Oddfellows discovered early this morning that all the good hockey players in the bantam division are not in their lineup.

Oddfellows are the city's OMHA bantam representatives. An all-star team from the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's bantam city league was formed on the spur of the moment late yesterday and an exhibition was arranged against the Oddfellows.

The pick-up team whitewashed Oddfellows 2-0 at 6:00 this morning.

Paul Hopkins got the shutout in the winners' nets. Reid Mallory scored the first goal, assisted by Jim Drummond, and Brad Atkinson added the second, aided by Bill Bunnett.

A minor hockey spokesman said: "It was a good workout for both teams and it proved to the Oddfellows that there are some good players who can help their team, if they want them. In our city league."

'If He's Not Too Old'

Marciano Picks Liston

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP)—Rocky Marciano said Monday he doesn't expect Cassius Clay to hold on long to the world's heavyweight boxing crown which he lifted from Sonny Liston.

The former champion predicted that Liston will regain the title "if he doesn't get too old before they meet."

The return match, postponed because of Clay's hernia operation, is set tentatively for April. Marciano doubts that it will come off that early. He thinks it will be put off for one reason or another to June or July, maybe later.

The delay, he said in an interview, may hurt Liston because the challenger was all primed and keyed up at the time of the postponement and may suffer from the let-down.

Marciano, 40, who retired in 1955 after 49 straight triumphs and no defeats, now is a businessman.

Morgan Mason, Age Nine, 'Has Had Fill of Acting'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Morgan Mason, after four months of acting the role of Elizabeth Taylor's son, is prepared to announce his retirement. He is nine.

This is one of the tidbits by Morgan's mother, Pamela Mason, just returned from the Paris filming of Flight of The Sandpiper. She had been suffering from laryngitis, but she had recovered enough to deliver a few tart comments on the film and its participants.

Of her son's career, she reported: "He's back in school here and I never thought it would happen, but he's glad of it. I think he's had his fill of acting.

"It was a long, long picture. Seven weeks in Monterey, two weeks here and nine weeks in Paris. I don't think he would have minded so much if he had been working all the time. But he would be called only two days a week.

"There were countless delays. At first they were working six days a week in Paris, but Elizabeth put a stop to that. And all of her bathing suit scenes in Monterey were re-shot because she finally lost 15 pounds."

Mrs. Mason said she only visited the set twice during the entire filming. Her absences were on purpose. For one thing, she didn't want Morgan to feel any conflict of authority between the director and herself.

"And also, people on the picture are terrified of me because I talk," she added.

She is just as happy that Morgan is now more interested in an aviation career, rather than acting. His father, Jerry Mason, also hopes the boy doesn't grow up to be an actor. Said Mrs. Mason: "Acting is not a satisfactory line of work for men."

The recently divorced Masons were again united in Europe with their children — daughter Portland was also on the trip. Despite the cosiness of the family picture, Pamela remains pointed in her remarks about her former husband.

"I think people like James are so silly in living in Switzerland for a tax advantage," she commented. "It's such a dismal place to live, anyway. I'd much rather pay my taxes and live where I want."

Reds Get Craig, Jones From Cards

CINCINNATI (AP) — Roger Craig, the losingest pitcher in the National League in 1962-63, and power - hitting Charley James have been acquired by Cincinnati Reds in a trade with St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cardinals got knuckleball artist Bob Purkey and a minor league player, to be named later, in the swap announced Monday by Reds owner William O. Dewitt.

Promoter Ed Quinn Is Dead

NORTH HAMPTON, N.H. (AP)—Eddie Quinn, for many years a well-known sports promoter in Montreal, died Monday at the age of 58.

Quinn, a native of Waltham, Mass., had been retired from active promotion of boxing and wrestling cards for more than a year because of poor health. He and his wife purchased a nursing home here last June.

Taking over wrestling promotion for the Montreal Forum in 1939, Quinn became known as an able and colorful matchmaker. He also promoted the light heavyweight boxing bouts between champion Archie Moore and Canadian Yvon Durelle in 1958 and 1959.

Quinn was active in promoting wrestling in New York, Washington, Los Angeles, Chicago and St. Louis.

Picton's Guardsmen Sound Off

A Beatle-Beat Amid Cyprus Hostility

By ALAN WALKER

NICOSIA (CP)—Rifles, mess kits, guitars, pistols . . . wait a minute! Guitars? Hardly routine gear for war.

It's true, though. Enough instruments to equip a rock 'n' roll group flew more than 5,000 miles from Canada to Cyprus as official equipment for the Canadian Guards.

Guardsman Gene Scott, 19, of Hamilton smacked out a steady beat on his full set of drums at a recent platoon party deep in the Kyrenia hills in the midst of hostile Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot positions.

Guardsmen and officers danced the Twist as Beatle music crashed inside a khaki tent over dusty gravel.

In front of Scott four soldiers plucked electric guitars.

The officers figured this would be good for morale," Scott yelled above the din, "so they shipped all our instruments across the ocean and now we get together every time there's a party anywhere in the battalion area."

LEADS GROUP

Pte. John Mansfield, 27, of Westfield, N.S., is the leader of the Fireflies' group. It started in Germany a year or so ago when the Guards were stationed there with the NATO contingent.

All the musicians do full duty with the United Nations peacekeeping force here so they don't get time to practise. "These are our pastimes," Pte. Mansfield said with a grin.

The musicians took a break and gathered around to sip beer. Gdsm. Neil Jarvis, 26, of Weymouth, N.S. plays lead guitar. Gdsm. Ron Surette, 21, of Moncton, N.B., backs Jarvis up with another guitar. Gdsm. Al Morton, 26, of Yarmouth, N.S., plays bass guitar.

Scott, the odd man out, so to speak," Pte. Mansfield said, pointing to the drummer.

"All the rest of us come from down east, but we like him anyway."

None of them reads music and they memorize tunes off records. They love the Beatles and play and sing a lot of their songs.

The men clamored for more music to back up a beer-drinking contest so the five musicians returned to their amplifiers. They played and sang far into the night.

HAS SONG WRITERS

The battalion boasts two song writers too. Guardsmen Tony Philip Cheverie, 24, of Souris, P.E.I., plan to teach some of their music to the fireflies.

"We can't write the music down," Gdsm. Cheverie said, "but we've got the words all figured out and I have a sort of a tune in my head."

Keeping peace can be boring for Canadian soldiers so the battalion officers encourage get-togethers where the men can unwind. A platoon from No. 2 Company was due to change position so its commander, Cpl. Bob Watson, 27, of Hespeler, Ont., hastily organized a party. "It's as good an excuse as any," he said. And then added the puzzling remark:

"Besides, it's Wednesday night."

College Body Sets Finals Date

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian University hockey and basketball championship games in 1966 will be played March 13-14 in Winnipeg and Halifax respectfully, the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union decided at a meeting here Monday.

Departmental Hockey

The boys in blue are beginning to make their presence felt in the Interdepartmental Hockey League race.

The Police Department upset Public Utilities 6-3 last night and knocked the losers out of first place.

Meanwhile, Public Works, who felt the Police sting by setting for a tie last week, climbed back into the league lead with an 8-3 win over the Ontario Intelligencer.

What looked like a two-way race, between Works and Utilities, may yet develop into a three-ply battle, according to the unofficial league standings.

Public Works has 11 points on five wins a loss and a tie, followed by Utilities with five wins and two losses, good for 10 points. Police have won two, lost three and tied two for six points. The winless Intelligencer has a lone tie against six losses, for one point.

No more league games are scheduled until January 4.

Pablo Casals, Self-Exiled Cellist, States Views on War

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—"If you could speak to all the people in the world, what would you say to them?" asked Isaac Stern.

Pablo Casals, described as the greatest cellist who ever lived, did not hesitate.

"I would ask them 'Do you like war?' I am sure all of those millions would say no. Then I would play a Bach piece for them."

This exchange was one of many precious moments Monday night in a warm and moving CBS news special about Casals, the self - exiled Spanish musician who soon will be 88 years old.

The television audience heard that "Bach piece," and much more. There was Casals philosophizing, and sharing his gift as he taught young musicians, making them repeat a few notes again and again until they achieved the exact inflection he sought.

Perhaps most rewarding was the interview with Casals in his Puerto Rico home with Stern, the great violinist.

"We are like the leaves of a tree," Casals repeated several times, "and the tree is humanity."

It was this conviction that all humanity is related and must be free, that caused him to exile himself from Spain when Franco seized power, to abandon his music for some years to work among refugees from the victims of dictatorships.

"A political person? "Wrong," he replied to Stern's question, "My action has nothing to do with politics. I feel I have to do this. I think as the simple man on the street thinks—I don't like complications. I read what the music demands and try to do my best. And it is the same thing in life."

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For DECEMBER 16

Aries (Mar. 21-April 19)—You get what you go after if you heed inner feelings. Outsiders today are not fully informed. Adhere to personal convictions. Shrug off rumors. Be concerned only with the facts.

Taurus (Apr. 20-May 20)—Cycle high. But apparent tendency is to reach too far, too high. Best to take your time. Measure words, actions. People watch, listen. Say no to schemes involving legal manoeuvre.

Gemini (May 21-June 20)—Background information essential. Do some basic research. Be sure of yourself. Then you can make rapid progress. Excellent day for working with organizations, clubs, groups.

Cancer (June 21-July 22)—Favorable lunar aspect highlights new opportunity. But you must be alert. Otherwise, you could miss chance to gain emotional strength. Do not repeat past mistakes.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22)—Career matters takes precedence. Realize you may have to "give a little." Then you actually make major gains. Key is maturity, wisdom. State needs in quiet, confident fashion.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)—Trying to patiently to get to destination could lead to complications. Be sure you are not involved in fruitless mission. Take care in traffic. Double check relevant details!

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)—Key is self-expression. Speak up! Lets others know you have mind of your own. You will earn additional respect. And then you should talk business! Otherwise, day "falls flat."

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)—Pressure likely to be applied by relatives. You must be patient, careful. Don't become involved in family disputes. Surprise everyone by being extremely tactful! Be a careful observer.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)—Key is service, serving one who seeks aid, comfort. Display sense of humor. Be careful. Then you will obtain objective—and day becomes significant one—in your favor. —pywt % Ngpt

Capricorn (Dec. 23-Jan. 19)—Good lunar aspect highlights love, change, creative activities. Important to keep promises to children. Key to wonderful day is integrity. Good for introspection, self-awareness.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)—Obtain hint from Capricorn message. Be flexible, versatile. Some changes becoming necessary. Plan to move ahead. One close to home base has great idea. Listen and analyze.

Pisces (Feb. 19-Mar. 20)—If a harmonious relations with friends, relatives essential. Lean over backwards to see various viewpoints. Then others gain respect for you. And make major concessions of their own!

If Today Is Your Birthday—you are introspective, often moody, but very creative.

General Tendencies — Money makes news. Deception appear to be involved. Headlines scream the story.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has announced a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was prompty and gently relieved . . . actual reduction of retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing. And most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of Changes in committee machinery now have to be made by separate motion in the Commons.

5. Each MP should be a member of at least one of the nine standing committees and a member of one of six other committees.

The proposed nine standing committees would be grouped in this way:

1. Agriculture, forestry and rural development.
2. Citizenship, immigration legal affairs.
3. Cultural affairs.
4. External affairs and defence.
5. Finance, trade and economic affairs.
6. Health, welfare and veterans affairs.
7. Labor, industry and urban development.
8. Natural resources.
9. Transport and communications.

There would be six other committees — privileges and elections; procedure and organization; public accounts; Crown corporations; delegated legislation; private bills.

The proposed committee on delegated legislation would be a "watchdog" committee charged with reporting to Parliament any tendency of the cabinet to exceed its authority.

It would examine all government regulations requiring the spending of money, contain immunity from court action, having a retroactive effect not previously sanctioned by Parliament, revealing unusual or unexpected use of statutory power or exceeding the purpose of the law approved by Parliament.

The committee's report said Parliament's effectiveness would be improved if the House adjourns for certain periods during which committees would be able to meet for a week at a time.

Commons work would be expedited and "it is probable greater public attention would be directed towards committee activities." MPs should be able "to attend to constituency business in their ridings for a week at a time."

The first two-week break should come after the finance minister tables the book of spending estimates. It was explained later at a press conference that this would mean completing the 10-day throne speech debate at the start of the session and, probably, the eight-day budget debate before the first adjournment of two weeks.

DISCUS COUNSEL

Mr. Olson told a press conference that the subcommittee discussed the question of providing a counsel for the various committees but had made no specific recommendation on the question. However, he noted that other reports sent to the Commons recommended strengthening the committee staff.

Many of the recommendations, if accepted by the Commons, would require legislative changes to the Commons rules and, in some cases, legislation.

Mr. Olson said the committee proposes that it be kept alive to prepare the required changes.

Gordon Fairweather (PC—Royal), one of the subcommittee members, said the members feel the day of short parliamentary session is over, leaving MPs with a serious problem of communication with people in their ridings. In the winter an MP would have for constituency affairs, he would be able to schedule events requiring his attendance.

Mr. Fairweather noted a similar system is in operation in Australia and Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West) said West Germany's Parliament works on a similar schedule.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) argued that the recommendations will only give backbenchers a better opportunity to make their mark and give them more forums from which to expound ideas. Public attention also would be given undivided focus on the committees during the two-week adjournment.

Pauline Jewett (L—Northumberland) argued that the proposed schedule will discourage absenteeism among MPs.

Larger Planning Boards Is Trend Members Told

PICTON (Staff) — In county council Monday afternoon, J. C. E. Pearson, of the Community Planning Branch, addressed council. He said there was a trend to larger planning boards taking in 12 to 15 municipalities. He urged that the planning board continue and stated that "growth," needs planning by a professional planning officer.

He recommended that county council appoint a committee to determine how much planning is needed and also to ascertain how much planning has been done in the past. This committee would visit each of the municipalities and discuss planning problems with them. Asked about government assistance Mr. Pearson stated that there was none available now but that there may be in the future.

Gordon Walmsley, a member of the High School Board for the past 20 years and previous to that time a member of the Public School Board for ten years, announced that he will retire from the board in another three months. He said council should get busy now and make plans for the high school extension. The present school, built in 1952, has had three extensions already. By next year, Mr. Walmsley said, there will be approximately 1,300 students or better.

By 1968 an enrolment of 1,920 is expected. Something should be ready to meet this problem. Originally the plan was to build the school in Wellington where some 14 acres has been purchased for this purpose. H. Colliver said that a secondary school was needed but he stated that "it would hardly appear feasible that we would erect another school 12 miles away. No firm decision has as yet been reached as to where another secondary school might be located.

Councillors, Mayor Get Pay Increases

PICTON (Staff) — A motion was proposed by Councillor J. Bird and seconded by R. Clapp, both retiring councillors, for an increase of pay for councillors to $10 per meeting and for mayor, reeve and deputy reeve $15. The motion was carried. A by-law was passed authorizing the firm of S. Allen to begin surveying with regard to the annexation of part of Hallowell township with the town of Picton. An application is to be made to the Ontario Municipal Board for the approval.

Fred Juby, town foreman for the past five years, retired from this office. He will be replaced temporarily by Angus LeHeup until a replacement is hired. Mr. Juby is retiring because of ill health.

Children in County Guests Of Kiwanis Club at Party

PICTON (Staff) — 45 underprivileged children from Prince Edward County Monday night participated in the Kiwanis Club's annual children's party. Each year Santa visits these children at the Kiwanis party at the Royal Hotel where he gives candies, oranges and presents to each child. Each boy and girl receives an article of clothing and a toy or game. In past years Picton Kiwanians have treated the children to a turkey dinner. This year the menu was changed to chocolate milk, hot dogs and ice cream, which the children relished with gusto. Members of the Kiwanis Club and their wives acted as hosts to the children, helped them in serving their dinner and also sang carols and Christmas songs, while waiting for St. Nick to arrive. Most Kiwanians felt that this year's party was a greater success than last evidenced by the manner in which the small fry tucked away the hot dogs and milk.

Lightfoot Receives Contract For Sewers

PICTON (Staff) — At Monday night's meeting of town council, chairman of the fire committee, Lindley Calnan, in his report stated that no meeting of the committee was held during the month. There were five minor fires attended. The fire inspections are under way, said Mr. Calnan, and the fire chief feels that these inspections are doing a lot of good. In some instances citizens are coming to the fire department with regard to preventing fire hazards. The town, Mr. Calnan continued, is indeed fortunate in having such a good chief.

Four building permits, totalling $9,600, were approved by council at the meeting.

Lightfoot Construction Co. was awarded the contract for the installation of the west end storm sewers. Their tender was for $14,995, it was the lower of the two bids tendered. The other tender was Tatham Construction Co. at $14,602.00. The net tender of Lightfoots was $200 lower than that of Tatham in view of contingencies.

NATO Will

the three-day NATO ministerial conference began behind closed doors with a discussion of world issues and NATO political problems.

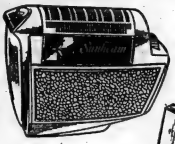
There was widespread recognition with the alliance that East-West tensions have eased, although there still is some question what direction the foreign policy of the new Soviet leadership will take.

As the meeting opened, fears that unyielding positions on the shape of a nuclear force might lead to a clash within the alliance virtually vanished. The threat of a NATO crisis had receded, with the day of nuclear decision-making postponed, possibly until early in the new year.

The United States assured France on the eve of the conference that it had no intention of isolating France from any future Atlantic nuclear force.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk also informed French President de Gaulle that the door would always be open to France to join any nuclear force that may emerge.

Meanwhile, British Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville agreed in principle that Prime Minister Harold Wilson and de Gaulle should meet but they did not decide on a time or place.



Later, the Big Four western foreign ministers, at a working dinner, agreed to the plea of West Germany's Gerhard Schroeder that the question of German reunification be kept to the forefront.

There will be discussion at the ministerial conference just how this point should be handled in the communique to be issued Thursday or Friday.

Move In Senate To Kill Off Maple Leaf Flag

Senator O'Leary Moves To Suspend Action

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—A fresh flood of flag talk welled up in Parliament Tuesday, highlighted by a move in the Senate to kill off the yet-unborn red maple leaf flag.

In the Commons another hassle developed over a special committee's report recommending that the Union Jack be designated as the symbol of Canada's allegiance to the Queen and membership in the Commonwealth.

Both houses were headed for more of the same today.

Tuesday's events were an anti-climax, however, to Monday night's roaring wind-up of the Commons' unsin flag debate in which a closure - imposed vote adopted the maple leaf flag, 163 to 78, after 33 days of bitter argument.

The chosen design is a single red leaf on a white ground with a red panel at each side.

But it requires Senate endorsation and a proclamation by the Queen before it can fly over the nation.

MAKES BID

Add to deny that endorsation was made by Senator Grattan O'Leary of—Ottawa, who moved that the government suspend action on the maple leaf flag and replace it with a design incorporating "appropriate symbols of the founding peoples of this nation."

The motion might reach a vote today.

The 75 - year - old Conservative told the Senate: "You cannot take a naked bit of foliage and put it on a piece of bunting and call it a flag."

His motion recalled the argument advanced repeatedly by Conservatives in the Commons debate that a Canadian flag ought to include both the Union Jack and the fleur-de-lis.

Senator O'Leary stressed that he was not arguing for retention of the Canadian Red Ensign for a national flag plebiscite, favorite topics of Conservative MPs.

But a flag without the symbols of the past was no flag at all and "if for one refuse to believe that the majority of the people of Quebec want to tear the last vestige of the Union Jack symbol from the Canadian flag."

TORIES TURN OUT

Although Conservative senators have insisted they do not intend to filibuster the flag resolution, observers noted that 31 of the 33 Conservative mem-

African Bloc In UN Split

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—A split in the African bloc developed during the UN Security Council debate on The Congo Tuesday as Nigeria endorsed the Belgian-American paratroop rescue of hostages held by Congolese rebels.

Foreign Minister Jaja Wachuku made a blistering attack on some other African states for aiding the Congo rebels and said their charges of Belgian-American aggression were "of no consequence whatsoever."

The Congo government had every right to call for such help and the Western countries had every right to supply it, he said, particularly since other African countries had turned their back on Congo requests for aid in stabilizing the country.

His voice was the first from Africa to be raised in the council in defence of the mission. Since last Wednesday a succession of African foreign ministers have condemned it in language that some Western diplomats describe as the harshest they have ever used against the West.

The chorus of invective condemning the mission was expected to continue today despite the Nigerian's attempt to quiet it.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — A vigorous storm is moving through Northern Ontario which is experiencing temperatures near zero, snow and strong winds. Milder air is spreading into southern and central Ontario in the southerly flow in advance of this weather disturbance. However, as the storm moves into Quebec Thursday, strong northerly winds will bring a return to colder temperatures. The snow in the north country is expected to continue into Thursday but should decrease in intensity.

2 Dead In Alta. Blizzard

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One of the worst Prairie blizzards in history slammed Saskatchewan today after causing at least two deaths in Alberta where the winds have started to subside.

One man died of exposure in Alberta and another suffered a heart attack while shovelling snow.

Temperatures dropped to 30 below zero in the storm and winds howled up to 70 miles an hour. Schools closed, travel was virtually abandoned and the public was warned to stay at home. Wind chills of 90 to 105 below were reported.

A young woman was found unconscious and partly frozen in an Edmonton parking lot Tuesday and was taken to hospital. Police picked up a man, who had frozen ears and fingers, on Highway 2 south of Edmonton. He said he was walking to Leduc, 25 miles away.

A Calgary hospital official warned residents not to walk more than four blocks in the storm.

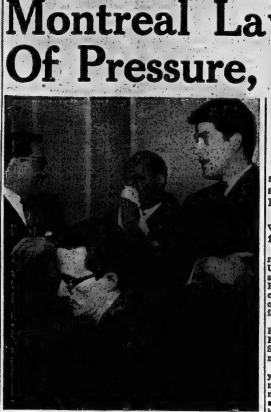
BODY FREEZES

A Calgary ambulance attendant said they were called after a man suffered a heart attack while shovelling snow. When they arrived, his body already was partially frozen.

Glen Trimming, 80, of the Red Deer district, was found dead in his shack after his wood-burning stove went out. Police said the inside temperature matched the outside reading of 30 below.

Edmonton postmen were told not to complete their afternoon deliveries Tuesday and a Calgary milk company official said some of his drivers were still trying to complete their calls at midnight.

Some areas in southern Alberta reported electrical failures Tuesday.



As the worst of the storm struck Saskatchewan, the southwestern part of the province was plunged into darkness when two power lines touched, causing a short circuit. Repairs will be made about two hours later.

In Winnipeg Tuesday a windwhipped snowfall dumped 2.1 inches of snow. Rural students in western Manitoba, around Brandon and at Melita, were sent home Tuesday at noon, but Winnipeg officials said no roads were blocked and normal classes would resume today.

Pierre Lamontagne Tells Inquiry Of Attempts to Free Mafia Suspect

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Lawyer Pierre Lamontagne testified Tuesday he was subjected last summer to Liberal political pressure, bribery attempts, blackmail and slanderous rumors by persons seeking the release of a narcotics suspect linked to the dreaded Mafia.

Appearing at the opening session of the Dorion judicial inquiry, he said he was pestered for two months to drop his opposition to legal moves aimed at freeing Lucien Rivard on bail from Bordeaux Jail in Montreal.

Mr. Lamontagne, 29, of Montreal, has been acting for the United States government for six months, trying to obtain Rivard's extradition so that he can be tried in Laredo, Texas, on charges of smuggling heroin for a Mafia-ruled dope ring.

In 24¼ hours of testimony in French before Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court, R. Lamontagne made the following allegations:

1. That Raymond Denis, 31-year-old Montreal lawyer, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay and an "excellent friend" of his, offered him a $20,000 bribe July 14 if he would stop fighting Rivard's application for release on bail.

FRIEND OF LIBERALS

2. That Mr. Denis described Rivard, 48-year-old owner of a Montreal summer resort, as a "good friend of the Liberal party" who had contributed campaign funds in the past and would be useful in the next federal election.

3. That Guy Rouleau, 41-year-old chairman of the Liberal caucus and former parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson, telephoned him Aug. 11 and 12 asking him to help obtain Rivard's release as a favor.

4. That Mr. Rouleau said the Liberal party had treated Mr. Lamontagne well and was displeased with his continued opposition to the Rivard bail application; that the MP and his brother Raymond were ready to guarantee that Rivard would no: skip bail.

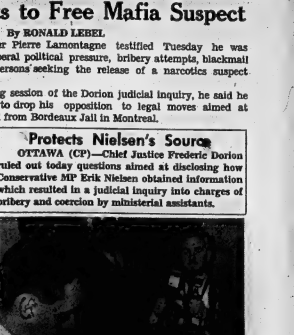
5. That telephone callers identifying themselves as Guy Lord and Andre Letendre, respectively former asst.-present executive assistants to Justice Minister Favreau, told him Aug. 4 and 11 the minister was unhappy with his opposition to bail and implied they would cut off further government work for him.

(Mr. Lamontagne said he didn't know Mr. Lord nor Mr. Letendre and that the calls could have been placed by impostors. He had learned later that Mr. Favreau knew nothing about the two calls at the time.)

6. That Raymond Daoust, a prominent Montreal criminal lawyer who was representing Rivard, called him July 21 at his parents' cottage near Chicoutimi and said he understood bail for his client could be "fixed," that he seemed to know about Mr. Denis' bribe offer.

7. That a man identifying himself as Bob Gingras called him twice the same night to ask why he still refused to "cooperate" when bail for Rivard had been "fixed;" that this man said he knew something about a trip Mr. Lamontagne had made that he wouldn't want his wife to know.

8. That false rumors swept Montreal legal circles in August that he had accepted a $10,000 bribe in return for helping Rivard go free.



Mr. Lamontagne will be back in the witness box today for cross - examination by 16 outside lawyers, he represent the five political parties, the justice ass. immigration departments, the RCMP and the principals in the inquiry.

Free U. S. - Canada Trade In Cars, Parts 'Buttoned-up'

WASHINGTON (CP) — Free trade in autos and original parts between Canada and the United States is "almost buttoned up," informants here said Tuesday.

U.S. officials conferred twice Tuesday with labor and auto representatives and scheduled another meeting today.

Approaches will be made at Geneva next week to clear the bilateral matter with the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. An "open-end" clause would extend the same preferences to Europeans and others who enjoy most-favored-nation status under GATT.

Another Canada-U.S. meeting will not be held for at least 10 days, officials indicated. They said there is no reason to believe that the special congressional approval required will be difficult to achieve.

Canada apparently has given the U.S. a year to push the legislation through. If all works well, it would have the effect of expanding Canadian production and cutting Canadian prices.

There may be some features in the congressional legislation to make it retroactive, it was indicated. But the auto-down period, in which the Canadian and American auto and parts industries adjust, would take about two years to square away.

This might lead, it is suggested, to some extension of the present formula to include replacement parts as well as tariff exemption on parts going into new cars.

The arrangement would replace the existing tariff structure whereby Canada charges

Duke Undergoes Surgery

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The 70-year-old Duke of Windsor underwent a 67-minute operation today for removal of a large blister on an abdominal artery.

His Royal Highness tolerated surgery well," a hospital spokesman said. "The resection of the aorta involved an area of 10 to 12 centimetres." (About four to five inches.)

The resection involved the replacement of an aneurysm—a ballooning blister the size of an orange—on the aorta with a synthetic tube.

The hospital spokesman said the duke faces "a three-hour recovery period" but he did not elaborate.

The operation began at 7:32 a.m. and ended at 8:39 a.m.

The duke was placed under anaesthesia at 7:32 a.m. The operation began three minutes later.

Four to six nurses, a cardiologist and an anaesthetist, and two assistant doctors were in the operating room.

5 NATO Lands Plan Nuclear Force Study

PARIS (CP) — Five North Atlantic Alliance countries have decided to move ahead with consideration of a nuclear multilateral force (MLF) despite the blunt charge by France that such a force would be either a sham or another proliferation of nuclear weapons.

After meeting briefly outside the NATO ministerial conference Tuesday night, the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, West Germany, The Netherlands and Italy agreed to hold a meeting of deputy ministers next month to consider further action on various NATO nuclear force plans.

Earlier in the day, External Affairs Minister Paul Martin of Canada urged the foreign ministers of the 15-country alliance to keep nuclear, discussions within the NATO framework. Otherwise, he said, separate bargaining might lead to a separate organization that one day might become a rival of NATO itself.

Martin told a press conference later he believed he succeeded in getting his point across, and that there would be a great deal of care and lengthy discussion before any final decision is reached. He was sure that NATO members were so responsible that they would not take a step that could disrupt and disunite the alliance.

But as Martin spoke, there were indications the nuclear cleavage within NATO had not been overcome. An American spokesman said the brief outside meeting which lasted about 10 minutes was open to attendance by all NATO members though only five countries decided to attend.

Martin said, however, he had not received any invitation and a French spokesman said France also had received no notice of the gathering. But both added that even if they had been invited, they would not have attended. Canada does not intend to join any NATO nuclear force and France favors instead a separate European deterrent under French leadership.

LIBERALS CELEBRATE VICTORY — A group of Liberal members of Parliament holds up the single red maple leaf flag, cheering and singing "O Canada" early Tuesday morning after a 163 to 78 vote victory for the design as Canada's new national flag.

Want Atomic Mines on German Border

PARIS (Reuters)—West Germany's defence minister, Kaiuew von Hassel, told the NATO council of ministers today there is strong military support for putting nuclear land mines along the East - West German border to deter Communist attack, delegation sources said.

Von Hassel expressed satisfaction that there had been a "large measure of agreement" in the NATO military committee, when it recently discussed West German ideas for "forward strategy," which included the nuclear mine project, the sources said.

The sources said the nuclear mines concerned are American and would remain under U.S. control. They would be intended to act as a nuclear "tripwire" to deter a Communist attack without involving strategic retaliation.

The sources made it clear the mines would not go off automatically if troops moved into the area, but would have to be exploded by defenders and would have elaborate safety devices.

German sources said the idea for placing the nuclear mines on the border originated in Washington.

Observers said it would tend to increase West Germany's feeling of security even in a situation when the United States would not wish to throw in its strategic weapons.

New High School Will Be Re-located on Palmer Rd., Year's Business Concluded

The Bay of Quinte High School Board wound up its business for the past last night with a meeting lasting well in to the morning hours.

The board approved in principle for the re-location of the proposed new high school on Palmer Road in West Belleville, mainly to allow for the provision of a roadway which would allow passage through to the Sir Mackenzie Bowell public school.

The school will still be constructed on the same property but the building will be re-located to allow for the roadway.

High school board trustees will be paid next year according to the number of meetings attended, plus auto mileage. Pay for trustees at present is limited to $60 per year, plus mileage.

Advisory Vocational Board member C. E. Walton will resign from the board after several years' membership. Mrs. Margaret Bradley has been named senior secretary at the Moira Secondary School office.

EXPRESS SATISFACTION

The board expressed its satisfaction to the Children's Aid Society which has been handling the school attendance officer's duties.

A photo copying machine was authorized purchased for the board office and snowplowing at the three schools for the coming winter was awarded to the same firms doing the job last year.

Resignations from four high school teachers were received, while hiring three replacement teachers was ratified.

Chairman of the board's business board chairman Gerald Wishart expressed his appreciation to board members for their efforts and co-operation during the year.

TEAM SUCCEEDS

HAMILTON (CP)—A team of scientists including one Canadian working at the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory in Berkeley, Calif., has succeeded in producing what is believed to be the lightest alpha radioactive isotopes known to man, McMaster University announced Tuesday. The team headed by R. D. MacFarlane of McMaster has used a high energy nuclear accelerator to produce light isotopes of tellurium and to exhibit a weak radioactivity.

Acadians Have No Intention To Separate

MONTREAL (CP)—Premier Louis Robichaud of New Brunswick told Quebecers Tuesday that the Acadians in his province had no intention of following the "small separatist group in Quebec in its dangerous pessimistic adventure."

Mr. Robichaud, first Acadian elected premier of New Brunswick, told the Montreal Chamber of Commerce how French-speaking people of his province had learned to live happily with the English and suggested Quebec could do likewise.

He said that for almost 200 years the Acadians and the descendants of the United Empire Loyalists who left New England after refusing to join in the American revolution against Britain have shared the territory of the province.

He said understanding has emerged and the "accent" moved gradually from recriminations of the past toward the creation of a better future."

"The results are almost miraculous. . . . Two ethnic groups feel that they are more and more interdependent as they discover their common interests."

"The true solution, and I believe that we in New Brunswick have found it, is to be found in the art of compromise that enables us to live together. . . . The over - dramatization of daily problems or the over - simplification of ideal solutions have never produced anything but violence and we wish no part of that," he said.

REPORT NEW TB CASES

OTTAWA (CP) — A total of 407 new cases of tuberculosis were reported in September, of which 73 were classed as reactivated, the bureau of statistics said Tuesday. The January-September total of new tuberculosis cases was 3,725, down 261 from the 4,706 total of the corresponding period last year. Gets 3 Months For Non-Support

A man charged in Hastings County family court yesterday was given a maximum three months sentence for being delinquent in support of his family.

Family court Judge T. Y. Wills imposed the sentence as a penalty for failing to meet a schedule of support payments under the Deserted Wives Act.

TB Group Hears Report on Tests

The regular monthly meeting of the management committee of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association was held with the president, Mr. C. W. Fraser, presiding. There was a good turn-out of members.

Dr. J. R. McSherry reported that the tuberculin testing of children in Grades 9 and 13 throughout the county had been completed, but that he could not give a full report as not all of the tests given at the Trenton school had been read. He stated that he had found a much larger percentage of positive reactors in the Trenton school than usual, but that the percentages of the other schools in the county were about the same as usual. He also reported on a tuberculin testing of Sub-Pack in Belleville that he had been asked to make, but he could give no final report of this testing as the readings had not been completed.

The testing was carried out by Mrs. Bruce White of Madoc on the families of positive reactors in the schools. Mrs. White reported that she had been very well received by these families and would be returning in a month or two as a further check-up. Prior to mak ing the visits, she had called on the M.O.H. in each area, and in each case, he received approval. To date she has completed the areas covered by the schools in Bancroft, Stirling, Marmora, Madoc and Tweed. The team of Toronto will be done in the near future.

A recent showing of the film "The Quiet Betrayal", had been made in Trenton. It was reported by Mr. Wm. H. Nickle, and he felt that this was very well received. Other films have been set up. New health education pamphlets available on the respiratory diseases and smoking were reviewed, and Dr. A. C. McKenzie, of the Ontario Chest Clinic mentioned that pamphlets on lung cancer were available as well.

The chairman of social and rehabilitation, Mrs. Maurreen Bridges, gave a most interesting and complete report on her work with the patients and their families. A recent visit to Ongwanada Sanatorium had been made to distribute Christmas gifts to the patients.

The seal sale chairman, Mr. R. Foran, thanked the members of his committee for their assistance. A report was given on the returns to date, which are slightly down over the same period of the previous campaign.

Plan to Rob Wellington Store Backfired Court Told

TRENTON — A tale of conspiracy to enter and rob a Wellington store, that backfired when one of the conspirators could not contain his impatience half an hour longer, was unfolded in Trenton court yesterday.

Two Trenton area youths, Wayne James Morrison and Edward Franklin Patrick were charged jointly with the conspiracy, and pleaded guilty to the charge.

The court was told by Constable Sidney Vickers that he had learned of the intent to enter Downs' Dry Goods Store through Chief Marvin of Wellington village, who had learned of it through an "informant."

The plot thickened when Patrick reported his car stolen to Constable Vickers at 2:15 a.m. on December 12. His plan had been (according to a statement by the youths), to report the car stolen at 2 a.m. The car was recovered on Front Street, with Morrison at the wheel and a bag of "burglar's tools" in the trunk. Patrick pleaded guilty also to causing public mischief and Morrison is being in possession of the tools.

The youths will appear in Belleville on Friday for sentencing.

Board Will Not Lower Rates to Hockey Team

TRENTON — A delegation from the Trenton Junior "C" hockey team was told by members of the Community Gardens Commission at the regular monthly meeting of the Board Monday night, that the Board would not go lower than its latest offer to the team in reference to the rental rate.

Rex Glover and Gordon Webb from the Junior "C" team were advised by the Gardens' board that the hourly ice-rental practice rate would remain at $15 and that the Board would expect a $60 guarantee and a 50-50 split on the gate receipts. The Junior "C" team meant to reserve its contract with the Board, but the Junior "C" cancelled their contract on December 4.

Board members claim the Senior C's can breathe a sigh of relief as the suggested set up and that the Gardens cannot afford to lose money on the deal.

Formerly, the team sport from one-and-a-half hours to three hours in practice and alternate Wednesday nights and Saturday games played on the other Wednesday nights in the month.

Commission chairman Daniel Seuki told the delegation he was anxious to have the contract either renewed or terminated as other customers are anxious to take up the Wednesday night ice time kept open for the Junior C's.

RCAF Mixed Spiel Won by Skip Lagroix

TRENTON — RCAF Trenton Curling Club held a successful one-day mixed curling bonspiel on Saturday, December 12. There was a two-way tie for three-game high with 30 points between Ed Morrison and Sgt. Lagroix and after checking their total scores, Sgt. Lagroix won by only two rocks, with G/C Morrison taking three-game high runner-up.

W/C Bain won the two-game high and Dusty Miller took the two-game runner-up. One game high went to Mrs. Graham and WO2 Clark was the runner-up. Teams from Trenton Curling and RCAF Curling Club participated in this one day spiel.

Ken Clark and his crew won only one game, but it turned out to be a big one. They played a six-ender and now are qualified to represent the club in the Molson's Six Ender Club.

For making the day a success a vote of thanks goes to WO2 Clark and Cpl. Gardiner.

A notice to all curlers in the Quinte area who have nothing to do between Christmas and New Years. RCAF Trenton Curling Club offers a Bonspiel under the auspices of the Trenton Bonspiel, 26th to 30th December. Trophies will be given (first come basis) with four events, and three games guaranteed.

Board Releases Lions Club From Pledge

TRENTON — The members of the Trenton Board of Education, meeting in a brief session Monday night, voted to write to the Trenton Lions' Club and release them from its pledge to donate $25,000 towards construction costs of a swimming pool. The Lions' efforts have turned down the high school pool, which would have meant a big investment by the town of $29,000.

The Quinte Disabled Persons' Club will also be released from its pledge of $1,000 towards the pool.

The board also voted to renew its contract with the community gardens board, under the new rate structure of $15 an hour for non-profit rate. The board pays for school children to practise hockey two hours a week.

Geoffrey Robinson, an electronics engineer with Erie Technological Products Ltd., was appointed to the high school board of trustees' advisory committee. Present plans call for an "on-the-job" training program, by which occupational students will be taken on tours of factories once a week.

The board also voted to sell the boiler from the North Trenton school, which is being replaced by a larger boiler, on that the present school and the new addition can both be heated by one unit. The new addition to the school is scheduled for completion near the end of January, but allowing for delays, students will probably be in the new part of the school by the end of February.

TRY! TRY! TRY! TRY! TRY!
Most people like to try something that is strange to them before they will buy it. We thing that this applies especially to sporting goods such as skis, ski boots and toboggans.
We at Canadian Tire have every one of these types of items for rent by the hour, day, weekend, week or month. It makes sense that people who are not sure if they like this sport would prefer to rent equipment rather than buying it.
This aplies to other rental lines of ours such as mechanics tools, household equipment such as Hoover Rug Shampooers, floor polishers, scrubbers etc. . . . recreation equipment, sporting goods, painting equipment and plumbers tools.
Our motto is "TRY BEFORE YOU BUY". We rent what we sell and we sell what we rent. Call us at WO 8-6701 or visit our store at the corner of Coleman and Harriet Streets.

Chocolates Come High For Accused

TRENTON — Magistrate R. Y. Jackson said in Trenton court yesterday he wondered if the "modern method of displaying merchandise in stores," (leaving it in open display), was not a "temptation" to shop lifters.

The comment arose out of a charge against William Milton Vezeau, of stealing a two-pound box of Fredericks chocolates at the Ketcheson Store on Dundas St. E.

Vezeau "paid" $25 and $3.50 costs for the chocolates . . . and lost the candy in the bargain.

Fire Chief Vance Honored By Long-time Friends at Annual Banquet of Dept.

That annual bonfire of good feeling — Belleville Fire Department's annual banquet — glowed once more last night.

This time, however, there was a large dash of sentiment to fuel the glow.

For its central figure through the years — Fire Chief Gerald Vance — it was likely the last time he would be in the chair.

Chief Vance ends more than four decades of service when he retires early next year.

And to mark the occasion they literally trotted out tributes to him last night.

The presentation of the evening was a small pony presented the chief (his hobby is horses) by long-time friend and former Belleville businessman Carson Elliott, now of Bowmanville.

The pony, draped in a silken saddlecloth, was elegantly steered upstairs to the second-floor of No. 2 Firehall on West Moira Street and marched to the head table for the presentation.

After the general excitement abated, the new addition to the chief's stable was taken out and placed at the banquet.

However, the most eloquent tribute of the evening came from former mayor L. McLean Haig, speaking for a group of the chief's long-time friends.

Mr. Haig presented Chief Vance with a purse heavy with silver half-dollars and a scroll engraved with the names of the subscribers.

"In your retirement you're going to take with you a sense of enormous respect as an intelligent, farsighted and efficient chief of our department," said Mr. Haig, "and for what you have for others, the children in particular."

"We remember what you and your department did for the children of this city . . . and I think this city owes you a very great debt of gratitude."

The references were to the annual Santa Claus parade and toy-distribution program inaugurated by the chief.

Chief Vance accepted the tributes modestly, claiming that the things he tried to emphasize during his office were "good public relations and good fire service".

Other presentations were made to the chief by Harry Rollins another long-time friend and former mayor.

The final note was sounded by Art Duncan, of Batawa, who proposed the final toast of the evening to Chief Vance's service which was "a credit to him and to the city of which he is part."

The roast-beef banquet prepared and served by city firemen was rounded off with an event close to Chief Vance's heart. Some $108 was collected among the guests — all of which will be subscribed to the department's work for underprivileged children.

New Democrats Pay Tribute To Ont. Leader

TORONTO (CP) — The New Democratic Party, buoyed by two recent byelection victories in Ontario, turned out more than 800 strong at a testimonial banquet for Provincial Leader Donald C. MacDonald Tuesday night in one of the most openly prosperous affairs in NDP history. Guests were those who had contributed more than $50 each to party funds. The evident well-being of the crowd moved Federal Leader T. C. Douglas to comment:

"It's a thrill to be here and have the opportunity of seeing how the oppressed, downtrodden proletariat of Ontario live."

The official seating count of the 850 diners in the Canadian Room of the Royal York Hotel was 879, including the byelection victors — Max Saltsman, who won the federal seat of Waterloo South, and James Renwick, winner of the Toronto Riverdale provincial riding.

Mr. MacDonald said the existence of a new political climate was shown by the presence of Mr. Saltsman and Mr. Renwick. He said people are realizing the bankruptcy of the old parties and are listening to the NDP, whereas they would not listen before.

Mr. Douglas said the real crisis in Canada is a lack of leadership while the country is passing through a period of dislocation and adjustment.

At a press conference earlier, Mr. Douglas said a federal election in June is quite possible. But he was not particularly anxious for a vote until Parliament passed some of the legislation now before it, such as the Canada Pension Plan and the federal labor code.

Prices, Labor Costs Could Rise One Per-Cent Due Pension Plan

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian prices and labor costs could be expected to rise by about one per cent with the launching of the Canada Pension Plan and its Quebec counterpart, says a government economic report.

The report, last major piece of documentation on the pension plan proposal, was outlined to the parliamentary pensions committee Tuesday by R. B. Bryce, deputy finance minister. It goes much deeper than the government white paper published last summer.

Major conclusions of the study include:

1. Over-all economic effects of the pension plan on the relationships between the business, consumer and government sectors of the economy "are on a scale which is modest in relation to the size of the adaptations regularly taking place in the economy for a variety of reasons."

2. In the early years of the pension plan, the buildup of pension reserve funds would add more to government saving than it would reduce business and personal saving. But the difference may be largely offset by additional spending by provincial governments with access to the pension funds.

3. In later years the pension plan may bring a modest reduction in national saving compared with what it might be without such a plan, "but this seems likely to be small in relation to the total volume of national saving at that time and to be overshadowed by the changes in that volume likely to be taking place as a result of economic growth and change."

12 Die On Icy Roads In Britain

LONDON (Reuters)—At least 12 persons were reported dead in Britain today after a wave of automobile accidents Tuesday night brought on by dense freezing fog and icy roads.

A blanket of fog spread to nearly all parts of the country. Plummeting temperatures threatened to turn flood-stricken areas of Wales and the west of England into icebound islands.

Nearly today, police closed off the M-1 motorway linking London and Birmingham after an accordion pile-up of 70 cars and trucks in which one man was killed.

On the M-6 motorway two persons were killed and nine were injured when 20 vehicles collided in fog and ice.

ARE CUT FREE

A dozen trapped persons had to be cut free by firemen.

In the region of Wales worst hit by weekend floods 300 buildings in New Town, Montgomeryshire, were ruined.

At the height of the flooding, the River Severn reached levels of 17 feet above normal level. It was expected to take at least a week for the flood waters to subside, provided there was no more rain.

The danger of flooding was not past in towns in the west of England as flood waters of the Severn moved toward Worcester. By Thursday Gloucester, some miles farther south, was expected to be affected.

Opposing Philosophies

On the front page of last Thursday's issue of The Ontario Intelligencer there appeared, directly under each other, two stories whose juxtaposition may have given some thoughtful readers occasion for meditation.

One of these stories reported the presentation to Dr. Martin Luther King of the Nobel Peace Prize for 1964. Said Dr. King: "Nonviolence is the answer to the crucial political and moral question of our time—the need for man to overcome oppression and violence without resorting to violence and oppression."

The other story reported a speech by the distinguished former U.S. Secretary of State, Dean Acheson. Said Mr. Acheson: "Moralistic marching" often confuse a decision on "such complicated matters as the multilateral nuclear force, a common grain price in Europe, policy in Southeast Asia . . ."

It was not planned that way, but the two stories presented the case for what some may regard as the major issue of the century, whether we must be guided by what we consider right or what we consider expedient in our search for solutions to our quarrels.

Is it impossible to reconcile Dr. King's idealism with Mr. Acheson's realism? Not unless one is dogmatically idealistic or stubbornly realistic.

Non-violence is certainly the best way of conquering violence and oppression, if it will work. But there are occasions on which it will not. What are we to do then? Resign ourselves to enduring oppression or resort to weapons whose use the idealist rightfully questions? We suggest the latter is the only realistic alternative. There are occasions when idealism must bow in realism.

But, by the same token, the man who decides every issue on the basis of what is practical is likely to discover he manufactures as many new problems as he solves. It would, for instance, be highly immoral to eliminate every communist in the world, even if we could do so without suffering the loss of a single life by retaliatory blows—and the ruthless extinction of our potential enemies would breed us a host of new ones from amongst the ranks of the present unscommitted.

In the final analysis it comes down to this: contrary to the old adage that the end never justifies the means, the end sought is the only thing that can justify the means used if the means are in any need of justification. And no means can be justified by the end if they create greater injustices than they eliminate, if they produce more suffering and death than they prevent.

This applies even to non-violent means which are not necessarily, because of the absence of violence, always free from the taint of injustice.

Pope Showed Wisdom

Pope Paul's decision to visit India showed great wisdom.

Until recent years, and even now, the Eastern and Western religions stood as two great opposing blocks, unyielding, refusing to admit they had similarities.

Similarities such as belief in a greater power, that man should not kill, that the great search in life is for truth and peace.

When Pope Paul walked amongst the Indian people understanding their sadness, visiting their sick, and sharing their laughter, he removed some of the wariness the Orientals had of Catholics, and showed them that he, the religion's leader, would meet them half way.

Realizing this, the peoples of the East and their religious leaders may openly acknowledge the similarities and now willingly work with Western religious leaders to combine and create a world-wide universal religion.

History may prove that Pope Paul's visit was a major step towards the world-wide brotherhood of man.

If by some miracle, a prophet could give a perfectly accurate description of the future, even fifty years ahead, it would sound so ridiculous, so far-fetched, that he would be laughed to scorn. This has been true now for several hundred years; it will be even more true of the century to come. The only thing we can be certain of about the future is that it will be fantastic.—Arthur Clarke, former Chairman of the British Interplanetary Society.

So long as all the increased wealth which modern progress brings, goes but to build up great fortunes, to increase luxury, and make sharper the contest between the House of Have and the House of Want, progress is not real and cannot be permanent.—Henry George in Progress and Poverty.

Iceland, the Good Society

By PETER DUVAL SMITH
in the BBC Listener

People are much the same everywhere in the world, and one place is as bad as another.

At least that is how it seems when I return to it after 20 years of travelling around.

I do not really expect any longer to find the good society, where men live as they ought to live, but in Iceland this summer for a couple of weeks I almost had the illusion that I had found it.

There were several reasons for this, and perhaps the main one was a feeling of egalitarian living such as I had not experienced for long before.

When I was first in a Communist country, in East Germany in the late 1940s, I had this feeling, a strangely heady and exciting one; for all the shabbiness and the no doubt numerous hidden injustices, this was at least a society where all people were equal in only in the sense that nobody had anything.

This was a relief, as I was quickly made to see, and I do not think I ever had this feeling again until I was in Iceland this summer.

It was not quite faded yet, though I suppose it will.

The whole population of Iceland is only about 180,000 and about half of these live in the capital of Reykjavik.

I suppose it is a fact that you could not have a good society if you had more than a certain number of people. Perhaps a couple of hundred thousand is the largest one can have to be, and a family is just what Iceland is.

Icelanders are well behaved toward each other, and on the other hand also very tolerant, and this is for the same reason that members of a family are.

The whole country would just blow up if people were not considerate of each other's foibles, and this makes for a civilised atmosphere.

People are pretty unsobcrable in Iceland, and the most hair-raising behaviour is discussed by Icelanders with acid amusement.

I find that attitudes towards sexual behaviour are a good indication of how civilised people are. In Iceland it is not so much that any thing goes, as that people realise that it's no good getting steamed up about sex.

The Icelanders have always been rather pronouncedly gother, and today the illegitimate rate is very high indeed. This fact is not considered disgusting because a lot of children are legitimised by having their parents are old enough to work and can get married.

No stigma is attached to illegitimacy, and the cruel prejudice about bastards in our so-called progressive society is entirely absent.

That people in Iceland are very sure of their rights you can see by the fact that they do not insist on them, and never talk about them as rights.

Here is a country where democracy really works, and I consider that Parliament is there to speak for them, and it elections the poll is very well over 90 percent.

There are four main parties, including a Communist Party, that manages to be revolutionary and entirely respectable at the same time.

Individuals have a genuine say in things, because the government minister is obliged to set aside one morning every week when anyone can go to see him with complaints or suggestions.

Iceland also has a most lively press and radio, and every issue is discussed with no holds barred.

All these things sound unspectacular, these are just the routine qualities of working democracy; but one has to remember how seldom such qualities are found in practice.

I do not want to overdo this leading of the Icelanders, and I will go back to the point I made that this summer was probably the last summer when I could have seen this happy state of affairs unspoiled.

The poet W. H. Auden said of Iceland:

> Fortunate Island, where all men are equal,
> But not vulgar — not yet.
> Not yet. But it is coming.

It all began during the war, when Iceland was a kind of aircraft carrier for the Allies.

(Now there are 3,000 American servicemen at an airbase at Keflavik). The Icelanders keep them shut in there. . . but the Americans have a secret weapon — television.

Iceland has no television, but there are thousands of television sets tuned to the television that the Americans have rigged up at Keflavik to prevent their people going mad with boredom during the dark Arctic winter.

This hooting television viewing has become a matter of national anxiety. The government and the leaders of intellectual life can see their national integrity being undermined by the Red Telephone Hour and Northern Lights Playhouse.

Even now more books are published in Iceland per head of the population than anywhere in the world. Everybody has complete literacy for more than a century, and a poet or novelist in Iceland is a man of considerable substance, not, as in England, at best a mere ornament of the genteel classes.

A new book of poems by Icelands leading poet can sell up to 20,000 copies, which is said on a James Bond level.

Of course there are other things in the work besides reading, but this is a healthy state of affairs that is already being undermined.

More important, the Icelanders are worried about the moral standards of the young.

One of Iceland's greatest, almost instinctively .t seems, like lemmings, thousands of Reykjavik teenagers descend simultaneously on some village or farm in the country and proceed on a two- or three-day orgy.

Terrible boozing goes on, with the noted national spirit, brendevin, lots of sex, and a good deal of pulling down of hayricks slaughtering of sheep, beating up of farmers, and so on.

Behavior like this was unknown in the past.

I discussed this pheoomenon with a number of Icelanders. On the whole a most sane attitude prevailed, the sort of attitude I am sure we should have towards rot, all closer to that of therapy.

Tolerance won the day. A way would be found, they said: probably the matter would settle itself.

There was no talk of prisons or reform schools. And anyway, nobody goes to prison in Iceland.

Not that there isn't plenty of room at the moment. A year or so ago, the Icelandic Committee state visit, all the prisoner in Iceland's only prison were let out, all dozen or so of them; and they have not managed to find anyone yet to put in their place.

I believe there are a couple of murderers that they could not pardon, but they have their own keys and are allowed to go home at weekends.

Letter to the Editor

Objects to Young Seeing Cruel Movie

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

I am a student at Quinte Secondary. What I have to say may hold little importance for others and my influence is of little value, but I shall set it.

Last week I saw what might be termed a "portrait in cruelty." This was "Mondo Cane Number Two". I thoroughly enjoyed a lengthy stay at the Park Theatre.

I cannot criticize the producers of this film since the material was not conceived with the imagination of the producers, rather it was taken from life, if you wish to call it so.

The movie dealt with many things, cruelty to animals, homosexuality, prostitution, people who purposely maim young children's bodies, and the "simple" cruelty people in the world over endure and enjoy.

This film did serve a purpose, for it taught me, or rather something, even if they did not wish to know of it. It illustrated what is wrong with us and that we must not let ourselves slip to the degradation we witnessed.

I do not object to the movie itself even though I did not care for it, but rather, to the fact that it was classified as "adult entertainment" and was not restricted as it is on a "Adult Entertainment" may be the impression that the film so classified may be viewed by adults alone. This is not so. Any child accompanied by an adult may be admitted and many times this rule is not adhered to. Frequently I have seen children being admitted to such films with no adult accompanying them.

If movies are to be restricted, then in my opinion, one such as "Mondo Cane" should be.

Must a child learn so early the cruelty and perversion of mankind? A child is somewhat ignorant of life; maybe we all should be at one time or another.

Terry Stoliker.

To Your Good Health
Warns Hardened Arteries May Affect Heart Muscles

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is coronary sclerosis? How does it affect a person's heart? Will a stroke follow later on? — E. R.

Sclerosis means a hardening and narrowing of the arteries. Coronary means it involves the arteries which nourish the heart muscle.

If, because of sclerosis or any other cause, the flow of blood to the heart muscle is diminished, the muscle simply can't do as much work as formerly.

Hardening of the arteries or sclerosis may or may not be general throughout the body. It may be severe in one place and of little or no consequence in another.

For a couple of examples, blood flow may be reduced in the coronary arteries, the problem which you specifically ask about, or blood flow to the leg may be involved, although the heart may be functioning normally.

In the case of the heart, this can be an important factor in angina pectoris. The heart muscle gives a warning (pain) that it is being required to do more work than possible.

In the case of the legs, again pain can be a signal. There will also be fatigue. I have seen patients whose legs were "tired out," and often subject to severe cramps, by attempting to walk no farther than across a room. I recall one such man who had surgery to correct the narrowed area in the main artery leading to his legs. His circulation improved so remarkably that afterward he was able to go hunting.

Unfortunately we are not able to perform that kind of surgery on the heart. Instead we can prescribe medication (nitroglycerin and similar tablets which give the circulation a temporary boost when needed, perhaps several times a day.) In addition, the patient must be told how much exertion he can tolerate before his heart becomes overburdened.

Does coronary sclerosis mean a stroke later on?

No. It does not follow that arteries of brain will be affected just because coronary sclerosis exists. Of course, if there happens to be severe arterial hardening in the brain, too, then a stroke could occur, but it would have nothing to do with the coronary sclerosis.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 11-month-old boy has a fungus above the navel. The family doctor says an operation is necessary, but a specialist says to wait and see if it closes by itself. What do you think? I am mixed up. — Mrs. L. M.

Ruptures of this sort, existing from birth, are unlike those acquired by adults. Oh, they are ruptures,— but in the case of a baby they rather often heal over and become strong. This does not happen with adults.

A very simple "cure" made of adhesive tape with a 50-cent piece or similar object as pressure bulging, allows such a hernia or rupture to heal itself.

There is no foolproof method of knowing in advance which hernias will heal and which will not. Follow the specialist's advice.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes syringomyelia? Is there a cure? — E. H. M.

The cause is not known, but it is thought to be a congenital defect of cells in the spinal cord. (Cavities occur in the spinal tissues.) There is no specific treatment, but the disease may go on for 10 to 30 years with varying intervals during which it remains static. In severe cases, infections usually complicate the condition, so treatment to subdue them is naturally important.

Strictly Personal
Death Penalty Won't Deter Pro Killers

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Almost unnoticed in the recent election was the fact that several more U.S. states voted to abolish the death penalty. Eventually, I am convinced, every state will follow the example of Britain and most European countries in this respect.

What called the matter to mind was a grotesquely ironic paragraph in a new book, "Can Faith Survive?" by Maurice Eisendrath. In a chapter titled "Thou Shalt Not Kill — Period," the author points out why capital punishment is wrong on practical as well as on ethical grounds.

Not long ago, in Wilmington, Delaware, he writes, "a city detective got into a heated argument with his minister about this question. The minister insisted that capital punishment does not deter, and he lamented the fact that the state legislature had just restored the practice of capital punishment.

"The detective mocked his pastor's sentimentality and insisted that the only thing which deterred a murderer was the knowledge that his own life would be forfeited if he committed a capital offense.

"A few weeks later, that same detective murdered his wife and became the first person to face the freshly restored death penalty of the state of Delaware."

What the public still fails to realize is that the great bulk of murders is committed by husbands and wives, other relatives or close friends of the victims. And these emotional homicides are not deterred by the death penalty any more than is the subsequent detective was.

Murders committed by hoodlums and racketeers are rarely solved; they are perpetrated by hired "killers" with no personal motive, and it is nearly impossible to track down and convict the professional killer. The death penalty, in practice, is invoked only against the very poor, the mentally defective, the wretchedly submerged elements in society.

All studies indicate that there is no correlation between capital punishment and crime. Children used to be hanged in England, as late as the 1800s, for such offenses as "secreting notes" and "stealing a spoon" and "smashing a shop-window." The practice was abolished not so much by a rising tide of humanitarianism, as by the realization that even hanging did not "deter" youthful depradations.

Anyone seriously interested in this fascinating problem ought to read Arthur Koestler's book, "Reflections on Hanging" (Macmillan. 1957), as well as Albert Camus's brilliant and devastating essay, "Reflections on the Guillotine." Capital punishment is nothing less than a ritual murder performed by society to expiate its own past sins of omission.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

Dec. 18th, 1944

Hastings County is going, and the city of Belleville in particular, are playing hosts to members of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association and high-ranking cheese and dairy men from provincial and federal governments. Representatives of Central Ontario's ranking industry, one that was nurtured in its toddling infancy to lusty maturity in Hastings County, these men will discuss important matters pertaining to the manufacture and marketing of cheese, past, present and future during their two-day convention. The setting is appropriate. It is fitting that cheese men should meet and discuss their problems in a county that for years has been a leading producer of this important food commodity. It was here that the now famous British Empire Dairy Show and Cheese Exhibition was born. It has been held here ever since.

30 YEARS AGO

Dec. 16th, 1934

On Friday evening, members of the Young People's Society in connection with Bridge Street United Church, visited the Home for the Aged and put on a program, under the direction of Mr. R. Bird, which was enjoyed by the old people.

The city council has decided not to provide outdoor skating rinks for the children this year at an approximate cost of $1,200 but will make a grant of $500 to Belleville arena in the amount of its annual municipal taxes assessed against the property. Generous use of the rink by the boys and girls has been arranged.

Santa Claus will distribute candy to boys and girls from a truck on Front Street, Thursday afternoon after school.

The team was up against competition at Trenton, Oshawa, Peterborough, Kings Etcetrdrah. Dec. 16, 1964 . . .

As amended to the British North America Act, giving the Canadian Parliament power over the constitution in matters lying within federal jurisdiction solely, was passed by the British Parliament, 13 years ago today — in 1949. The amendment did not apply to provincial and educational rights applying to English and French language.

1838 — Napoleon Bonaparte was divorced from Josephine.

On Tuesday stocks took fractional dips during moderately heavy trading, as golds advanced strongly.

Golds, spurred by speculation of an increase in the price (now pegged at $35 U.S. an ounce), set several record highs during the day.

The last one — 172.95 — was attained at the noon compilation of the 12-stock gold index. Golds also established record levels Monday, the day after the U.S.-based National Planning Association's steering committee recommended that the price of gold be doubled. Stocks of many gold producers hit highs.

Aiding in the rise is gold's traditional role as a hedge against a depressed market.

Legislature Committee Hears Problems

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario legislature select committees heard problems and suggestions Tuesday ranging from the treatment given mildly retarded youths at three Ontario hospital schools to the implementation of a national health insurance plan available at lower cost to the aged.

Arnold Gibbard, a vice - president of the Ontario Association for Retarded Children, told the committee on youth that some adolescents are going unpaid and often strenuous domestic and farm work at three Ontario Hospital schools for the mentally retarded to keep running costs down.

However, Mr. Gibbard said that if the youths were prevented from doing the work, which often begins at 6 a.m. and doesn't end until after supper, the three institutes would probably have to be closed.

He recommended that additional funds be made available to hire paid staff for the institutes and to pay the students until they could be replaced.

Meanwhile, in another section of Queen's Park, the United Church of Canada presented a brief to the select committee on aging calling for federal - provincial co-operation in creating a comprehensive national health insurance plan.

The brief asked that the insurance plan be made available to the elderly at a minimum cost and that the existing Ontario Hospital Services Commission plan be extended to include clinics for older persons requiring medical examination and treatment.

The Canadian Hearing Society presented a brief to the aging committee proposing an enforceable code of ethics for hearing aid dealers and dispensers be established to put a halt to the abuses and high prices now surrounding the sale of hearing aids.

Chafing Dish For Stroganoff

By MARY MOORE

Joy is a legend to me. She was my secretary Eleanor's bridesmaid. I have never met her but I love her because Eleanor does.

Last week she visited Eleanor and unwittingly mentioned her recipe for Meat Balls Stroganoff, saying she had made a big batch for a supper at their church. She was enthusiastic over it for entertaining at home too. After this kind of recommendation by Joy, Eleanor asked her to send the recipe to us. She did and it was a hit here.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Broiled Sirloin Steak; Creamed Carrots; Spinach; Fresh Whole Wheat Bread; Celery Hearts; Pear Melba; Tea.

JOY'S MEAT BALL STROGANOFF (Chafing Dish):

Obviously you know this may be made on top of the stove if you do not have a chafing dish or do not care to use it.

1 lb. lean minced beef (not hamburg), 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ cup milk, 1 egg, beaten, ½ cup fine dry breadcrumbs, 2 tablespoons salad or cooking oil, ½ cup chopped onions, one 10-oz. can whole mushrooms, drained, 2 tablespoons flour ¼ teaspoon monosodium glutamate (accent), ¼ teaspoon paprika, one 10-oz. can condensed cream of mushroom soup, 1 cup dairy sour cream, 8 oz. noodles.

To cook the noodles have 3 qts. water boiling to which you have added 1 tablespoon salt. Add noodles, and stir around until water returns to boiling point then cook until tender — about 10 to 15 minutes. Time depends on how tender you prefer them. When serving time arrives drain through colander and turn onto preheated serving platter. The noodles may be buttered if desired.

Combine minced beef, salt, pepper, milk, egg and crumbs. Mix thoroughly. Shape into 1½-inch balls. In heated oil in chafing dish (or frying) pan, brown meat balls on all sides. Remove meat balls to a warm platter.

Add onion and mushrooms to frying pan and saute until onion is transparent — about 5 minutes. Stir in flour and seasonings. Add undiluted soup and simmer over low heat for 3 minutes — until sauce thickens. Stir in dairy sour cream. Add meat balls. Cover and keep over very low heat until meat balls are cooked through — at least 15 minutes. Serve over cooked noodles. Serves 6.

NOTE:

Joy adds; "If sauce seems too thick I add some consomme — usually half a can or so".

Speaking Personally

by

Gladys Ward - - - Women's Editor

O WHAT FUN

You have to go back quite a way to remember when Church Street, south of Bridge Street used to be roped off for children to sleighride on in the winter.

It hardly seems possible when one watches the traffic on that street now, but for several winters that hill had traffic of a different kind.

Children used to ride downhill on sleighs, toboggans, bob sleds, cardboard boxes, pieces of tin (the forerunner of the present flying saucers) and anything they could sit on.

It was a noisy, busy, galloped, mittened, muffliered, happy-hearted, young and gay crowd, and the air rang with screams and laughter.

Another spot provided by the city fathers was that known as Vinegar Hill, a west hill spot at the end of Octavia Street. This, too attracted crowds of youngsters dragging sleighs uphill and coasting down.

I don't know why it was called Vinegar Hill. Old timers said there was once a vinegar factory there, but I have not been able to verify this. Sometimes these are legends and are called facts without verification, like the stories about the Sandbanks, where we used to be told if a person dug deep enough he could unearth a hotel and brick factory. But maybe there was once a vinegar factory at Vinegar Hill.

Nowadays people drive thirty miles or more to go tobogganing or skiing, but in those days the slides were close at home. Youngsters just walked there, pulling their sleighs uphill and down until they were so soaked they could hardly navigate home.

BRIGHT WINGS

A new book at Corby Public Library (on the reserve list, but you can sign a card for it) is "Bright Wings" by Elsie Fry Lawrence. The writer has set out to do several things, says a review by Audrey M. Livernois,—to tell a story with a beginning, a middle and an end, to bring that story alive with recognizable characters, and to depict the value of religious belief without sermonizing — and these things she has done. But in addition she has undertaken (consciously or unconsciously) to present genuine goodness in every human form and here she has succeeded brilliantly.

Andrew Burns, a United Church minister in a small town, is loveable, exasperating, romantically high-minded, and endearingly fallible; his wife Molly is comfortably warm-hearted, trusting, irritating (especially to her children who does on her), and completely understandable.

Bright Wings is the story of one week in the lives of Andrew and Molly and their three grown-up children, when Margaret announces her plans to marry a Jewish surgeon who has a wife and two children; Phillip decides to separate from his wife; and Stephen alone seems to have inherited the spirit of the Manse. To add to these bitter anxieties, violence and malevolence erupt suddenly around Andrew and Molly.

Mrs. Laurence's own six children have grown up and married and she and her husband live in Victoria, B.C.

P. C. Women Present Dolls to Firemen

By REYA LAWRENCE

The Christmas party of the Progressive Conservative Women's Association was held in the Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday evening, beginning with a pot-luck dinner, with turkeys donated by Mr. Elmer Sandercock and Mr. Clarke Rollins.

Mrs. Stuart Howell, president of the association, presided at the dinner. Grace was offered by Mrs. Mary Lee.

After the dinner Santa Claus paid a visit and presented favors to all the ladies.

PRESENT DOLLS

Mrs. Howell introduced Fire Chief Gerald Vance and presented to him on behalf of the Firemen's Christmas Fund, over one hundred and fifty beautifully dressed dolls.

Each year the firemen have had much more difficulty in securing dolls for their Christmas Fund than any other year. The Progressive Conservative ladies have made this their main project.

In the summer of this year a large doll was donated to them. On this they sold tickets, and the lucky winner was Mr. John Fudge of Lemoine Street.

With part of the money thus obtained they purchased fifty new dolls, many used dolls were procured and many of the members bought new dolls. All these dolls have been repaired where necessary, and fully outfitted with stunning new clothes. On Christmas morning many tiny faces will light with joy due to the work and ingenuity of these ladies.

ALL KINDS OF DOLLS

The collection of dolls included teenage dolls in brocade and ermine, bride dolls, boy and girl dolls in cuddly knitted suits, baby dolls in organdy and lace, sporty dolls in stretch pants and ski jackets, cuddly ones in nighties and blankets, a ballerina in a tu-tu and satin cloak, and even a nurse carrying newborn twins.

Fire Chief Vance thanked the ladies sincerely, wished them all a Merry Christmas, and left them with the hope that they will all be free of fires during the holiday season.

After the dinner a draw was made on a turkey donated by Mr. Lee Grills. The winner of this draw was Mrs. Eva Heath.

Mrs. Howell reported that besides the doll project the Association is looking after about eighteen children who have exceeded the age limit of the Firemen's Christmas Fund. They have also donated to the Cancer Cupboard.

Thanks were expressed by Mrs. Howell to Mrs. Dorothy Tugnett for the beautiful decorations in the banquet room, and to Mrs. Margaret Orr, Mrs. Rose Locke and Mrs. Agnes Yorke for their special efforts on the doll project.

Lucky winners for table centres made by Mrs. Margaret Orr were held by Mrs. Helen Smith, Mrs. Vera Brown, Mrs. Ada Young and Mrs. Mary Waller.

MILLINERY SHOW

Mrs. Doreen Fox introduced the entertainment for the evening, which took the form of a high fashion millinery show. The hats modelled were certainly "way out" but completely balanced by the voluptuous figures of the models. The commentator was that lady of fashion, Betty Boop, and the charming models were Miss Tessie O'Toole, Miss Roxy and Miss Bubbles LaTu.

Dr. John Sieck, president of the Belleville Progressive Conservative Men's Association, spoke briefly and expressed his high esteem for the ladies and their great work.

The evening closed with carol singing under the direction of Mrs. Maude Rollins, with Mrs. Lee Grills at the piano.

One hundred and fifty dolls were presented to the Fire Department for their Christmas project last night by the Progressive Conservative Women's Association. Standing beside some of their gifts are President of the Association Mrs. Stuart Howell (left) and Mrs. Harry York.

STORE NURSERY

MONTREAL (CP)—A downtown department store has opened a nursery to assist mothers while they are doing their Christmas shopping. The nursery has become so successful that some children are reluctant to leave and store officials say they may continue the service throughout the year.

Canadian Designer Has New Collection

TORONTO (CP) — A young Canadian fashion designer has been brought back from New York to bet a budding career on the Canadian fashion market.

John Warden, 24, went from Niagara Falls, Ont., to the Parsons School of Design in New York. He won the school's awards for sportswear and coat and suit design, won a third-year scholarship and went on to study at Parson's Paris headquarters. Then he went back to New York to work.

He came back to work for the Montreal firm of Anckis Sanft and has produced a 40 item spring collection for them, shown in Toronto Tuesday night.

Mr. Warden says of his collection:

"I like women to have fun, to wear fun clothes—they are not just for the young, but for any woman who has a young feeling."

He tries, he says, for casual elegance, for comfort chic.

"I think Canada is ready for this kind of thing. Women who are used to going to New York or Paris for their clothes would be glad to buy them here."

The shirt, the shirt-jacket, the curving jacket, and dresses shaped slightly, curving away style at the waist, were featured. Culottes, for evening or daytime, were shown in tweeds and in flaring, shimmering evening fabrics.

Mr. Warden used corduroys, velvets, lace and satin as well as flannels, twills and silks. He says he believes women are less and less concerned with taking note of definite fashion seasons in fabric and color.

Hundreds of Careers Opening For Women

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal labor department report says hundreds of careers for Canadian women now are opening up in the physical sciences and mathematics — fields which have long been traditional male preserves.

The jobs range from science teaching to applied and pure research in physics, chemistry and astronomy, and include the fields of engineering, meteorology and oceanography.

Alice Griffiths of Ottawa, a former librarian who spent six weeks making the survey of careers opportunities for women in these fields, says she found that prejudice against women scientists still exists, but is rapidly disappearing.

The 1937 University of Toronto history graduate, wife of Ottawa broadcaster Stuart Griffiths and mother of two sons, made the survey at the request of the women's bureau of the labor department.

She said in an interview:

"In my talks with key men and women scientists in Canada and the U.S., I found that there is still some deep-rooted prejudice against women in such fields as engineering.

"But prejudice was far less apparent in the areas in which science is forging ahead rapidly. In these areas, women scientists are working side by side with men with ease."

FUTURE BRIGHT

Mrs. Griffiths' 41-page report on "Physical sciences, earth sciences and mathematics as fields of work for women" paints an optimistic picture of the future for women in science.

But it also emphasizes that better academic qualifications are the key to women's advances in all scientific fields.

Sciences considered in the report are chemistry, physics and astronomy, with their offshoots astrophysics, biophysics and biochemistry; the earth sciences, geology, geophysics, meteorology and oceanography; and mathematics, with its modern applications in engineering and the growth of electronic computation.

Mrs. Griffiths said in her report that women can help to fill the urgent need for competent teachers of science and mathematics.

"The science teacher has a vital role in the 20th century, as she has a unique opportunity to detect and quicken interest in scientific understanding and pursuits."

The need for qualified university professors in science is likely to become more and more acute, and the report says "women who have specialized in the sciences may well be attracted to teaching at the university level."

While saying university teaching, with its association with research, can be a "continuing challenge and a rich experience," Mrs. Griffiths hints that even with the current demand for university teachers women are likely to encounter prejudice against their sex in the universities.

INTENSE STUDY NEEDED

"Salaries and opportunities for advancement vary from one university to another and from department to department. For women teachers the variation is even greater than for men, depending upon the particular attitude toward women, especially married women, in the profession."

Careers in applied and pure research fields, like those in university teaching, call for long periods of study on the part of women to achieve the necessary academic qualifications.

But the report stresses that prolonged academic work for women who are willing to undertake it, is likely to pay dividends in more interesting and rewarding occupations.

Mrs. Griffiths urges women to consider the many areas of scientific activity related to federal government departments.

She lists areas where properly qualified scientists may find challenging research work in Canada, including the National Research Council, the departments of health and welfare, agriculture, and mines and technical surveys.

"Also not to be overlooked in the research picture are the many mathematicians employed in research projects as statisticians, actuarial mathematicians, or as numerical analysts in the electronic computer field."

Other scientific occupations which Mrs. Griffiths found to offer special attractions for women are those of science librarians, science technical writers, science journalists and laboratory technicians.

COMBINES FAMILY WITH CAREER — Dr. Margaret Fish of Ottawa is among a growing group of women who combine a career with the raising of a family. Dr. Fish, a native of Medicine Hat, Alta., is assistant professor of anatomy at the University of Ottawa where she also carries out research work for the Ontario Heart Foundation. She is shown (left) in the university laboratory and (right) with her children. The children are from left: Kathleen, 7; Ian, 2½; and Sheila, 4. (CP Photo)

Susanna's Family Fare

Dear Susanna: How much I look forward to your wee items in the paper. They give me much pleasure and inspiration.

Maybe some of your readers do not know what a wonderful press cloth a piece of cheese cloth makes in combination with a steam iron.

Or, for maintaining creases in boy's pants, all you need is an ordinary grey iron plus a piece of brown paper.

I have found both of these methods quick and easy when the clothing of my four children needs pressing. — Mrs. M. Saunders.

Thank you so much Mrs. Saunders, and since it's such a sentimental time of year I hope I will be permitted a further sentimental reply. It is just that I do want you, and all the other very thoughtful readers, to know what a tremendous source of pleasure and inspiration your letters are to me. You've just no idea how much your help and your encouragement are appreciated. Very sincerely, — SUSANNA.

U.C.W Meeting

MELROSE U.C.W.

Mrs. Thomas Howard was hostess for the Christmas meeting of the Melrose U.C.W in the church basement. The president, Mrs. Newton Demille, presided, seated at a table prettily decorated in keeping with the Yuletide season.

Mrs. Demille conducted the worship service, assisted by Mrs. Sherman Ladier who read the Scripture. They asked the listeners, "Are we ready for Christmas? Is our mind free of thoughts of material things? Can we think of the desires of little children, the loneliness of older folk and the needs of friends, even for a day?

Plans were finalized for a pot-luck supper in the church basement on December 19. It is hoped that all families of the church will join in this evening of fellowship.

Mrs. Reg Fox conducted the program. The singing of several carols, with Mrs. Lorne Weese at the piano, was followed by a reading by Mrs. Jack Mc-Laren, in which was explained how Canada's first Christmas card came to be written. The French missionaries to the Huron Indians could not explain satisfactorily the story of the Birth of the Christ Child.

They decided to give the story a setting within their own experience, so he had the Child wrapped in furs, born in a country of snows, with gifts of deer. This story has been set to music and is known as "The Huron Carol." It is on the repertoire of famous group of actors from Toronto.

Mrs. Fox explained the meaning of the crest of the United Church of Canada. A reading entitled the group that the Advent Season is a time of devotion and that it is just as meaningful today as it was over 1,000 years ago and was presented by Mrs. R. Graham. The program concluded with a reading "The Nicest Gift" by Mrs. C. Weese.

Ann Landers

'Disgusted' Mother Really Terribly Mixed-Up

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Last Sunday our family drove over 100 miles to visit my brother, his wife and their newborn son. Midway through dinner my sister-in-law left the table to take care of her infant. When we finished the meal we all went back to the bedroom to say good-by. There sat my sister-in-law breast feeding her baby. Since then our children who are 11, 9, 7 and 5 years of age have been bothering me with questions about sex.

ANN LANDERS

I am furious with my sister-in-law for placing me in this embarrassing position. I hadn't figured on mentioning sex to my children until they were older. This stupid woman knew we were leaving for home right after dinner. Why couldn't she have waited another 30 minutes.

I'd like to take this matter up with her but I don't know what to say. She reads your column religiously so will you please lambaste her for rudely leaving the table and behaving in this repulsive manner in front of my children? — DISGUSTED.

DEAR DISGUSTED — I see nothing rude or repulsive in your sister-in-law's behavior but I see much that is ignorant and oafish in yours.

She was seeking privacy and you invaded her room. So why criticize her? Furthermore, if your children don't know how life begins and how infants are nourished by their mothers, it's time they learned.

You say you planned on telling them when they were "older." How much older? You are 7 years too late with the 11-year-old right now.

Ask your doctor for some literature to guide you. And get going, or you'll have four kids who are as mixed up as you are, lady.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A friend of mine whom I will call Mrs. R. asked if she could borrow my card table set.

Three weeks later Mrs. R. started divorce proceedings. I didn't want to bother her about my table and chairs at that time. The next I heard she had moved into an apartment. That was last July.

Yesterday, I telephoned Mrs. R. and asked her to please return my card table set. She said, "I did, immediately after the party." I asked "to whom," and she replied, "I left them on your porch."

I'm so burned up I'd like to take her to court. Should I? — FAVOR DO-ER.

DEAR DO-ER — Mrs. R. should not have left the card table set on the porch. A person of integrity would have offered to buy you a new set, but obviously she is a cipher.

Suing her would mean expense, trouble, and additional irritation. Forget it. And forget about her, too.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — How can I keep my sanity when the boy I love turns up at a dance with a girl I hate?

I have loved Jimmie since the third grade. The girl he took to the dance Saturday wouldn't pour a glass of water on him if he were on fire — then she found out I was crazy about him and went all out to take him away.

This cheap little flirt has done the same things to two other girls. The only boys she wants are the ones who belong to someone else.

Why would a boy drop a fine girl like me for a terrible person like her? Seeing them together tears me up something awful. How can I get Jimmie back? — ROBBED FROM.

DEAR FROM — The girl didn't knock him over the head and drag him off, did she? I don't believe a boy friend can be "stolen." It's a lost cause unless Jimmie decides on his own that he prefers you after all.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking And Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Parliament At A Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

TUESDAY, Dec. 15, 1964

The Commons debated the all - party committee recommendation that the Union Jack be flown as the symbol of Canada's Commonwealth links.

Hugh John Flemming (PC—Victoria - Carleton) proposed an amendment that the Red Ensign be used instead of the Jack.

Prime Minister Pearson said there is a need to represent the levels of association in Canada and the Union Jack would fill it.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker objected to Mr. Pearson's position that the Union Jack is the Queen's flag.

Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Lantorth) said he thinks the amendment will get unanimous support from his party.

David Fugh (PC — Okanagan-Boundary) said one flag is enough for all purposes.

N. A. Olson (SC—Medicine Hat) said the Ensign would be more appropriate than the Jack to show the Commonwealth connection.

Raymond Langlois (Creditiste—Megantic) said the maple leaf flag approved by the Commons is enough to represent Canada.

The Senate began study of the red-and-white maple leaf banner approved in the Commons as Canada's national flag.

Senator Grattan O'Leary (PC — Ontario) moved an amendment that the government suspend all action on the flag.

Senator John Connolly, government leader, said the flag recommendation will remain before the Senate until it is resolved.

WEDNESDAY, Dec. 16

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to continue debate on the Union Jack recommendation. The Senate meets at 3 p.m. for debate on the maple leaf flag.

BATHER FOXED

NETHERNE, England (CP) — Tom Laird, 21, shot what he thought was a fox raiding his chicken coop. Sunbather Terence Fitzpatrick, 48, turned out to be the victim. Fitzpatrick said in court he had recovered from the peppering by about 30 pellets and there was no "ill-feeling." But Laird was fined £7 for malicious wounding.

HOT ON EXPERIMENTS

BELFAST (CP) — Four Northern Ireland medical students are planning a 21-day stay in the Sahara Desert in temperatures ranging up to 150 degrees —in the interest of research. They plan to cross the desert in trucks and sleep in tents. Later they will report on their experiment to the Medical Research Council.

14 Witnesses To Be Called In Dorion Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP)—Immigration Minister Trembley is among 14 persons who will be called as witnesses before the Dorion inquiry into allegations of bribery and coercion by government officials in an extradition case.

The list was released by Nicol Henry of Quebec City, secretary of the judicial inquiry opened Tuesday by Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court.

Justice Minister Favreau and RCMP Commissioner George B. McClellan, both central figures in the commission's terms of reference, were not on the list but various counsel at the inquiry could call them to testify in later stages.

Two witnesses were called Tuesday. They were Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne, acting for the U.S. government in extradition proceedings against Lucien Rivard, 48-year-old Montreal resort owner, and Omer Plon, court clerk at the Rivard hearings.

The next witnesses will be the following, likely in this order:

Mrs. Pierre Lamontagne, wife of Tuesday's witness.

Mrs. Jean-Gerard Lamontagne, the lawyer's mother.

Raymond Daoust, counsel for Rivard.

Raymond Denis, Montreal lawyer and former special assistant to the immigration minister.

Mr. Tremblay.

A certain Gelinas, who was not identified further.

Robert Emilien Gignac.

Guy Masson.

Eddy Lachassecur.

Mrs. Lucien Rivard, wife of the man the United States government wants to extradite from Canada to try on charges of smuggling heroin.

Guy Lord, former executive assistant to Mr. Favreau.

Andre Letendre, Mr. Favreau's present executive assistant.

Guy Rouleau, lawyer, MP for Montreal Dollard, chairman of the Liberal caucus, who resigned Nov. 24 as parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson.

Raymond Rouleau, chairman of the Middle-Iles Catholic school board in the Montreal area and a brother of the MP.

Montreal Lawyer

ing softly in a small courtroom normally used by the board of transport commissioners, Mr. Lamontagne said he was increasingly worried that Rivard would disappear if he were granted bail and gave the RCMP a written statement about all the pressures he had been subject to, Aug. 14.

ORDERED INVESTIGATION

(Mr. Pearson told the Commons last month he ordered an investigation into the matter and declared Sept. 13 that the RCMP had not turned up enough evidence to warrant prosecutions against anyone. The Opposition accused him of making a serious error of judgment and the government set up the judicial inquiry.

(Rivard still is in Bordeaux Jail awaiting a hearing set for Friday on his writ of habeas corpus. He was arrested June 19 and ordered extradited to the U.S. Sept. 15 at the request of the American government.)

Mr. Lamontagne said he was retained by the U.S. justice department June 16. An American official had instructed him to oppose bail at all costs since the U.S. authorities had reason to believe Rivard would skip bail. He gave this account of the next two months:

Mr. Daoust, acting for Rivard, opposed the extradition and the hearing was adjourned several times. On July 14, he received a call from Mr. Denis who said he wished to see him immediately in Ottawa to discuss confidential matters that he could not mention on the telephone.

Mr. Lamontagne and his wife drove to Ottawa that evening and checked in at the Chateau Laurier Hotel. The lawyer met Mr. Denis in the Commons office of the immigration minister, who left shortly afterward.

The two young lawyers talked about their years together in college, university and the Geoffrion, Prud'homme law firm in Montreal.

ASKED ABOUT HEARING

Mr. Denis then inquired about the Rivard extradition hearing. He said he had been asked by four persons to give Mr. Lamontagne this message — if he agreed to tolerate Rivard's application for bail he would receive $10,000 the next day at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal, plus another $10,000 after Rivard's release.

Mr. Lamontagne, surprised, asked why Mr. Denis was getting mixed up in the case and who were the four persons in the background. Mr. Denis mentioned a certain Gelinas and declined to name the three others.

The pair went to Mr. Lamontagne's hotel suite around midnight for drinks and more talk. After Mr. Denis left about 3:30 or 4 a.m. Mr. Lamontagne awakened his wife and told her about the bribe offer.

"After all, it's not every day that you can make a small fortune," he testified.

He did not report the bribe attempt to the authorities immediately for three reasons: It had come in a confidential conversation; he did not want to cause trouble for his excellent friend Raymond Denis, and since he had not accepted the bribe, that would end the affair and the extradition hearings would proceed as before.

WAS SURPRISE

On July 18 the Lamontagnes left for holidays at the cottage near Chicoutimi. Five days later Mr. Daoust called, to Mr. Lamontagne's "great surprise" since he had not advised Mr. Daoust of his whereabouts.

Mr. Daoust said he understood bail for Rivard had been fixed and asked when he should make the formal application in court. Mr. Lamontagne did not know what to say and Mr. Daoust asked him to call back later.

About half an hour later the man calling himself Bob Gingras, speaking French slang, called and made his threats, repeating them in a second call. He said he was a friend of Mr. Denis, but Mr. Lamontagne hung up on him both times.

The next morning, July 22, Mr. Lamontagne called Mr. Denis in Ottawa and told him, "tell your boys to leave me alone or I will go to the RCMP."

Mr. Lamontagne then called a personal friend, Sgt. Ronald Grenier, then a member of the R.C.M.P. narcotics squad in Montreal, and told him about the calls from "Gingras."

DIDN'T MENTION BRIBE

He did not mention the bribe offer from Mr. Denis and asked Sgt. Grenier not to report their conversation to the force; the policeman agreed. (He said Mr. Grenier no longer is with the RCMP.)

On July 26 the Lamontagnes returned to their Westmount home. Two days later Mr. Lamontagne met Mr. Daoust in a private room in a restaurant at the latter's request. Mr. Daoust said he had been approached in July 21 by two men who claimed that Mr. Lamontagne had accepted a $20,000 payoff in Ottawa the previous day and that Rivard's bail was fixed.

Mr. Daoust had told the two men their story could not be true since he knew Mr. Lamontagne was in Ottawa July 20. Mr. Daoust mentioned a "Raymond" to Mr. Lamontagne and suggested to him about Mr. Denis' bribe offer, but he promised he would not apply for bail for his client.

On July 29 Mr. Lamontagne called a Mr. Weisel in Washington, a lawyer with the U.S. justice department, and told him he was being subjected to strong pressure to let Rivard go free.

On Aug. 4 Mr. Lamontagne received in the mail a copy of a formal bail application for Rivard over the names of Mr. Daoust and Joseph Cohen, another lawyer representing Rivard.

WEREN'T REAL

The signatures were not genuine, Mr. Lamontagne presumed that Mr. Lamontagne had signed both names, a common practice for the two.

Mr. Daoust, acting for Rivard, opposed the application and the hearing was adjourned several times. On July 14, he received a call from Mr. Denis who said he wished to see him immediately in Ottawa to discuss confidential matters that he could not mention on the telephone.

Mr. Lamontagne and his wife drove to Ottawa that evening and checked in at the Chateau Laurier Hotel. The lawyer met Mr. Denis in the Commons office of the immigration minister, who left shortly afterward.

The two young lawyers talked about their years together in college, university and the Geoffrion, Prud'homme law firm in Montreal.

ASKED ABOUT HEARING

Mr. Denis then inquired about the Rivard extradition hearing. He said he had been asked by four persons to give Mr. Lamontagne this message — if he agreed to tolerate Rivard's application for bail he would receive $10,000 the next day at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal, plus another $10,000 after Rivard's release.

Mr. Lamontagne, surprised, asked why Mr. Denis was getting mixed up in the case and who were the four persons in the background. Mr. Denis mentioned a certain Gelinas and declined to name the three others.

The pair went to Mr. Lamontagne's hotel suite around midnight for drinks and more talk. After Mr. Denis left about 3:30 or 4 a.m. Mr. Lamontagne awakened his wife and told her about the bribe offer.

"After all, it's not every day that you can make a small fortune," he testified.

He did not report the bribe attempt to the authorities immediately for three reasons: It had come in a confidential conversation; he did not want to cause trouble for his excellent friend Raymond Denis, and since he had not accepted the bribe, that would end the affair and the extradition hearings would proceed as before.

WAS SURPRISE

On July 18 the Lamontagnes left for holidays at the cottage near Chicoutimi. Five days later Mr. Daoust called, to Mr. Lamontagne's "great surprise" since he had not advised Mr. Daoust of his whereabouts.

Mr. Daoust said he understood bail for Rivard had been fixed and asked when he should make the formal application in court. Mr. Lamontagne did not know what to say and Mr. Daoust asked him to call back later.

About half an hour later the man calling himself Bob Gingras, speaking French slang, called and made his threats, repeating them in a second call. He said he was a friend of Mr. Denis, but Mr. Lamontagne hung up on him both times.

The next morning, July 22, Mr. Lamontagne called Mr. Denis in Ottawa and told him, "tell your boys to leave me alone or I will go to the RCMP."

Mr. Lamontagne then called a personal friend, Sgt. Ronald Grenier, then a member of the R.C.M.P. narcotics squad in Montreal, and told him about the calls from "Gingras."

WEREN'T REAL

The signatures were not genuine, Mr. Lamontagne presumed that Mr. Lamontagne had signed both names, a common practice for the two. Cohen showed Mr. Lamontagne a letter from Mr. Daoust saying Rivard's bail had been arranged.

Also on Aug. 4 the mag called by himself Guy Lord called and asked why Mr. Lamontagne was ignoring his instructions from Ottawa and blocking Rivard's bail. Mr. Lamontagne replied that he didn't want Rivard to escape justice and that he took his instructions in the case from the U.S. government, not Ottawa.

"Lord" said he once had "worked" for Rivard but knew he was a "bandit." Lamontagne again called Mr. Weisel in Washington to report intensifying political pressure to free Rivard. Mr. Weisel asked for names and details, but Mr. Lamontagne declined.

On Aug. 7, however, Mr. Lamontagne told the details but not the names to a friend whose advice he valued, Adrien Chasse, a U.S. treasury department official based in Montreal. Mr. Chasse advised the young lawyer to tell the whole story to the RCMP and to Attorney Geoffrion, senior partner in his law firm.

Mr. Lamontagne told Mr. Geoffrion everything the same day and decided to inform the RCMP. On Aug. 11 he had a long conversation with an Inspector Carriere of the RCMP, hoping that th pressures on him and the rumors he had accepted a bribe would stop as a result. But later that day a man calling himself Andre Letendre called and said Mr. Parveau was dissatisfied with his handling of the Rivard case.

KNEW RIVARD

Mr. Rouleau, whom he knew quite well, called still later and said his brother Raymond knew Rivard very well and had asked the MP to see if he could obtain bail. Mr. Lamontagne said he would continue to support Rivard's application and the next day in court Mr. Cohen withdrew the application.

On Aug. 14 Mr. Lamontagne gave the RCMP a detailed written statement about his allegations. Six days later Mr. Denis called him and said he had been questioned by an RCMP officer and had denied the bribe allegation.

Mr. Denis said his career was at stake, adding: "Moses, I should never have intervened in this affair."

Mr. Lamontagne replied that his career also was at stake and that he had been approached by Mr. Rouleau, "Lord" and "Letendre." Mr. Denis said he never had discussed the case with Mr. Letendre and that Mr. Rouleau had not asked him to intervene.

At this point Commission Counsel Andre Desjardins of Quebec City said he had no further questions and the hearing adjourned.

bers of the upper chamber were present for Tuesday's opening of the Senate flag debate.

The two missing were Senator M. M. Hollett (Newfoundland) and Senator Rheal Bellale (Quebec).

There also are 61 Liberals, two independents and one independent Liberal in the 105-seat Senate. Five seats are vacant.

Most of the Liberals also were in attendance.

While the Senate was enjoying one of its rare moments in the spotlight, the Commons launched its new flag argument with another verbal sparring match between Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

It came after Hugh John Flemming (PC — Victoria-Carleton) moved an amendment to the committee, report to provide that the Red Ensign, not the Union Jack, be the Commonwealth flag.

Mr. Pearson said the idea is to have a symbol associated with the Queen as head of the Commonwealth.

Today what could be more appropriate for this purpose than the royal union flag, the Union Jack which is the Queen's flag?"

"Completely specious," Mr. Diefenbaker interjected.

"My honorable friend is an authority on specious arguments." Mr. Pearson shot back. Referring to the Red Ensign amendment, Mr. Pearson asked:

"How can we have a Canadian national flag, and a former Canadian national flag as the one emblematic of our association with the Commonwealth?"

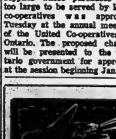
Mr. Diefenbaker said the prime minister had made "a series of statements that are historically unsound."

Mr. Pearson said that if Mr. Diefenbaker "will just contain himself for about two minutes he will be able to get up on his feet and give me a lecture in history."

Both men then got into a hassle over questions of privilege in their angry mounting.

The bitterness continued while Mr. Pearson completed his argument in support of the Union Jack. It was a recognized royal flag adopted by the British government on consultation with the Queen. Canada was entitled to the same consultation.

Later, Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth) said his 18-member party will vote for the ensign over the Union Jack.



He contended it would be "an insult to the Union Jack to downgrade it by appropriating it for what is purely a Canadian purpose."

H. A. Olson (SC —Medicine Hat) said he would back the Red Ensign amendment, too, along with some of his colleagues.

Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste — Lapointe) said Canada alone should not decide on a Commonwealth flag. It was up to all the nations involved.

duty of up to 25 per cent on cars and parts and the U.S. charges up to 8.5 per cent.

Canada, in a procedure first started in 1963, and then extended, began granting some tariff exemption on imports to Canadian firms which could boast exports to U.S.

This brought strong protests from some U.S. parts companies and a U.S. inquiry and prolonged negotiation to find a new formula. One building has been the need to satisfy management and labor on both sides of the border although the three of the North American auto production field—General Motors, Ford and Chrisler—were not opposed to the original Canadian procedure.

WANTS DUTY CUT

The Canadian target all along has been to trim a huge deficit on the autos and parts bought from the U.S. and sold there—a deficit of about $900,000,000 to about $40,000,000 last year although Canadian exports have gained this year.

U.S. officials suggested Tuesday that existing American duties of a maximum 8.5 per cent have meant, in effect, that Canada has faced no American duty at all. This would be because Canada's dollar is around 8.5 cents below the U.S. dollar in value.

They also said that no difficulty is contemplated in clearing the plan with GATT. This would be solved by offering European nations the same duty-free status.

This seems like a safe proposition because the U.S. in its proposals for reducing trade 50 per cent had included autos in its list with no takers in Europe.

Canada can implement the new plan without legislation through a simple cabinet decree. Congressional legislation is required, however, and one stage will be scrutiny before the influential ways and means committee of the House of Representatives.

Soviet Professor Predicts Profit Motive Will Be Used in Russian Industry

The following is the first of two articles by John Best, Canadian Press Moscow correspondent, on plans to use the profit incentive in the Soviet economic system.

By JOHN BEST

KHAREOV, U.S.S.R. (CP) — Professor Yevsey Liberman of Kharkov Institute of Engineering that within two or three years the profit motive will be a widely used guiding force in Soviet light industry.

Professor Liberman, leader of Russia's increasingly vocal economic liberals seeking to free industry from excessive centralized control, told The Canadian Press in an interview:

"It is very difficult to forecast, but I think in two or three years the new system will be more or less broadly used."

This system, first advocated by Professor Liberman nearly two years ago, would bring into play a whole complex of management and economic levers to make production more responsive to consumer demand.

While it would not infringe on the concept of central planning —"our greatest achievement," says Liberman — it would enable factory directors from rigid production targets set by Gosplan, the central planning agency, and regional economic councils.

It would introduce open market influences into the Soviet economy and give rise to what Professor Liberman calls the "spirit of enterprise" among workers and management.

It would also, believe its exponents, help diversify Russia's sleepy economy by encouraging development of new products, and go a long way toward solving the vexing problem of poor quality production.

Workers would have a material stake in doing good work, in the form of bonuses derived from profit.

The controversial new system is already in effect experimentally in a number of clothing factories.

Professor Liberman said it is his impression that a government decision has been taken whereby all branches of light industry may work under a system "very near" the one he has proposed.

Elements in the approved plan include:

1. Direct relations between production and trading sectors. "Producers must make their products on the basis of commissions directly from stores without any in-between interference from bureaucratic institutions, so-called."

2. "Profitability" to be the main indicator for evaluating work.

3. Factories have the right to regulate prices around a certain basic level set by government, in negotiation with retail stores.

Liberman said the new approach will spread gradually to heavy industry as a better pricing system develops. "This needs some investigation, I am now working on a pricing system for heavy industries."

Professor Liberman, 48, Professor Liberman is a warm friendly man with a quick wit and an infectious laugh. As a small Ukrainian town he got a classical schooling in Kiev and then studied law in Moscow where he took a law degree.

The professor emphasized that employing economic methods of influencing production does not mean that Russia is "going over to some kind of capitalist system."

Except for the portion paid to factory personnel as bonuses, profit does not flow into private hands. Private entrepreneurship is not envisaged.

He tactfully challenged a suggestion that economics have had been disregarded under Russia's all-pervading state planning organization.

"They were not fully disregarded in the past but neither were they fully taken into account. For instance, material incentive was not allowed proper play.

"There is no need for elaborate indicators. You simply say to the workers, 'You will get a part of the profit, so make (the product) as well as you can.'"

Many Stores Will Close For Long Weekend Across Canada This Christmas

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Many stores will be closed for a long weekend across Canada this Christmas.

With the holiday falling on a Friday, a majority of stores in Canadian cities will remain shut Saturday, giving employees three consecutive days off.

A week later during the new year's holiday, however, almost all stores will close only for Jan. 1, opening again for business Saturday.

Banks will be closed for three consecutive days over both holidays.

Only two daily newspapers will be on the streets Christmas Day— the Toronto Globe and Mail and the Victoria Colonist. Most dailies except those in the Maritimes and British Columbia will publish Dec. 26, Boxing Day, but only six—all morning papers—will be available New Year's Day.

A cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press shows this picture of holiday closings:

Almost all major chain department stores will be closed Boxing day. Spokesmen for both Eaton's and Simpson's, two of the largest chains, said they customarily close both Dec. 25 and 26.

NO CHANGE PLANNED

"The fact Boxing Day falls on a Saturday this year is no reason to change that policy," a Simpson's official said.

In Newfoundland stores will be closed Dec. 25 and 28 as well as Jan. 1, but will be open other days through the holiday period. Prince Edward Island stores will follow the same policy.

Most of Halifax's stores will close for a long weekend at Christmas, and provincial and federal offices will be closed Monday, Dec. 28. Only Jan. 1 is a holiday there, however, during the New Year's holiday.

In Saint John, N.B., all business will celebrate Christmas with a long weekend but during the New Year's holiday some stores will open during the morning of Jan. 2.

Many Montreal stores will be open both Dec. 26 and Jan. 2, observing normal hours. The Board of Trade there says most stores also will be open until 9 p.m. Dec. 28 to 30.

Most Ottawa stores will enjoy a long weekend at Christmas but not during New Year's.

Similar policies will be followed in Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver.

In rural Manitoba more than half the towns normally are closed Mondays, so in 54 towns stores will also be closed Dec. 28, giving employees a four-day holiday.

Dec. 26 was declared a civic holiday in Regina at the request of local retailers, but most will be open Dec. 28. Only a skeleton staff of civic employees will be working that day, however, with others getting the day off in lieu of boxing day falling on a normal work day.

Saskatchewan's civil servants will be given Dec. 24 off instead of Dec. 26.

Witness Says Slain Man 'Heavy Drinker'

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Barbara May of Brockville testified Tuesday that Mrs. Helen Rita McLellan, 41, charged with capital murder in the death of her 57-year-old husband Walter McLellan, appeared emotionally upset the day Mr. McLellan died.

Mrs. May, who said she was a friend of the accused, said she was testifying at the preliminary hearing into the charge against the Brockville woman.

Mrs. May said under cross examination by defence lawyer R. W. Summerby, that Mr. McLellan was a "heavy drinker."

Dr. George R. Raymond testified that he was called to the McLellan home on the afternoon of Nov. 22 where he found the victim dead in bed with a shotgun wound in the head.

Check Reports Of Massive Troop Losses

SAIGON (Reuters)—U.S. military advisers today checked reports of massive South Vietnamese troop losses and defections to the Communists as Buddhists staged an anti - government hunger strike here.

Buddhist sons and monks organized the hunger strike as part of their new, all - out effort to oust Premier Tran Van Huong.

Informed military sources said government forces suffered more than 150 killed or wounded and 400 more missing in a major battle last week with Viet Cong guerrillas in Binh Dinh province some 305 miles northwest c. Saigon.

Canada Urged to Expand Sales to U.S. and at Same Time Increase China Trade

NEW YORK (CP)—Stanley J. Randall, Ontario economics and development minister, urged Canada Tuesday to expand sales to the United States and at the same time to increase her trade with China and the African countries.

The minister, who has just returned from Africa where he toured Ghana and Nigeria, said there is a great potential market for industrial exports to West Africa as well as to South Africa, once the political climate becomes more favorable in that country.

Randall made the African tour about a month after visiting China and Hong Kong and, he said, he found the Chinese eager to increase trade with Canada.

China can offer Canada heavy machinery and textiles, he said, adding that "almost anything can be sold in China." He said the Chinese are particularly interested at the moment in having "package plants" set up in their country.

Addressing a joint meeting of the International Executives Association, Randall urged Canada and the United States to accept a "new concept of freer trade" to increase the trade potential between the countries.

Having travelled around the world investigating trade possibilities, he said, he feels that "some form of economic integration between the United States and Canada seems inevitable."

Canada will continue to be the best customer of the United States, he told the meeting.

"But you can expect more Canadian goods and components to be sold in the United States."

Canada needs to increase exports, Randall stressed. "And a natural direction is the American market, where Canada has some competitive advantages based on imported American technology and Canada's lower wage levels."

Concerning Canadian trade with Communist countries, he said Canada is not a major strategic materials fall into the

"But please remember. It may be to Canada's advantage to sell foodstuffs and certain types of industrial machinery to, say, Russia, Cuba and Red China.

"I believe there are many markets such as these that should be tapped for non-strategic goods. And any difference of opinion between us is the exception rather than the rule."

Randall said that Canada's export of auto parts to the U.S. have climbed to $32,000,000 a year. But, he said, American exports of auto parts to Canada are 18 times as great.

Currently the Big Three auto producers are talking about tying the Canadian side of it to the huge American market — opening the way for a truly "continental" auto industry, the minister said. "The authorities envisage a continuing blurring of the American and Canadian production lines."

The more far-sighted U.S. and Canadian manufacturers are beginning to view their two countries as one huge North American market area.

Farm equipment, for example, he said, now passes back and forth duty-free while Canadian industry is designing and producing key components for U.S. defence programs.

A growing number of U.S companies are buying components in Canada for use in their home plants, the minister added. American companies are establishing branch plants in Canada and selling their products in both countries.

More Policing Requested by County Council

PICTON (Staff) — At this week's meeting of County Council Reeve Arthur Moore suggested the need of a full time O.P.P. constable on duty around the clock. A recent series of thefts in the county points out the need for more policing in the area. Accidents which occur after 12 midnight have to be handled by O.P.P. detachment from Belleville, Reeve Moore stated. With an eight-man force here in Picton it was felt that around the clock service could be maintained by at least one officer. A motion by Hepburn and Moore that the council instruct Clerk T. Walker to contact Cpl. Fitcher of the local detachment about having an officer on duty 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and report back to council at the January meeting as to what results could be given was carried.

There is an urgent need for a County Conservation Authority, stated Mr. Norris Whitney, M.P.P. Two weeks ago Mr. Whitney attended a meeting in Kingston where A. L. S. Sarna, Chief Conservationist for the Department of Energy and Resources had explained a recent survey taken regarding the present water levels and deriving situation. Mr. Whitney went on to explain what was accomplished and how Prince Edward County could benefit by the same program by conserving water resources and development of certain areas for future industrial use.

Mr. Whitney urged that council write to the Department of Energy and Resources requesting a free survey. A motion by Lloyd Cunningham that the council request the department make a survey of the water needs and controls required in the county to improve the possibility of setting up a county conservation authority. Motion was carried. This situation, stated Mr. Whitney, should have been recognized years ago. With an abundant supply of water there was little interest shown; now people are really concerned because of the low water. Now is the time to initiate immediate action.

The Rural Scene

PICTON (Staff) — Many of you in the country will be able to get your Christmas tree from your own swamp or bush, but to doubt some of you, like city dwellers, will buy a tree from one of the local suppliers. To assure that it does not become a fire hazard, make a new cut at the base of the trunk and set it in a container of water. Dry needles of evergreens are highly inflammable and will burn explosively.

BOARS APPROVED

A total of 96 boars were approved for provision under the Boar Premium Policy during November. This number included 56 Yorkshire, 25 Landrace and 17 Lacombe. Service interested in purchasing an approved boar can obtain the names of breeders with boars for sale at the Ontario Department of Agriculture office in Picton.

CHEESE PRODUCERS

The annual meeting of the Prince Edward County Cheese Producers was held in the Department of Agriculture Board Room, Picton, on the afternoon of Monday, Dec. 14. The speakers on the program were Hector Arnold, chairman, Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board and J. A. Johnson, secretary, Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board. In his remarks, Mr. Arnold reported that the Board had a very successful year with a good demand and firm prices prevailed for cheddar cheese throughout the season. Mr. Arnold noted that production was considerably below expectations as a result of the drought in Eastern Ontario during the past summer. Mr. Johnson reported on the activities of the Marketing Board and mentioned in particular the increased storage facilities in the new warehouse at Belleville.

Officers elected for 1965 are as follows: President, Orville Handley, R.R. 2 Picton; vice-president, Eldon Walt, Consecon; secretary - treasurer, Charles Frisleigh; directors: Black Creek, Gerald Ackerman and Hutton Martin; Kimbrook, George Forster and Bert Kolcheper; Ben Gill, Clifford Barber and Roy Brooks; Weller's Bay, Hilton Walt and Earl Burris.

REPELLANTS AVAILABLE

Every winter apple growers lose many young apple trees to rabbits. Once the snow gets deep, the rabbits have to find food away from their usual feeding areas. Young apple trees seem to rate high on the rabbits' menu if amount of injury to these trees is any indication.

Several rabbit repellants are available on the market which when painted on the trees will reduce injury to a minimum. These repellants can be easily applied with a small brush, and though the operation is time consuming, this is one of the most effective ways of reducing rabbit injury.

If you have not applied a repellant to your trees you should do so immediately. Repellants applied at this time retain their effectiveness all winter.

Municipal Council Winds Up Business of Year at Meet

CAMPBELLFORD — The municipal council met for the last meeting of the year in the council chambers on Monday evening, with all members present.

Mr. George Bibby, interviewed council regarding some financial support to install lighting facilities for a rink at Kent St. public school to be used for minor hockey. Council allocated $200 for the purpose; it to be channelled through the recreation committee.

A letter of appreciation was read from Rev. J. Walsh of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church for paving done on Bridge St. East, in immediate proximity to the church.

A letter of appreciation was also received from residents on Grand Road for the completion of the filling and sodding of the side of the street next to the canal. The beautifying of this area was a project started some years ago and completed this year.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

A letter of resignation from the Campbellford Volunteer Department was received from Murray Locke, and was accepted by council.

An application early in the year for a pumper for the fire department under a special grant system but which was not available because of depletion of grant money, was again reviewed and will be applied for again after April 1st, 1965, when more grant money is made available.

As legislation regarding low rental housing has undergone changes during the past year, it was decided that a delegation from the council attend a symposium on this project in Toronto, December 16 and 17.

Some discussion took place on a demand from the Ontario Water Resources that profile plans and flow data be given them in regard to minor sewer construction in the town before permission would be granted to install the sewers. This would necessitate the hiring of an engineer. Some councillors felt that the services of an engineer would equal the cost of the sewer itself. Council decided that on its own it would replace a defective sewer on River St.

The often discussed question of establishing the exact boundary line between Campbellford and Seymour township was referred to by-law and will be properly surveyed.

CANVASS NETS $21,000

Councillor Torrance reported for the Community Centre, he stated about 60 percent of the canvass has been completed and had netted approximately $21,000. There is a considerable amount to be raised, yet the newspaper mailing list had been used to contact previous residents here with gratifying results.

An authority was established subject to acceptance by absent appointees for Merryvale School for Retarded Children.

The following were named by council for a two-year term: George Free, H. Dunk, for a one-year term, Mrs. J. Rannie, and Rev. G. Whitehorn.

An appointment was made to P.U.C. to fill vacancy for one year caused by resignation of A. S. Newman. Two names were proposed, E. R. Steele and W. A. Kingston. In the ensuing voting Mr. Steele, who was a runner-up in the recent P.U.C. election, was elected.

For two-year term on the High School Board, G. W. Rutherford was the only name proposed for a two-year term, thus received the appointment.

TWO ON DUTY

The police committee had met previously and established a roster for the four local policemen, the work detail is staggered in a manner that two officers are on duty at all times.

Pensions plans will be discussed early in the new year and it was suggested that a change be made from Canadian government annuities to Ontario Municipal Retirement Plan.

Retiring from the present council will be Reeve George Free and councillors Grills and MacGregor. Reeve Free has spent many years in Campbellford council but was defeated in his bid for re-election by Mr. A. Brown. Now councillors are H. Dunk and F. Maybee.

Boldest change! Best value!

The simple fact of the matter is: Chevrolet is the newest of the new for 1965. It's new coming at you, new passing you (how about that new Sweep-line roof?), and beats all the rest for newness going away. Even Chevrolet's famous Jet-smooth ride has been improved, with new Full Coil front and rear suspensions, a new Wide-Stance tread, more extra-thick body mounts and vibration-squelching insulation at more than 700 points. We put new curved glass in the side windows, and—get this—a new tempered glass rear window in the convertibles. Thirteen out of the fifteen Magic-Mirror colors are new. There's a new rear-mounted linkage in Chevrolet's Ball-Race steering for smoother, more positive handling and control. And if the way Chevrolet looks, and the way Chevrolet rides, and the way it goes is all new, what hasn't changed? Just this: Chevrolet value! For sheer elegance and luxury at a down-to-earth price, no other car can hold a candle to Chevrolet. And the '65 model does more than just maintain that reputation — it builds it! See how '65 Chevrolet does it at your Chevrolet dealer's.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Rocky Marciano, former world heavyweight champion, believes that Cassius Clay won't be sporting the scars he won when Sonny Liston beached himself at their first tete-a-tete, after the dusky dino meet again, if and when.

Which no doubt will cause loud guffaws to ripple the scar tissue of Muhammed Ali's time-stretching hernia operation.

For Rocky, Joe Louis and a host of other boxing experts, with the exception of one or two, called for the slaughter of the Louisville Lip by the gargantuan fists of the Philadelphia champion.

The greatest mass collection of red faces saw the youngster who blabbermouthed his way to the title fight —and backed it up with his fists—come out of that turkey-scuffle dripping with gravy.

Listen, whose age is as much a mystery as that of Satchel Paige (he has a teen-age daughter), claimed he was physically perfect for the re-match brawl, which was postponed when the Clay tummy developed an itch that called for a hernia operation.

Three doctors, said by a Boston writer to be the greatest sports operating trio since Evers, Tinker and Chance, slit the Cassius tummy to see what made him tickle, then announced it would be at least six months before he would be in shape to twist with Sonny.

If Sonny is as mad at the second fandango as when he learned about the postponement, it will enhance the experts' chances of calling the outcome right. But, as Rocky points out, it could be Sonny will be too old to fight by the time the date is set.

For Sonny, the Clay operation was the unkindest cut of all, but in Boston they call the ordeal the "Night of the Inguinal." It has changed the whole picture of certain medical expressions. Clay's "inguinal herniorrhaphy" now ranks tops in scalpel clipping circles.

It caused a buzz of new conversational expressions in the powder rooms of the home of the brave and the cod. Snobby gobs have forgotten their "operations." The inguinal herniorrhaphy" is the latest word in the primer of the P.K. It's taken over from face-lifting which was tops in blue-blood surgery for a long time.

It could be the aroma of the cod, scallop, lobster and clam wafting in on the misty Atlantic breezes has an effect on the athletic and other population of Boston. A native son, John Thomas, high-jumped seven feet at the Olympics with a hernia. Now with the Clay glamorization of the operation hospitals will give an "I.H." degree to every inguinal patient.

The Boston writers treated the Clay operation with tongue in cheek. One said: "As I understand it, it is a fairly simple operation that any interne can perform with a broken bottle. But if has more pomp and whoopnot to it when you have 'Cassius the Greatest' on the table. The hospital got a great public relations break and the way the three doctors tossed the instruments around raised them on a par with the Red Sox infield."

But there it is—and Clay won't be able to match scowls, insults and whatnot with Liston until next April—and probably longer than that.

At that a lot of public interest will be missing.

Besides there is another tournament of sorts shaping up with three or four challengers eyeing the gravy that goes with the title. Floyd Patterson is matched with Canadian George Chuvalo and Ernie Terrell will likely meet Eddie Machen in a saw-off for the right to wear the crown.

And Chuvalo is picked by Rocky Marciano, who has a piece of him, I understand, to knock out Patterson, who knocked out a "warmer-upper" easily the other night.

Perhaps Sugar Ray

Tiger, Giardello Next?

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A return title fight between middleweight champion Joey Giardello and Dick Tiger of Nigeria looms as a strong possibility for Philadelphia next June.

This appeared to be the way Giardello, fresh from a close win over Rubin Carter Monday night, seemed headed Tuesday although he also talked about a rematch against 44 - year - old Sugar Ray Robinson or maybe with the winner of a Tiger-Joey Archer fight.

"We got an offer of $75,000 fo. a title fight with Robinson in January for the Dapper Dan Club in Pittsburgh," said Arnold Giovanetti, Giardello's advisor.

"But we told promoter Don Elbaum that's too soon and April or May would be better."

"That would be all right," said Giardello. "I don't want to fight in June or July. My wife is expecting our fourth child then and I don't want to fight then. I get more nervous than she does."

Giardello, interviewed at a press conference, said he'd be glad to meet the winner of a fight between Archer of New York, the No. 1 contender, and Tiger, the man he dethroned a year ago and who now is rated third. Carter is ranked second.

Giardello looked more like a loser than a winner. The 34-year-old champion had a thick welt under his left eye and a red scar over the eye and reddish bruises under the right eye. Carter came out of the 15-rounder unmarked.

Giovanetti said a crowd of 7,652 paid $85,245 and that about another $25,000 will come in from the television to several cities. He figured Giardello made about $58,000 over - all. Carter's share was $10,000.

Smythe Blasts CAHA On Nationals

TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Smythe, president and part owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League and Maple Leaf Gardens, threatened Tuesday not to allow a scheduled international hockey game between Canada and Czechoslovakia to take place in the arena.

Smythe blasted the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for the quality of the Canadian team which will play in February's world hockey championships. It is defeated this team 4-0 in Maple Leaf Gardens Sunday.

He said he would ask CAHA officials to allow the Czech team to play the NHL Old-Timers instead of Canada's national team. The Old-Timers now play mostly benefit games around Ontario.

If the CAHA refuses to allow the match, which would be played Jan. 10, the date set for the Canada-Czech match, "then I'd have to seriously consider closing the doors and refunding the money paid for tickets," Smythe said.

"If (the CAHA) are going to send old gers into these games then let them send the best old men—and that's the NHL Old-Timers. Give them a couple of good juniors and our Old-Timers who are still playing and they'll do a better job than that team did Sunday."

The Old - Timers include Sid Smith, who played with Whitby Dunlops in the 1937 world championships, Harry Watson, Cal Gardner, Barry and Brian Cullen, Bob Goldham, Murray Henderson and Ivan Irwin.

(In McVille, Sask., Gordon Juckes, secretary - manager of the CAHA, said the group has a contract with Smythe for the Czech - Canada game.

"We didn't particularly want the national team to go to Toronto," he added in a telephone interview with The Globe and Mail. "But I'd have to talk to our (national) team management. After all they meet the Czechs twice in Colorado Springs and once in Winnipeg. ("If they feel like they need the competition, I think we'd insist on the contract being enforced.")

Smythe said the Russians told him they were thinking of packing up and going home when they saw the inferior calibre of opposition lined up for them on their Canadian tour.

"I wanted them to play our Rochester Americans team," he said, "and the Russians wanted to play Rochester (of the American Hockey League) but the CAHA wouldn't go for that at all."

CAHA policy in the past has been not to allow professional teams to play amateurs, whether the teams involved are Canadian or foreign.

Athletics Edge Regals 2-1

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Woodstock Athletics edged league-leading Guelph Regals 2-1 Monday night before a packed house of 1,000 fans in Ontario Hockey Association Senior action.

Player - coach Ted Power scored the winning goal on a backhander from five feet out at the 5:40 mark of the third period.

The victory was the third straight for the Athletics who moved six points ahead of Oakville Oaks and to within six points of the second-place Galt Hornets. Guelph's loss was only their fifth of the season.

Don McGregor opened the Guelph scoring at the 15-second mark of the second period. Woodstock got the next two seven minutes later on a power-play goal by Gerry Striegle.

City, Trenton Juveniles Play Here Friday

Belleville A.C.T. "Travellers" are expected to meet their toughest opposition of the season to date in a special exhibition game here Friday.

Trenton Legion juveniles will clash with the "Travellers", the city's OMHA juvenile representatives, in a nine o'clock battle at Memorial Arena.

The juveniles are taking over the regular Friday night junior time slot since the Kingston-Belleville junior "B" game was postponed until later in the season.

Belleville's A.C.T. squad has been improving with leaps and bounds since a slow start in OMHA play a while back. The team is winning its share of games and hopes to add the strong Trenton club to the string here Friday. Trenton plays strong opposition before big crowds every weekend and holds no fear of the Belleville boys.

The "Travellers" are off to Gananoque for a regular OMHA game tonight.

Meanwhile here at home tonight, Picton teams visit the novice Riteways at 6.00 and the Rollins' peewees at 7.00 p.m. Gananoque clashes with the bantam Oddfellows at 8.00 and the midget Oddfellows at 9.00 p.m. All games are regular OMHA scheduled affairs.

NAMED TOP COACH

NEW YORK (AP)—Mike Holovak, whose Boston Patriots play Buffalo Bills Sunday for the Eastern Division title, has been named Coach of the Year in the American Football League by an Associated Press panel. Holovak, 44 - year - old former star fullback and later head coach at Boston College, was named the winner over Lou Saban of Buffalo in the voting of a 24-man committee—three from each AFL city. Holovak had 13 votes, Saban 11. They were the only coaches who drew any support.

Given Stars, Grades Game Report Cards Judge Habs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The flood of statistics compiled by the National Hockey League is sufficient to supply the demands of most of its member teams. But not Montreal Canadiens.

The figure-minded Canadiens have developed a complementary system—report cards that rate players after each game and lead eventually to pay cuts, raises, bonuses, tongue - lashings, praise and deployment of personnel.

Frank Selke Sr. an experienced observer of hockey talent, developed the idea last year, one of his last projects before retiring as general manager.

"It turned out to be a terrific system," says coach Toe Blake. "We are using it again this year."

The game-by-game study was conducted by Selke and Blake. After each game, whether Montreal won or lost, the individual players were given star, very good, good, fair plus, fair or poor grades. The results were tabulated throughout the season.

"It gives us a ready line on every player without even looking at statistics of past games," Blake explained. "When it become necessary to talk to a player, the report is there in black and white."

SALARIES AFFECTED

Following the Canadiens' championship victory and loss in the playoffs last season, the report cards were consulted in the awarding of some bonuses not covered in players' contracts. Others were persuaded to take salary cuts this year.

All-Stars Tie Russians

Score Was 3-3

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — The superiority of Russia's national hockey team evident in the first two games of their current exhibition tour of Canada faltered Tuesday night as they were held to a 3-3 tie by the Lakehead Senior All-Stars.

The All-Stars, made up of players from the Thunder Bay Senior League, were augmented by four players from the Thunder Bay Junior League and held only one practice before the game. The juniors were obtained Monday night and had not played with their teammates before going on the ice.

Two of the juniors, Bob Munro and Murray Smith of Fort William Canadiens, were instrumental in the tie, scoring during the final two minutes of play as the All-Stars trailed 3-1.

In the first period the Russians appeared erratic and placed noticeable emphasis on passing. They were held scoreless after the All-Stars took a 1-0 lead on a goal by Roger Sawicki at the 17-second mark. It was the first shot of the game. Outshooting the All-Stars 7-3 in the second period, the Russians managed only one goal.

Alexander Alstov, Veniamin Alexandrov and Konstatin Lokter scored for Russia.

In the third period with the score tied 1-1 the Russians mounted a fierce attack but poor shooting and the outstanding goaltending of Joey Bamford held them to two goals. Bamford made 15 stops in the final frame while his Russian counterpart, Victor Kersavlenko, allowed two goals and blocked only one shot.

Throughout the game, played before 4,500 fans, the Russians held a territorial edge on the Lakehead team.

Anatoli Tarasov, the usually outspoken coach of the Russians, disappeared immediately the game ended. He spent most of the game behind his players' bench with a notebook in his hand.

Chief coach Arkadi Chernichev, through an interpreter, said the Russian team played vastly inferior hockey in the first two games of the tour and he was "most disappointed with the way we played." The Russians defeated Montreal Junior Canadiens 3 - 2 Friday and drubbed Canada's national team 4-0 Sunday at Toronto.

Barton Bradley, 38-year-old coach of the All-Stars, credited his team's showing to the way they followed his instructions.

"I told the boys in my position and they did," he said.

The Russian team moves to Winnipeg today where they are scheduled to meet Canada's national team Thursday for the second time. Both national teams will meet again in Winnipeg Dec. 20 after the Russians meet Saskatoon Quakers of the Saskatchewan Senior League Friday at Saskatoon.

$12 Million in Two Years

Baseball TV Package To ABC

NEW YORK (AP) — Major-league baseball sold its first regular season television package for $12,200,000 Tuesday, giving the American Broadcasting Company the right to telecast, on a national scale, 25 Saturday and two holiday games in each of the 1965 and 1966 seasons.

The announcement was made jointly by owner John Fetzer of Detroit Tigers and baseball judge, vice-president and executive producer of ABC sports, at a news conference in baseball commissioner Ford Frick's office.

The Saturday spectacular, as it is called, is a joint project in which the revenue will be equally divided among 18 of the 20 big league clubs. Only New York Yankees and Philadelphia Phillies are not participants.

The Yankee television contract with the Columbia Broadcasting System — which has been in existence 10 years — extends through the 1965 season. The Phillies have a local sponsorship problem to iron out.

Under the terms of the five-year contract, the participating clubs will be enriched to the tune of $5,700,000 the first year and $6,500,000 the second. This is equivalent to $300,000 for each club the first year and $325,000 the second.

The new contract also means that television viewers around the country will not be seeing baseball on an NBC outlet this season. The only games that will be televised nationally are the Saturday spectacular on ABC and those carried through the CBC outlet on Saturdays and Sundays when they are playing at home.

Minor Hockey

Games were played in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's juvenile, midget and novice divisions last night.

JUVENILE

Acos handed the O.S.D. Wolves another defeat, this one by a 4-1 count.

The Wolves take a holiday now and the city A.C.T. "Travelers" will fill in for them for games on December 22 and 29 and on January 5.

T. Ford and Tomaso scored two goals apiece to spark the Acos' win last night. P. Ruttan and Hannah each had two assists. T. Donoghue and McDonald one apiece.

Trenton Minors Sweep Four From Cobourg

TRENTON (Special) — Trenton minor hockey teams swept four exhibition games from their Cobourg counterparts in the Lakeshore town last night.

Trenton's novice team whipped Cobourg 13-1.

Peewee and midget teams from Trenton both scored 6-3 decisions over their Cobourg hosts.

In the tightest game of the night, Trenton bantams nipped Cobourg 1-0.

On Monday night, Trenton Legion juveniles dropped a wild 5-5 tilt also to Cobourg.

That game was halted with about ten seconds left to play, according to a Trenton team manager, when threatened trouble came to a head. Fans at the rink were also said to be involved.

One member of the Trenton squad, Raymond Baile, was taken to Cobourg hospital where he received stitches for a cut wrist.

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association is expected to investigate the game.

No trouble developed during last night's encounters.

On another hockey front, it was confirmed that Toronto New York Steel will return for another exhibition clash with the Trenton RCAF Globetrotters Friday night.

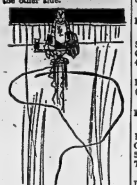
GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY



By GORDIE HOWE

This may be a little hard to believe but there's a player who lasted five years in the National Hockey League despite the fact he couldn't skate backwards.

In our warmups before and during practice, we'll skate around the rink to our left, counter clockwise. Then we'll alternate and go around the rink clockwise.

This teaches you to go both ways. As a means of breaking it up, we have still another exercise.

You stop in one corner and take off the length of the ice. When you get to the end, you pivot and skate backwards down the other side.

Strangely enough, a Detroit-born player is the one to whom I have reference, Charlie Burns. Actually, he lived in Detroit only a year, growing up at his grandparents' home in Canada.

He played for Detroit one season. The first time we went through this backwards-skating routine, we all stood there and actually laughed because Charlie couldn't skate backwards.

Charlie is a good hockey player, a hustler with a lot of moxie. But he couldn't skate backwards. After one season with us, Boston drafted him. He was with the Bruins for four seasons. Today I believe he's playing for San Francisco in the Western League.

Actually, he isn't the only NHL player who couldn't skate backwards. There have been several others.

Being able to pivot and skate backwards helps a player to manoeuvre. It will enable you to avoid a heavy check into the boards when you're driving in.

Or if a player comes barreling in, you can pivot real quick, put the edges in and either draw back or into the backup position. This not only will get you out of the hole but you may be able to get your stick on the puck and be free to make a play.

WITHHOLD SUPPORT

SUDBURY (CP)—City council's traffic committee has decided to leave school safety patrols alone and not support a Kitchener resolution calling for a uniform policy in the province. Archie Stewart, city police traffic safety officer, said Monday night he does not think there could be a uniform system throughout the province because the whole operation runs on a voluntary basis.

Racing Bodies Merge

EDMONTON (CP) — A National Association of Canadian Race Tracks, debated for at least three years, became reality Tuesday.

The association was formed by representatives of 25 harness racing tracks and 12 thoroughbred racing tracks on the final day of the annual National Racing Association conference.

Elected president of the bilateral organization was John J. Mooney of Toronto, general manager of the Jockey Club Limited.

Leo Davies of Edmonton, general manager of the Western Canada Racing Association, became first vice-president and William Randall of the Vancouver Racing Association, second vice-president.

Secretary-treasurer is Frank Gorman of Hull, Que., general manager of Connaught Park, a harness operation.

Mr. Mooney said the National Association of Canadian Race Tracks encompasses almost all Canadian tracks, excepting some Quebec tracks which are not represented.

Major objective of the new organization is to provide a united voice for racing in representations to the department of agriculture in Ottawa, which controls all Canadian racing operations.

COMPLETE TRADE

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates announced Tuesday their Columbus Jets farm club has made a two - player trade with Jacksonville Suns, a St. Louis Cardinals farm club. Columbus acquired outfielder Rog. Cox and second baseman Jack Damaska in exchange for outfielder Ted Savage and pitcher Earl Francis. Both Columbus and Jacksonville are in the International League.

Francona Traded To Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The world champion St. Louis Cardinals have turned Tito Francona into a last - minute Cinderella, acquiring the veteran outfielder from Cleveland Indians just before the clock struck midnight Tuesday and ended major league baseball's inter - league trading period.

The Francona transaction, in which the Indians will get a player to be named later in addition to an unannounced amount of cash, was the 12th made during the month - long period in which National and American League clubs can trade with each other.

Including the player to be delivered by the Cardinals, 31 players will have changed uniforms. In addition, eight more players have been shuffled in four other trades since the 1964 baseball season ended.

The Cardinals grabbed Francona to beef up their bench strength after a couple of trades in the past week depleted their supply of outfielders.

Colts, Browns Top Scorers

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League championship game Dec. 27 between Baltimore Colts and Cleveland Browns will match two of the highest scoring teams in the 45 year history of the league.

Official statistics released by the NFL Tuesday show the Colts with 428 points to 415 for the Browns.

Only two teams—the 1950 Los Angeles Rams with 466 and the 1963 New York Giants with 448—have scored more points than Baltimore. Cleveland wound up in a tie for fourth place on the all-time list with the 1962 Green Bay Packers.

In addition, the Colts led the league in total offence with 4,779 yards gained, 2,007 rushing and 2,772 passing. The Browns were third with 4,498, a step behind St. Louis Cardinals at 4,817.

Browns had the best average yards per rush at 5.0, the best punt return average at 15.2, the fewest fumbles with 15 and the most touchdowns passing with 28. The Colts had the most touchdowns, 34, and the most rushing, 32. Baltimore also lowed the fewest points, 225, and the fewest touchdowns, 28.

The Packers dominated the defensive statistics, leading in total defence with only 3,179 yards allowed and passing defence with 1,647.

DESIGN YACHT

MELBOURNE (AP) — Work on the preliminary design of a 12-metre yacht which will be one of the contenders for Australia's America's Cup challenge in 1967 already is well under way, it was announced Tuesday. Warwick Hood of Sydney, a naval architect, says the boat is expected to take the water late in 1966. The estimated cost of the venture is $380,800.

Ontario Ready To Fly Flag When Approved

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government has had a standing order with flagmakers since last June for a supply of whatever flag was chosen by Parliament to replace the Red Ensign, a government official said Tuesday.

Since then, Red Ensigns have been bought only when a replacement was needed, he said.

Premier Robarts, who has stayed clear of the flag debate, said Tuesday he would fly the new flag. However, he reserved decision on what would happen to the Red Ensign until Parliament's flag choice is official.

Leading flag manufacturers said many other firms and institutions have also had standing orders since early last summer. Meanwhile the production of the Red Ensign has been slowed pending the final decision.

"We would like to get into production right away, but we cannot do anything until such time as we receive the specifications from the government," said Richard Ingram, sales manager of John Leckie Limited.

"After that it will be about a week or 10 days before flags are produced."

RECEIVES FLAG

Patricia Hannah of Toronto, Prime Minister Pearson's daughter, was one of the first to receive the new flag Tuesday night. The six-by-three-foot flag was ordered by a friend, Mrs. Hannah said.

She has no plans for unfurling it, partly because the Hannahs have no flag pole. The last one, a broomstick, was stolen from their home while the family was away for the weekend.

The fate of the Union Jack in provincial parks in Ontario was up in the air, with Lands and Forests Minister Kelso Roberts, a Red Ensign defender, faced with the problem.

Leases to cottagers in Algonquin Park and some leases in Rondeau Park specify that the Union Jack must fly above any other flag flown. This is believed aimed mainly at United States citizens.

Mr. Robarts said he does not think there will be any change in the leases. He noted that the Union Jack may be retained as a symbol of Canada's Commonwealth ties.

"I don't at the moment see any reason to change the leases. . . I personally would not want to be a party to its demotion if that was not required."

MARRIAGES INCREASE

OTTAWA (CP) — January-November registrations of births and deaths were down while marriages were up in Canada compared with the same period in 1963, the bureau of statistics reported today.

January - November registrations, with 1963 figures in brackets, are: Births, 421,638 (433,383); deaths 134,115 (135,481); and marriages, 130,153 (121,262).

Successful Living

Backbone Needed to Leave Ill-Advised Love Behind

DEAR DORIS — I like someone very much and I know he loves me. He has been trying to get me to speak of my feelings towards him but I can't because he isn't a free man. I know I am hurting him and he has had to stay away from work because of it.

I've been trying to find another job but it isn't easy to find a suitable job when you have responsibilities and I'm sure he won't come back to work until I have gone. He has another job there also, he is getting.

Perhaps I shouldn't feel this way but he has been working there a lot longer than I have and if and when he does return I doubt whether I will be able to hide how I feel about him. — ANXIOUS.

DORIS CLARE

DEAR ANXIOUS — Come now — where is what you might loosely describe as your backbone? Somebody has to have one. Either you run for the cover of another job, or you hunt not only yourself and him, but his wife and family, if he ever comes out of hiding.

DEAR DORIS — I was wondering if you could supply me with some information for my health project on "Why a Marriage Fails?" — GRADE ELEVEN STUDENT.

DEAR STUDENT — Isn't it part of the project to find out the reasons yourself? Here is a clue or two: Marriages too early or too late, marriages of people differing in faith or education, marriages between races and colors, — these are the marriages which start off with two strikes against them.

Even with much in common, marriage partners have to work at staying married, by sharing thoughts, money, children and their care; by sharing all decisions of weight. Adjusting happily to another human being takes a high type of maturity and the best kind of love.

DEAR DORIS — Would you please pass on this note to "American Reader." We may adopt a child and I am looking forward to telling this to them.

When Mommies and Daddies have children, it is very special, but what they get is a surprise to them. So many parents like to pick a boy or girl with this or that characteristic but they can't. The only people that can are the ones that adopt. Out of all other children they pick this little boy or girl.

This act of choosing, allowed only adopted children, is something they can be very proud of and should give them even extra security and pride. — ABOUT TO CHOOSE.

DEAR ABOUT — And thanks to skilled and painstaking child care workers the matching up of parent and child may well equal what Nature would do.

DEAR DORIS — We are celebrating our fiftieth wedding anniversary. The reception will be in the church parlor.

Should we wear hats and gloves; that is, my family and myself? The girls prefer not to. — STILL GOING STRONG.

DEAR GOING STRONG — Congratulations! The occasion calls for your prettiest, most modish hat. And gloves. Anyone in a reception line wears gloves. If the girls are serving food, they remove their gloves to do this.

A church parlor is a bit more formal than open house at home, where no one would expect you to have a hat on.

Confidential to MISS H. — Since you are over 21, pool your resources and get married now. Don't cheapen your relationship by making it into a clandestine affair, with the shadow of a fear hanging over it.

Case Against One of Quints Is Dismissed

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Marie Houle, one of the four surviving Dionne quintuplets, was given "the benefit of the doubt" Tuesday and a simple assault charge against her was dismissed by a municipal court judge.

The charge arose from a complaint by Mrs. Georges Aucelin of Montreal that the quint had slapped her in the face during a discussion Oct. 31 about the two Houle children.

The children — Emilie, 4, and Monique, 2½ — had been in Mrs. Aucelin's full-time care at the latter's house when the incident was said to have taken place.

Mrs. Aucelin, 55, said she was "hit without reason" after Mrs. Houle asked to have the children the weekend of Oct. 31.

The older woman said she never allowed the children out of the house overnight and she offered to allow Emilie out for the evening.

HAD ARGUMENT

Mrs. Houle told the court an argument took place and that Mrs. Aucelin said: "I hope you are paralyzed."

Judge Paul Champagne, in giving his decision after an hour-long hearing, said there was a "sufficient provocation" prior to the slapping for him to have "reasonable doubt" about the charge. On that basis he gave Mrs. Houle "benefit of the doubt."

Mrs. Aucelin made the complaint early in November. The case has been postponed several times since then, with Mrs. Houle free on $25 bail, after entering her plea of not guilty Nov. 13.

The quint now is separated from her husband, Florian Houle. She gave her name to the court as Mrs. Marie Houle.

REFORM NEEDED

OTTAWA (CP)—The Deputy Speaker of the Commons said Tuesday procedural and organizational reform is necessary to polish Parliament's "tarnished image." Lucien Lamoureux (L—Stormont) told a luncheon of the Ottawa Lions Club reform would give Canada more effective MPs and a more effective Parliament.

Football Bowl Game Proposed

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union approved in principle Tuesday a proposal to support a charity - sponsored national football bowl game on the pattern of annual invitation bowls in the United States.

A charitable organization, which wanted its identity kept private until the project is confirmed, proposed a Canadian bowl at a meeting of the union's board of governors and administrative committee.

The charitable group is to meet in January to settle the program. Tentative plans call for an invitational game between two top university teams in Toronto or Montreal in 1965 if possible or 1966.

If the bowl game caught on, it might move to different locations throughout the country each year.

The athletic union's board of governors also approved a proposal for an intercollegiate centennial winter games festival in 1967. Details and finances remain to be settled, but the possibility of matching top winter sports competitors from Canadian universities against invited champions from the United States, Britain and France was discussed.

The board sanctioned an intercollegiate track and field meet to be held at a preliminary to an annual international indoor meet at Maple Leaf Gardens in January.

The union recommended to regional associations that eligibility regulations for university sport be standardized across the country.

Harlow is the Talk of the Town

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jean Harlow, the blonde bombshell of the sweet golden era, is exploding all over Hollywood—and soon the world.

Four movies based on her life are in the works. The new spring fashion lines already are showing the Harlow Look, featuring satiny, clinging fabrics with slinky full sleeves and low cut bodices. Beauty shops are promoting Harlow platinum blonde hairdos.

And, at the moment, she is the most talked about star in town.

All of which is most unusual for a star who has been dead nearly 30 years.

Joseph Levine's production of Harlow is scheduled to hit the screen first. It will star Carroll Baker, Hollywood's newest sex symbol, who bears a striking resemblance to Jean.

Peter Lawford will play Paul Bern, the husband who committed suicide 65 days after their marriage in what is still one of Hollywood's biggest mysteries.

Irving Shulman, an English professor at California State College at Los Angeles, reopened the Harlow era with a best-selling biography of the star, based in great part on reminiscences of Jean's first agent, Arthur Landau.

LIKE MONROE

To the younger generation, it might conceivably things is to say Harlow was the Marilyn Monroe of her time. But the movie careers of Monroe and Harlow were strikingly similar. Each was the sex symbol of her generation and each suffered from the pressures of such status. Both were well-liked by people who worked with them. And each had Clark Gable as the same co-star in her last movie.

Jean was 26 when she died and starred only seven years on the screen. She once said: "Sex is fine on the screen—but a nuisance off it."

Her first marriage at 16, an elopement from a swank girls' school, lasted technically three years but was ended long before that.

Her marriage to Bern—like Monroe's marriage to playwright Arthur Miller—was an experience in schmaltz. Bern, an intellectual, introduced her to fine books and art.

The year after his suicide, she eloped to Yuma, Ariz., with Hal Rosson, a cameraman. She divorced him in 1934.

Like Monroe, Jean was quick on the quips with Hollywood reporters. Yet, also like Monroe, she was basically shy.

Critics often panned her acting ability. She answered that with a statement that is quoted in Hollywood to this day:

"If audiences like you, you don't have to be an actress."

Jean got in the movies on a dare, from a friend. She did bits in comedies with Laurel and Hardy and other top comics of the silent era.

About the same time, Howard Hughes started filming Hell's Angels, still one of the great aviation films of all time. The perfectionist millionaire spent three years making a silent movie — and then came the sound revolution.

Hughes scrapped the whole picture at a cost of a then-record $1,000,000. Ben Lyon and James Hall, the male stars, could talk but Greta Nissen, a sexy Norwegian, had too much accent for the talkies.

Landau was Jean's agent—and also Miss Nissen's. So Kansas City-born Jean got the part.

It was not a big part, but the audience saw plenty of Harlow and the picture made her an international celebrity. By 1930, this once unknown 19-year-old was 17th on a list of the 100 best known people in the world.

In the depths of the depression, she was the extrovert, fun-loving sex bomb who made her greatest hits opposite the screen's all-time star, Clark Gable.

She starred, too, with the Barrymores, Spencer Tracy, Robert Taylor, Wallace Beery, Lee Tracy, Franchot Tone, James Stewart, William Powell and a dozen more.

She wore skintight dresses of white satin, white ostrich feathers and white mink, and drove a white Cadillac. On screen she always played a bad girl with a heart of gold.

Her pictures exploited her appeal with such titles as Platinum Blonde, Bombshell, Hold Your Man and Red Headed Woman, in which she dyed her fat red platinum tresses.

Jean's first picture—one in which she was pitted against some of the screen's biggest sex stars, Wallace Beery and Marie Dressler to name two—was Sunner at Eight. Her performance is one of the screen's classic comedy portrayals.

At her peak, Jean made $5,000 a week, at a time when taxes were low. But she left only $41,000.

Oldtimers say that of all the stars—and Hollywood has had its easiest to know. Studio workers loved her.

In 1936, while making Reckless, she started going out with Powell. It was, according to friends, the great love of her life.

But Jean, never strong, soon was plagued with a series of illnesses—throat infections, kidney trouble, gall bladder infections and chronic colds.

Then came the illness that killed her. When uremic poisoning set in, Powell rode in the ambulance with Jean to Good Samaritan Hospital.

"But it was too late then," recalled Powell. "She was too far gone. She died in my arms. It was the saddest day of my life."

The date was June 7, 1937. Jean Harlow was only 26.

AT THE BELLE — Bette Davis is loved by, but does not respond to, Karl Malden and his interest in her even though he has given her a wristwatch as a birthday present, in this scene from "Dead Ringer". The new Warner Bros. shock drama opens Today at the Belle Theatre. Miss Davis stars both as the poor spinster seen here and as her rich and widowed twin. Malden and Peter Lawford co-star. "Dr. Crippen", is the co-feature attraction.

'The Battle of the Bulge' Fine Documentary Program

By CYNTHIA LOWERY

NEW YORK (AP)—A great German offensive was launched suddenly 20 years ago today. It brought the Allies by surprise and by the time they recovered, 1,000,000 soldiers were involved and there were 77,000 casualties.

Tuesday night on NBC The Battle of the Bulge near the end of the Second World War was the basis for a fine documentary program. It told the story primarily through the words of some of the men who survived the fighting.

We returned with war veterans to Verdun, La Roche, St. Vith, Bastogne, Malmedy. Cattle grazed in fields once torn by shells. A retired general sat in the sunshine at a sidewalk cafe in St. Vith and said, almost bleakly, "After 20 years, the battle is scarcely remembered here." But he remembered, vividly.

The effective technique used was to shift the places as they were today with someone recalling events a score of years ago. Then we were shown them with film taken in battle.

Bob Newhart, co-star of CBS' The Entertainers, has asked for and received his release.

He will depart some time after Christmas when Carol Burnett is expected to return.

Recommended tonight:

Mr. Ed and Lucy Living Doll, both in new spots between 7:30 and 8:30 EST, on CBS starting tonight.

Miss Taylor Says Husband 'Very Sexy Man'

NEW YORK (AP)—Elizabeth Taylor says her fifth husband, actor Richard Burton, is "a very sexy man" who has "jungle essence." She was first drawn to him, she says, because "he was so vulnerable and sweet and shaky" while getting rid of a hangover.

The actress said in a current Life magazine article that she will never divorce Burton—"unless he wants to divorce me."

"Whatever will be called for to keep our marriage together," she told her interviewer, "I think I will have the guts to do."

As for her other husbands, Miss Taylor said she married Nicky Hilton for a rose-covered cottage; Michael Wilding for friendship; Mike Todd because he was the pursuing, dominating male, and Eddie Fisher because she thought he needed her.

She insisted, however, "I really don't believe in divorce."

The first day she saw Burton on the movie set of Cleopatra, Miss Taylor said, "he sort of sidled over to me and said, 'Has anybody ever told you that you're a very pretty girl?' And I said to myself, Oy Gevalt! (Yiddish for "Oh, God"), here's the great lover, the great wit, the great intellectual of Wales, and he comes out with a line like that. . .

"Well, the first day we were to work together, I've never seen a gentleman so hung over in my whole life . . . he ordered a cup of coffee to sort of still his trembling fits and I had to help it to his mouth, and that just endeared him so to me . . . he was so vulnerable and sweet and shaky. . . ."

Steve McQueen Just Helping School That Helped Him

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There is a handsome Christmas wreath hanging in the entrance of the MGM commissary with a sign saying others like it can be ordered by calling the office of Steve McQueen.

Why is a movie star selling Christmas wreaths?

The answer goes back to an episode when McQueen almost barely a teen - ager but possessed a toughness beyond his years.

Inevitably, he got in trouble with the law. He was offered the choice of stern punishment, or enrolment at Boys' Republic, a private institution. He chose the latter.

Located at Chino, 30 miles east of Los Angeles, Boys' Republic is just that: A self - sufficient plant where the boys rule themselves, with adult guidance.

"The system works out fine," McQueen says. "If you allow the boys to run the boys, you can pretty well be sure that discipline will be kept. When a clean cottage means the chance to see a movie once a month and one boy can wipe out the privilege by demerits, you can bet the other 900 will see that he suffers for his infractions."

LANDED IN JAIL

Young Steve didn't see the wisdom of the system at first. He ran away, landed in jail and was returned.

"I got my lumps from the other fellows," he said.

He also had a long talk with the superintendent. Steve remembers him as a formidable-looking man with a patient understanding of the motivations of boys in trouble. He explained he is always proud of Steve's future: He could go on getting into trouble, or he could start learning to get along with other human beings.

Steve says it was probably the turning point in his life.

He learned to do his work, and there is plenty to do at Boys' Republic. There are cattle and other livestock to care for and a host of duties in maintaining the grounds and buildings. Steve soon discovered the boys who worked well got the better jobs.

HAD GARBAGE DUTY

"I had the garbage duty during my Christmas at Boys' Republic," he recalled. "Listen, it wasn't a bad job at all. You just had to haul out the cans three times a day. There were a lot worse jobs."

Another duty was assembling the Christmas wreaths which are sold each year with proceeds helping to support the institution. Steve stayed there about a year, and the lessons he learned stayed with him.

That's how a movie star happened to be selling Christmas wreaths in the MGM commissary.

AT THE PARK — Coming Soon — Marlon Brando, Rita Moreno and Red Buttons appear in this dramatic production of Charles Nordhoff's "First Men IN the Moon," a Columbia Pictures release based on H.G. Wells' scientific adventure classic.

"ALWAYS THE LOWEST IN DRUG AND PHARMACEUTICAL PRICES"

AND WE'RE NOT KIDDING!

bought a new car lately?
clothes for the kids?
coat for the wife?
furniture?
more insurance?
new house maybe?
messed up the budget?
you aren't the only one!
but sickness
that's murder
especially when you have to pay for it!
agree?
now look at our slogan again
we're serious about it
'cause it's true!
we don't give you fancy frills
only the finest quality at the lowest price in town

how do we save you money?

1. Mass purchasing for all our stores in Ontario enables us to buy our drugs at the lowest possible manufacturer's prices.
2. We do not deliver or maintain charge accounts and any store which does provide these services must include these costs in its pricing.
3. The enthusiastic response to our lowering of drugs and prescription prices gives us the necessary volume to operate with a much lower profit.

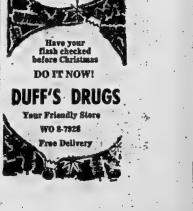
Minister Will Probe Report



OTTAWA (CP) — Immigration Minister Trembley told a House of Commons Toronto newspaper printers Tuesday that he intends to make a special investigation into the alleged export of United States strikebreakers to Canadian labor disputes.

He made the promise after the group of union leaders from the Toronto local of the International Typographers Union (ITU) complained that the eight professional strikebreakers from the U.S. now are working at The Toronto Telegram and Globe and Mail in Toronto.

The ITU has been on strike at the three papers since July 9. They have continued to publish.

Importance of India Can't Be Exaggerated in Strategy

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The importance of India in Prime Minister Wilson's new global defence strategy cannot be exaggerated, in the opinion of some London observers.

The British Labor premier—who is expected to make a major defence statement to Parliament today — has repeatedly stressed the understanding he found in Washington last week of Britain's global responsibilities.

It is also reported that Wilson won U.S. President Johnson's support for a new version of the often-mentioned "special relationship" between their countries where peace in Asia is concerned.

Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India, in his recent visit to London, spoke of the continuing danger from China, with its territorial appetite and its possession of a nuclear capacity.

WANTS 'GUARANTEES'

Shastri spoke of the necessity of India, and other non-nuclear countries, receiving some sort of guarantees against attack by nuclear powers. Otherwise the number of bomb-owning countries would be certain to grow.

India attained independence under Britain's first post-war Labor government, a point frequently mentioned with pride by Wilson and others. It is natural for the party to take a special interest in safeguarding India's independence and assisting, its development.

Wilson thus is faced with the problem of helping to provide some kind of guarantee of protection to India while at the same time holding to his pledge against "new fingers at the nuclear trigger."

The Communist Chinese threat, along with the fighting in South Viet Nam and Malaysia, apparently caused Johnson and Wilson to regard Asia as an area of developing danger as compared with Europe, where the United States and Britain were directly embroiled in those dangers, unlike such European partners as West Germany and France.

ASIAN NUCLEAR FORCE?

The U.S. and British governments says one report, are studying the possibility of setting up a collective nuclear force to deter an attack in Asia without encouraging the spread of nuclear weapons.

The Labor government is politically pledged to abandon its independent nuclear role. But it could, perhaps, still contribute nuclear elements not only to NATO but to the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

A London newspaper even says the U.S. and Britain might ask the Soviet Union and France to join them in a guarantee to use nuclear weapons for the defence of countries which agree not to make or buy them.

This would be aimed primarily at protecting India from China. The report may gain some support from the news that Wilson hopes to bring Russia's new B and K ruling team, Brezhnev and Kosygin, successors to Khrushchev, to London next spring.

Worst Prairie Blizzard In Years Leaves Six Dead

Trail of Blocked Roads, Deep Drifts in Wake

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The worst blizzard in most memories left at least six dead, many cases of frostbite, blocked roads and deep drifts in its wake across Alberta and Saskatchewan. It's blowing itself out in Manitoba today.

Temperatures at Winnipeg dropped seven degrees in five hours Wednesday night and winds picked up to gusts of 30 miles an hour as the storm gathered force. Weather officials said winds should subside by noon today.

Winds began abating Wednesday in Saskatchewan although Swift Current was still buffeted by gusts up to 40 miles an hour.

The storm's death toll, since it began in Alberta Monday, rose to six Wednesday. In Alberta, one man died of exposure, three died of heart attacks and one died in a fire. One man was found frozen on river ice in Manitoba.

Six men, missing overnight in the storm, were found safe Wednesday. Four had been missing on a 32-mile trip in east-central Alberta and two had been missing near Herbert, Sask. All had found shelter.

TREATED FOR FROSTBITE

One of the men, Don Miller of Swift Current, was treated in hospital for severe frostbite to his face, legs and stomach. His companion was Allan Usman of Swift Current.

At Coronach, Sask., 90 miles south of Moose Jaw, two elderly persons were treated for exposure after electrical power failed for seven hours as temperatures hovered near 20 below zero. Other elderly persons were housed in the hospital as a safety precaution

Another storm played havoc with British Columbia Tuesday and Wednesday.

Reginald Messinger, about 61, died of a heart attack while pushing a stalled car. Late crops were wiped out by frost on southern Vancouver Island and four hunters were stranded by the storm 30 miles northwest of Vancouver.

Temperatures dropped to near record lows and some schools closed when they couldn't be heated in time for classes. Vancouver recorded a low of 13 degrees Wednesday morning, second lowest temperature on record.

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Unprecedented pre-winter cold accompanied by lashing winds paralyzed the northwestern United States today, dropping temperatures far below zero and cutting parts of storm - battered Montana into disaster areas.

Temperatures plunged to 40 below zero in some areas, and the U.S. weather bureau said the cold would last at least five more days. One reading Wednesday was 28 below atop a mountain 24 miles northeast of Lewistown, Mont.

The severe weather had strange and sometimes tragic effects.

Eleven cattle stranded in deep snow at 10,000 feet above sea level west of Creede, Colo., were given tranquilizer shots, lashed to a helicopter and carried to lower levels.

In Bloomington, Ill., a 71-year-old woman died Wednesday of carbon monoxide poisoning when furnace fumes were backed into her home by a bird's nest blocking the chimney.

BARELY BEGUN

The weather bureau said the cold spell, "which has barely begun in the northwest," will spread into parts of Tennessee and Mississippi by the end of this week. A spokesman advised motorists to stay off the northwest of Minneapolis.

Sheer cold disrupted utility services. A temperature of 27 below snapped a natural gas company line which burst into flames south of Cody, Wyo., killing one man and severely burning another. Numerous homes were without heat so long as five hours.

Winds measured at 50 miles an hour or more ranked northwestern Washington State, driving a 30-foot sailing boat aground and tearing a large sawdust barge loose from a tug.

Three deaths were attributed to the Washington State cold siege. One was a Seattle schoolboy who was killed when his sled hit a tree in a Seattle suburb.

North Dakota Governor William Guy set up emergency precautions to assist travelers caught in the blizzard.

Winds up to 50 m.p.h. whipped northern Minnesota and temperatures plunged far below zero.

REPORTS ON LOANS

OTTAWA (CP)—At Sept. 30, a total of $7,301,000 had been received loans under the student loans plan, the Commons was told Wednesday. Finance Minister Gordon said a total of $14,125,256 had been loaned on the student loans under the plan.

ACCUSED OF OFFERING BRIBE — Raymond Denis, former executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, talks with his wife at Ottawa's Union Station, scene of the Dorion inquiry. Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne testified Tuesday that Mr. Denis offered him a $20,000 bribe July 14 if he would stop fighting a bail application for Lucien Rivard. (CP Wirephoto)

France Agrees to Co-ordinate Targeting A-Bombs With U.S.

PARIS (CP) — France has agreed in principle to co-ordinate targeting of its nuclear weapons with that of the United States, a significant step in view of the cool relations that have existed between the two countries.

Moreover, U.S. authorities said that in the Wednesday round of talks between President Charles de Gaulle and U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk, de Gaulle showed a degree of warmth and response that encouraged the American diplomat.

De Gaulle agreed with Rusk that the prevention of proliferation of nuclear weapons was important. But it appeared he may have t'Wart Germany in mind rather than other countries.

No data was given by French officers to join the Americans in deciding which country's precautions to assist travelers caught in the blizzard.

Winds up to 50 m.p.h. whipped northern Minnesota and temperatures plunged far below zero.

French reluctance resulted from Germany's acceptance of the U.S.-proposed mixed-manned element in development of a multilateral or Atlantic nuclear force.

Bickering also developed between Britain and France as France continued to advocate massive retaliation instead of graduated response in the event of war. British Defence Minister Denis Healey said the proposal by French Defence Minister Pierre Messmer appeared contradictory to that of French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

The French agreement in principle to co-ordinate nuclear targeting with the U.S., which would help regulate the small French nuclear force, appeared to be one of the positive accomplishments of Wednesday's NATO talks.

It came as U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara disclosed that 40 per cent of the U.S. nuclear stockpile is in West Germany or allocated to the defence of Europe.

He emphasized also that a nuclear attack on Europe would be considered as an attack on the U.S. The response would be the same.

McNamara told the NATO ministerial council the present Allied atomic arsenal already is so staggering that new extensions of strategic atomic weapons can hardly be justified.

His implication was clear: The U.S. sees no need for other NATO countries to maintain independent nuclear forces, as the British and French do now.

Sask. Liberal Govt. Loses Byelection, Industry Minister

SASKATOON (CP)—The Saskatchewan Liberal government Wednesday lost its first test at the polls since ousting the CCF in a general election April 22.

Industry Minister Herb Pinder, 41, was defeated in a byelection in Hanley constituency by Robert A. Walker, 46, CCF attorney - general. Progressive Conservative Hugh Arscott, 40, was far behind.

Final unofficial results gave Mr. Walker 4,525 votes. Mr. Pinder 3,711 and Mr. Arscott 1,693. No percentage vote was available.

Former CCF premier Woodrow Lloyd termed the outcome a "severe censure" of the Liberal government's policies but Premier Ross Thatcher said he did not consider the outcome a repudiation of his government's actions.

Mr. Walker, who held the seat for 19 years before the April election, took the lead when ballot counting started in the urban - rural riding area rounding Saskatoon. Mr. Pinder conceded defeat at 9:26 p.m. CST, two hours after polls closed.

Standing in the 59-seat House in: Liberal 32, CCF 25, Progressive Conservative one. The first byelection was held.

In the April general election, official returns gave Mr. Pinder the seat by 30 votes. He became a minister in the new Liberal government. A judicial recount showed Mr. Walker won by two votes.

Mr. Pinder then sought to have the result set aside under the Controverted Elections Act, claiming a number of irregularities in procedure. Mr. Walker agreed there were enough irregularities and the seat was declared vacant.

Mr. Pinder said results indicated many who voted Conservative in April had swung to the CCF in Wednesday's voting.

In conceding the election, he said he would resign from the cabinet today and discounted the possibility of another seat being opened for him. Premier Thatcher said he had given no thought to a replacement.

A native of Regina, Mr. Walker first ran as a CCF candidate in Leeds, Ont., in 1945 and was defeated. He returned to Saskatchewan and was elected as the CCF member for Hanley in 1948 by 51 votes.

He was appointed attorney-general in the CCF government in 1960 and added the provincial secretary portfolio in 1957.

Mr. Pinder, a Saskatoon businessman, was provincial president of the Liberal party before the April general election and was considered a chief architect of the party victory. Mr. Thatcher termed him "able minister."

Mr. Arscott was an unsuccessful candidate in Saskatoon in the April election. He is in the insurance business in Saskatoon.

Corrects Impression Left By Statement In Commons Favreau Kept Case Secret

Lamontagne Says Bribe Offer Included Sum for Liberal Party

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson dropped a surprise on the Dorion judicial inquiry Wednesday, saying he knew September 2 — and not November 22 as he suggested in Parliament — about bribery allegations against an executive assistant to one of his cabinet ministers.

Mr. Pearson's statement, a memo included in a letter to Chief Justice Frederic Dorion who heads the inquiry, was read into the record in the second day of formal hearings into charges of bribery and coercion against ministerial assistants.

Mr. Pearson's memo said Justice Minister Favreau advised him Sept. 2 that there were bribery allegations against Raymond Denis, at that time executive assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay; that Mr. Denis denied them and that the RCMP was investigating.

Mr. Pearson said he wanted to clarify a statement he made in the Commons Nov. 24 when questioned about his knowledge of allegations that Mr. Denis offered Montreal lawyer Pierre Lamontagne $20,000 to drop opposition to bail for a man wanted in the United States on narcotics smuggling charges.

Mr. Lamontagne, 29, is counsel for the American justice department which wants to extradite Lucien Rivard of Montreal to face charges linking Rivard's name with the Mafia international crime syndicate.

WOULD PAY LIBERALS

Mr. Lamontagne testified Wednesday that in addition to the $30,000 offered him by Denis in a private talk here July 14 there was an additional understimulated sum to be paid to the federal party. He said he rejected the Denis offer.

The Montreal lawyer also said that Guy Favreau, former executive assistant to Mr. Favreau, knew Rivard and worked briefly during a summer vacation from college at Rivard's beach resort near Montreal.

"The police said we were demonstrating but we were not," Mrs. Casgrain said. "We tried to present a letter to the ministers or to some NATO authority but the police would not let us into the building."

ARE QUESTIONED

"Then one burly policeman ordered us into a patrol wagon and took us to a district police headquarters where we were questioned by one officer after another.

"They said we were not being arrested, just detained for questioning, but they kept us on hard benches in a cold, damp cell. They refused us any material but let us have a lawyer or call our embassies.

Finally after three-hours, "an officer came in and read us a lecture. He said we were being let off easily this time, because it was against the law to demonstrate at the NATO building," Mrs. Casgrain continued.

"We kept saying we did not demonstrate but it made no difference to the officer."

Canadian Women Put In Cells

By HAROLD MORRISON

PARIS (CP) — Mrs. Therese Casgrain, 65 - year - old former president of the Voice of Women in Canada, wears shoes and 15 other women from a number of NATO countries were locked in a police cell for three hours Tuesday after they tried to petition NATO ministers to reject the proposed multilateral nuclear force.

With Mrs. Casgrain, a Montreal resident, was Mrs. Kathleen MacPherson of Toronto, the current Voice of Women president. Mrs. MacPherson now has left for London.

"I wasn't frightened," Mrs. Casgrain said in an interview Wednesday. "But I am going to protest to the Canadian government. This was an injustice. We didn't do anything wrong."

Mrs. Casgrain had joined a demonstration of about 100 women in a quiet walk to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization headquarters when ministers are considering the future of the alliance and weighing the merit of some form of Atlantic nuclear force.

"The police said we were demonstrating but we were not," Mrs. Casgrain said. "We tried to present a letter to the ministers or to some NATO authority but the police would not let us into the building."

Senators Debate New Flag

By ALEX MORIN

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's distinctive national flag is coming — and so is Christmas.

The big question is which will get here first.

On the answer hangs Lester B. Pearson's reputation as a Santa Claus.

As things shaped up in Parliament Wednesday, it was a matter over which senators had far more control than did the prime minister, who expected the red maple leaf flag by Christmas.

If it is to be flying from the Peace Tower Dec. 25, the flag resolution in the Senate must be approved and there must be royal proclamation from the Queen having it take the place of the Canadian Red Ensign.

The Commons ended six months of bitter debate by passing the resolution in the early morning hours Tuesday. They moved on immediately to consideration of the committee recommendation that would make the Union Jack Canada's official symbol of allegiance to the Queen and of membership in the Commonwealth.

DEAL WITH MOTION

Debate in the Senate concentrated for the full day on a motion by Senator Gratian O'Leary (PC — Ontario) to shelve the new flag indefinitely.

Senator David Croll (L — Ontario) said Senator O'Leary is the manufacturer's agent for revenue. Is it not time that we stopped living in the past, all of us, and grew up as a nation?"

Senator Harry A. Willis (PC — Ontario) said the design of a red maple leaf on a white background with red panels at either side "smacks too much

Blister Size of Grapefruit Removed From Duke's Aorta

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Duke of Windsor, operated on for removal of an arterial blister the size of a large grapefruit, is making rapid progress toward recovery.

Dr. Michael DeBakey, who performed the abdominal surgery, said the former king of England should be on his feet today and out of Methodist Hospital within two weeks.

Within eight hours after his 7:32 a.m. CST operation Wednesday, the Duke said Duke had chatted with the duchess teased his nurse and discussed the surgery with DeBakey.

"The duke tolerated the operation extremely well," DeBakey said. "He should be perfectly well.

The doctor explained the operation involved making a seven to eight-inch incision in the abdomen and substituting a plastic tube where the ballooning blister, or aneurysm, that began developing four years ago on the aorta.

Hellyer Thinks Cleavage in NATO Not as Great as It May Appear

PARIS (AP) — Canadian Defence Minister Paul Hellyer says the cleavage within the North Atlantic alliance is not as great as it appears on the surface and that a meeting of NATO defence ministers scrapped of their advisory, could probably resolve most of the differences quickly.

Advocating a cold, hard look of the realities of nuclear power, Hellyer said he did not believe the U.S. and Britain are likely to yield their veto over the use of their nuclear weapons no matter what kind of Atlantic nuclear force is decided.

At a press conference following his closed-door talk to NATO ministers, Hellyer said Wednesday that if weapons are committed to a multilateral or Atlantic nuclear force, then those who own the weapons would retain the right to withdraw them "at some time."

Hellyer's terse, 10-minute presentation to the NATO conference was reported to have won wide attention among the other defence ministers. Hellyer said some of them were particularly interested in his suggestion for a study in the integration of Canada's armed forces. They asked for more details on future progress.

He urged a speedier review of forward planning in NATO military strategy and pleaded for a NATO defence minister's meeting to overcome differences and reconcile opposing viewpoints. The meeting should avoid repeating national positions but instead plunge into discussion of technical problems and how consultation and control over some co - ordinated nuclear body could be exercised.

What Hellyer anticipated was an "evolution" in NATO thinking. There still remained "a reluctance to face the dynamism of history and to accept the changes that have taken place." There always was nostalgia, hope that the easier days of the past would be returned. But this could not be, Hellyer said.

In other Canadian quarters it was stated that the U.S. proposed multilateral nuclear forces represents an "offset" or "41 version" of U.S. national intentions. The proposed 25-ship Polaris fleet would not add to the Western deterrent, but would merely represent a change in the formation of the U.S. deterrent, with Europe picking up some of the costs without the ultimate decision-making power of the U.S.

Hellyer, in his speech, touched also on the need to speed up standardization of NATO weapons and equipment. Some European members have complained that they lack adequate training grounds. Hellyer said that if standardized pools of equipment were stored in Canada, then European troops could be moved quickly and cheaply in Canada's wide-open spaces.

Teachers Play Santa Claus, Thanks To Generosity of Regina Residents

CARMACKS, Y.T. (CP) — Three young teachers will play Santa Claus tonight to 92 children in this Yukon community, thanks to the generosity of their friends in Regina.

About 400 pounds of toys and candy were shipped north from Regina this month after one of the teachers, Sonia Webb, 19, wrote her father and said 67 Indian youngsters at the school faced Christmas without toys or candy.

Mr. Webb appealed for aid through a small item in the Regina Leader - Post Nov. 28 and four days later hundreds of Regina residents answered the plea.

The Leader-Post assumed the air freight costs of shipping the goods, 1,875 to 92 children in this Yukon community, thanks to the generosity of their friends in Regina.

While on the children at the school, others at an Indian school at Carcross, Y.T., and a settlement camp at Faro, Webb's horse will receive gifts.

Miss Webb, Pat Humphries and school principal Barrie Taylor have spent most of the last week sorting the gifts in attempts to come as close as possible to meeting wishes of the children outlined in a letter to Santa.

The gifts will be distributed after the school children present a special play written by Miss Webb especially for tonight's pageant.

The temperature at Carmacks has hovered near 50 below zero several days but that has discouraged neither plans for the festive evening nor the last few hours by the three teachers, sorting through the Christmas packages.

Normally the youngsters are served with a traditional Christmas dinner by Walter Israel, proprietor of a hotel at Carmacks, and received gifts through a special joint venture of the Anglican and Baptist church missions.

Report Says Patient Labor Used in Ontario Hospital

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says that at least one major Ontario hospital uses patient labor for economic as well as therapeutic reasons, according to a newly discovered report from the hospital staff to its senior officials.

The newspaper quotes sources close to the hospital, which it does not identify, as saying the situation has not changed since the report was submitted in the early 1950s.

The report was discovered, the newspaper says, following assertions Monday before the legislature select committee on youth that retarded children in hospital schools were put to work in certain janitorial and domestic jobs.

Health Minister Matthew Dymond said the report was never submitted to the committee that no patient was put to work for any other than therapeutic reasons in any Ontario hospital.

Dr. Dymond said that while some patients do work as part of their treatment, "there is adequate staff at the Ontario hospitals."

The Globe and Mail says the report claimed patients worked in the laundry, carpentry shop, garden, kitchen, laundry, mattress and upholstery shop and in the dyers and cleaners and nurses aides.

The purpose of the report, which has not been completed since its submission, was to obtain payment for the patients' work.

Horticultural Soc. Presents Panel Discussion

The program for the regular monthly meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society took the form of a panel discussion. The moderator was Mr. Taylor Franklin and the panel of experts was comprised of Mr. Bos of Appledene "Nurseries on Shurie; Mr. Harry Rose of Rossmore on dahlias; Mr. Bob Phillips president of the Fair Board on house plants; Mr. W. Mackay, vice-principal of B.C.I. on roses; Mr. Jack Laundry of East Lake on gladioli, and the society's president, Mr. Downing, on petunias and lilacs.

The panel answered numerous questions put forth by members of the group and some interesting points on horticulture were discussed. Some useful points brought out were: Petunias appear to like poor soil. Do you know that it is impossible to force bulbs in the house unless you store them in a temperature of 40 to 50 degrees to develop roots. If one cannot you should keep the pot in the dark, the garden until the root system is formed; that the best dahlias are grown by potting the sprouts that appear on the roots in February or March. The plants bloom earlier and have larger flowers. If one buys a named variety of lilac it will probably be grafted on a common lilac stock and one should plant deeply so that roots may form above the graft. When this occurs, dig up the bush and cut off the common lilac stump, otherwise the grafted lilac will be smothered. This was just a sample of the garden lore the experts willingly gave.

The president announced that there would be no meeting for tulip bulbs at the end of the meeting. There was a display of polished teak (Hawaii) and ornamental Christmas designs by members of the society. Mrs. Watson displayed a white orchid in bloom.

Next month will be the annual meeting and Mr. Downing has arranged for a Japanese lady to give a demonstration of Japanese flower arrangement.

The Horticultural Society has over 200 members but the aim for the next year is to build it to 300. Programs are interesting and varied and there will be projects to suit every taste.

C of C Report Shows Active Year in All Departments

TRENTON — The annual report of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce was released yesterday by secretary-manager Norman Sprague.

In his report, Mr. Sprague stressed the tourist promotion activities of the chamber over the year, noting that the chamber had joined the Bay of Quinte Tourist Council this year. Trenton was advertised at three of the largest sportsmen's shows, in an advertising campaign in the Outdoorsman; the chamber issued an accommodation guide, designed by Mr. Sprague; brochures about the town were placed in all service centres on Highway 401 between Trenton and Kingston and were handed out at several large conventions in Toronto. Brochures and other supplies were also sent to U.S.A. border points.

Mr. Sprague attended several meetings of the tourist council and issued an invitation on behalf of the chamber for the council to hold a meeting in Trenton next year.

Mr. Sprague noted that there were a number of reasons why tourism was not up to average in the town this year. One was that the Wonder Bar burned away many U.S. vacationers. Another was the cool weather in August and another the repair work carried out on Trenton streets.

The chamber had printed a complete map of the town this year, and this, with other literature was dispensed at the tourist booth.

COMMITTEE NAMED

A chamber committee was appointed to work with Front St. merchants in the carrying out of the Norwich Plan of economical store-front improvement, particularly, and to encourage other merchants in the town to enter into the plan.

Projected plans for a permanent chamber office on the riverside of Front St. are still being ironed out between the chamber and town council. The builders' association has offered its services free to get the building up once other details are arranged.

Other chamber services to the town include acting in the capacity of an unofficial "better business bureau," and advising town residents as to the legitimacy of certain business enterprises; co-operating with the Welcome Wagon personnel; attempting to suggest store opening hours which will please most of the merchants; sponsoring the Santa Claus parade; representing the town at meetings of industrialists and tourist promotion groups and compiling an industrial survey of the town.

The chamber also entered into the planning of a large convention in Trenton this summer, (Jehovah's Witnesses), and arranged for tours of Trenton plants by U.S. visitors.

Driver on Wrong Side

KINGSTON (CP) — A coroner's jury investigating the Nov. 17 death of a motorist near here recommended Wednesday that if breath analysis tests are available in the Kingston area they should be used in every accident rather than at the discretion of the investigating officer.

The jury ruled that the death of George Lee, 56, of Mountain Grove, Ont., was the direct result of head-on collision caused by his car's being on the wrong side of the highway. The accident occurred because of Car's incoherence because of alcohol, the jury said.

WHITE — In memory of Edna Jessie White who passed away Dec. 17th, 1953.

If I in all the world to give,
I'd give it, yes, and more,
To hear her voice and see her smile once more.

And great her at my door.
I'll wait my turn patiently, to go and tend your grave.
Then I'll rest, within, forever more,
To be best mother God ever made.
Till I'm called to Heaven to be,
Wherever heaven may be,
I'll wait for you to open the door,
Up there to welcome me.
—Always remembered by son Basil and daughter-in-law Helen White.

WHITE — For the memory of Mrs. Edna Jessie White who passed away 17th of Dec. 1963.

To bring you to our mind,
For you are missed more than ever,

We'd give it yes, and more,
To hear your voice and see your (memory) dear.
Come smiling through the door.
—Sadly missed by granddaughter-in-law, Bethella Tenney and family.

ABBOTT — In loving memory of my dear son Percy who passed away Dec. 17th, 1953.
He didn't have time to say Farewell.

A million times I've needed you,
A million times I've cried.
If memories could bring you back,
You'd live with me always.
—Sadly missed by mother, Mrs. Ethel Abbott, sisters and brothers.

Ripley Should Have Said It

"Spending is Saving." He didn't say it, but we are, and we believe it to be true. Every out of ten automobiles on the road today, are out of alignment. The impact of an automobile travelling at sixty miles an hour, hitting a pot-hole, railway track or anything else can throw the wheels out of alignment. Only a fraction of an inch can cut down the potential wear on your tires to half. It also distorts your steering. We, at Canadian Tire, have the answer. We have the best equipment available in the John Bean Visualiner, and a top front-end technician in Mr. Hal Fox. For just $2.00 we'll give your car a thorough front-end check, and if it requires further work, the cost can be applied on our low price of $6.95 for most cars. If anything needs replacing this is where we can really SAVE you money. We use guaranteed new-car quality replacement parts, at prices that save you up to 50%. Yes, you can charge it, too! No service charges on 30-day accounts, or if it's something major, you might spread it over many months, with payments as low as $2.00 per month.

United Appeal Tops $85,000 As Drive Ends

The Belleville United Appeal has reached $85,008.54, it was announced today by T. R. Fell, campaign chairman for the 1964 fund drive. In marking the close of the campaign, Mr. Fell reported that the final total yet may exceed $86,000, if a favorable response is received from a number of calls that are still unreported. Even though this amount would be some 19% short of the campaign goal of $106,024.85, it would on the other hand, set a new high mark for total collections in the annual United Way drive. Last high mark was $72,700 collected in the 1962-63 campaign.

The fund-raising drive got a last-minute lift over the $85,000 mark with a major cash donation this week. Oshawa Wholesale Limited, who operate the Rite-Way Food City store in Belleville, forwarded a cheque for $450.05, raised through a company payroll deduction plan for employees who work in the Belleville area, plus a corporate gift of $220.

An estimated 20 per cent of the total donors to this year's campaign took advantage of allocating their donations to specific agencies, said Mr. Fell. These totalled $10,890, or slightly more than 12% of the total givings. The privilege of allocating donations was extended for this year's drive and was one of the highlights of the campaign, he said.

In winding up this year's campaign, Mr. Fell paid high tribute to those volunteer workers who gave so freely of their time and effort in carrying out their particular assignments, and extended a warm thanks to the entire United Appeal to all those who gave generous financial support that made this year's campaign the most successful one in the history of Belleville United Fund drive.

MARKING THE TOTAL of more than $85,000 on the Jaycees - United Appeal red feather on Bridge Street is Mrs. D. J. Button of the Rite-Way Food City. The store's contribution of more than $450 to this year's United Appeal raised the total over the $85,000 mark. Holding the ladder for Mrs. Button is Leslie Maurer, representing the employees of Wilson Concrete Products, who donated nearly $3,000 to the Appeal. Average donation among Wilson's employees was nearly $17, the total was equal to 194 percent of the group's target.

Rotary Club Members Are Hosts At Annual Christmas Dinner

By RETA LAWRENCE

The thirteenth Christmas banquet of the White Cane Club and CNIB members, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Belleville was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening. Rev. James Smith said the grace, and Dr. Harold Welch, chairman of Hastings County Advisory Board for the Blind, presided.

GUEST SPEAKER

After a delicious turkey dinner served by the ladies of St. Andrew's, Dr. Welch introduced the guest speaker, Rev. James Smith, who has been assisting at Christ Church for some time. Mr. Smith is a resident of Tasmania, Australia, and will return home in the near future. His topic was "Christmas in Australia".

The speaker made many comparisons between Australia and Canada, in regard to the celebration of the Christ Child's birth.

WARM CHRISTMAS

"It is difficult for us, who shiver in the winter cold in December, to picture Christmas carolling on a warm, balmy nights, children wishing for swim togs and summer type toys from Santa Claus. Christmas dinner in a cottage by the shore, and warm, balmy days. The great martyr to the Spirit of Christmas in Australia is Santa Claus, who, in his rush through time and space, seems to have no time to change his heavy red suit, so must thus endure the 100 degree temperatures," said the speaker.

"However," Mr. Smith continued, "the purpose of Christmas among Christians, is the same the world over, to worship and adore the Baby Jesus."

Mr. H. Frid thanked the speaker.

Carol singing followed, under the direction of Mr. Bill Finkle, with Mrs. Macfarlane at the piano.

Dr. Welch expressed thanks to the Rotary Club for the party and transportation provided. Mr. N. Thomson replied.

A graphic description of the decorations in the banquet room was given by Mrs. H. Seldon, for the benefit of those unable to see them.

After introduction of the head table by Dr. Welch, brief responses were heard from Mr. Preston Timmins, Field Secretary, CNIB; Mr. Doug McCallum, Assistant Field Secretary, and Mrs. Helen Wardhaugh, White Cane Club.

PROVIDE ENTERTAINMENT

Mr. Murdock McFarlane and Miss Gaye McFarlane entertained with several vocal selections, accompanied at the piano by their mother.

Mrs. Maude Rollins thanked the entertainers and Mr. N. Sprague expressed to Mrs. Robertson and the ladies of the church the appreciation of all present for the sumptuous meal.

Three prizes of money, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Ray Nolan, Sixth Street, were drawn. Mrs. Mary Rivers, Mr. Clarence Morris and Mr. Dick Duesberry were the lucky winners.

More Christmas carols rounded out a happy occasion.

Member's Home Closely Watched By Metro Police

OTTAWA (CP)—RCMP and Metro Toronto police are investigating a letter threatening the lives of the two children of Maurice Moreau (L—York-Scarborough) because he voted for the maple leaf flag in the Commons flag debate Monday.

A justice department source said Wednesday night Mr. Moreau had received the unsigned letter at his Ottawa office, and police had been called.

He said it was probably a crank letter, but both police forces are investigating the letter, and Metro Toronto police were keeping a close watch on Mr. Moreau's home in Scarborough, a Toronto suburb.

Christmas Mailing Rush On at City Post Office

The annual Christmas mailing rush is on again at the Belleville post office.

Following a gradual build-up the deluge commenced in earnest early this week and by the weekend will reach a peak.

Monday 109,000 letters and cards went through the cancellation machine which automatically counts each piece of mail as it passes through.

And by this weekend the daily count is expected to be at least another 20,000 higher. The record at the local post office was one day several years ago when 134,000 cards and letters went through the machine.

But letters and cards are only part of the total volume of mail. Piles and piles of parcels have also to be sorted and delivered.

Early this week 1,500 parcels of cheese from a local cheese firm were received for mailing.

Handling of mail is a 24-hour operation with additional help being hired to handle it.

Most of the part-time help work in shifts on sorting, but trade men also get assistance for their delivery walks.

Too Late for Revision

The Senate, it has been said, is a place where legislation can be exposed to "sober second thoughts."

The proposed new Canadian flag is before the Senate. If ever there was a piece of legislation which could have benefited by sober second thoughts, it is this bill. But it is now too late for such thoughts.

The Commons has spent so much time on emotional outbursts, and so little on thoughtful consideration of the various beliefs and prejudices from which these outbursts have stemmed, that this record bars the Senators from discharging what has been described as their proper function in our system of government.

Even if they were able to approach the question without bias and with a tolerant, understanding attitude towards diametrically opposed views, the Senators would not be able to convince their colleagues of the Commons, nor the mass of the voters, that they were considering the proposed flag in this spirit.

Under the circumstances, the only helpful thing the Senators can do with the flag legislation is to approve it—and as quickly as possible.

The sooner we start living with this red and white design, the sooner sentiment may start transforming it into something of significance to us as Canadians.

It does seem a pity, though, that the original design was ever entrusted to the mercies of a committee of members of the Commons, having regard to the state into which they had already managed to work themselves when they commenced their deliberations.

The original design had one great merit which the committee-altered flag lacks. It retained all three colors of the Union Jack and the Tricolor, the flags of the mother countries of the founding races of our nation. By happy chance, red, white and blue meant something to both English and French Canadians. Unlike the Union Jack and the Fleur de Lis, red, white and blue did not divide but united.

Separatists Answered

One of the major cries of the French-Canadian separatists is their province receives no benefit by remaining a part of Canada.

It is interesting to note the facts one of Quebec's leading newspaper, Quebec Le Soleil, points out in an editorial.

To the charge that belonging to the confederation has suppressed Quebec's standard of living Le Soleil states, "In 1961, if we exclude the rest of Canada, Quebec's per capita revenue was the second highest in the world. The standard of living here has improved three-fold since Confederation and largely because of it . . ."

As to the separatists' claim Quebec does not need the rest of Canada to subsist, Le Soleil answers: "Quebec depends for more than half its total revenue on its exports of goods and services to points outside the province. The greatest part of these exports go to other provinces. There definitely exists a high degree of interdependence between Quebec and Ontario . . ."

We wonder just how many Quebecers really want independence.

The facts above must be known by a large portion of Quebecers in leading positions and they, realizing the importance of a united Canada, certainly would, not want a separate state.

The average people, farmers, factory workers, office workers, who see that the goods they help produce are sent to the rest of Canada must also realize the importance of remaining a united country.

It would appear that the separatist yelling is done by a minority number of fanatics. Unfortunately, those who yell are sometimes heard over and above the quiet majority who really represent popular opinion.

It is hoped the language problem and lack of recognition of French-Canadian culture by the rest of Canada will be overcome.

But to economically tear Quebec away from the rest of Canada and expect it to remain healthy is ridiculous.

They riot out of sheer cussedness or for criminal reasons, and in some instances because mob action seems to be taking on the aspects of a fad. Bedevil the police, strip stores, shout and yell, crush anyone who opposes you . . . . and if police try to stop it, just yell "brutality." This is the pattern, and it is an evil and frightening blueprint.—Michael J. Murphy, New York City's Police Commissioner.

Papers Comment on New Flag

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Following are excerpts from editorials in representative Canadian newspapers on the new Canadian flag. Except as noted, all newspapers quoted describe themselves as politically independent.

Guelph Mercury: The Commons has labored and brought forth — one leaf. On the one hand the country has been dismayed by the spectacle of the prime minister's obsession with a symbol at a time when the national structure which it is intended to symbolize is cracking and sadly in need of intelligent repair. On the other it has been repelled to an equal degree by the blind perversity of the Opposition leader who has subordinated national considerations to his vain dream again of achieving power. Whether this newspaper or its readers agree or disagree with the decision which has now been taken is not as material as our acceptance of the verdict.

Niagara Falls Review: Closure by exhaustion, someone said, and that about sums up a dramatic month. There is nothing wrong with closure — when it is applied as it was this time. The Parliament back on the tracks. Unscrupulous decoration has been pored into the flag talkathon. Never was a flag so shredded by political oratory. Never was a flag so besmirched.

St. Thomas Times - Journal: It is unfortunate indeed that Canadians could not have received their new flag free of the taint of government bungling and political opportunism when such could have been avoided. But premature birth is not to be born of closure as it was, and bearing the scars of the long struggle it has left on it, the new flag of Canada, we feel sure, will in time be accepted and honored by all those who are proud to call themselves Canadians.

Ottawa Journal (ind. Cons.): Today Canadians will not be united in cheering this result except that there is a result. Closure as a means of selecting a flag is a repulsive procedure yet Mr. Diefenbaker had so conducted his opposition that closure was justified. If the Commons debate on this stage of the measure is over, there remains the debate and the court of public opinion. We look to both to somehow retrieve the situation.

Ottawa Citizen: Now is the time to rally round the flag. Parliamentary and public attention now may pass to more substantial matters. In a few years, it is safe to predict, people will wonder what the fuss and fight was all about. The maple leaf forever.

Woodstock Sentinel - Review: The general impression appears to be one of relief that the whole business is over. This is a most regrettable situation and one which will make the new Canadian flag meaningless to a large number of people for a considerable time. But with a new flag it really is up to the Canadian people to give it a meaning worthy of such an emblem. And this can only do that by conduct of the highest order.

Orillia Packet and Times: That a free people should have a so-called national flag thrust upon them against their will or choice is simply intolerable. That the rules of closure should be adopted to force the passage of any emergency measure but rather to slip through a piece of major legislation intended as a political bribe, must shock Canada irretrievably into two and reduce the great Canadian liberal tradition to the status of a Quebec political faction.

Timmins Press: The last time closure was invoked in the Commons during the pipeline debate in 1956 a change of government was the result. The closure debate was of widespread interest but didn't touch every Canadian as has the flag issue. The present government refused on numerous occasions to have a national plebiscite on the flag. This would have been a logical step but one that would prove without dispute the will of the people.

Windsor Star: Parliamentarians generally dislike the use of closure, knowing that if it became popular it might some time be used against them. The majority must have been satisfied that it was necessary at this juncture, otherwise it could not have been invoked in a parliament of minorities. That, we believe, will be the reaction of a majority of citizens.

Hamilton Spectator: The new flag is going up. No flag needs to come down. Any Canadian can fly our flag in wishes, now and tomorrow. The big red maple leaf, which Parliament has sanctioned at the moment, by itself means nothing. What this country does in the years ahead may give it the respect a good flag deserves. We hope it gains that respect.

Kerala Observer: The new flag may be the official one for flying from post offices and armories. But Canadians have had their own flag — the Red Ensign. There is a wrangle looming as to adopting the Union Jack or retaining the Red Ensign as a symbol of Commonwealth unity. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker lost his marathon round. But Prime Minister Pearson didn't win much more than to keep his promise at last spring that there would be a new flag by Confederation . . .

Toronto Star (Ind. Lib.): The maple leaf design . . . is presentable and dignified . . . Its adoption in the hearts of the people, as well as on their flag poles will no doubt be a gradual process . . . but in the long run we believe it will win the same acceptance that is given to the flags of other sovereign states. . . .

Toronto Telegram: The flag issue now goes to the Senate, where it threatens a full-scale revival. This prospect is disheartening to a nation thoroughly tired of the tactical warfare that has degraded the Commons debate into a festering feud.

Kitchener - Waterloo Record: The Progressive Conservatives come out of the fight with the dividend in their party deepened to the extent that they virtually have no Quebec wing. The Liberals have, by parliamentary, that small but vital, asset. . . . involved in a public belief that they had the prestige of government . . . it is a sad thing that the birth of our new flag is more a matter of regret than rejoicing.

Toronto Globe and Mail: In this aftermath of the Commons debate, no one can pretend or hope that this flag will be universally acclaimed across the country. It may need years to forget all the bitterness, the prejudice and defiance that have been spoken on both sides of the issue. But it is for the Senate immediately to begin the work of clearing the air. . .

Regina Leader - Post: The choices faced the Pearson minority government: Resort to closure to permit the elected representatives to vote on the matter, or shelved new legislation for future consideration. Time enough had been wasted on the flag debate without wasting it out completely to return to the question at a later date. . . .

Winnipeg Free Press: On the early hours of this morning, Prime Minister Pearson entered his name in the record books in Canadian chronicles as the man who lowered the Red Ensign from the Parliament Hill location. In so doing he condemned to the dustbin of history the symbol into whose fabric has been woven the heritage, the traditions, the loyalty and valor of country of millions of Canadians over scores of years. . . .

Vancouver Province: [It is:] Before the flag becomes official the Senate must approve the measure passed by the House of Commons. . . . However, the Conservative leader in the upper house has given notice of continuing the filibuster which was ended in Commons by closure. Senator . . . [should] take a more responsible stand.

Kelowna Courier: It may well be that Mr. Pearson was more courageous than he knew when the flag issue one of paramount importance. Certainly his predecessors over the last 50 years have shied away from it. . . . Nevertheless Mr. Pearson must be given credit for attempting to end a long - overdue solution to the prickly - pear problem.

Lethbridge Herald (Ind. Lib.): The opposite of closure is anarchy. Closure is honorable and essential item in the rules of any Parliament. The Liberal government has had long cause to ask the House of Commons for closure in the flag debate.

Montreal Star: The final—152 to 85 — vote was indication enough that Canadians were fed up and bored, as indeed the country is, with the flag issue. Closure muddled the first time it came, but at least it has got rid of what should never have been turned into a political wrangle. Canada's new flag, born as it was in controversy, can fly proudly in the future, regardless of protestations by a section of the Conservative party.

Nelson News: How tragic that Canada's standard should have been spawned from such confusion and ill will. But now the arguments and ill feelings, created through adoption of the flag, are things of the past. Canada must adopt it with enthusiasm and revere it with pride . . . it must not be allowed to become an election issue at any future date.

Quebec L'Evenement: . . . It was time that the representatives of the people assumed their responsibilities. . . . After four months of deliberations, Canada finds itself endowed with an emblem which history has given a distinctive character to. . . . Several members of Parliament have said in effect that the maple leaf has been found on all Canadian grounds since the origin of the country. . . .

Montreal Metro-Express: . . . The absence of a flag has not kept us from living. But symbols nourish a people's pride and, from this point of view, Canadians have long gone hungry. In giving Canada a flag after centuries of waiting, the House of Commons has written a page of history. It is a triumph of Canada over its past.

Montreal Matin: . . . His (Mr. Pearson's) wish to unite Canadians inspired him with an initiative commendable in itself but his vanity led him to push the crisis to its deplorable result. What was to unify divided and Canada has been constituted in a manner whose ultimate progress one dares not predict. . . . If the new flag cannot unite us all, let us at least hope that our common destiny will achieve this miracle.

Tonsil Infection Usually Spreads to Adenoid Area

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: When a child needs his tonsils removed, should the adenoids be taken out too? Our son has trouble with infected tonsils but he is no mouth breather, so I see no point in having his adenoids removed also. I understand that adenoids are there to give protection by screening out infectious germs. — Mrs. L. F.

Tonsils and adenoids are removed at the same time so frequently that the operation is commonly referred to as a "T. and A." or "tonsillectomy and adenoidectomy."

This is not arbitrary, however. It depends on whether both ought to come out.

Generally speaking, when tonsils are large enough or infected to a degree warranting removal, the adenoids will be, too. The adenoids are one of the five areas of tonsil tissue surrounding the nose and throat. They serve the same purpose as the tonsils in the back of the throat, and are subject to the same stresses.

If the adenoids show some infection, or some enlargement, (even if not yet enough to obstruct the air passages and cause mouth breathing), there is a rather strong chance that they will become worse, and ultimately require removal, meaning that another operation will be necessary.

Therefore, in most cases, it is wise to take them both out at the same time. The doctor, when removing the tonsils, has an ideal opportunity to see and judge the condition of the adenoids. That is the best time to decide whether or not the adenoids should be removed.

In the occasional case in which tonsils are infected but the adenoids are perfectly healthy, then the latter can be left alone.

In short, my attitude on adenoids is exactly what it is on tonsils: Leave them alone unless they are enlarged or diseased — but when they are, the sooner they are removed, the better.

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend broke out with several clusters of boils, and was told by the Health Department at the office that she has a staph infection and to see her doctor. To date she has not done so and is reluctant to go. Have you any literature on this infection? She says it is very painful. — M. H.

Literature isn't going to help her. Staph infections are serious, persistent, and contagious. She needs treatment by a physician for her own sake as well as for the safety of those around her.

Dear Dr. Molner: When my husband goes out in the cold his fingers turn white and he loses most of the sense of feeling in them. It occurs even in summer when he goes in the water. What could be causing it? — Mrs. C. M.

It could be a disturbance in the nervous system which controls circulation in the fingers. There is also an ailment called cryoglobulinemia (cry-oh-glob-u-lin-EE-me-a). Cells in the blood tend to clump together when exposed to the cold. There are special blood tests for this.

In either case, excessive use of tobacco is harmful. Treatment consists mainly of avoiding cold, dressing warmly, and sometimes medication to dilate the small capillary blood vessels.

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Most melancholiacs are obscurely proud of the fact, and look upon their chronic depression as evidence of more spiritual preoccontemporary; they idolize their temperamental defect for an intellectual superiority.

To define God is to diminish it — just as to try to describe God is to delimit Him; which is why the ancient Hebrews quite sensibly banned any reproductions, ikonstatues or portraits, of the Almighty, as a form of idolatry.

Nearly a century ago, Nietzsche wrote: "In every party there is someone who, by his overstrained devotion to party principles, provokes the rest to defect." Rather a pity that the Republican Convention of 1964 did not heed these prophetic words.

Evil attracts the weak by seeming to confer an aura of power upon them; but since the essence of weakness is that it cannot control itself, it cannot long control any power it assumes for itself.

Men will sacrifice themselves to save a nation, but no nation will sacrifice anything to save mankind; nations ask their subjects to demonstrate by sacrifice that they themselves would never venture — and this is what makes patriotism on a political level so nearly impossible.

My recent piece on "conscience") prompted a reader to remind me of Pascal's finely ironic observation on that subject: "Men never do evil so completely and so happily as when they do it for conscience's sake."

The man who spends his life overcoming obstacles in order to achieve repose is customarily made restless by the very repose when he gets it; after a time, one finds that any strenuous and habitual, become ends in themselves, and leisure ceases to be more of a burden than combat.

No bureaucrat in government is more officious than a municipal hospital functionary, who really thinks the hospital "belongs" to the officials rather than to the people who support it.

One imagines that if one can change a husband or wife after marriage is as ludicrous as to imagine that a material can be made to run up if we stand on our heads long enough.

The best way to resolve an argument is to allow the other to taste the consequences of his specious reasoning. This is also the most expensive way, and few of us are forebearing enough to play the game.

"In the last resort" is the favorite expression of people who are too quick to pass over less ultimate resorts.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 17th, 1944

The U.S. War Food Administration list week bucked against a long war and bad weather. Farmers were told that the crop goal next year will be 360 million acres, four million acres more than farmers planted this year for the greatest harvest on record.

Farmers were thoroughly alarmed six weeks ago by a dark prediction: since the war was nearly over, the U.S. would be stuck with stock-piles of food that would glut the markets and scuttle prices. Last week DPA decided that this prospect had faded. If the European war runs through the winter, stock-piles of wheat, corn, etc., will soon be down to reasonable sides. Typical examples: in three years the U.S. has consumed 400 million more bushels of corn than it produced.

Dec. 17th, 1934

Owing to the lack of funds the city firemen will distribute few Christmas baskets this year than in previous years. It is estimated that this season 150 baskets will be delivered as compared to about 300 baskets last year. Homes where there are needy children will be given first attention. At least 100 families, which have been checked as to actual need, will be sure of a Christmas basket. The firemen have at present a list of about 400 names of children between the ages of one and 12 years.

The sergeants of the Argyll Light Infantry will hold their annual shoot for turkeys next Saturday evening. This events always looked forward to with pleasure by the members of the sergeants' mess.

Dec. 17th, 1914

The closing exercises at Queen Victoria School, Pine Street took place last evening and there was a large attendance. The principal feature of the evening was the presentation of the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn's Own Medal to Clare Mott, who won it by his excellent standing in the recent examinations to the high school last year.

A vacant house on Strachan Street was considerably damaged by fire last night. It is owned by Thomas Harris.

Sergeant-Major Jordan, W.O., will probably go to Montreal to assist in organizing and instructing the new battery of the 6th Brigade.

City's Elderly Residents Enjoy Christmas Party

Belleville's Senior Citizens' Club in 11 years old, and still growing.

Testimony to this could be seen at their annual Christmas banquet last night when over 100 members thronged the Kiwanis Centre.

Mayor Ellis was introduced by Jack White and thanked by Mrs. W. T. Calbury.

After the supper and speech-making, the members watched entertainment and exchanged gifts.

Propane Gas Explodes in Car's Trunk

TORONTO (CP)—A car and a garage were destroyed when a tank of either acetylene or propane gas exploded in the car's trunk in suburban East York early today.

There were no injuries although Mrs. Victorine Hebbel, 52, asleep in a room facing the garage in an adjacent house, was covered with plaster dust and chips.

Debris was scattered across lawns and over rooftops and dozens of windows were broken.

"It was like 100 pounds of dynamite going off," said Ivan Pribanic, owner of the car.

Mr. Pribanic, a plumber, was asleep when the explosion occurred but dressed quickly and pulled the tank out of the blazing car.

He found the garage door on a lawn four houses down the street.

Only the garage foundation and the front end of the car were left after firemen extinguished fire which broke out after the explosion.

Fire-Damaged Lake Freighter Detroit-Bound

DETROIT (CP) — The disabled Canada Steamship Lines bulk carrier Donnacona was scheduled to arrive here today under tow by two Detroit tugs after fire damaged her wheelhouse and forward superstructure Wednesday.

A United States Coast Guard spokesman said the two tugs reached the 604-foot Donnacona late Wednesday night at the Lake Huron lightship, 28 miles north of the Bluewater Bridge at Sarnia and a mile and a half off the east coast of upper Michigan in Lake Huron.

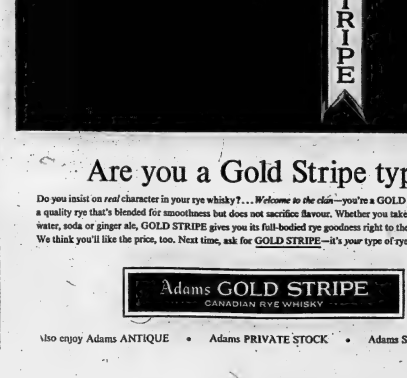
Longshoremen End Threat of Dock Strike



NEW YORK (AP) — Agreement on a four-year contract has ended the threat of a weekend dock strike that would have tied up shipping in ports from Maine to Texas.

Negotiators for the International Longshoremen's Association and the New York Shipping Association came to terms Wednesday after five months of disagreement and one walkout halted by presidential intervention.

The ILA conceded one hard-fought point to reach a pact. It bowed to automation and agreed to cut the size of its standard 20 - man work gangs down to 17 by 1967.

In return, union negotiators got an 80-cent-an-hour wage package, including a guaranteed annual wage estimated at a minimum $3,856 a year for the average longshoreman.

Accused Believed People Returned From the Dead

COBOURG, Ont. (CP)—John Ryan Freeman, 16, was committed for trial Wednesday on a charge of capital murder in the shooting of a 58-year-old mentally retarded maid.

Magistrate John Baxter committed the youth for trial after a one-day preliminary hearing into the Oct. 13 death of Mildred Crocker, a ward of the Ontario hospital here.

Miss Crocker had been employed at the Freeman home for only five days when she was found dead on her bed with two bullet wounds in her forehead and a third in the mouth.

Mrs. Dorothy Freeman, the youth's mother, told the hearing that her son believed people return from the dead, worshipped his guinea pig and believed in vampires.

The mother said her son believed that some persons were in a coma when they were buried and regained consciousness, becoming vampires. She said he claimed to have known such people.

AFRAID OF DARK

Her son was afraid of the dark, she said, and feared entering closets, always asking her to go first because "you don't want you, they just want me."

As a child, he slept with a toy gun and as he grew, he had a machete, an air rifle and a club beside him in bed at various times, Mrs. Freeman said.

His school marks dropped during the last year and in June he became quiet and moody, she testified. She said her husband were arranging to have their son visit a psychiatric daycare centre in Cobourg but its superintendent was transferred to Toronto.

ARK MOVES

MONTREAL (CP) — The approach of winter meant a big moving job for Desire Aerts, curator of the Lafontaine Park Zoo here. He had to move 45 animals and birds to small barns, winter quarters for the creatures.

REG. T. VOSS JIM FRASER

Two New Dept. Heads At Unemployment Office

A graduate of business administration and economics, Mr. Voss also studied law and has taken courses in philosophy, psychology and industrial relations. His employment background included nine years in industrial administrative capacities, two years in welfare services, and six years in personnel work in employment and employee welfare and two years in medical rehabilitation.

Mr. Fraser served in the last war and was in the live bait business in Toronto for ten years before joining the employment service in 1960. He was Employment Branch supervisor at Listowel before coming to Belleville.

Successful Living

Successful Parents Must Give Themselves to Child

DEAR DORIS — I've had children come here for after-school lunches and the use of the bathroom. Some of them are locked out until their parents arrive home, or else they are left in the charge of an older bossy child who is yet too young for the job.

Next door we have a mother on night shift sleeping most of the day. Yet, I am sure if I told her the times her child has stolen, she would deny it.

I know a family of girls, whose parents are often not home even in the evening. The seven-year-old watches the late movie! Her baby sitter is her boy crazy 13-year-old sister.

DORIS CLARE

What can be done, Doris? Is it up to society as a whole to step in, and to frown upon this kind of mother? — A STAY AT HOME MOTHER.

DEAR STAY AT HOME — I'd say so. Intelligent, well-fed children may have all that money can buy and still be deprived. The successful parents give themselves to their children.

Confidential to VERY HEARTBROKEN — My only conclusion can be that the boy does not love you and that you do not love him. Otherwise he would not care about what you have done before. Please take the advice I am always handing out and get to know some other boys. Also, don't use that word "love" so freely.

DEAR DORIS — The fact is that there are a lot of us working mothers who have been left to bring up children on our own. We have to go to work in order to support ourselves and children. Some even have to support their husbands as well.

Before you more fortunate people start throwing stones, look to yourselves. We working mothers mostly do a better job of bringing up our children than you, because we devote all our lives and efforts to it. If by the time the child is 11 or 12 we are not paying one of you more fortunate people to keep an eye on the child it's because we've found you are too slack.

I don't think there is any hell worse than leaving a small child one loves desperately to someone who is just doing it for the cash.

My child is 11 now and capable of getting herself a snack after school and settling down to homework until I come home.

Just pass this on please, Doris. And for goodness sake, as a social worker, you should know this is not the cause of delinquency. There's just as much in the wealthy homes, where parents attend social functions and bridge parties, only it's covered up better. — A MAD WORKING MUM.

DEAR MUM — Good for you. The criticism is certainly not aimed at those heroic mothers-without-partners who beat all the odds and raise model citizens. Perhaps the saving fact is that older children can learn self-reliance and thrive on it, as long as they know that loving arms are there when they need them.

• • •

Confidential to IN LOVE AND BROKEN UP — Look, he takes other girls out, he doesn't call when he says he will, he flirts. Then he says he loves you. Don't just give back his ring — throw it at him.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — What help is there for a woman who loves her husband very much but can only rarely stand him touching her?

Is it true that a good percentage of married women are like me? — FRIGID.

DEAR FRIGID — It is not always the woman who holds back. Where there is mutual regard, two marriage partners gradually come to understand each other's needs, not only physical but mental and emotional as well.

Your husband could be helping you to relax if he knew how. Write again, this time enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and omitting your right name, for a list of helpful books on this subject.

DEAR DORIS — Recently while I was at a dance I met the most wonderful and sweetest boy in the world, and now all I do is sit back and dream about him. Now my problem is, do you think it would be all right for me to write to him? — UNDECIDED.

DEAR UNDECIDED — No. All your feelings prove is that you are a healthy Canadian girl falling in love with love. Keep your eyes and your heart open for some more "most wonderful."

Women's Institutes

FOXBORO W.I.

Foxboro Women's Institute held their December meeting at the home of Mrs. K. J. Walker on Thursday evening, with Mrs. Johnston, first vice-president, presiding.

A letter from Jim Churchill Jr. was read thanking the members of the Foxboro Institute for the parcels of skates and clothing which had been sent to him for the Indian children of Lansdowne House.

GIVE GIFTS

Miss C. Hubble reported the gifts for the local shut-ins and those from Hastings Manor (County Home) whose names had been given had been bought. She also asked for some help in preparing and wrapping some of the gifts. Mrs. P. Kilpatrick, Mrs. J. Reynolds and Mrs. W. L. Johnston volunteered to help on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. A. Calvert, due to business pressure, had to resign as home economics and health convener, so Mrs. Kilpatrick was asked to convene the next euchre to be held early in the new year.

Mrs. C. Hubble and Mrs. W. L. Johnston will make a list of the Women's Institute equipment and the Home and School equipment which is in the school auditorium. These lists are to be given to the secretary-treasurer of the present school board to be put in the minute book.

Mrs. Rombough, program convener, took charge of the meeting. A reading on Christmas was given by Mrs. Rombough.

DEMONSTRATES CANDLE-MAKING

Mrs. Dean Dafoe gave a good demonstration on the making of wax candles by beating ordinary paraffin wax, using some melted wax crayons as coloring and some glitter as decorations. The finished product was a beautiful Christmas candle.

Mrs. Lorne Carter gave a reading, followed by the singing of some Christmas carols. Mrs. E. Dafoe gave a Christmas reading and Mrs. H. Waller won the Christmas contest, which was conducted by Mrs. Rombough.

Mrs. Rombough read the Christmas story. A most fitting close to an excellent Christmas program was a paper by Mrs. Henry Van Winoogo on Christmas customs in Holland. There the religious significance of Christmas is stressed more than the giving of gifts to each other and non-religious aspects.

A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and lunch committee, and a social hour enjoyed, during which Mrs. Waller played a record of Congress children singing some of the well known Christmas carols and hymns in their own language. The gift exchange was held during the lunch hour.

Recently, there have been worried rumblings of discontent from many of our leading home economists, educational institutes and government food planning experts, bemoaning the fact that our nation's modern housemaker is not taking full advantage of the high nutrient value and low cost of powdered milk.

On the other hand, one of these very homemakers is also concerned about the same matter. She has written a plea for powdered milk, and has made it all sound so worth while that I am printing her letter pretty well in its entirety — hope you enjoy her enthusiasm as much as I did:

SUSANNA: My way of assuring that my children get plenty of milk in their diet is to include the liberal use of powdered milk in my cooking.

Mashed potatoes are a good example. I cook them in a relatively small amount of water so that there is no waste of vitamins, then I simply pour the powdered dry milk into the potatoes during the mashing in their own cooking water. Of course I add margarine, or butter, too, while doing this. Otherwise, if too much water is left and it is drained off for use in diluting soups and stews, it often is simply wasted by not being used up while it is fresh.

The same applies to homemade bread. It is much easier to pour in powdered milk along with the flour (sift together if you like, as I do) than it is to go to all the old fashioned trouble of scalding fresh liquid milk.

I find my children enjoy a mixture of fresh milk and liquified powdered milk just as well as straight fresh milk, as long as it is nice and cold. I use powdered milk generously, too, in most of my baking — Johnnie cake, pancakes, hot biscuits etc.

To make icing, I use only half the icing sugar called for and substitute half powdered milk. Even then, I've had "complaints" from the children that the icing is inferior, sweet!

I do hope these economy minded hints find their way into the paper. It is in the interest of healthier children.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club enjoyed a Christmas party at the Belmont Restaurant on Monday evening. One of the members had dressed a doll with a wool robe and this was raffled. Christmas gifts were brought by each member and sold by the touch and take method, with Santa Claus present to supervise the project. The January meeting will be Civic night, the triennial meeting this year will be in Washington.

Study Guild Hears Talk on Communism

The December meeting of the Women's Study Guild was held at the home of Mrs. S. Barbour, Northwood Crescent. Mrs. Barbour and Mrs. S. Elsie had charge of the program which consisted of a tape recording of a talk given by Dr. Mayers, a psychiatrist, who had interviewed 1000 American soldiers who had been prisoners of the Red Chinese in North Korea.

He had studied communism and specifically why the communist indoctrination had worked so successfully on these soldiers. They were given more hours of instruction in their two years as prisoners-of-war than they had previously received in all their formal education. During this time four out of every ten soldiers died, although soldiers from other countries showed more stamina, resistance and loyalty than did the Americans.

The outcome of Dr. Mayers' study is that the (American) services are now adding a code of conduct or attitudes to basic training, i.e. a set of principles and values meaningful enough to guide a man's behavior without policing.

At the conclusion of the tape Mr. Elsie told the life history of one of these prisoners-of-war and it led to the suggestion that to help combat this ideological warfare youth needs to be trained in the home to be stable, well adjusted citizens, and to be well equipped to meet whatever situations will face them in life.

Prior to the program Mrs. Leslie Reid conducted the worship service when she read an invocation with a Christmas theme by Fra Giovanni. In a short story "Christmas Glamor and Glory" she pointed out: "We must see our own values for our attitudes toward them and although the true value of Christmas is priceless it is often hidden beneath its glamor."

The president, Mrs. J. R. Reynolds conducted the meeting and Mrs. Elsie and Mrs. J. Cochrane served a delicious luncheon.

PRICE ON HIS HEAD

LONDON (CP)—The British defence ministry thinks it has discovered the price needed to get men at bay. Service chiefs, worried because 20 per cent of the prettiest girls in the forces are leaving to get married, will offer girl recruits a bonus of £130 provided they stay single for at least two years.

MR. AND MRS. HARRY THOMAS COOK

Cook – Kern

Standards of white gladioli and white and blue tinted mums formed an attractive setting in Colleen Hill United Church, Belleville, for the marriage on Saturday, December 5, of Marjorie Ann Kern of Oshawa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert D. Kern, Belleville, to Harry Thomas Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cook, Bay Ridges, Ontario. White satin bows on sprigs of evergreen designated the guest pews.

Rev. Roy Vessey, minister of the church, officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Lorne Blakely, organist, who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs Arthur Duncan of Batawa.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length bridal gown of pure silk organza over taffeta with the bodice featuring a scoop neckline, three-quarter length sleeves with tiny cuffs appliqued with imported Alencon lace.

The slim skirt was enhanced at the waist with soft folds over a short peplum effect with banding of similar lace, and highlighted at the back by a bouffant detachable cathedral train. A scalloped three-tier veil of silk illusion flowed from a crown of crystals and rhinestones. She carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses mingled with feathered white carnations. To complete her ensemble she wore a diamond necklace which was worn by her grandmother on her wedding day.

Maid of honor Miss Elaine Jenkin, Reg. N., of Toronto, bridesmaid, Miss Linda Kern, sister of the bride and junior bridesmaid Barbara Anderson of Woodstock, cousin of the bride were similarly gowned in floor length Empire style Elizabeth blue peau de soie. They wore matching wedding ring head bands and carried bouquets of white and blue tinted mums. Miss Sandra Anderson, cousin of the bride, as the little flower girl was attired in a floor length dress in Empire style of white peau de soie edged with blue and carried a basket of white and blue tinted mums.

Mr. Michael Koreszniki of Bay Ridges, was groomsman, while Mr. Michael McQuesney of Pickering and Mr. Murray Kern, brother of the bride, of Belleville, were the ushers.

A buffet style reception was held in the church parlors which was decorated with blue and white streamers with white bells and sprigs of evergreen. The buffet table was highlighted with a centrepiece of white and red carnations in the shape of a bride's bouquet. Also a wedding cake with white doves accenting each of the layers. The bride's mother received the guests wearing a teal blue two-piece ensemble, deep tan and navy accessories and a corsage of bronze colored mums. Assisting was the bridegroom's mother who wore a cranberry colored dress with matching turban hat, black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For the wedding trip to points east and New York State the bride chose a royal blue wool dress with matching fur felt hat, black and white accessories and a corsage of pink mums.

Guests were present from Woodstock, Brantford, Toronto, Hamilton, Sudbury, Stouffville, Trenton, Belleville, Oshawa, Bay Riders, Pickering, Batawa and the State of Massachusetts.

Previous to the marriage the bride was honored at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. H. Vandeuren in Whitby, also at a community shower held in Fairport United Church, Bay Ridges. She was also presented with an electric blanket by the staff of the Dundas Street Public School in Whitby.

The bridegroom was presented with a lovely lamp by the staff of a chartered Imperial Bank of Commerce in Toronto. A rehearsal party was given in their honor at the Valley Motor Inn, Belleville, by the bridegroom's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Cook will reside in Pickering.

BLAME MOTHBALLS

TORONTO (CP) — Mothball vapors in stuffy closets may aggravate inherited blood disorder among children of Mediterranean or Asian parents in the current Canadian Medical Journal. The report says the use of bedding taken from storage in mothballs was associated with the deaths of three Chinese babies and an Italian infant in Toronto.

The Experts Say
Ordinary House Items Are Potential Killers

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) —Household cleansers, pesticides, medicines, paints — any of these staple supplies is a potential killer. Useful and harmless when properly used, they are a source of tragedy if handled carelessly.

Canadian Pharmaceutical Association statistics show an average of one person a week dies in Canada as a result of swallowing a poison at home. Most victims are children four and under, and the age of greatest danger is about two.

"Anything can be a poison if it is misused," says Harry C. Tait, inspector for the Ontario College of Pharmacy. "People should act on the principle that if it isn't a food it is poison."

Most poisonings happen in the bathroom and kitchen. A report on about 11,000 cases in Canada shows 35 per cent were caused by medications, 31 by household preparations, 11 by pesticides, 10 by cleansers, solvents and paints, two by cosmetics, and 11 by miscellaneous sources such as plants, gases and vapors.

Ordinary headache tablets were the cause of about half the total medication poisonings.

OUT OF REACH

There are basic preventive rules for medicines which apply to other potentially dangerous preparations as well.

- Keep all drugs out of reach of children. Put a lock on the medicine cabinet, if necessary.
- Destroy all old prescriptions.
- Read all labels to be sure you are using a medicine correctly. Observe caution rules.
- Keep medications intended for internal use stored separate from external medications.
- Keep medicine in its original package so it cannot be mistaken for something else. Never put anything potentially poisonous in a cup, pop bottle or any container that normally holds food. Anyone, adult or child, might assume it is edible.
- Impress on children that they must not taste unknown liquids, pills, leaves, roots.
- If there is an accident, be ready to act. Be sure the phone numbers of your doctor, drugist and hospital are posted where you can find them quickly.

The Canadian Pharmaceutical Association publishes an antidote chart which is available through druggists. It will fit on the inside of a medicine cabinet door and has spaces for phone numbers on it. It lists counteragents for 18 types of poisoning and overdose.

You might also find out the number of the poison control centre nearest you. There are about 200 centres in Canada, staffed 24 hours a day. They are kept informed of potential poisons by the food and drug directorate of the department of national health and welfare.

The centres are organized to give fast information on what is in preparations and on what the antidote for a poison is.

Speed is of the essence in poison cases. Mr. Tait says whatever is done in the first 15 minutes will probably determine the fate of the poison victim.

The first thing to do is call your doctor. You should try to tell him what you think the poisonous substance was, how much was swallowed, and how long ago. He will also want to know the age and how big a child victim is.

If the victim has swallowed lye, drain cleaner, kerosene or strong acid, do not make him vomit, get him to a hospital. In other cases do not spend more than five minutes trying to induce vomiting. If you are not succeeding, get medical help. Get the victim to a hospital if your doctor is not available.

There are particular possible dangers which do not involve swallowing poison at all. Overexposure to carbon-tetrachloride fumes is harmful. Mixing some ammonia - based and chlorine - based cleaners can produce a dangerous gas.

EDMONTON (CP) — A young Chinese-Canadian woman lawyer has been admitted to the Alberta bar. Both Mrs. Michael Yan and her husband, a medical doctor, are graduates of the University of Alberta.

U.C.W.'s Meetings

THORNBURY - HOW AFTER NOON GROUP

THORNBURY—The Christmas meeting of the Afternoon Group of Thornbury United Church Women was held at the home of Mrs. R. R. Carter recently with 13 present.

The capacious living room was appropriately decorated in keeping with the Christmas theme. Mrs. Nettie Morton was program convener and the Christmas story was read by Mrs. Helen Vance. Readings were given by Mrs. Jessie Morton, Mrs. Cora Robinson and Mrs. Nettie Morton. Interspersed with the singing of several Christmas carols, Mrs. A. P. Smith sang a solo accompanied by Mrs. Jessie Morton.

Mrs. Mabel Prindle, president for the past year thanked all for their co-operation. This was followed by an exchange of Christmas gifts. Mrs. Smith was presented with a gift on behalf of the group. A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess and program convener.

Mrs. Carrie Adams was appointed to go to Europe, find a wife, and then pay return fare to Australia for both.

So they have to either borrow money from finance companies or marry by proxy and risk the chance the bride may decide at the" last moment that she doesn't want to go to Australia.

Since Mrs. Auriac first drew attention to the shortage of girls in Tennant Creek, dozens of Australian girls and some from overseas have written for more information.

One girl, 21-year-old Diane McNiece, of Melbourne, wrote to the proprietor of the Tennant Creek hotel asking him to put this notice up in the bar:

"To the 150 lonely men. . . .

"I am 21 and a lady. . . .

"There is nothing like miles about me, including teeth (white), hair (red), eyes (blue), limbs (sound), about 5 feet 6 inches tall and well built.

"I love the country and the outback. I am wild about horses and I have a good sense of humor. . . .

"I should love to come to Tennant Creek to look over 150 lonely men."

Australian Girl Willing To Look Over Lonely Miners

TENNANT CREEK, Australia (Reuters)—Lonely miners at remote Tennant Creek in Australia's northern territory are prospecting for wives.

This booming mining town 300 miles north of Alice Springs has 150 unmarried miners—and an acute shortage of girls.

The miners' plight was recently given widespread publicity in the Australian press by Mrs. Jane Auriac, wife of a Tennant Creek lawyer, and representative of the Queensland Good Neighbor Council, an organization whose object is to make "New Australians" feel at home.

The lonely miners include 25 nationalities, mostly European.

Their problem is twofold: First, there is a shortage of girls in the gold and copper mining town; and second many of them want to marry girls from their own homelands.

NEED MONEY

Most say they cannot afford to go to Europe, find a wife, and then pay return fare to Australia for both.

So they have to either borrow money from finance companies or marry by proxy and risk the chance the bride may decide at the" last moment that she doesn't want to go to Australia.

ROCKING HEALTH

MONTREAL (CP) — Nurses at Montreal's Children's Hospital are using a form of therapy politicians have used: It's a rocking chair, and the nurses—who use them when feeding and soothing an infant — say the comfort and relaxation of sitting in a rocker is important to a child's emotional development.

U.C.W. Meetings

U.C.W. AFTERNOON UNIT

CANNIFTON — The afternoon unit of the Canniffon U.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. D. Brenton recently with an attendance of 16 including three visitors.

Mrs. Brenton welcomed the guests and extended a special welcome to Mrs. Ralph Sills, regional presbyterial vice-president for Hastings East who brought greetings and good wishes from the Belleville Presbyterial. The region extends from Belleville to Cooper and includes 30 churches with 29 units.

The various reports were given and the card secretary reported having sent cards to several members who had been ill; also to three new mothers. A thank-you card was read from Mrs. Marjorie Wessels and a thank-you letter; also from Mrs. Mary Plumpton for a plant sent to her while in hospital.

During a business discussion it was decided that the U.C.W. would donate $50 to the Sunday School.

DEVOTIONAL PERIOD

Mrs. T. Howard conducted the devotional assisted by Mrs. D. Brenton. With Christmas being so near Mrs. Howard dealt with thoughts on giving and said in part, "At this time of year the giving of one to the other seems to be uppermost in the minds of everyone, so much so that it is difficult for us to centre our thoughts on Jesus and remember to give good gifts to Him, who has given us so much. Let us not be led away by the glitter and transformation in our world and in our homes at Christmas, and when we give, let us not forget to give good gifts to the Lord." Mrs. Bradshaw gave a fine Christmas reading.

Mrs. Sills spoke briefly and based her talk on the word "Unit" and said that it is only as strong as the talents it represents. Using the letters in the word unit she mentions some of the things for which each letter might stand in connection with work as a unit. "U" might convey unity or the unconverted of new ideas; "N", the new curriculum or new members; "I" is interest in the meetings, industry, integrity, intelligence, influence and the last letter "T" has its meanings too, for over the cup of tea is a warm and friendly neighborliness which we all need so much.

Mrs. Helen Brenton thanked Mrs. Sills for a most inspiring talk, after which lunch was served and a social half hour was enjoyed.

OATS PREFERRED

OXFORD, England (CP)—England's traditional roast beef has been downgraded in nutritional value by an Oxford University food expert in favor of porridge. Trude Schulz reported that a plate of porridge and milk offered more nutrition to a growing child than a plate of beef and vegetables.

Thankful bags were handed in, and the Unit 3 ladies were pleased to see that these bags, collected in a large mixing bowl, was filled to overflowing.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. Edith Grills and Mrs. Audrey McAdam.

Readings were given by Mrs. Grills and Mrs. Mallory. Rev. C. Judd continued with Bible study. Mrs. Edna Patrick on behalf of the Units presented Mrs. Judd with a gift of a cup and saucer.

Ann Landers

Green Gym Suit Amongst The Blue Upsets Girl

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Two years ago, when I was eight years old and in the third grade, my mother bought me a navy green gym suit. Three weeks ago the teacher announced in class that we all have to wear blue gym suits. When I told my mother I needed a new gym suit she said, "Your green suit is good enough. You can wear it until next year."

There are 1,200 kids in our school, Ann Landers, and I am the only person wearing a green gym suit. It is not only horrible looking but it is very tight on me. Please help before I have a nervous breakdown over this thing. Thank You. — MISS REGGIE.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR REGGIE — If the green suit is too tight it is bound to pop a seam soon, — and I say the sooner the better.

Take the torn suit to your mother and volunteer to do extra chores for an extra allowance. Tell her you are willing to help pay for 50 percent of the new gym suit and that you got the idea from me.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've written this letter in my mind one hundred times since last Friday. Today I am putting it down on paper.

I've read about women who have had affairs with the husbands of their best friends. It always seemed so ugly — something only a cheap trollop would do. Well, I did just that, which makes me a cheap trollop, doesn't it?

I love my husband and children and I'd rather die than hurt them. The affair is over and it ended on a sour note, which is just as well, since I now see what a fool I was.

They say confession is good for the soul and my soul could use some repair work. Should I expunge my guilt by telling my husband? I feel this would do me a world of good. Yes or no? — TORTURED.

DEAR TORTURED — No one has the right to unburden himself at the expense of another person's peace of mind. This type of "confession," more often than not, is motivated by an unconscious wish to punish.

Confession is good for the soul, so go confess to someone who will not suffer because of your foolishness.

Pray silently. Talk to your clergyman or physician or lawyer. These individuals will treat your confession as privileged information and you will hurt no one.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Is it possible for a person to be "emotionally frigid?" This term may sound like parlor psychiatry, but I don't know how else to describe a male acquaintance who refuses to communicate.

The man is highly intelligent, in fact a bit of an egg-head. We've been going together for 18 months. At first I believed him to be thoughtful and quiet. Now I see our relationship resembles that of a couple of Trappist monks.

I've told him how I feel and he says he enjoys long periods of silence . . . that it is a sign of deep friendship when two people can just sit and hear a pin drop. He claims too many people feel they must keep a steady stream of conversation going as evidence that they are "good company."

Can a friendship become "perfect" that people no longer need to speak to one another? What can one do in a case like this — other than writing to Ann Landers? — CASSIO.

DEAR CASS — If you haven't been able to get a conversation going in 18 months, resign yourself, lady. He just ain't gabby.

Find someone who operates on a conversational wavelength similar to your own and leave the sphinx to a gal who also enjoys hearing pins drop.

◆ DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES ◆

MELROSE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The December meeting of the Melrose W.I. took the form of a Christmas Party, at Johnny's Restaurant last Wednesday evening. An illuminated Christmas tree and seasonable table decorations lent a Yuletide atmosphere to the occasion and 40 ladies partook of a bountiful meal served in excellent style.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. G. Stratton, who was detained by sudden illness in her family, Mrs. E. Pascoe, 1st vice-president, presided over a short business session. A euchre in Melrose hall was planned to be held in January. The secretary, Mrs. A. Long, read a letter from Sim Yong Soo, the adopted Korean child, who thanked members for their generous gifts and stated she tried to be a good student as she had been assisted so much.

A cordial welcome was extended to District President Mrs. D. Chisholm of Roslin, who gave a vivid account of the National convention of FWIC held at Wolfeville, N.S., which she was privileged to attend.

All Ontario ladies travelled together on the convention train from Montreal to Halifax, and by bus from there to Wolfeville, 40 miles farther where they were greeted by Mrs. Trivers, president FWIO. The convention was held at Acadia University, founded in 1842.

At the opening ceremonies the platform dignitaries were piped in and the N.S. tartan was in evidence on every name tag. Some of the highlights of the memorable convention with the theme "Home and Country—Today," were the address by Mrs. J. Haggerty of Nepanee, Pres. FWIC, who emphasized that "the universe is our neighbor and the concern for people in other lands is a 'must' for us."

The symposium, "Women's Role Today" with Mrs. Matheson as moderator, was most timely with the following headings: Women's Role in the Home, in the Community, in the Nation and in the World, after which 12 discussion groups based questions pertaining to the topics covered by the speakers.

Mrs. Rand brought ACWW into clearer focus with her address on "ACWW and You," stating that this organization binds the rural women around the globe in friendship.

Maritime hospitality included a choice of activities—a harbor cruise, tour of Halifax Public Gardens, tour of the Cornwallis and Annapolis Valley, trip to Grand Pre.

A shore dinner given by N.S. Province, which was a real "Lobster-boil," proved a never to be forgotten experience, new to most of the delegates and Mrs. Chisholm's witty remarks helped all to visualize this incident. She announced that the next National convention would be held during Centennial year, 1967.

Mrs. R. McLaren expressed appreciation to the guest speaker for her vivid narration which proved most interesting. The singing of several Christmas carols followed, with guitar accompaniment by Mrs. C. Bates Sr. and Mrs. J. Neville as the song-leader. Mrs. Pope displayed much artistic ability as she deftly demonstrated the making of Christmas decorations and favors out of inexpensive items. Her ideas created much interest and no doubt all present will endeavor to pattern new ornaments for the holiday season.

A humorous reading by Mrs. E. Pascoe concluded a most enjoyable evening and thanks extended to all who contributed to the program.

A CHRISTMAS FIRST

The first Christmas spent in the White House in Washington was shared by John and Abigail Adams in 1800 in the still incomplete mansion.

Yule Log is a roll — a cousin to a jelly roll. The cake part is chocolate. The filling is whipped cream. The frosting is a mocha icing. Mary Moore gives each step in careful detail today. This Holiday Yule Log may be made 24 hours in advance of serving time.

For Christmas Make Yule Log

By MARY MOORE

Here is a superb Christmas holiday dessert.

Knowing cooks will examine the recipe critically and wonder where the flour is. There is no flour in it. Cocoa takes its place. You do not have to be a seasoned and expert cook to make it, but you must follow instructions.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Fried Baby Beef Liver and Bacon; Creamed Cauliflower; Fresh Frozen Limas; Waldorf Salad; Toasted Coconut Custard Pie; Coffee.

SUNDAY

Joy's Meat Balls Stroganoff (see Wednesday); Noodles (see Wednesday); Brussels Sprouts; Tomato Aspic on Shredded Endive; Warm Apple Pie with Rum Sauce (see Saturday); Tea.

HOLIDAY YULE LOG

(a chocolate roll with whipped cream filling and mocha frosting - serves 8 to 10)

5 eggs, yolks and whites separated,

1 cup sifted icing sugar,

3 tablespoons cocoa.

Beat egg whites until stiff. Transfer beaten (without washing it) to bowl containing yolks and beat them until thick and very pale. Sift together the sifted icing sugar and cocoa and add to beaten yolk's and beat well again. Fold beaten whites into beaten yolk mixture evenly. Butter well and dredge with flour a 15 x 10" jelly roll pan. (Or if you do not have a jelly roll pan shape a temporary one from doubled heavy-duty foil with ¾" deep sides and place it on a cookie sheet - buttering and flouring it.) Pour batter in evenly, pushing it smoothly into corners. Bake at exactly 325 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes. Remove from oven, loosen edges with sharp knife, invert on tea towel liberally sprinkled with sifted icing sugar, and slowly ease cake from pan. Roll up in towel, including towel inside roll, and let cool.

Meanwhile make Mocha Butter Cream: Beat tablespoons butter (room temperature), 2 cups sifted icing sugar, 1 tablespoon instant coffee powder, 4½ teaspoons cocoa, 1 or 2 tablespoons milk. Cream butter until light. Gradually add sifted icing sugar, coffee and cocoa. Beat until fluffy, adding enough milk to make of spreading consistency.

When cake is cool, unroll it and spread it with 5 tablespoons of the Mocha Butter Cream. Reserve remainder for top.

Whipped Cream Filling: One cup 32% (whipping) cream, ¼ cup granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Whip the cream and when stiff add the sugar and vanilla and beat until blended. Spread evenly over Mocha Butter Cream on cake, covering it to within 1" of one end. Now slowly roll up cake once, starting at cream-covered end. When you finish rolling, cream will have pushed along to cover bare end. Don't force anything but do try to turn roll so that open end is at lower side. Some cream may show but that can be helped.

Frost top and sides with remaining Mocha Butter Cream, then using knife blade, stroke it roughly to resemble tree bark. If you care to make a little swirl at one end to resemble a "knot" in the "wood". If desired decorate ends with shaved filberts or Brazils (wood chips!) Chill Yule Log. Happily this may be made 24 hours in advance.

Mental Health Books Now Available

OTTAWA (CP)—A list of 750 paperback books on mental health topics has been issued by the mental health division of the national health department.

The list, which should be a boon to students on tight budgets, includes such intriguing titles as Babies Are Human Beings, Clues to Suicide and Freud's Studies of Hysteria. It covers 18 separate areas of the mental health field, including psychiatry, psychoanalysis, psychology and psychotherapy.

It was compiled by Dr. Ben Jamin Schlesinger of the University of Toronto's school of social work at the request of Carl Birchard, editor of the mental health division's publication, Canada's Mental Health, and is issued as a special supplement to that publication.

Editor Birchard says the purpose of the list is "to assist professionals and students in the mental health field."

It should also be useful for in-service training and for use in libraries, hospitals, clinics, professional and voluntary organizations.

"Many of the titles listed are standard texts and the cheaper prices, which range from 35 cents to $3.50, make it easier for workers, especially students, to purchase their own copies rather than having to depend on their university or local public library."

The selected list of 29 paperbacks on adolescence includes such varied works as Margaret Mead's Coming of Age in Samoa and Dear Teen-Ager by columnist Abigail Van Buren.

Those interested in obtaining the list should write to Canada's Mental Health, care of the mental health division of the national health department, Ottawa.

SHOES CHANGE MOOD

MONTREAL (CP)—"One of the most effective ways for a woman to combat work fatigue, a boost physical energy and show a genuinely nappy face to the world, is to change shoes several times during the course of a busy day," says Mrs. Elizabeth Hammond, director of the Shoe Information Bureau of Canada here.

Kinettes Enjoy Yule Party

TWEED — The regular monthly meeting of Tweed Kinette Club was held at Hotel Tweedsmuir on Monday evening in the form of a smorgas board. Kinettes and their husbands gathered about seven and a social hour was held before dinner.

There was a short business meeting presided over by the president, Mrs. Marlene Spencer. A mystery developed when the fine box disappeared, but it was recovered before the end of the meeting much to the relief of the sergeant-at-arms. Mary Bancroft read some interesting readings.

The highlight of the evening was a visit from Santa with gifts for everyone. Following the distribution of gifts a singsong and dance was enjoyed with Mrs. M. Quinn at the piano.

U.C.W. Meeting

HOLLOWAY U.C.W.

Holloway Street UCW gathered in the church parlors for their December meeting and were warmly greeted as they stepped into an atmosphere of glowing Christmas candles, gay poinsettias and evergreens.

The worship service was led by Mrs. Phyllis Lucas and Mrs. Joan Hale with Mrs. T. F. Townsend at the piano. The guest speaker, Rev. Robert Reid of Foxboro United Church was introduced by Mrs. Ironside.

His thought-provoking message concerned the ways we go about celebrating God's gift of love and life to man and seriously questioned the frenzied activities in preparing for the celebration of the "Lord's birthday, when many with no contact with Christianity, seize on this birthday of Christ for debauchery and drunkenness. Many cannot afford the kind of Christmas they celebrate and find it extremely burdensome financially. Christmas is truly a special time when we reverence God's great gift in simple ways—a manger scene in the home—grace before meals —a plan to give of one's self throughout the year.

Carol singing, led by Rosslyn Robertson and accompanied by Suzanne Lowther at the piano, was enthusiastically enjoyed by all, followed by a beautiful quartet rendition of a familiar carol by Rosslyn Robertson, Peggy Brown, Phyllis Lucas and Doris Daniels.

The business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. R. Taylor, and an invitation extended to enjoy the delicious refreshments served by Mrs. A. Campbell's group, whose unit was in charge for the evening.

MORE MINISTERS ABROAD

CALGARY (CP) — United Church women ministers are more prevalent in Japan than in Canada, says Rev. Hako Watanabe, assistant pastor at Tokyo's Shinanomachi church. She said there are 135 in Japan and only 90 ordained women in Canada. Christians work hard in Japan and "it could be called an evangelistic movement."

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The first regular meeting of the month was held in the Moose Hall with Senior Regent Neil Shandrew presiding.

Prior to the meeting the Christmas supper was enjoyed by all co-workers, their husbands, the Loyal Order and their wives.

After the brief meeting Eleanor Hume and her committee entertained with a social evening.

Mrs. Stanley Leanoy donated the draw which was won by Cecil Keller.

Appropriate Time of Year To Recall Anne Frank

By JACK HUTTON

ANNE FRANK: Tragic symbol of our generation

Nineteen years and nine months after her death, a sensitive, sad-eyed girl who was forced to live a life none of us will ever experience, is still the symbol of our generation.

Next March will be the 20th anniversary of the death of Anne Frank at the Nazi concentration camp, Bergen-Belsen.

And I can't think of a more appropriate time of year for us to recall Anne. Because she proved before she died at the age of 15 that unknown strength exists in all of us— and sometimes flowers only under stress.

The festive season may seem a strange time to schedule The Diary of Anne Frank in either a movie house or on a television screen. But I hope the movie will be shown somewhere across Canada.

MONTHS OF DESPAIR

If you are unable to find the book, the movie is the next best way of appreciating the beautiful and simple record Anne kept of the 25 months that she and seven others hid in an attic over the office of a businessman named Otto Frank.

Hiding came to an end the night of August 4, 1944, when Nazi soldiers, informed by a suspicious employee in the nearby warehouse, came to arrest the group. Only one, Anne's father, Otto Frank, survived imprisonment.

It is almost impossible to believe, for us to understand what the eight went through.

Imagine the terrible tension and tedium of never being allowed to go out. Silence was a law they had to obey when all else for hours each day. One sound and their hiding place would have been betrayed.

OUR WORLD

What worries do we have in comparison to this — the festive season approaches? Are we underfed? Do we lack clothing? Reading about Anne makes one feel she is writing about another planet.

But she wasn't.

Anne was given her diary on her 13th birthday and wrote her first entry two days later. Her handwriting records it as June 14, 1942, two years after the German Nazi army began occupation of the Netherlands.

The following month the family learned that Anne's older sister, Margot, was to be arrested and deported. Mr. Frank had prepared for this day by converting storage space over his warehouse into living space, telling only a few trusted friends.

A WRITER

Anne spent her adolescence— for the next 25 months of it — in this hiding place. She wanted to be a writer, or so she told her diary. Her daily records were her only outlet for the creative urge.

As Anne herself remarked about her diary in a caption she wrote below pictures of herself: "The diary is more serious but a smile remains from the funny part."

She found humor in the day-to-day strain of eight people living together under such conditions. She found beauty in the sight of birds and the weather outside. And she found an adolescent love within herself and for Peter van Daan.

It is incredible that Anne could find it in herself to write such a message of hope, tolerance and optimism in such surroundings. But she did.

We can thank a typist from the office below, Miep Gies, for preserving the notebooks that had been filled by Anne. She found the books after they had been kicked into a corner by the German soldiers.

DREADED CAMP

The family and their companions were taken from Amsterdam to Auschwitz, a concentration camp in southern Poland. The two girls were shipped from there to the dreaded Bergen-Belsen camp.

Witnesses who knew the two girls say Anne refused to lose hope even then. The story is told that one night she learned her best friend, Lies Goosens, was to be the next compound.

Anne, shaven-headed, feverish and a near-skeleton of 70 pounds dragged herself to the wire and cried at the reunion with her old friend.

A month later, Anne died. Th. official report said she died of causes brought on by malnutrition. Her sister, Margot, had died weeks earlier of typhus.

Two months later Holland was liberated — too late for the Jewish prisoner known as Anne Frank.

One of the most important rules of good driving is to keep your car and its equipment in safe operating condition. Faulty brakes, worn tires, defective lights, or other defective parts, may contribute to an accident. A small amount paid for repairs may serve as safety insurance. It may save you many dollars in maintenance or accident costs later.

Do you know the answers to the three following questions? 1) If you become very fatigued while driving, you should: A) Drink coffee or tea; B) Keep plenty of fresh air in the car; C) stop and rest; or D) drive more slowly?

2) If you are involved in a reportable accident, how soon must you make a report to your nearest provincial or municipal police office?

A) at once; B) within 24 hours; C) within 48 hours; D) within 72 hours?

3) What benefits or protection does the owner get who pays the uninsured motor vehicle fee? A) $10,000 insurance coverage; B) $20,000 insurance coverage; C) $25,000 insurance coverage; D) no protection whatsoever?

CORRECT ANSWERS

Congo Compounds Sudan's Problems

By GEORGE McARTHUR

CAIRO (AP) — The war in The Congo has created deep problems for the new government of the neighboring Sudan which like The Congo seethes with internal rebellion.

With the Sudan regime's apparent blessings, Gbenye leader rebel leader Christopher Gbenye is reported directing his scattered army from Juba in southern Sudan, while Soviet arms continue to flow to his rebel soldiers.

In the last few days, there have been several reports of Soviet built Egyptian and Algerian transport planes airlifting arms for the rebels through Khartoum, the capital, to mid-Sudan, and Juba, in the Sudanese far south.

The Congolese army commander, Maj-Gen. Joseph Mobutu, says the weapons are smuggled from Juba by truck 150 miles to Aba, a town just inside The Congo. He said most of the weapons were made in the Soviet Union, China and Czechoslovakia.

Mobutu also says intelligence agents have spotted 40 Algerian "civilians" in Juba who had come to help the rebels. He says the rebels have also received aid through the Sudan supply route from Ghana and Mali.

CLAIMS DOUBTED

Gbenye's presence in Jubas, his only major airfill, must doubts on claims of Sudanese neutrality in The Congo, made in the United Nations by Foreign Minister Mohamed Mahgoub.

Mahgoub's denials of Sudanese participation in The Congo pose a dilemma in his once-placid nation now beset from all sides.

A bloody revolt between Negroes and Arabs has been going on in the three southern provinces for months. It spread to Khartoum last week, badly shaking the coalition civilian government which took over from a bungling military regime in October.

This Negro revolt in Sudan has been enflamed by the bloody chaos of The Congo just across the border. Thousands of southern Sudanese refugees now are in The Congo.

The Khartoum government is trying to align itself with the majority of African states in supporting the Congolese rebels against the hated Moise Tshombe. However, Khartoum lives in the fear that aid given to the undisciplined Congolese will flow back across the frontiers into southern Sudan.

PAPERS RIFLED

The 15-member coalition government in Khartoum, which includes four Communists, is in near-desperation because of problems in the south. Private papers of departing reporters and foreigners are rifled and notes on the Arab-Negro conflict seized.

The government is pledged to negotiate some kind of solution with the southerners. A ministerial delegation is touring Kenya and Uganda to get an estimated 20,000 southern refugees to come home under an amnesty.

This policy is causing fear among Arab tradesmen in the south, who are beginning to flee the area in substantial numbers Similar fears are besetting the relative handful of southern Negroes in the Arab capital. Some 2,000 still are being "protected" in Omdurman football stadium following the race riot-ing.

The government is reluctant to let them go home with tales of massacre in Khartoum. Some say 200 people were killed, most of them Negroes. The flow of Arabs from the south and Negroes from the north is deepening the de facto separation in the Sudan.

As yet the government has announced no clear-cut policy toward the south beyond willingness in negotiate. Its contradictory actions are plain in fears of The Congo situation.

replied he was working for the U.S. government, not the Canadian government, in the case.

Mr. Lamontagne quoted the caller as describing Rivard as "a rough cookie."

Mr. Pearson's memo, written as a statement to the Commons but never delivered because of procedural difficulties there, said:

LEARNED DETAILS

"During the evening of Nov. 23 and the morning of Nov. 24, I learned for the first time of the details of the allegations and of the contents of the RCMP report into the Rivard case. . . .

"The member for Calgary North (Douglas Harkness, Progressive Conservative MP) then asked me whether I was to be formed and, if so, when, of say of the other circumstances of this case prior to these matters being brought to the attention of the House on Nov. 23.

"My answer on this point should be clarified. I made it clea that I first learned of the contents of the RCMP report shortly before the justice (pending) estimates were introduced (in the Commons) on Nov. 23.

"However, the minister of justice had informed me earlier, on Sept. 2, that there were allegations of bribery involving the executive assistant to the minister of citizenship and immigration; that these allegations were denied by the official in question; that they were being investigated by the RCMP upon the instructions of the minister of justice and with the knowledge, of course, of the minister of citizenship and immigration; and that the person in question had been sent on leave while the investigation was taking place."

SHOWS EXCHANGE

The Hansard record of Commons debates for Nov. 24, filed earlier as an exhibit in the inquiry, shows the following exchange between Mr. Harkness and Mr. Pearson:

Mr. Harkness: "Was he (the prime minister) informed by the minister of justice in regard to any of the other circumstances being brought to the attention of this House yesterday?" (Nov. 23).

Mr. Pearson: "I was informed by the minister of justice of some of the circumstances shortly before his estimates came before the House. He told me this matter would be before the house during the consideration of his estimates. He told me the facts of the matter. . . .

Mr. Harkness: . . . "When was he informed?"

Mr. Pearson: "Mr. Speaker, I think I was informed on the day before his estimates were brought before the House."

CAME AFTER STATEMENT

The Pearson - Harkness exchange in the Commons occurred shortly after a statement by Guy Rouleau, Liberal MP for Montreal Dollard, that he was resigning as Mr. Pearson's parliamentary secretary and that he had made representations in the Rivard case. Mr. Rouleau denied using undue influence or doing anything reprehensible.

Mr. Rouleau is one of a number of persons identified by Mr. Lamontagne in his testimony to the judicial inquiry as having telephoned him about getting Rivard free on bail.

The Pearson memo, read into the inquiry record by Jean Deschenes, lawyer for the federa government, said that sending Mr. Denis on leave and launching an RCMP inquiry "were the full and appropriate measures at that stage, and they had been taken promptly."

"I was therefore content to wait for the RCMP report of which, as I have already stated to the House, I was informed on Nov. 22."

In the Commons, Mr. Favreau said Mr. Denis was separated from his post as executive assistant to Mr. Tremblay about Oct. 1. He also said a full report was given him by the RCMP Sept. 18.

QUESTIONED BY MATTHEWS

During Wednesday, Mr. Lamontagne was questioned at length by RCMP lawyer Norman Matthews and Yvon Jasmin, counsel for Mr. Lord who returned from studies in England to attend the hearings.

But it was while being questioned by Francois Even, counsel for the Creditiste party, that he testified the Liberal party was to get a contribution apart from the $30,000 offered by Denis July 14. He said both he and Denis are Liberals.

He had earlier said Denis called Rivard a good Liberal and a contributor to the party who might be needed in the next federal election.

Chief Justice Dorion intervened when Mr. Even tried to ask Mr. Lamontagne the amount the Liberal party was to receive, warning that the inquiry wouldn't become a political one. He said the amount wasn't important and Mr. Even withdrew the question.

During questioning about an Aug. 5 conversation between Mr. Lamontagne, a person calling himself Lord, Mr. Jasmin said Mr. client is convinced he applied no pressure to Mr. Lamontagne, that the Montreal lawyer's testimony was wrong and that Mr. Lord recalls the conversation better than Mr. Lamontagne.

FAVREAU SAID UNHAPPY

Mr. Lamontagne reiterated that the caller told him Mr. Favreau was unhappy at his handling of the bail for Rivard, adding that he later learned Mr. Favreau did not learn of the phone call until he saw Mr. Lamontagne's Aug. 14 statement to the RCMP.

Mr. Lamontagne said he deduced from the call he would lose his post as permanent federal agent for Montreal narcotics cases if he kept fighting Rivard's bail application. He agreed to Mr. Jasmin's suggestion he might have misinterpreted the call.

Mr. Matthews, noting that 27 days elapsed between the alleged bribe offer July 14 and Lamontagne's report to RCMP of it, said the Montreal lawyer's actions were inconsistent with his testimony.

Mr. Lamontagne said he was slightly insulted by the $20,000 offer.

Mr. Matthews suggested such an offer to commit a crime must have been a very great insult. Yet Lamontagne had reacted, by inviting Denis to his hotel room later the same night for a drink.

WASN'T ENRAGED

"I didn't have a fit of rage over the insult to my character and reputation," Mr. Lamontagne said.

Chief Justice Dorion asked whether Mr. Matthews was putting Mr. Lamontagne on trial and Mr. Matthews replied it was a matter of the credibility of the witness.

Guy Guerin, counsel for Denis said it was of paramount importance whether the RCMP believed Lamontagne's story after the delay in reporting to the police.

Mr. Matthews said the delay bears on whether the police believe the allegations and on subsequent actions of the RCMP.

He asked whether Mr. Lamontagne reported to the RCMP after becoming aware some Montreal lawyers thought he had accepted a bribe.

Mr. Lamontagne replied yes but the main reason for the delay was that he did not want to cause trouble for his friend Denis.

Nationalist Chinese Spy Defects to Mao

TOKYO (AP)—The lives of Nationalist Chinese agents in Communist south China are feared jeopardized by the reported defection of a high-ranking Nationalist intelligence officer.

A Peking broadcast today identified the defector as former Maj.-Gen. Cheng Yi-ming, chief of intelligence in Portuguese Macao for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's defence ministry.

In Taipei, a spokesman for the Nationalist defence ministry, Rear-Admiral Fei Yu-feng, said he had never heard of Cheng.

The defection, if true, would be one of the most important in recent years.

Nationalist operatives have been particularly active in the Kwangtung province area, the capital of which is the commercial city of Canton.

of Madison Avenue advertising."

Senator Malcolm Hollett (PC —Burin) said the maple leaf is found commercially on all sorts of goods. "You don't see the Union Jack on a can of beans." He said the new emblem "won't get the preparedness to die for it that a flag deserves."

In the House of Commons, there were still strong echoes of the same flag fight as in the Senate, although the MPs were theoretically on another issue.

Debate was supposed to relate to a Progressive Conservative amendment that would insert the deposed Red Ensign as the Commonwealth emblem instead of the Union Jack.

Some Conservatives MPs indicated they would accept the new flag now that it has been passed by the Commons and is likely to become the official flag. Others, however, showed no lessening of their bitterness over the idea of a flag without any symbol of Canada's history and over the debate squelching tool of closure that was used by the government to get it through the Commons.

Gordon Churchill (PC — Winnipeg South Centre) attacked the Design and closure heatedly. He said it is a Liberal flag.

Hold Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth) protested that the design was proposed by a committee and had drawn support from all parties in the House.

Jack Nigg (PC — Athabasca) said the people will grow fond of the new flag eventually. Although he had been one of its strong opponents in the debate, he would go "out there and try to sell them national unity."

Gerald Laniel (L — Beauharnois - Salaberry) favored the Union Jack as the symbol of Canada's allegiance to the Queen and as the emblem of the Commonwealth connection.

He said the Union Jack would honor "those who preceded us and who brought to this country and maintained a system of democracy which has protected everyone, the weak like the strong, and preserved peace and prosperity for us. One has to be blind and dishonest to say the contrary."

The war record of Canada's institutions. ". . . I am no less a Quebecer for that. . . ."

China May Call Own Meeting To Fight Soviet Authority

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

MOSCOW (AP)—China may call its own meeting of world Communist parties to challenge the authority of the Soviet meeting set for March 1, informed observers said Wednesday.

The clearest hint of a Chinese counter meeting came last Aug. 30 when Peking published a resolution of the New Zealand Communist party, which backs China.

The resolution suggested "a multilateral meeting of those who hold similar views to the Communist party of New Zealand on world ideological issues." It said parties that have shown a reluctance to come to Moscow also should be approached.

Indonesia's Communist party, the largest outside a Red-ruled nation, announced Tuesday it will not come to Moscow next March.

Counting 18,000,000 Communist party members in China and 2,500,000 in Indonesia, the Chinese claim that more than ha the world's estimated 42,000,000 Communist members are behind them.

CHINA HAS BACKING

China is backed by Albania, North Korea, North Viet Nam and the Japanese Communist party in addition to Indonesia.

The Soviet Union issued a summons Saturday for 26 parties to meet March 1 and begin preparations for a conference of all Communist parties. Observers viewed the call as a decision for a showdown with China.

The Soviet Union says the meetings are needed to achieve unity in the world Communist movement. China has accused Moscow of betraying the movement with such policies as peaceful coexistence and has insisted there can be no unity on Soviet terms.

Last Dec. 27, China called for its supporters in foreign Communist parties to split those parties rather than accept pro-Soviet leadership.

Three of the parties invited to Moscow now have split, Australia, Brazil and India. Small factions making loud noises for Chinese are active in Britain, France, Italy and the United States.

FIVE HAS REJECT

Among the others invited, China and at least four other parties are expected to reject the Soviet invitation, as did Indonesia.

This means that China can claim support from at least 13 of the 26 parties invited. There may be factions in the other parties by March 1. Romania and Cuba are reluctant to attend the Moscow meeting. Other Soviet bloc nations, such as Poland, have had reservations about such a meeting.

Thus China is expected to produce a band of loyal supporters from the eight of Moscow's meeting to speak in the name of world communism.

Robbers Get $30,350 in Mail Robbery

CHATHAM (CP) — Superintendent A. E. Kirkby of the provincial police said Wednesday that $30,350 was taken in Tuesday's mail truck robbery near Tilbury, Ont., 17 miles southwest of here.

The money was a shipment from the Bank of Montreal in Toronto to a branch in Merlin, Ont., 10 miles south of Chatham.

Three men, one armed with a sawed - off shotgun, forced the mail truck off th road, tied up driver George West, 51, of Chatham and made off with the money.

Profit, Private Initiative Fast Becoming Respectable Notions in the Soviet Union

Following is the second of two stories by John Best, Canadian Press Moscow correspondent, on proposals that the profit incentive system be used in the Soviet economy.

By JOHN BEST

KHARKOV, U.S.S.R. (CP)—Profit, material incentive and private initiative are rapidly becoming respectable notions in the Soviet Union.

They are part of the lexicon of a vigorous debate, long muffled but now in full bloom, over proposals to release the economy from fetters placed upon it by over-zealous state planning. The words are used by men such as Professor Yevsey Liberman of Kharkov University, leader of a movement to give individual factories greater autonomy.

Professor Liberman fielded carefully a question as to prospects for his proposals under the new Soviet leadership as compared with those under former boss Nikita Khrushchev.

But his tactful reply left no doubt that he contemplates the new era with optimism. The new Kremlin leaders have shown "a spirit of carefulness and objectiveness—an intention to use scientific principles more seriously than ever," he said.

'FAVORS ECONOMY'

"This is favorable for economic life at all levels."

Both Premier Kosygin and Communist Party first secretary Brezhnev are industrial engineers by profession.

Under the Liberman formula, factories are free to run their operations in the most efficient manner possible on certain received directly from retail outlets, without interference from the central industrial organization's plan or regional economic councils.

Over-all direction of the economy remains the responsibility of Gosplan.

When he first put forward his proposals some years ago, said the 67-year-old professor, he got much attention. Later, however, conditions for debate improved and the editorial of Pravda invited him to write an article explaining his views. This article, published in September, 1962, under the title Planning, Premium and Profit, drew immediate widespread attention.

Factory managers generally welcomed the idea, since it would allow them to produce for the market instead of pursuing state-set production targets that often had no relation to the actual needs of consumers.

The Soviet Academy of Sciences and other institutions have been studying the problem of difficulties imposed by Russia's frozen price structure.

"Gradually most economists and scientists came around to the conclusion that the profit motive is suitable for a socialist system. But it was necessary to have a better order of prices."

REVISION UNDER WAY

A major revision of the Soviet price structure now is under way.

When Liberman published another article in Pravda this past Sept. 20, support for his ideas was more general.

The forces of change have received powerful support from an influential member of Soviet newspapers and journals.

There have also, however, been powerful forces in opposition, including, according to reports, the Soviet finance ministry.

A recent speech by Finance Minister Garbuzov to the Supreme Soviet indicated that the finance ministry now is falling into line.

"The work of an enterprise should be judged not by the amount of its output," he declared, "but . . . by the extent to which (its products) correspond to the requirements of the economy and population."

An address by Kosygin to the party body must have given Liberman even greater cause for satisfaction.

He considers it necessary to assess work of enterprises and building organs mainly by the measure in which produce put out conforms to the demands of consumers, finds a market and corresponds to world technical standards," he said.

He warned plant managers that they will be held responsible for shoddy goods that remain unsold. Among measures he advocated to boost labor productivity was "consistent implementation of the principle of incentive."

Producing enterprises should have more economic independence, declared Kosygin.

"The elimination of all sorts of bureaucratic obstacles and of petty patronage of enterprise will open up vast opportunities for greater initiative of the staffs of enterprises and collective farms."

15 Injured When Subway Roof Collapses

MONTREAL (CP) — The wooden and steel roof frame for a part of Montreal's subway project collapsed with a roar Wednesday, leaving 15 men injured.

Most of the men were pouring cement into the frame at the midtown site when the accident occurred. One said the roof supports suddenly gave way.

Some 35 other men were at lunch at the time of the collapse. Authorities said everyone on the site was accounted for.

A 12-man work gang was on the roof and rode down with it to the floor of the tunnel 30 feet below. Three were severely injured.

Eight men have been killed on the project since it began in July, 1962.

Meeting Date For Builders Is Changed

Meeting date of the Quinte Home Builders' Association has been changed again, from the third Wednesday of the month to the second Tuesday. The change, decided at last night's club meeting, was decided because of a planned change to a meeting hall not available on the third Wednesday, and for the convenience of the members. The third Wednesday date was decided about four months ago. The second Tuesday of the month was the Association's meeting date last year.

Charles Lambert, as president of the Association, was delegated last night to represent the Quinte group at the National Home Builders' Association conference in Calgary, for three days from January 25. As delegate, he will be partly sponsored by the Association for the trip. Five members of the local group have made reservations for the convention.

Wilson Faces Crucial Vote In Commons Today on Plans To Reshape West Alliance

LONDON (CP)—The Tory opposition demanded a House of Commons vote today on Prime Minister Harold Wilson's proposal to turn over much of Britain's independent nuclear deterrent to a new Atlantic Nuclear Force (ANF).

A Tory spokesman said he expects the vote late tonight at the end of a two-day foreign affairs debate after Opposition Leader Sir Alec Douglas-Home and Peter Thorneycroft, former Conservative defence secretary, assail Wilson's plan.

The left - wingers, particularly, were encouraged by Wilson's announcement that Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin will visit London and has invited the British Prime Minister to Moscow.

This was seen as an attempt to blaze a new path of friendship between East and West, leading eventually to mutual outlawing of nuclear weapons.

Wilson sought to appease the Tories, in another passage, by offering joint talks between government and opposition on defence problems.

Wilson, meanwhile, met backbenchers of his own Labor party in advance of the parliamentary session in a bid to rally left-wing support for the vital clash.

Reports indicate that Wilson's so-called "tight - rope act" of giving up only part of the independent deterrent to the planned ANF and retaining some V-bombers for use in the Far East has failed fully to satisfy the opposition or his own left wing.

Predictions were, however, that although some extreme leftist were unhappy about Britain retaining any vestige of the hated "bomb" they would not turn against the government.

Wilson unveiled his grand design for Britain's global defences Wednesday in a speech sometimes delivered at machine-gun speed and generally regarded as his best effort since becoming premier.

In a nutshell, Wilson's ANF would include: Britain's 200-plane V-bomber force except for a part needed for commitments outside the NATO area; three to five British Polaris submarines now being built plus at least an equal number of United States Polaris submarines; a mixed-manned jointly-owned element of some kind in which the existing non-nuclear powers could take part.

Wilson did not explain in his opening address — he is also scheduled to wind up the debate — whether the non - ANF section of the V-force would continue to be armed with nuclear weapons.

But its projected role as part of an international guarantee to non-nuclear powers like India, deeply worried about China's new nuclear capacity, was taken to imply that the Far East planes would be H-bomb equipped.

The premier said flatly, however, that the aim is to commit "irrevocably" to the planned ANF the Polaris submarines as they come into service as well as the remainder—presumably the bulk — of the V-bomber force. The commitment would last as long as the ANF.

ISSUES CHALLENGE

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson challenged Ontario's Conservative government Wednesday night to set up a constitutional committee along the lines of that in Quebec. If the Conservatives wouldn't do it, Mr. Thompson said in a radio broadcast, then the Liberals would.

BALLOON BLOWING CONTEST at Quinte Home Builders' Association meeting last night was won by Don Grant, (seated, right). Second place went to Randy Loewen, (seated, centre). Both had burst their balloons when this picture was taken. Competition was for Christmas turkeys. Other finalists were Fred Pope, Bill O'Lear and Russel Dean.

Kiwanis Club Christmas Toys Now Ready for Distribution

Over 4,000 toys have been gathered this year by Kiwanis for Christmas distribution to needy families.

Although many of the toys were collected in the familiar Kiwanis boxes located at Shell stations, many were donated by city merchants or bought from Kiwanis funds.

Besides wagons, tricycles and rocking horses approximately 1,700 bags of toys, each containing about six small toys and made up for children of different ages, will be distributed.

Anything from blocks to foot long plastic trucks go into the bags.

Kiwanis members and public-minded citizens have been painting, repairing and gathering toys since October 1.

Thursday the last of the gifts will be delivered to the Fire Department who will deliver them.

Pensions Committee Will Sit in Mid-Winter Recess

OTTAWA (CP) — Over stiff Conservative objections, the joint Senate - Commons pensions committee decided in a rare move late Tuesday to sit during Parliament's mid-winter recess.

Behind the decision was a government committee last July to have Parliament deal with all stages of the Canada Pension Plan bill before the current session is prorogued.

Liberal committee members indicated that the objective is to hear insurance company witnesses and others during the recess so the committee can complete its work on the bill, having it ready for the Commons when the parliamentary recess ends.

The theory is that both houses then would debate the bill in all stages, then the current session of Parliament — already 10 months old—would be prorogued and a new session begun, perhaps within a single day.

In that way the government could keep its commitment. Prorogation would automatically kill the pension plan legislation unless it received Royal assent beforehand.

Complicating the situation was the fact that the starting date and duration of the recess has not yet been announced by the government. However, it is generally expected to begin within the next week and continue until sometime in February.

In the end, the committee voted 20 to 6 in favor of sitting during the recess. Its next meeting will be Jan. 12 when it will begin hearing briefs.

GUARDS USE BILLIES

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons was told Wednesday that penitentiary guards have used "billies" in two recent occasions and a shovel handle in another while subduing rebellious prisoners. The wooden clubs were used on prisoners at New Brunswick's Dorchester Penitentiary and at Quebec's St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary.

Auto Makers Will Surpass Previous Record

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's auto makers will surpass their previous annual record production total this week by almost 10,000 vehicles, despite output losses caused by strikes and shutdowns.

The previous annual production record was set last year, when 633,000 cars and trucks came off assembly lines.

By the end of this week, the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers' Association said Wednesday, the car plants will have produced 642,800.

Of all the producers, only General Motors of Canada is not ahead of last year's production figures. GM was closed for three weeks in October because of parts shortages caused by strikes in the United States and then shut down again two weeks ago when its own production workers went on strike.

GM's production so far this year is 281,000 cars and trucks compared with 292,000 at the same period last year.

Scheduled car production by companies this week and total production to Dec. 12, with comparable 1963 figures in brackets:

American Motors 800 (812); 33,263 (29,663). Chrysler 2,400 (2,215); 98,810 (81,818). Ford 5,220 (5,917); 143,873 (134,001). GM — (—); 235,954 (205,203). Studebaker 480 (480); 18,462 (7,902). Volvo 80 (60); 2,098 (1,024).

Agricultural Bonanza
Greatest Year Ever Down on the Farm

By ALEX MORIN

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian agriculture rode the crest of the 1963 wheat bonanza into 1964, making it the most profitable year on record.

Unprecedented wheat sales, a better balance between supply and demand for dairy products and reduced butter stocks were the year's major developments.

However, a repetition of the large wheat exports of 1963-64 is not anticipated for 1965 and there likely will be a reduction in wheat deliveries by farmers. In addition, the current wheat crop is of a lower grade and this is expected to be reflected in slightly lower average prices in 1965.

Cash returns to farmers in 1964 from their farming operations were expected to reach a record $3,686,000,000, 10 per cent above the previous high of $3,180,000,000 in 1963. The 1965 outlook in this department is for a slight drop.

FARMERS GET MORE

The substantial increase in cash returns for 1964 exceeded the rise in farm operating expenses. It was estimated the realized net income would be close to the record of $1,900,000,000 set in the early 1950s. This would be 19 per cent more than the $1,571,000,000 in realized net income for 1963.

However, when the value of inventory changes is taken into account, the total net income is slightly below 1963.

The 1964 returns from cattle and hogs are not expected to change much from last year, a lower average price being offset by increased marketings.

The cattle population continued to rise during the year and as a result it is estimated marketings in 1965 will be higher than in 1964. No significant change in price is expected so income may be up slightly.

Larger marketings of hogs also are expected in 1965, particularly in the first nine months. With prices close to current levels, total returns should go up slightly.

DAIRY INCOME UP

Total income from dairying was estimated higher for 1964 since production was close to that of 1963 and prices were up slightly. Strong demand is expected to continue in this sector through 1965 with the prospect of increased total earnings.

The large increase in production of poultry products in 1964 was not enough to offset the decline in prices. Total cash income from this source is expected to remain about the same although prices were expected to vary.

For the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act (ARDA), 1964 marked the final year of a three-year pilot project intended to guide rural Canada out of economic stagnation.

The first three years involved the undertaking of 600 projects at a cost of $20,000,000 to the federal government and a like sum by the provinces.

A federal - provincial conference in November charted another five years of broader-based governmental action under ARDA. The new agreement providing for total federal expenditures of $175,000,000 to be matched by the provinces.

The 846,000,000 bushels of wheat shipped to the U.S.S.R. during the crop year ended July 31 was the main factor in record exports of 594,000,000 bushels. Domestic consumption was up 13 per cent from the previous year to 158,000,000 bushels.

The new crop year started Aug. 1 with a carryover of 460,000,000 bushels, only 36,000,000 less than at the same date in 1963.

A 1964 wheat crop estimated at 600,400,000 put stocks available at 1,061,000,000 bushels. The 1963 crop had resulted in a record supply of 1,310,700,000 bushels. That amount would have overtaxed storage facilities had it not been for the 1963-64 export boom.

Butter production in the year was estimated at 350,000,000 pounds, 2,000,000 less than in 1963. At the same time butter consumption was advancing at a rate of about four per cent and was expected to reach 364,000,000 pounds.

Apart from the excess of consumption over production, stocks were depleted more significantly by the export of 113,000,000 pounds. Year-end stocks of 92,000,000 pounds were the lowest since the early 1950s and down from 219,622,000 at the end of 1963.

Foreign Press Correspondents Getting Freer Hand in Cuba

HAVANA (Reuters)—Premier Fidal Castro has considerably eased restrictions on foreign press correspondents during 1964.

In the past, correspondents had to wait as long as eight hours to make a telephone call to New York or other cities in North America. Cables were held up for hours, and sometimes cut or altered by censors.

Then, early this year, the situation began to improve. The department in the foreign relations ministry which deals with the foreign press was expanded and a new head, Ramiro del Rio, was appointed.

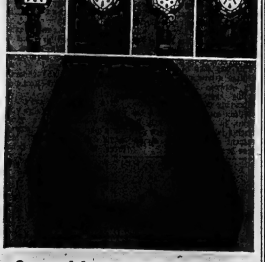
Del Rio, a member of Castro's 26th of July Movement who worked for the revolution as a member of the Havana underground, has been energetic about taking up correspondents' complaints and acting on them.

The wait on overseas telephone calls now seldom exceeds an hour. Cables are no longer cut or changed, and they are moved more quickly.

Formerly, too, correspondents were, in effect, confined to Havana. In theory, they could obtain permission to visit other parts of the island, but in practice the permission was seldom granted.

The restriction on correspondents' movements is still in effect. But authorization for trips elsewhere in Cuba now is given freely.

The new state of affairs reflects a decision made by Castro at the end of last year to make working conditions easier for Western correspondents in Cuba.



In private conversations, he told correspondents he was aware of the unfavorable image of Cuba that emerged from exile sources in Miami and accounted for a large proportion of the coverage of Cuban affairs in the American press.

There now are no overt restrictions on reporting, although a correspondent working in Cuba soon finds that the inaccessibility of many facts and figures and the unwillingness of all but the most senior officials to talk to him constitute an obstacle to liberal reporting.

At present, only four Western news agencies and one American newspaper have resident correspondents in Havana.

The First 15,000 Who Made History

Gillis Purcell, new general manager of The Canadian Press, travelled as a war correspondent with the first Canadian contingent to reach Britain after the Second World War began in 1939. Now, 25 years later, he recalls the operation that took the 1st Canadian Division across the Atlantic.

By GILLIS PURCELL

Twenty-five years ago, less than four months after the start of the Second World War, the 1st Canadian Division landed in Britain — vanguard of 362,000 soldiers who crossed the Atlantic in five years of war.

In two separate "flights" of closely guarded ocean liners, 15,908 young volunteer civilians —ill - armed and only half-trained—landed at Gourock in Scotland Dec. 17 and Dec. 30, 1939, after voyages in perfect weather.

They were the first Commonwealth forces to come to the aide of Britain and France in the war against Germany. Many of their fathers had made the same trip for the same reason 25 years earlier in the First World War.

The first flight was a drab grey armada of five camouflaged luxury liners, guarded by sea and air forces of both Britain and Canada. It evaded the threat of German sea attack but missed disaster by a hairbreadth at the end of the zig-zag seven-day voyage.

The German threat against Allied shipping was serious. In late November, two German cruisers and the armed merchant cruiser Rawalpindi southeast of Ireland with 270 dead. Two pocket battleships, Deutschland and Graf Spee, were roaming the Atlantic. Submarines were on the prowl.

BRUSH WITH LINER

The first - flight troopships were the Aquitania, Duchess of Bedford, Empress of Australia, Empress of Britain and Monarch of Bermuda. Their escort was the battle-cruiser Repulse, the battleship Resolution and the aircraft carrier Furious of the Royal Navy.

Unknown to most of the 7,446 troops, in the darkness of the final night, the liner Samaria, outbound for New York, sailed right through the convoy entering the Firth of Clyde, striking her starboard side against the Furious and her port side against the Aquitania. Lifeboats were torn away, davits twisted, but miraculously none of the three ships was seriously damaged.

The second flight, with seven ships carrying 8,152 all ranks, spent Christmas at sea and arrived Dec. 30 after an eight-day voyage. Its ships were five British liners, the Almanzora, Ormonde, Orama, Andes and Reina del Pacifico, and two Polish, the Chrobry and the Batory.

Both contingents were escorted out of Halifax by four Canadian destroyers, the Ottawa, Fraser, Restigouche and St. Laurent.

The young Canadians on their "great crusade"—most of them nearing their "30s now — expected to be in the front line in France by the spring of 1940. But France fell to the Germans in June.

The division in fact first engaged the enemy in Sicily in 1943, just three years and seven months after its first flight sailed from Halifax Dec. 10. Its 1st Brigade started to France in June, 1940—three of it got there—but was ordered back as France surrendered and the Germans occupied most of Western Europe. In 1941, a small group went to Spitsbergen, an Arctic archipelago between Greenland and Norway, to dismantle abandoned coal mines.

Just before the first flight's Sunday noon departure the new headquarters flag was hoisted to the masthead of the Aquitania, which carried Maj.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, the divisional commander, and his headquarters staff. The flag had the Union Jack in the corner of a white field with three red maple leaves and three gold fleurs-de-lis, the latter on a circular blue ground.

Within seven months, Lt.-Gen. McNaughton was commander of the two-division Anglo-Canadian corps that became the 1st Canadian Corps the following December. In April, 1942, he became the commander of the 1st Canadian Army which eventually reached a peak strength of five divisions. He returned to Canada at the end of 1943 and now is retired at Ottawa.

LIVED IN LUXURY

Bronzed and husky, the troops revelled in the thrills and luxury of their voyage. They were goggle-eyed at the majestic size of the transports, breathless at the cold grey contempt of the U-boat escort, the Atlantic, which few of them had seen before, was as smooth almost as a millpond.

The ships' wireless was silent but news broadcasts were coupled. Word raced around the decks when three British light cruisers chased the Graf Spee into Montevideo, where she was scuttled. The lads chuckled: "Bring on the Deutschland!" The Deutschland, nearly lasting out the war, was sunk in April, 1945, in an Allied air raid on Swinemunde, German Baltic port.

Army life at sea consisted largely of eating and relaxing. Meals were still of peacetime standard. Staterooms had not been packed with double bunks. The Aquitania carried 2,638 all ranks. Soon she was to transport 7,500 a trip, more than the whole first flight's total.

VAN DOOR ON GUARD

The troops' gay attitude reflected none of the grim aspects of the trip. Life-jackets—called waterwings — were worn day and night. Gas masks were at the alert on every lifeboat drill. Troops were barred from the decks between sundown and dawn. Not a light shone through portholes or windows as the grey ships knifed through the night.

Quebec's Royal 22nd Regiment did all the guard duty on the headquarters ship. Paul Triquet's job, as regimental sergeant-major, was to make sure his men kept everyone off decks in the blackout. Four years later, as a captain in the hills of Italy near Ortona, he became the first Canadian to win a Victoria Cross in the Mediterranean campaign. Now he lives in Quebec.

Other units had nothing to do except abbreviated physical training after breakfast, tidying quarters and completing typhoid inoculations. Not one in a hundred got seasick.

The headquarters staff on the Aquitania worked day and night. One of the busiest was a newly appointed major, Guy Simonds, who was to command the division during the invasions of Sicily and Italy and to become a lieutenant-general in command of the 2nd Canadian Corps in the closing months of the war in Europe. He now lives in Toronto.

FUTURE COs ABOARD

All but one of the division's six wartime commanders were on the December voyage. In addition to Gen. McNaughton and Maj. Simonds, there were Brig. George Pearkes, VC, who held the command from July, 1940, until September, 1942, when he returned to Canada to be Commander-in-Chief, Pacific Command; Maj. Chris Vokes, commander for a year of the Italian campaign from October, 1943; and Maj. Harry W. Foster, who took over in Italy in November, 1944, and led the division in France and western Holland until the end of the war. Gen. Pearkes now is lieutenant-governor of British Columbia and Gen. Vokes is retired at Oakville, Ont. Gen. Foster died in Halifax last Aug. 6.

Already in England on exchange to the British war office was Maj. H. L. N. Salmon who was to command the division from September, 1942, until his death in an air crash in southern England in April, 1943, while en route to the Mediterranean for the Sicily invasion.

Besides Brig. Pearkes, the officers who took the division's three infantry brigades overseas were Brig. Armand A. Smith, invalided home in late 1940 after being seriously injured in an auto accident, and Brig. C. B. Price, named overseas commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross in 1942 after commanding the 3rd Canadian Division for 18 months. Gen. Price lives at Knowlton, Que., and Brig. Smith at Winona, Ont.

WELCOMED BY FEARSON

Eager young troops crowded the decks at dawn Sunday as the Clydeside hills of Scotland showed dimly through fog. At Gourock, a small dockside crowd waved welcome to what they thought were British troops on Christmas leave from France. Then, as the ships approached, the first identification came. Soldiers' voices in cadence spelled out "C-A-N-A-D-A"; then shouted "Canada!"

The 1st Canadian Division, soon to be known throughout southern England by its rectangular red shoulder-patches, was arriving.

Welcoming officials came alongside in motorboats and climbed a rope ladder to the Aquitania's deck to be greeted warmly by Gen. McNaughton.

From Canada House in London came the Canadian high commissioner, Vincent Massey, later to be Canada's first Canadian Governor-General, and the counsellor, Mike Pearson, now Canada's prime minister. Brig. H. D. G. Crerar, later commander of the Canadian Army in the field, came from Canadian military headquarters which he had set up in London six weeks before with a small advance group. Gen. Crerar now is retired in Ottawa.

First of the troops to land was Sgt. Bernard Gregson of the Carleton and Yorks, now 50 and with the Canadian customs office in St. Stephen, N.B.

SPENT COLD WINTER

All Sunday afternoon and through the blacked-out night, the troops were lightered from the transports and loaded aboard trains for the military centre at Aldershot, 50 miles southwest of London, where they were to spend England's coldest winter in almost a half-century. Water pipes froze and sometimes snow flurried but the temperature went below the freezing mark only seldom and not for long.

The whole movement was handled in the strictest secrecy. Not a word of the troops' departure had appeared in Halifax newspapers though thousands saw the ships sail away. Not a word in Monday's London morning papers though Canadians in khaki had been recognized in several cities.

Announcement of the first flight's arrival was to be made Wednesday, Dec. 20, simultaneously at London and Ottawa. But on Monday night the first lord of the admiralty, Winston Churchill, made a radio broadcast. Of course—if they could get them, or stay at home of an evening.

But they soon settled into the life of the beleaguered island and waited impatiently for the war that was too long in coming.

Howe Snaps Slump; Hull Rolling On

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

That 32-goal scoring spree in two National Hockey League games Wednesday night should answer fans who thought age was catching up with Gordie Howe or that the pressure was beginning to tell on high-scoring Bobby Hull.

Howe, 34, ended the longest scoring famine of his 18-year-NHL career by netting two goals and helping set up two others as Detroit Red Wings pounded the Rangers in New York 7-3. He had been scoreless in 12 previous games.

Hull, the NHL scoring leader, scored twice and picked up three assists in Chicago Black Hawks' 7-0 victory over visiting Boston Bruins.

The goals were his 24-25 in 36 games this season, and his over-all points total jumped to 38—an eight - point edge over teammate Stan Mikita, the runner-up.

The Big Seven

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Hull of Chicago took a five-point jump in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race Wednesday night, scoring twice and assisting on three other goals as Black Hawks defeated Boston Bruins 7-0.

Hull's effort increased his league - leading total of goals to 24 and his point total to 38—eight - point lead over runner-up, teammate Stan Mikita, and a 12-point edge over the rest of the league.

Mikita picked up two assists in the early game to raise his total to 30. He leads the league in the playmaking department.

The other big gainer in Wednesday night's games was Detroit Red Wings' Gordie Howe, who collected two goals and added an assist. His point tie at 25 points with Phil Esposito of Chicago Black Hawks.

Esposito was in a slump—he's goalless since late in November.

The leaders:

	gf.	a.	PTS.
Hull, Chicago	24	14	38
Mikita, Chicago	15	23	30
Ullman, Detroit	12	18	30
Provost, Montreal	11	17	28
Esposito, Chicago	11	14	25
Gjerstu, New York	11	14	25
Henry, New York	11	10	21
Balfour, Toronto	7	14	21

Howe leaped to 10th place in the individual standings on the strength of his four-point gain. He had been in a seven-way tie for 20th spot.

WERE SHORTHANDED

His first goal against New York came while he was killing a penalty late in the second period and made the score 5-2. His second, early in the third period, gave Detroit a 6-2 edge.

Then Vic Hadfield clicked for the Rangers at 8:23 and Alex Delvecchio for Detroit at 15:30 to end the scoring 7-3.

Ranger Jean Ratelle's first goal of the season opened the scoring at 7:09. Then Ron Murphy and Norm Ullman counted for Detroit less than a minute apart, while the Rangers were shorthanded.

Red Gilbert's power play goal ended first - period scoring at 3-3.

In the second period, Detroit banged in three quick goals after substitute goalie Marcel Paille replaced Jacques Plante in the New York nets. Plante twisted a knee and had to leave the game.

Bruce Macgregor and Eddie Joyal got the first two and Howe the third, all within six minutes.

In Chicago, Doug Mohns scored twice against his former Boston teammates in the first period, helping Chicago build up a 3-0 lead. Chico Maki got the other Chicago goal, while Wayne Maxner and Murray Oliver beat Hawks goalie Donny McCarthy.

Phil Esposito put the Hawks ahead 4-3 in the second period, but the Chicago Bruins bounced back with goals by Proulx and another by Mazur to make the final score 6-4.

Hull then took Esposito's pass and put Chicago ahead 5-4 but Bill Kitchen evened the score again when he took a pass from Fleming's rebound past Dorohoy.

In the third period, Esposito's winning goal came at 8:56 on a goal-mouth pass by Maki. The shot hit the pads of Eddie Johnston, the Boston goalie, and just trickled through.

Hull's insurance goal went into an empty net at 19:29 after the Bruins pulled Johnston in a bid to even the score once again.

Two NHL games are slated for tonight, Toronto at Montreal and Boston at Detroit.

Canadiens, with 31 points, lead the team standings with a one-point edge over Detroit. Chicago and Toronto are tied for third spot with 26.

The bantam Oddfellows blanked Gananoque 3-0 and the midget Oddfellows settled for a 2-2 deadlock with Gananoque.

Picton held the Riteways to a scoreless draw in the opening period but the Bellerville squad potted one in the second and rattled home three more in the third heat.

Danny Lupenette, David Smith, Peter Sentes and Mark Coates ran in the Bellerville marksmen, scoring in that order, and each added an assist. M. Hayes also earned himself one helper.

Rollins built their lead early in the peewee game. It was 4-0 after one period and 7-0 going into the third, when Picton held a 2-1 margin.

Mario Venuti got the winners going with the first two goals and he later added a third. Brian Cousins potted two goals with one apiece for Fred Stickle, Austin Wilson and Bill Buchanan. Cliff Jantzen, Buchanan and Rick Maughan gained two assists each, Cousins, Allan Neill and Rick Adsman one apiece.

David Bavarstock and Mark Woodward were the Picton scorers. Wayne Robbin drew one assist.

Oddfellows bantams and Gananoque were scoreless after one period. Bellerville rapped their pair in the second and the clubs were kept off the scoreboard again in the third.

Gananoque scored at 14:30 of the third period to earn the tie with Bellerville midget Oddfellows. Bellerville led 5-1 at the end of the first period and they fought through a scoreless second heat.

R. Summers finished off a play with R. Hannah and D. Duvall completed a three-way attack with J. Parks and B. Wickens to attested to the Bellerville scoring.

Dixon netted Gan's tying goal, aided by Walker. P. O'Donnell potted the first goal, helped by J. Skins.

Bellerville A.C.T. "Travellers" were said to have taken a beating in Gananoque, in juvenile play, but no scoresheet was turned in here.

Only Unanimous All-Star Choice
This is How the 'Cookie' Crumbled

NEW YORK (CP) — Exactly one month ago, Cookie Gilchrist was put on the American Football League's waiver list. Today he's the AFL's only unanimous all-star selection.

Coach Lou Saban of Buffalo Bills offered his big fullback to anyone in the league with this in his pocket Nov. 27, accepting him at being more interested in himself than in the welfare of the team. Gilchrist sounded happy at the prospect of moving and several club owners hastily reached for their cheque books.

Forwards Alex Ionov and Vasile Adarchev each tallied twice for the Soviet team. Alex Stragorov scored the other goal.

Russian goalie Anatoly Raciin made 16 saves, and Muskegon's Andre Gagnon stopped 34 shots in the contest marked by 18 minor penalties.

The Russian team, now 2-0 in its tour, moves to Fort Huron, Mich., for its third contest Friday.

The Russian team's first division is on a tour of Canada.

Russ Team Defeats Muskegon

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — A tightly - knit second division Russian national hockey team overpowered Muskegon of the International League 5-1 in an exhibition game here Wednesday night.

Muskegon right-winger Brian McLay laced a waist-high, hard shot more than 60 feet over the ice for Muskegon's only score as the Russians led 3-0 in the second period.

Forwards Alex Ionov and Vasile Adarchev each tallied twice for the Soviet team. Alex Stragorov scored the other goal.

Russian goalie Anatoly Raciin made 16 saves, and Muskegon's Andre Gagnon stopped 34 shots in the contest marked by 18 minor penalties.

ABC Offers $25,000 To Big Four

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Broadcasting Company offered $25,000 to the winner of a golf match that would pit Ken Venturi and Tony Lema against Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus.

The offer was made by Roone Arledge, vice - president of sports for ABC. He said the match, if made, would be televised by the network.

Venturi, irked because he was not picked for the United States' Canada Cup team, said earlier this week in an interview with The Associated Press he would like to team with Lema in a challenge match against Nicklaus and Palmer. Venturi is the reigning U.S. Open titleholder.

Nicklaus and Palmer were recent victors in the Canada Cup competition in Hawaii.

Was AFL Leading Scorer
Capelletti Named MVP

NEW YORK (AP)—Gino Capelletti, the decisive factor in many of Boston Patriots' victories and the American Football League's leading scorer, has been named the AFL's Most Valuable Player by an Associated Press panel.

Capelletti, a former defensive back moved to an end-flanker job, scored 155 points, half of Boston's total and a league record, with his place-kicking and pass - catching ability.

With one big winner-take-all game against Buffalo Bills still to be played Sunday for the eastern division title, Capelletti has caught seven touchdown passes and kicked 25 field goals in 38 attempts.

The 30 - year - old former Minnesota player also kicked 36 converts and caught a pass for a two - point conversion as permitted in the AFL. He broke his own scoring record of 147, set in 1961.

The voting of the 24-man panel was divided among seven men. Capelletti had seven votes. Lance Alworth, San Diego Chargers' brilliant flanker, and Cookie Gilchrist, Buffalo's rampaging fullback, each had five.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Stafford Smythe, boss man of the Toronto Maple Leafs, who voiced his disgust with the performance of Canada's National puck-chasers against the Russians, thinks the NHL Oldtimers would put up a better exhibition belittered by a few junior players.

A better exhibition of what?

Has he forgotten that six of the Quebec Aces, bolstered by rap-talking Montreal Canadiens juniors were skated and passed almost dizzy by the Soviets?

And these were active pros, some of the mainstays of a club that is leading a section of the American Hockey League who stuffed Doug Harvey's boast that "when we're on the ice we'll outscore the Russians" down his throat.

The mustered former warheroes of the National Hockey League who play exhibitions for charity and the hellavit, would, as a unit, be as effective as a cap gun against an elephant in a set-to with the speedy, accurate passing bravirches from the Moscow-Minsk training grounds.

The Russian itinerary prevents such a tilt but Smythe is willing to settle for a hockey hassle between the Oldtimers and the Czech Nationals.

The result would be the same. The Czechs, rating them the same improvement as their teachers' sons, are not far behind the Russians as far as ability is concerned.

Smythe was asked if he thought the NHL Oldtimers had the legs to stay with the speedy Europeans.

Smythe is reported as saying, "Their legs are OK for that type of game. They can't hit and bodycheck because it would wear them out, but they're smart and they have the moves and they can play the positional hockey you have to play to beat these teams."

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association which took the full impact of a Smythian blast over the ineptitude of the Canadian national squad, should let down their official hair and permit the Oldtimers to play the Czechs.

For Smythe claims: "If the CAHA is going to send old men into these games, then let them send the best old men—that's the NHL Oldtimers. Give them a couple of good juniors and—get this—some oldtimers who are still playing—and they'll do a better job than that team did Sunday."

Mushmouth Mulroney, our Zwick's Island undercover operator and a self-named "expoit" on international affairs, agrees—but only if the battle-scarred pensioners are supplied with outboard motors and wind machines.

"If you'll poinit me to elocsidate" went on Mushmouth, "I note where one Barton Bradley coached the Lakehead team that beat the Russian Maclets."

"If you recall," he said, "Mr. Bradley was a member of that illustrious tribe of cup-hunters, the Belleville McFarlands, who snatched the world bauble from the Russians, Czechs and company by the pernt system in Prague back in 1959."

"I suggest that a reunion of the Macs be held here and challenge one of the European squads to a hassle just for old-time and oldtimers' sake. A lot of those guys who are in believe it better shape than the NHL Oldtimers—would give them a better game."

"Such guys as Lammy, Big "Doc" Dewsbury, Gordie Bell, and some others might need a little propping up—but Fil bet my last jug of the grape that the Wisner, Floyd, Minnie Menard, Ike, Paul Payette, Denis Bouchard, Keith MacDonald, Fiori, The "Goose", Comacher, Johnny McLellan, Dennis Boucher and the rest of the younger guys (we could borrow Red Sorenson and Bart Hyndley), with their international experience, would not disgrace themselves.

"And who knows," quipped Mushmouth, "if our Nationals are as bad as Smythe would have you believe, the old Macs might grab off that Finland trip next year."

He left under his own steam.

Nationals Challenge NHL Oldtimers

Answer to Smythe

WINNIPEG (CP) — Gordon Juckes, secretary - manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, says that Canada's national hockey team would be happy to meet a team comprising oldtimers of the National Hockey League.

Juckes made the challenge Wednesday in a statement replying to comments by Stafford Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, criticizing the national team which lost 4-0 to Russia Sunday.

Smythe said he would ask the CAHA to allow the NHL Old-Timers to meet the Czechoslovakian team at the gardens Jan. 10 instead of the Nationals.

"The C A H A has advised Maple Leaf Gardens we have a contract for Jan. 10 for the game between C a n a d a and Czechoslovakia and we intend to carry out the program as scheduled," Juckes said.

He said the CAHA has the "highest respect" for the Canadian national team and its ability and that "Smythe wishes to, we would be only too happy to have him arrange a game later between the national team and the NHL Old-Timers."

ANY DATE SUITABLE

Juckes said any date would be suitable for the game which would be played "preferably at the home site of the national team, Winnipeg." But, he said any other location for the game in Canada would be suitable.

Harley, G o d e s Simpson, coach of the Nationals, said Smythe must be kidding with his suggestion to pit the NHL Old-Timers against the Czechoslovakians.

The NHL Old-Timers would get a shock from the Czechs," Simpson said in an interview.

If the CAHA refuses the switch, Smythe said he would have to consider calling off the Canada - Czechoslovakia game and refunding ticket money. He criticized the quality of the Canadian team, which lost 4-0 to Russia in Toronto Saturday.

ACCUSES SMYTHE

Simpson said Smythe is stirring up a lot of bad publicity. If he does not appreciate good hockey the game can be played in Winnipeg.

"It would cost us less," he said.

Bud Holohan, the nationals manager, said the little Smythe can do about the Jan. 10 game.

"Contracts have been signed. If he does not like the game, he doesn't have to come to it."

The Winnipeg national team, comprising players from the Winnipeg Maroons, last season's Canadian senior champions, and the Canadian Olympic team, meet the Russians here again Thursday night.

'Prof' Bob Shaw Plans

Individual Exams for Flunking Argos

TORONTO (CP) — New head coach Bob Shaw of Toronto Argonauts isn't willing to talk of the weaknesses and strength of the team at this time. But it shouldn't take him long to make a player - by - player assessment of the perennial last-place Eastern F o o t b a l l Conference club.

"I don't think that's a pertinent question right now," Shaw told a press conference Wednesday, a few days after the former Saskatchewan Roughrider head coach signed a three - year contract to handle the Argos.

Shaw will watch films of Argonaut games. He intends to go over every, Argonaut play, look "at every boy who played in every game and grade every player."

The results could be shocking, based on the performances of the in-and-out club that managed only eight victories in 28 games in 1963 and 1964.

Shaw, 42, said he had "impressions" of Argonaut players but that he didn't feel it was fair to make decisions about any player without first looking at the movies and then at training camp next year.

On the question of a quarterback, Shaw said Argos have three men for this position — Jackie Parker, Don Fusil and Carl Sweetan. He'll have to take a look at them at training camp to find who would be best to handle the job.

HAS REPUTATION

Shaw came to Toronto with the reputation of a tough disciplinarian. He chuckled at this, saying he had "never had any discipline problems" with any teams he had been associated with during the last few years.

The Argonaut players would know what is expected of them before they get into the pads next year.

"I'll write each one an individual letter. I'll have a notebook with basic information on the players that each will receive. They'll get to know it so well that there's nothing to get panicky about. Canada played into the hands of the Russians with forechecking being trapped out of the play.

"They play by patterns," Simpson said. "If they remove one of our players, the pattern works."

Playing a more defensive game, the Canadians will wait for scoring opportunities.

After their 3-3 tie in Fort William with the unheralded Lakehead All-Stars Tuesday night, the Russians will "really be loaded for bear against us," Simpson said.

Nationals Coach

Plans Surgery Switch

WINNIPEG (CP) — Coach Gordon Simpson of Canada's national hockey team has promised a strategy switch for tonight's game here with Russia.

His club will de-emphasize forechecking, Simpson said in an interview, in the hope of upsetting the precise Russian passing patterns.

"We'll use a little forechecking once in a while just to keep them honest," he said. "Basically we'll hang back and wait for them to come to us."

Simpson said he's concerned about Canada's 4-0 loss to Russia in Toronto Sunday, but there's nothing to get panicky about. Canada played into the hands of the Russians with forecheckers being trapped out of the play.

"They play by patterns," Simpson said. "If they remove one of our players, the pattern works."

Playing a more defensive game, the Canadians will wait for scoring opportunities.

After their 3-3 tie in Fort William with the unheralded Lakehead All-Stars Tuesday night, the Russians will "really be loaded for bear against us," Simpson said.

Bold taste! Brawny flavour! Today's Dow Kingsbeer gives you both—because it's made from a special ALL-MALT recipe.

Most lager beers are made with some malt. Plus some wheat, rice, or corn flakes. Not Dow Kingsbeer. It's a pure all-malt lager beer.

Dow Kingsbeer is brewed only from the finest Canadian malt. No cereals added. That's why Kingsbeer has a bold taste. That's why Kingsbeer has body.

There's flavour. A brawny flavour that comes from costlier, selected hops being added to Kingsbeer's special ALL-MALT mash.

And what else? Satisfaction! Deep satisfaction because Kingsbeer's brewmaster uses a specially developed true lager yeast. It acts on the ALL-MALT brew in a way that makes Kingsbeer deeply satisfying.

The final touch! Natural aging. It smooths and mellows the bold taste and brawny flavour of Dow Kingsbeer. The result! ALL-MALT Kingsbeer is easy-drinking. Try it and see.

Hoop Star Has Eyes On Record

TORONTO (CP) — Guard Dave West of University of Toronto Blues is gunning for a scoring record this season in the Senior Intercollegiate Basketball League, with a career total of 1,000 points his ultimate aim.

West, starting his fourth season when the league schedule resumes in January, scored a record 314 points in 13 games last season for an average of 26.2 points a game. An all-star for the last two years, West's three-season total is 697 points.

He needs only 125 points this season to break the league's career record of 821 points established by guard Gene Rizak, who played with Windsor Lancers for three seasons and McMaster Marauders for one from 1957 to 1961. Windsor, the defending champions, have already played another league record and are aiming to beat it in their next league game against Waterloo Warriors Jan. 13.

By defeating McGill of Montreal and Queen's of Kingston in their first two games this season, the Lancers ran their win streak to 24 games, tying the mark set by Western of London, Ont., over four seasons from 1949 to 1953.

Lancers top the seven - team standings with their two wins, followed by McMaster of Hamilton with a win against McGill in the only other league game so far.

National Leaguers Set Marks

CINCINNATI (AP) — Bob Aspromonte of Houston Colts set a National League record for third basemen and joined teammate Eddie Kasko among the circuit's fielding leaders in 1964, the official averages showed Wednesday.

Pitcher Larry Jackson of Chicago Cubs and second baseman Bill Mazeroski of Pittsburgh Pirates established major league records and Cincinnati Reds led in club fielding with a .979 average.

Houston and Milwaukee Braves were the only clubs to place more than one player among the individual pace-setters. Aspromonte headed the third basemen with a .973 mark and Kasko the shortstops at .976. The Braves' representatives were second baseman Frank Bolling .983 and catcher Joe Torre .995.

Aspromonte committed only 21 errors in 605 total chances. The previous mark for fewest errors by a third baseman was 13 set by Stan Hack of the Cubs in 1937.

Junior A's Bolster For Czechs

REGINA (CP)—Regina Pats of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League will send three players to Montreal to join Montreal Junior Canadiens in a game against the Czechoslovakian national team Jan. 5.

The players are forwards Fran Hnick and Andre Lagueux and defenceman Doug Piper.

Five or six players from Peterborough Petes also will reinforce the Junior Canadiens for the exhibition contest.

Because of the absence of the three players, an SIHL game between Pats and Melville Millionaires rescheduled for Jan. 8 has been set over to Jan. 12.

Gordie Howe's Hockey

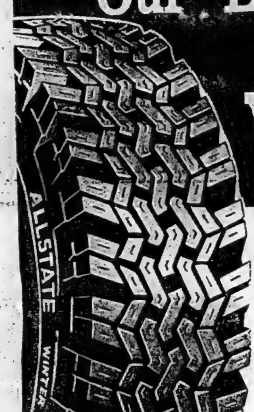
By GORDIE HOWE

Going behind the net with the puck to shake a checker is a lot like Alex Delvecchio and I who we're killing penalties. We'll come in and make a sweep at them just to contain them a little bit. Then we'll pick up our wingmen and come back with them.

Sometimes you make a quick turn to go behind the last to shake a checker. Usually only rookies will chase you back there because you can gain a step on them by cutting close to the net forcing them behind you.

However, sometimes when you swing behind there you may find another opponent, or even one of your own men tight along the boards. That pulls you into that little slot. There's no room back there at all if there are two of you and if there's somebody coming in on you.

Again, when you're trying to get your power play under way, some of the penalty killers come in deep in this pattern. It makes it real rough for a fellow going behind the net.



That's why you'll see the players when they circle, if it's a deep pattern, whisk behind the net. They'll stop and let the checkers run their pattern. If they come in behind the net after you, it forces you to make a quick move.

But if you get a little step on the boys and get in behind the net, you'll hold up. They run their pattern. Then you'll start to pick up their checks or the wingmen.

Boston is one club that comes in and checks real deep. Some of Montreal's penalty killers do a lot like Alex Delvecchio and I when we're killing penalties. We'll come in and make a sweep at them just to contain them a little bit. Then we'll pick up our wingmen and come back with them.

There are many different patterns of play in these circumstances. You get to know them. There are times when you went your wingmen to come back a little deeper so you can give them a quick, little pass. Then you'll hold up when they take a rush at him. They dump it back at you and then you take off.

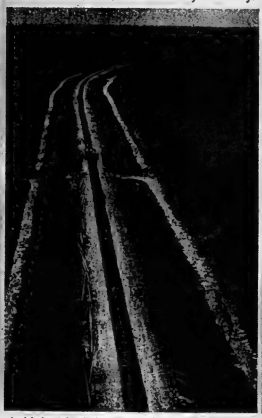
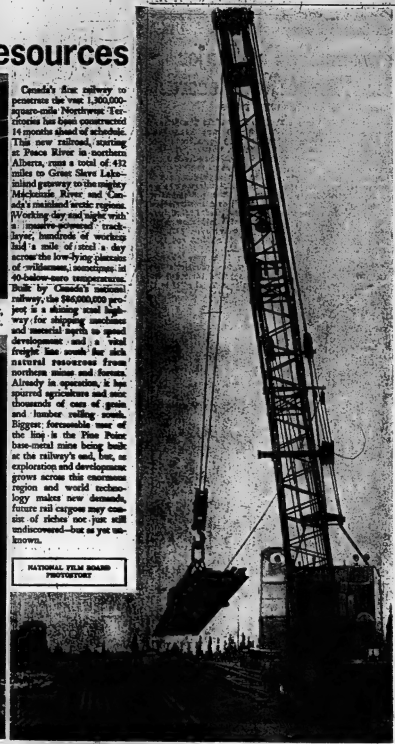
Canada's Sub-Arctic Railroad to Rich Resources



Tracklayer crew working at mile-a-day pace as they near journey's end after nearly three years of construction. Tracklayer feeds crew rails and ties from cars behind.

Construction crew lays steel on last lap of northern railroad. Project includes eight major and 33 other bridges and reaches a maximum elevation of 2,125 ft. above sea level.



Machinery for base-metal mine being built at Pine Point, Great Slave Lake, above, will move north by new railway.

Aerial view of end of steel shows rails being placed on ties. Railroad construction was completed October 29, 1964.

Canada's first railway to penetrate the vast 1,300,000-square-mile Northwest Territories has been constructed 14 months ahead of schedule. This new railroad, starting at Peace River in northern Alberta, runs a total of 432 miles to Great Slave Lake—inland gateway to the mighty Mackenzie River and Canada's mainland arctic regions. Working day and night with a massive armament of track layer, hundreds of workers laid a mile of steel a day across the low-lying plateaus of Precambrian formations in 40-below-zero temperatures. Built by Canada's national railway, the $96,000,000 project is a shining steel highway for shipping machines and material north to speed development and a vital freight line south for rich natural resources from northern mines and forests. Already in operation, it has spurred agriculture and now thousands of cars of grain and lumber rolling south. Biggest foreseeable user of the line is the Pine Point base-metal mine being built at the railway's end, but, as exploration and development grows across this enormous region and world technology makes new demands, future rail cargoes may consist of riches not just still undiscovered—but as yet unknown.

Electromagnet-equipped crane hoists steel rails aloft. First 200 miles of line runs through millions of acres of potential farmland. Photos: Ted Grant

Jana Lundy Determined to Be Athlete

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sport was just fun for Jana Lundy until she high-jumped five feet at the age of 12.

Now sport is a matter both of fun and great promise for the 15-year-old gamin. Her coach, and people in West Coast track and field, are thrilled.

They are also anxious, because many athletes brilliant in youth quit long before their peak.

Her marks of five feet four inches in the high jump and 19 feet in the long jump are Canadian juvenile records, although she won't be in juvenile class for almost another year. The corresponding world records are six-feet-three and 22-feet-four.

Her veteran coach, John Freeman of the Vancouver Olympic Club, says he has never seen anyone who approached her potential.

"She has unbelievable determination," he says. "She hates to lose. She can come from behind, the way only far more experienced competitors can, usually. She makes a surprising number of winning jumps on her last try."

NEED SPRINT WORK

Jana beat Dianne Gerace of Trail, B.C., Olympic pentathlon representative, this year in the long jump and is being groomed for the pentathlon herself. Her hurdles, long jump and high jump are in good shape, but she has little experience yet with the 200-metre dash and none with the shotput.

She is running cross-country four days a week on Stanley Park trails and after sessions of weightlifting this winter she will be ready to start putting the shot.

"I've seen three tremendous prospects in the Vancouver area fizzle out because they just lost interest in track", says Freeman.

"Like Jana, they showed themselves championship material early — and mentally they weren't mature enough for it. Track became work—it wasn't fun anymore."

Jana herself smiles enigmatically about it.

"They say women reach their peak at 27, and that seems awfully far away. I'll keep on training—and see what happens."

TORONTO (CP) — An electronic detection device that can tell doctors in 10 minutes the location, intensity and reaction to treatment of an internal disorder is being tested at Toronto Hospital for Sick Children. Cross-Canada Survey

Newfoundland's 3 Major Game Fish Set New Records

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Newfoundland's surging sport of angling bounded ahead on all fronts in 1964, highlighting another generally successful Canadian season.

While most provinces were experiencing reasonably good though not record-breaking seasons, a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press showed Newfoundland's three major game fish all set new marks for catches.

Officials estimated the salmon catch at 41,500 compared with the record 33,000 last year. Trout went up to 750,000 from 500,000. Tuna fishermen in Conception Bay landed 334 for a big gain over the record 257 of 1963.

Good weather and more anglers were about equally responsible for the big catches, according to officials, though no figures were available yet on the number of licences issued.

At the opposite end of the country, and of the fisherman's luck scale, British Columbia had a poorer fishing year than 1963 because of prolonged wet weather. Lake fishing improved because storms stirred up the water, but this was outweighed by deterioration on the streams.

LICENCES DROP

For the year ended July 31, B.C. licence sales of 131,972 were down from the record 134,377 of a year earlier, though better than 1962.

Around the country, only one record-breaking fish was reported. Svend Gleson, a Toronto ironworker, caught an 11-pound, eight-ounce smallmouth bass in Lake Ontario's Elevator Bay in July.

The record-holder taken from Birch Lake near Kinmount, Ont., in 1854, weighed nine pounds 13½ ounces.

Mr. Gleson had the fish photographed and weighed and then ate it. It wouldn't go into his freezer.

Herman Stripp of Winnipeg was fishing for walleye in the Winnipeg River Aug. 22 when he came up with an offbeat catch. It was a 118-pound lake sturgeon, and he landed it in an hour on 25-pound test line. The fish went 70 inches.

ONTARIO GOOD

Among the best of the provinces for one-all catch was Ontario, despite miserable weather in the spring and part of summer. Rainbow trout fishing was reported excellent during the spring and fall in many areas and fair elsewhere.

Muskie catches ranged from "fantastic" in parts of the Georgian Bay area, where several fish went around 60 pounds, to mid-average in the Kawarthas, where walleye and bass were improved. Pike and walleye fishing were excellent in Lake Nipissing.

The picture in brief in other provinces:

Nova Scotia: A good year for the major game fish, Atlantic salmon, though the estimated catch of 4,729 was down from over 5,000 last year. The speckled trout catch apparently was up over 1963's 961,000, and other varieties showed good catches.

New Brunswick: The Atlantic salmon run was heavy but catches were down because of the weather. However, the take from the St. John River's Hartland pool was up to 1963.

P.E.I.: The angling year was "fairly good," with various types of trout predominating and salmon on a smaller scale. Officials expected final figures on licences would show a 15-per-cent increase on 1963 figures of 6,892 resident and 1,953 non-resident.

Quebec: Fish were plentiful including the province's renowned speckled trout and Atlantic salmon. Trout of 10 to 11 pounds were taken on the Jacquinica River. An increase in sale of licences is looked for when final figures become available in January.

Manitoba: Lake trout fishing in northern lakes showed growth in popularity. The year's largest, 49 pounds, 10 ounces, was taken out of God's Lake, jigging with a monofilament line has shot up in favor.

Saskatchewan: Fly - fishermen reported a trend toward whitefish, of which Saskatchewan is one of the world's largest commercial producers. However, the four major species caught remained northern pike, pickerel, lake trout and Arctic grayling in the Far North).

Alberta: Lake whitefish were beginning to spread after planting a couple of years ago and joined the well-established species—northern pike, perch, walleye, goldeye, trout and Rocky Mountain whitefish—among the major catches.

Parliament At A Glance

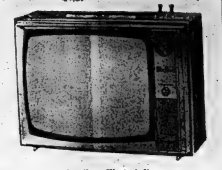
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Commons continued debat. on a committee recommendation that the Union Jack be flown as a symbol of Canada's Commonwealth ties.

The Senate continued debate on adoption of the red-and-white maple leaf banner as the national flag.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) said the approved maple leaf flag is a Liberal flag forced on the nation.

Reid, Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth) said these were "cheap, scurrilous, political remarks."



Gerald Laing (L—Ile Maligne-Salaberry) said a Commonwealth flag is not a necessity but would be good for Canada.

Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) said Senator Grattan O'Leary (PC — Ontario) was "grasping for yesterday" in urging delay on the flag.

Senator Maxwell Hellett (PC—Newfoundland) said the proposed new flag "won't get the preparedness to die for it" a flag deserves.

NEW CAREERS OPEN FOR WOMEN—A federal labor report says hundreds of careers are now opening up for Canadian women in the physical sciences and mathematics — fields which have long been traditional male preserves. More Women in Science— If They Are Encouraged

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—More women would enter scientific occupations if they were encouraged to do so early in life, says a special report issued by the federal labor department.

The survey of careers for women in the physical sciences and mathematics was done for the women's bureau of the department by Alice Griffiths of Ottawa, a former librarian. A 1937 graduate of the University of Toronto in history and library science, she is married to Ottawa broadcaster Stuart Griffiths and has two sons.

Mrs. Griffiths found that one basic reason for the small number of women in such fields as astronomy, physics and geology is that little is done by most parents and teachers to stimulate girls to take an interest in science while they are young.

The few women who have succeeded in the physical sciences attribute their early interest to the encouragement of parents or teachers who have recognized their scientific or mathematical abilities.

In interviews with numerous women scientists, Mrs. Griffiths got answers like these, when she asked why women had chosen their particular professions:

A research chemist wrote: "My father was an enthusiastic communications engineer . . . some of his enthusiasm rubbed off onto me. I also had a natural inclination towards scientific subjects, especially mathematics, at school. I was determined to become a scientist from the age of 14."

BOOKS AS STIMULANT

A paleontologist, whose father was a sea captain, said her early environment had great influence on her science career. Her father brought home from his world travels many interesting objects of the sea and curiosities from far-away lands.

A woman astronomer said her interest in science was stimulated in her home from childhood, especially by the gift at Christmas and birthdays of books, often adult books not fully read or comprehended at the time, but proudly possessed and partly understood.

A woman geologist attributed her success in studying and undertaking geology as a career to her father, whose passionate hobby was the study of the natural sciences. His children accompanied him on his excursions and were accustomed to having their home crowded with specimens of rocks, plants, insects and even the occasional snake.

From these interviews it is obvious, Mrs. Griffiths concluded, that scientifically inclined girls need, and respond to, encouragement from their families and teachers.

"For girls particularly, the personal contact with women scientists, a chance to meet and talk with a woman who already has achieved some measure of success, may be valuable."

TRIPS USEFUL

Also important are trips to museums, observatories and planetariums. These are especially effective when there is a direct relation to school study or science hobby.

Girls as well as boys should be encouraged to take part in school science and mathematics clubs.

At one point in her 41-page report, Mrs. Griffiths summarizes what she believes are the basic attributes women scientists must have in order to succeed.

"The success of a woman in science will be in large measure due to her ability to carry out plans for obtaining the best education possible in her field of specialization.

"Her next step will come when she chooses science as a 'career,' not just a 'job' to put in time before marriage. As a result, her chances of obtaining and maintaining a satisfying position will be increased."

The question of being "different" should not worry the young woman who has a genuine interest in science, Mrs. Griffiths concludes.

Consider Play Value in Buying Toys

There's no doubt about it — Christmas is the toy buying season.

But to bemused parents, relatives, and friends, it's also a time to wonder whether the toys they will buy will really be enjoyed, or quickly forgotten.

According to one toy expert, there's no great secret in making the right choice. All you have to do is to follow a few simple rules.

The expert is Elliott Handler, president of Mattel, Inc., world's largest toymaker, who advises to first consider a toy's play value.

PLAY VALUE

According to Handler, a toy will have play value for a youngster if it gives him an opportunity to use it in a way he finds enjoyable — on a continuing basis. It should also fit in well with the way he plays.

"Always begin by looking for something that will fall within the child's range of interest," Handler says. "If a child has never displayed interest in things mechanical, don't try to force it by buying him mechanical building toys. Trying to make an engineer out of someone who simply has no interest in that area will just result in another unwanted toy gathering dust in a closet."

IMAGINATION IMPORTANT

Another consideration Handler feels is important is imagination. "A girl doesn't simply play with a doll. She visualizes — through the doll — herself in the role of mother, older sister, or playmate. A boy who experiments with a chemistry set is often imagining himself as a chemist. But beware of straining the child's imagination. Don't put him in the position of trying to be someone or do something he knows nothing about.

"For example, if the toy is designed to inspire a sophisticated dinner party ,a little girl will have little or no fun from it because she can't imagine herself in that scene. But, she can easily picture herself in a family scene or home setting. As a child grows, knowledge of the world increases and a much wider choice of toys becomes available."

SMALL CHILDREN LIKE SAME THINGS

Handler also points out, strangely enough, so-called boy's and girl's toys aren't really a consideration when buying for the young child.

"When children are very small, there's little difference in their choice of playthings. Girls and boys like cuddly dolls and guns equally well. It's not important from the child's point of view that dolls are for girls and guns for boys. This provides broader latitude in selecting gifts for those in this age group."

But once children reach the age of about six they begin to be aware of the difference. At this point a child should be directed into the area of the boy-oriented or girl-oriented toy.

TAKE CHILD SHOPPING

"A sure way to know you're on the right track is to take the child along shopping. While the element of surprise might be lost in some cases, it's much easier to get an idea of a child's particular interests when you see him pick the item with which he can most readily identify or to which he is attracted."

One last point will strike home to every parent who has ever bought his child an electric train.

"Don't forget you're buying the toy for the child—not for yourself.

ADULTS WELCOME

"Toys are a child's world, a private little existence in which adults are often unwelcome. If a toy is so complex that it must be operated by a parent, it loses considerable play value for the child. His imaginary play world will also lose much of its appeal if a parent must be on hand constantly to spell out the rules and instructions, or to set it up."

That's all there is to it. Handler suggests shoppers consider play value, imagination, and interest. Then off to the toy store, with confidence that the toys will be enjoyed by the young recipients.

Whither the Commonwealth?

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — The Commonwealth sails into 1965 like a scattered flotilla seemingly uncertain of its common direction. It is a fleet still in being, but some wonder for how long.

After a year of sporadic troubles—civil strife in Cyprus, racial tensions and rebellion in East Africa, famine in India—the Commonwealth faces a couple of rough passages in the immediate future.

One is the continuing threat of unilateral declaration of independence by Southern Rhodesia; the other is the intensification of the conflict between Malaysia and Indonesia.

Rhodesia may yet put a severe strain on the Commonwealth's moral role as a 750,000,000-member multiracial society sharing common ideals. Malaysia could prove to be a test of the Commonwealth's willingness to fight for its ideals.

Both topics were vigorously discussed during the July meeting of the 17 Commonwealth heads of government in London —a conference some pessimists predicted would herald the twilight of the Commonwealth as it has evolved since 1945.

As it was the member nations emerged from the meeting firmly dedicated to plans for closer economic and academic co-operation, plans possibly to be co-ordinated by a Commonwealth secretariat in Britain.

STRINGS CUT

During the conference Malawi, formerly Nyasaland, was welcomed into the fold as a newly independent nation. Malta celebrated its independence in September. Zambia, formerly Northern Rhodesia, in October. Gambia is scheduled to hoist her own flag in February.

The speed with which Britain is dismantling her former Empire raised doubts in some quarters about the readiness of some new nations for the responsibilities of statehood.

These doubts seemed valid early in the year when Britain was requested to help quell army mutinies in Zanzibar, Tanganyika and parts of Kenya. In the aftermath of the revolts Zanzibar and Tanganyika federated themselves under the new name of Tanzania and dropped a concrete and iron curtain around their frontier.

Correspondents remain uncertain how far the conflict, sparked by antagonism between Asians and Africans, has allowed Communist China to gain a foothold in Africa.

Most of the developments in Africa were overshadowed by the Rhodesian problem. During the London conference Afro-asian members were reassured by Britain that Rhodesian independence would be conditional on a constitution representing the majority of the people—colored as well as white.

During the fall a tense dialogue between Salisbury and London came to a head when new Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson issued a dramatic warning, worded with a bluntness unprecedented in recent Commonwealth relations.

Wilson served notice that a unilateral declaration of independence would be "rebellion" and acts to put it into effect "treasonable." The warning was effective enough in make of the year Greeks and Turks were maintaining an uneasy truce under the guardianship of a United Nations force. But the two sides were no nearer a political solution for the divided island.

In Malaysia there are signs that Australia and New Zealand, at any rate, are preparing to back their promises of military help with deeds as the Indonesian guerrilla raids become more brazen.

Despite strong internal opposition, the Australian government introduced selective conscription in November. The new year may see Anzac troops fighting beside Malaysian and British units in the jungles of Borneo.

STUDENTS RUN WILD

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—More than 1,000 students of the University of Buffalo, assembled to greet a "dignitary" from a non-existent Arabian peninsula principality, ear wild Wednesday at the Buffalo Airport and caused damage estimated at $2,000. The demonstration climaxed a hoax fostered by some students. As part of the hoax, one of the students, dressed like a sheik, boarded a plane in New York City and flew here.

Cross-Canada Survey

Canada's Christmas Trees Light Up a Hemisphere

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's Christmas tree industry laughs at trade barriers, and this year is no exception.

As usual, countries as far south as Venezuela will see families observing the holidays around Canadian evergreens. The volume of exports appears to be holding about normal.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows some developing trends. Quality is being stressed more. You can buy wrapped-up trees in Montreal. More people are having a fun-fest out of cutting their own. Tree farms are on the increase. Artificial trees are horning in. But over-all things are roughly the same.

Federal officials report an expected export of 9,000,000 trees, which would be up from 8,895,000 registered last year. Value of the 1963 imports was $6,186,000.

Most of the 1963 shipments—8,840,000—went to the United States. Others went to Puerto Rico, Panama, Dutch West Indies, the Bahamas, Bermuda, Barbados, British Guiana and Venezuela.

N.S. LEADS

Indications are that the heaviest exports will be of Nova Scotia's fragrant balsam fir. Last year the province shipped out some 2,500,000 trees, and exporters look for the same figure this year, at about $1 per tree.

A big factor in the Nova Scotia crop this year is quality, with between 20 and 35 per cent of the output coming from cultivated lots. Several U.S. export-import firms have set up their own yards in Nova Scotia to handle the business.

Ontario tree growers were expected to produce some 2,000,000 Scotch pine and 500,000 spruce and balsam pieces, selling most to the U.S. Some were going as far afield in Canada as British Columbia, itself a heavy exporter of its own trees. Total exports were expected to be 1,500,000.

The Ontario lands and forests department reports that family tree-cutting visits to plantations are growing. So are the numbers of plantations.

B.C. SHIPS HOLLY

British Columbia is expected to export some 1,900,000 trees as well as shipping out — from Vancouver Island—90 per cent of the holly grown in Canada.

The holly crop amounts to about 90,000 pounds worth $90,000 and also goes to points as far away as Labrador. Traditionalists will be happy to learn from Geoff Vantreight of Victoria, eastern sales representative of the Vancouver Island Holly Growers' Association, that there is no slackening of demand.

B.C. officials report, incidentally, that about half the province's tree users cut their own.

Just to the east, Alberta is importing the bulk of its trees, about 300,000 of them from Ontario.

Eastern neighbor. Only about 22,000 trees are cut in Alberta yearly—black spruce or pine taken under permit from assigned areas.

However, officials report that several tree farms have been started up and will eventually produce "a pretty fair crop."

Saskatchewan is in about the same position as Alberta, cutting only behewn and cut and 15,000 and importing the remainder of the 200,000 it uses. Most of the imports are from B.C.

WEATHER HELPS

In Manitoba, mild weather has stimulated cutting of the most popular tree, black spruce, which finds its needles below zero. About 200,000 will be cut, with perhaps a third going to the U.S.

For residents who want to make a Christmas tree expedition, a forest area on the Trans-Canada Highway 50 miles east of Winnipeg attracts between 3,000 and 5,000 families annually at 25 cents for a cutting permit.

Montreal reports the price this year is up around 50 cents a tree—the only increase noted in the survey. For an extra 25-cent charge, Montrealers also can get specially wrapped trees from a Macdonald College arboretum.

In the Atlantic provinces, stormy weather delayed cutting operations in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, which were expected to ship out about 1,500,000 and 40,000 trees, respectively. New Brunswick, the only province with official grading, reports an increasing demand for grade trees. Most of its cut goes to the U.S.

Newfoundland Chief Forester Ed Ralph said the province's tree exports are negligible. About 15,000 will be shipped this season.

Picture of Flag, President Not Allowed in Commercials

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. television commercials are carefully planned not to run afoul of federal regulations, the industry's own code of good practice and network policies.

The current issue of the National Association of Broadcasters' magazine contains a sample television script for a commercial that "contains just about every violation of the rules."

The scene is a newsroom with teletype machines, an American flag and picture of President Johnson in the background. All are forbidden—the use of simulated news, the flag or the picture—in a sales pitch.

Then it moves to a shot of men dressed in white. Actors pretending to be doctors or nurses are strictly forbidden. An unhappy - looking announcer swallows a pill and a smile of relief appears on his face as he claims that it "cured" him. Words and claims like "cure" and "miracle" are outlawed.

USES WASTEBASKET

So is another scene in which the announcer throws competitive products into a wastebasket labelled "ineffective." This ban comes under the heading of "derogation of a competitor's product."

At another point the announcer declares his medicinal product is "guaranteed safe," but such usage is forbidden because a guarantee's terms must be set forth.

The little horror of a commercial was written by Frederick Bechtold, an NBC lawyer, to illustrate danger areas.

Bechtold said his original script also included scenes showing a lady with a low-cut dress using spicy dialogue. N.A.B. editors cut the scene as being too sporty even for an educational article.

Heavy Quotient of Sex, Seduction Seen in Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Film industry leaders are looking with apprehension to 1965, the year many fear will bring a crisis in movie morals.

With self - censorship reins greatly eased, the major companies have been pouring forth films with a heavy quotient of sex and seduction.

How far can the movie makers go without arousing militant action by the moralists?

Some industry observers believe the limit is being pushed. They cite numerous examples of questionable taste.

The -cause celebre of the moral crisis may be a film produced by Billy Wilder, Kiss Me, Stupid is arriving just in time for the Christmas holidays.

The film has brought a sharp break between the production code administration and the National Legion of Decency. The code administration, which the major companies sponsor and support, gave a seal of approval to Kiss Me, Stupid.

CONDEMNS FILM

The legion, which classifies films for Roman Catholics, stamped the movie white and condemned. This has rarely happened to a major Hollywood film.

The legion expressed "astonishment" that the seal would go to a film "so patently indecent and immoral." It added:

"It is difficult to understand how such approval is not the final betrayal of the trust which has been placed by so many in the organized industry's self-regulation."

Kiss Me, Stupid tells the story of a swinging singer named Dino (Dean Martin) who gets stuck in a Nevada town when a couple of amateur songwriters try to sell him tunes.

To keep him in town, the piano teacher (Ray Walston) hires a floozy (Kim Novak) to pose as his wife and throw herself at Dino. But things get mixed up and Dino spends the night with the real wife (Felicia Farr). The story is told in raucous style with emphasis on double entendres.

It is the legion's phrase "final betrayal" that chills the hearts of film leaders. In times past the legion has exerted powerful influence on Hollywood to clean up its movies.

Results of the Quinte Marksmen's regular shoot in the Armouries are shown below. The following top scores are taken from the results of the "National Course Match," which consists of one slow, one timed and one rapid-fire target, shot at a distance of 20 yards in relays of five shot in, five minutes, five shots in 20 seconds and five shots in 10 seconds:

Walter Nessem 246; T. Kol year 245; Don Parks 238; H. Hodgkison 230; H. Dyck 187; J. Reid 142.

Job of UN Cyprus Force Nearly Over but None Happy

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Job of the United Nations Cyprus force seems to be almost over. But some of the Western diplomats who helped set it up ann make it go are far from happy about the results.

The UN troops have done exactly what they were sent to do. They have ended clashes between the Greek and Turkish factions and headed off a real threat of war between Greece and Turkey, the "big brothers" of the Cypriot fighters.

But a disturbing question remains of whether the UN has simply given the Greek-Cypriots of President Makarios a bolster their forces and entrench themselves.

Some Western diplomats say flatly that this is just what has happened. They predict that Makarios will try to force the Turkish-Cypriots into line as soon as the UN withdraws. And they think — now has the power to do it.

ANOTHER CONGO?

Thus, the real test of the success or failure of the UN intervention will come after the UN troops leave. There is considerable fear that it could be another Congo, where the UN withdrawal earlier this year was followed almost immediately by a wave of chaos.

On the other hand, there is little sentiment for keeping the UN troops in Cyprus indefinitely—even if Makarios would permit it.

The betting is that the Security Council within the next few days will authorize another three-month extension, then pull the force out at the end of March. Reports from Cyprus say Makarios will insist that this extension be the last one.

By March, the force will have been in Cyprus exactly a year. UN reports make clear that during that time the Greek-Cypriots have greatly strengthened their forces both in arms and manpower.

This possibility was not unforseen when the force was set up. One of the main conditions laid by Canada for her participation was that there should be some reasonable prospect for a political settlement during the time the UN was keeping order.

That condition, however, seemed to disappear in the urgency created by the threat of Turkish intervention.

NO PROGRESS

Virtually no progress has been reported in efforts by the UN mediator, Galo Plaza of Ecuador, to find a political settlement.

The Greek - Cypriot side is placing high hopes in a campaign for recognition by the UN General Assembly of what it calls its "right of self-determination and territorial integrity."

In effect, the Makarios government is trying to free itself from the curbs of its independence treaties, which among other things entitled Turkey to intervene under certain conditions to protect the Turkish minority.

The Greek - Cypriots claim wide support for their position in the Afro-Asian bloc. They also have enjoyed Communist backing in the past. But Western diplomats noted with some surprise that Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, in a recent assembly speech, said the problem would have to be settled "on the basis on respect for the legitimate rights of the two communities in Cyprus.

Malayan Bear Not Liked By Black One

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Max and Yogi didn't take a shine to each other when they were introduced for the first time Wednesday.

So they have been relegated to separate cages at Peterborough's city-operated zoo.

Max, a two-year-old Malayan bear weighing 70 pounds, was donated to the zoo by Marcel Boulzace and an unidentified friend. Both men live at Utopia, 10 miles southwest of Barrie, and were described by zoo officials as part-time circus animal trainers.

Yogi is a five-year-old Canadian black bear, only smallest bear at the zoo until Max came along.

SENATE APPROVES MAPLE LEAF FLAG

Lamontagne Completes His Testimony

Mother Tells Of Overhearing Telephone Calls

Hearing Has Adjourned Until Next Tuesday

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Lamontagne, 29-year-old federal prosecutor in Montreal narcotics cases, completed three gruelling days on the witness stand Thursday before the Dorion judicial inquiry.

With frequent references to a voluminous notebook he carried with him at all times, Mr. Lamontagne faced examination by 11 lawyers concerning his accusation that Raymond Denis when executive assistant to Immigration Minister Pennell tried to bribe him July 14 with $20,000 to make it easy for Lucien Rivard to get out of Bordeaux jail on bail.

Rivard, 43, Montreal resort owner, is wanted in the U.S. for narcotics smuggling on an indictment which says he is linked to a drug ring operated by the Mafia crime syndicate.

The Sicilian-bred Mafia is a secret organization which calls itself The Honored Society and its leaders "men of respect."

Mr. Lamontagne, acting for the U.S. government in its attempt to have Rivard extradited to the U.S., has said over and over again at the hearing that Rivard, if released, would skip bail. Rivard now is trying to get out of Bordeaux through a habeas corpus action after being ordered extradited to the U.S.

Guy Guertin, counsel for Denis, cross-examined Mr. Lamontagne throughout most of Thursday's hearing before Chief Justice Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court.

Chief Justice Dorion announced that it will not be possible for the commission to meet in Montreal next week as planned. Instead, it will meet Tuesday and Wednesday. This week's sessions ended Thursday.

With Mr. Lamontagne's testimony complete, the court heard his mother, Mrs. Jean-Gerard Lamontagne, a 53-year-old Chicoutimi, Que., teacher, before it adjourned to Tuesday at 10:30 a.m.

First witness to be heard Tuesday will probably be Mrs. Pierre Lamontagne.

Mr. Lamontagne's mother supported testimony of her son that he was kept under almost constant pressure for two months to drop opposition to bail for Rivard.

She said "he (my son) told me he was being offered a bribe, a lot of money, to allow someone to get out on bail."

This was the night of July 21-22, she said, at her summer cottage near Chicoutimi after her son, who was there on vacation, received four long-distance telephone calls in the space of about two hours.

She had overheard part of her

Plan Try To Unify Germany

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and West Germany meet here next month to try to work out a new approach to Russia on the unification of Germany.

The meeting was announced by State Secretary Dean Rusk at the White House Thursday night after he and Defence Secretary Robert McNamara had reported to President Johnson on this week's talks among NATO foreign, defence and finance ministers in Paris.

Administration officials are reported hopeful the discussions will lead to an easing of differences between France and other North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies.

Rusk had two conferences with French President de Gaulle about which he reported to Johnson. McNamara conferred with French Defence Minister Pierre Messmer. Messmer and he agreed on a coordination of French nuclear weapons targeting plans with NATO targeting plans.

The McNamara - Messmer understanding is the basis for hope that relations with France may be improved. The accord indicates a possible new trend in French policy, which has been marked in recent years by declining French co-operation with NATO.

Rusk said of the meeting on German reunification that the four foreign ministers had agreed in Paris they should explore the possibilities of "some further initiative" with the Russians on this issue.

At the same time, he said there has been no indication of an active Soviet interest in trying to settle the problems of the division of Germany.

Britain's Independent Nuclear Deterrent Is Simply a Myth, Wilson Tells Commons

LONDON (CP)—Britons rejected with shock and chagrin today to Prime Minister Harold Wilson's sensational statement that their independent nuclear deterrent is simply a myth.

The House of Commons erupted into shouted frenzy when Wilson made his charges Thursday night but then gave the Labor prime minister what amounted to a vote of confidence on his defence policies.

One newspaper said the uproar was "unparalleled since Suez."

The Conservative opposition took the unusual step of issuing a statement decrying Wilson's contentions and deploring that "security matters should be drawn into public debate."

Savagely attacking the former Tory government, Wilson said the Polaris - missile submarines being built by Britain under the Anglo - American Nassau agreement of 1962 do not really consitute an independent deterrent.

Bulldozing past shouted protest of "false" by Peter Thorneycroft, former Tory defence secretary, Wilson declared with heavy emphasis:

"A certain fundamental misconception, which was not covered by the Nassau contract and was to have been made by Britain, now is being provided by the United States.

"The missiles are being fitted with British-made warheads, but these warheads have never been tested and cannot be tested because of the East-West test-ban agreement.

"—Britain was dependent on the U.S. for missile material for the warheads.

Under the Tory plan, the Polaris submarines were scheduled in 1968 to become Britain's separate deterrent, succeeding the 200-plane V-bomber force, which Wilson said now is getting "a bit long in the tooth," or old.

The meaning of the Commons vote was that Wilson won his first battle for approval of his proposed Atlantic Nuclear Force (ANF) into which much of Britain's nuclear capacity would be merged.

The violence of Wilson's attack on the Tories overshadowed the fact that he actually has not completely given up the nuclear deterrent, as he is pledged to do in the manifesto under which Labor fought the October general election.

GM Strike Settled, Work Mon.

TORONTO (CP) — A settlement was reached Thursday night in the two - week strike against General Motors of Canada Limited, but it still must be approved Saturday by 23,500 workers in five Ontario centres.

Even if the terms of the new contract are approved by the members of the United Auto Workers (CLC), it will be too late for the company to provide Christmas cheques to its employees.

The strike has cost the workers more than two weeks' pay. Production of about 12,000 cars and trucks was interrupted during the period.

Both the company and union announced Thursday night—36 months after negotiations began—that agreement had been reached on the three - year master agreement and that only details such as contract language had to be settled.

Terms of the contract would not be released until the union membership meetings Saturday a joint announcement said. If approved, work would resume Monday and the first GM production would roll off assembly lines the same day.

If the strike had been settled last week, employees would

Conservatives Ask Debate on Morality Of Public Officials

OTTAWA (CP) — The Conservatives sought special Commons debate today on the "grave doubts and uncertainties" surrounding the morality of persons in public office.

Russell MacEwan PC—Picton put forward the motion for the debate, saying, that the matter requires urgent discussion for the public interest.

Mr. MacEwan said the debate should concern specifically the "admission" of State Secretary Lamontagne and Immigration Minister Tremblay concerning fantasture purchases from companies run by the Sefkind Brothers of Montreal.

He said the actions of the two ministers are inconsistent with that of ministers of the Crown.

Mr. Lamontagne and Mr. Tremblay previously had told reporters that they made no down-payment purchases of furniture from a Montreal company which has since gone bankrupt.

They said they made no payments until they received notices from the Bank of Montreal that the bank had been appointed to collect money owed to the company.

Mr. Lamontagne said his purchases amounted to some $8,000 and Mr. Tremblay said his were about $4,000.

Both identified the company as an interest of Max and Adolph Sefkind.

19 Perish In Nursing Home Fire

FOUNTAINTOWN, Ind (AP) Fire took a heavy toll of life early today as it roared through a two-storey nursing home in this small town.

Thirteen elderly patients were known dead and at least six are missing.

Two attendants and 15 patients escaped into near - zero temperature at the McGraw nursing home, a 60-year-old converted wooden residence with a concrete block addition.

The cause of the fire was not known immediately.

Nurse's aide Myrtle Donahue, taken with 13 patients to Major Hospital in nearby Shelbyville, refused treatment for smoke inhalation until she had told nurses which patients were diabetics or needed special treatment.

"None of them wanted to come out," said Paul Whitlington, a volunteer fireman. "It was just too cold."

WENT BACK IN

He said one elderly woman escaped from a front door in her night clothes, walked around the building and reentered through a back door. Firemen found her in the

Commons Votes For Union Jack Over Red Ensign

Senator White of Madoc Critical of Pouliot

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—The new maple leaf flag was hoisted to the top of the pole by the Senate Thursday night, and it now requires only a Royal proclamation to unfurl it as Canada's new national flag.

By a vote of 35 to 25, the Senate completed the flag-raising that the Commons started by a vote of 163 to 78 three days earlier, but it still wasn't absolutely clear whether Canada would officially have her new flag by Christmas.

Prime Minister Pearson had earlier promised a new flag by Christmas. A spokesman for his office said the proclamation would proceed "fairly briskly" but no dates were predicted.

Meanwhile, the Commons gave overwhelming approval to a second recommendation of its special flag committee — that the Union Jack may continue to be flown as a symbol of Canada's allegiance to the Crown and her membership in the Commonwealth. After turning down amendments that the Red Ensign be designated instead, and that the question be set aside until the next Commonwealth prime ministers' conference, the Commons approved the original motion 135 to 25.

For the first time since May 27, the Commons no longer has a flag question on its order paper. With approval being given to the use of the Union Jack, the House ended its prolonged and bitter flag feud, in hollowing, light - hearted song.

THEY ALL SING

As Conservatives lustily poured forth with Rule Britannia, Creditiste members were first back with Alouette, while Liberals found a beaming Prime Minister Pearson from the chamber to the strains of For He's a Jolly Good Fellow.

But there were none of the emotional outbursts that exploded with the Commons passage of the motion, early Tuesday, that will give Canada her new national flag.

The Senate quietly approved the new flag, consisting of a red maple leaf on a white background with a red panel at each side.

"I am," said Senator Malcolm Hollett, "ashamed of this Senate."

"It will be the national flag of all of us," said Senator Jacques J. Connolly, government leader. "It is our duty to honor it."

"I beseech you to consider the possibility of your being wrong," said Senator Grattan O'Leary (PC—Carleton) as he looked across at the Liberal benches. "Soon every party should be given the title deed to the flag of a nation."

15 LOYE SUPPORTERS

Senator Jacques Flynn, former Conservative minister, was the only member of his party to support the new flag. "It is not easy to dissoci-

$300,000 Bribe Offered

SASKATOON (CP) — Robert Walker says he installed a recorder on his telephone while he was Saskatchewan attorney-general after he was offered a $900,000 bribe by a person he later believed to be linked with an international crime syndicate.

He released a statement on the subject Thursday, one day after winning the Hanley constituency by-election for the CCF party by 800 votes over Industry Minister Herb Pinder, the Liberal candidate. He said any further details of the incident must come from the Saskatchewan attorney - general's department.

In Regina, Attorney - General D. V. Heald said: "I can't make a comment at the moment because I want to check out the statement and be in full possession of the facts."

Mr. Walker said that during the 1960 provincial election campaign the Liberals attempted to make an issue of a recorder he had in [illegible] in his office while he was attorney-general.

AVOIDED CONTROVERSY

"I refused to become involved in controversy over the matter during the campaign because I believed that disclosure of certain facts connected with it could have prejudiced the administration of justice, even this long after the recorder was in use.

"The matter still is before the attorney - general's department and I am not prepared to be made public they should come from the attorney-general."

In the statement, Mr. Walker said the apparatus in his office was a recorder, not a wire tap to connect with a telephone as was inferred, and it was not illegal as was implied by Mr. Pinder.

"It was installed after I had been offered a bribe of over $300,000 by a person whom I later believed to be connected with an international crime syndicate.

"It was the hope of the decision that valuable police evidence could be obtained from recording in the event that offer was repeated.

"Later communications—this time of a threatening nature—were received by me, apparently from the same criminal elements, mailed from El Paso (Tex.) and San Francisco. There were no further attempts to communicate with me over my office telephone."

Boy Discloses Viet Cong Hideout After Being Treated to Candy Bar

SAIGON (AP)—A 10-year-old boy disclosed the hideout of his father, 15 other Viet Cong guerrillas for candy Thursday.

The child's father was one of the 16 Viet Cong fighters whose bodies were found in an intricate tunnel network that was blown up 15 miles north of Saigon. More guerrillas were believed buried in the tunnels.

Fed candy bars by a U.S. Army adviser, the boy guided government troops to an entrance to the tunnels stretching under the jungle terrain for hundreds of yards. The Viet Cong were using them as hiding places.

Demolition teams moved in and blew up each entrance with high explosives.

It was the most successful operation held so far against a tunnel area in Viet Nam.

The boy wandered into the government troops operating near the village of Paris Tan Guy Wednesday evening. The operation was about to end, but the boy, happily munching on a candy bar given to him by a U.S. adviser, began telling South Vietnamese officers how he could dismantle a machine-gun and make grenades.

He gave them a practical demonstration, taking an American carbine apart and putting it together again.

He also said the Viet Cong paid him 25 piasters (about 30 cents) a month for making grenades.

The boy then started talking about the tunnels in the area where he lived. He said his father lived in them. Next morning, given more candy bars, he showed the troops where his father lived.

They didn't tell him later that his father was dead.

British Radio Pirate Drowned, Two of His Employees Missing

LONDON (AP)—The body of a British radio pirate was washed ashore Thursday night and two of his employees were missing less than 12 hours after the Dutch shut down a pirate radio-TV station off their coast.

The dead man was Harry Featherbee, a 38-year-old British fisherman who operated Radio Invicta from an abandoned Second World War anti-aircraft fort off the British oyster town of Whitstable. His body was washed ashore in the Thames Estuary.

Disc jockey Simon Ashley, 21, and radio engineer David Shaw, 19, are missing.

In choppy, gale-swept waters, the three men set out in a 35-foot motor launch from Radio Invicta's island Wednesday night. That was the last seen of them until Featherbee's body floated in from the sea. Wreckage from the launch also washed ashore.

Radio Invicta interrupted its usual round of pop music and jazz this morning to broadcast hymns in memory of its dead and missing.

Police said they were investigating the possibility of sabotage, since radio equipment and other boats owned by Featherbee were found damaged earlier this year. There also was speculation that the launch had been run down in the fog.

Europe's government broadcasting monopolies, which don't carry advertising, have resulted in a flock of pirate stations, all off the coasts just outside territorial waters and all selling advertising time. Five are off British shores, playing to the British audience.

Missing from the air today was radio-TV station Nordzee (North Sea) that broadcast from an artificial island of the Dutch coast. The Dutch Parliament adopted legislation extending the ban on commercial broadcasting to it. Police and sailors raided the artificial island Thursday and closed the station.

Authority Members Approve Raising City's Membership

If the Ontario Department of Energy and Resources gives its approval, Belleville will have four representatives instead of two on the Moira River Conservation Authority.

Authority members yesterday at their final meeting of the year gave almost unanimous approval to the change and directed that an application be made to the provincial department granting the change.

Under present regulations governing river authorities cities the size of Belleville are limited to two members.

Authority chairman George Wishart of Belleville proposed the increased membership for Belleville but in doing so assured that the intention was not to get greater voting power. "Rather" he said, "the idea was to increase membership by men who possibly had more time than rural members to devote to Authority work".

APPROVE BUDGET

Yesterday's meeting approved budget estimates for 1965, the levy recommended for assessment against the local municipalities being set at $18,000, only slightly above this year's levy of $17,725.

Total budget recommended for next year's Authority operation is $44,150, of which $18,000 would be raised by local municipal levy with the balance of $21,150 to come from Federal-Provincial grants.

Belleville as the one big municipality in the Authority raises 80 per cent of the total local levy. For 1965 this would be $10,800.

Reports from the various committee chairmen were heard at the meeting.

Bruce Smith, chairman of the Conservation Areas Committee, told of the year's activities at the Col. Roscoe Vanderwater Conservation Area at Thomasburg, the Price Area at Actinolite, and the O'Lara Mill Area north of Madoc.

STRESSES CONSERVATION

Water Control Advisory Board chairman Gordon Ball, stressed the importance of water conservation, noting that 70 per cent subsidy was now given on dams and water reservoirs. This, he said, indicated that senior governments are now recognizing the importance of water control.

Mr. Ball noted that in only two of the past ten years had rainfall reached normal in the Moira Watershed. He said that the Ontario Water Resources Commission would co-operate in a ground water recording program in the Moira Watershed.

Education Extension Committee chairman Gerald Irvine said his committee had printed two small publications during the year, while programs on conservation had been carried out by 4-H Club members and in schools.

Mr. T. Clarence Graham, reforestation committee chairman, said that 2,183,225 trees had been planted on Authority property, now totalling 13,349 acres.

LAND WELL SUITED

Mr. Ball said percentage of Authority acreage was said to be in Hungerford Township (6,339) and Sidney (3,393).

One of the reasons for the high percentage of acreage in these two townships, was that the Authority had purchased already established reforestation areas in these townships, and also because the land was well suited for reforestation.

District forester Bill Tieman said that normally more than two-thirds of planted trees survive, but more important than the tree survival ratio was that the trees planted bear trees.

The Moira Authority has the biggest acreage of any Authority in the province with 804 acres being recommended for purchase this year at an average cost of $7.35 per acre.

The Authority goal is to increase its acreage by 1,000 acres a year.

Queen's Starts Educational Plan for MD's

KINGSTON — A comprehensive program for the continuing education of practising doctors has been started this year by Queen's University.

The University's Faculty of Medicine is aiming the program for the most part, at the general practitioner in Eastern Ontario.

The area intended to be served by the new program takes in lakeshore communities as far west as Port Hope, reaches east to Cornwall, northwest to Peterborough and to other centres in the district generally north of Kingston.

The clinical conferences at community and regional hospitals are already being given "shakedown" tests in three centres — Brockville, Belleville and Cornwall. They will eventually be extended to include other communities, such as Perth, Winchester and Smith's Falls.

Not only would these conferences help doctors in certain areas, but Dr. Ian Mackie, university spokesman said, but they would introduce them to the specialized facilities available at the university for the ultimate benefit of their patients.

Core of the scheme, says Dr. H. G. Kelly, will be eight short conferences for doctors, to be held over the next year at Queen's University in collaboration with the medical staffs of Kingston hospitals and the Kingston Academy of Medicine.

A series of weekly evening sessions in the "pre-clinical sciences" is also planned.

Third is the series of clinical conferences in community hospitals in the region.

Also planned, as the fourth point of the program, is a bulletin of post-graduate activities.

Lingham Lake Reservoir Kept Corbyville Plant Operating Authority Told

The value and importance of watershed reservoir to flood low stream flow during the dry summer and fall period was emphatically demonstrated on the Moira this autumn, members of the Moira River Conservation Authority were told yesterday.

Graham Bell of Marmora, chairman of the Authority water control advisory board, told the Authority that if it had not been for the Lingham Lake reservoir Corby's Distillery last September would have had to reduce plant operations and lay off up to 50 men.

Only the downstream flow provided by the Lingham Lake reservoir in Grimsthorpe Township kept the Corbyville plant running at scheduled capacity, Mr. Bell said.

Mr. Bell referred to the Corbyville plant as he presented a motion to the Authority for approval of a new reservoir on the Skrotsmatla River at Deer Rock Lake.

He said the proposed reservoir to be jointly maintained would provide a storage capacity of about one-third that of the Lingham Lake reservoir.

"The Deer Rock dam looks feasible and is the last remaining dam site on the Moira watershed which would be totally on Crown Land.

This, he emphasized, was important, as it made it unnecessary to purchase property for the reservoir.

Madoc Township representative Earl Sager asked the estimated cost of the proposed dam but Mr. Bell said he did not have a figure. Cost of the dam would be shared equally as part of the engineering survey which he was asking the Authority to approve for next year.

Cost of the engineering survey for the dam was estimated at $7,450 of which 75 per cent would be subsidized.

Authority members approved the survey.

Mighty Weightlifter Arrives
Trenton RCAF Meets "Hercules"

By DOUG SEIP,

The first of three improved versions of the "Hercules" transport planes to be stationed at Trenton landed yesterday.

Until now Trenton was only a stopping point for "Hercules" aircraft enroute from Edmonton to transatlantic points.

Capable of carrying 35,000 pounds in men and equipment, the new version, known as the "Hercules C130E," will have an external gas tank positioned beneath each wing.

Each tank carries 1600 gallons of fuel, bringing total fuel capacity to 9,680 gallons or 62,000 pounds.

This allows the new Hercules to travel 5,000 nautical miles with zero payload compared to 4,000 miles on an earlier "B" version.

Maximum takeoff weight of the "B" version was 135,000 pounds. On the new "E" it is 155,000 pounds.

Propellers, 13 feet 6 inches in diameter and powered by four turboprop engines capable of 4,050 horsepower, will propel the plane.

CREW

More than 800 men will be retrained to handle the new "Hercules." Already, 40 new crew members have been taking three-to-seven week courses at Edmonton.

Of the 16 models purchased from Lockheed Aircraft in Georgia, Trenton's seven will fly out of Uplands at Ottawa, six will be stationed at Edmonton and the three will be placed at Trenton. Later one of the Trenton planes will be permanently relocated to another base. Both Trenton-based craft will be used for training.

Gradually, the new Hercules will replace the RCAF's "Flying Boxcar" and the old Hercules that comes off the assembly line, a "Boxcar" will be added instead.

The plane's ability to land on short, rough airstrips and with out its propellers, most of a paved airstrip, make it an excellent aircraft for servicing the Arctic weather and communications stations.

The rear under-belly curve-ture holds two paratroop doors that slide over the top of the plane. The craft can hold 64 fully equipped paratroopers or 92 ground combat troops.

The ramp, because of the planes rising towards the tail is a ramp that lowers for equipment and supplies to be towed in.

Canada's older 130B Hercules—four are now being used by the RCAF—will be modified and used for aerial photography work.

Soaring skyward is one of the improved "Hercules" transports Trenton's RCAF base will receive for use in its new training program. Previously Trenton was only a stopover for Hercules aircraft.

'Sewer Charge' Extra Item On Hydro and Light Bills

TRENTON — Charles Hilton, chairman of the Trenton Public Utilities Commission and Commissioner Clifford A. Baker fear the people of Trenton are going to think the commission has raised water bills when they get their utilities billing after the first of the year. The bills will contain a separate item, "sewer surcharge," or "sewer charge," and this will be based on a 50 percent (or less) extra charge on the water bill. The invoices will make it clear that the "sewer charge" is an extra item, but the commissioners said at a meeting yesterday, protests about the "increase in the water bills," had already begun to come in their ears.

Mr. Hilton claimed press reports concerning the new sewer charge, which is being levied by the town—but, (for convenience) is being collected by the utilities office, had seemingly misled the public.

Reporters at yesterday's meeting protested that they had made the meaning of the extra charge as clear as humanly possible.

"Well, make it clear to the public that it's the town imposing the extra charge," advised Mr. Hilton. "Water rates are not going up."

At Mr. Hilton's insistence, Mayor James MacDonald explained that 20 per cent of the sewer charge was to be used to retire debentures on existing sewers and on the sewage treatment plant. The remaining 30 per cent is to be used to install needed sewer trunks in east Trenton, North Front St. and South Dufferin Street. All water users will pay the additional charge. Those served by sewers will pay 50 per cent of the water bills. Those not served by sewers will pay a lesser per cent. But no one will escape. Owners and tenants alike will pay—that is, if they use town water.

UP TO TOWN

Mr. Hilton further intimated that if a utilities' customer paid his hydro and water bill, but refused to pay the sewer charge, the PUC would not shut off the hydro and water and that it would be up to the town to collect the sewer charge.

"Well, council expects some co-operation from the commission," protested the mayor.

"I don't think it's within our jurisdiction," insisted Mr. Hilton.

Mr. Hilton also questioned the advisability of the town paying five per cent of a 15 per cent "hold-back" on work done by the Rayner Construction Company this summer. The town has taken an work left unfinished by Rayner and will bill Rayner for the work. Mr. Hilton claimed the town should not have paid any part of the hold-back in the first place, until all the unfinished work was completed, and should not have expected the PUC to pay its share of the hold-back. The town will be notified that no more hold-backs are to be paid until the PUC is consulted. One piece of work still unfinished is the installation of a hydrant on Dufferin Avenue and Mr. Hilton asked for a formal directive from the town before utilities' workmen would do this.

Mr. Hilton and Mr. Baker also objected to an itemized bill from the town in connection with "extra" work done on Sidney Street and Dufferin Avenue by Rayner. The town had submitted a bill for $5,000 to the PUC for its share of the "extra" charge, (involving water main installation). The commissioners want the work checked to make sure it has been accomplished and the bill itemized so it will know what it's paying for.

WILL NOT ADVISE

The commissioners also ruled that the utilities engineering department was not to have any part of preparing electrical heating layouts for those wishing to install this type of heating. In a letter to the commission, one trade business man claimed a utilities workman had advised his contractor about heating and that they, as a new building, both of which had subsequently proved to be unsuitable.

The workman, Barry Box, and the commission engineer, Howard Hallick came in the installations were not seen until after installation. Advice was given at that time, they say, as to what should have been done.

In all events, from this day forward, the utilities engineers will only supply heat loss surveys and cost estimates and will not advise as to the merits of any particular type of heating units.

The commission will not go along with a suggestion from Ontario Hydro that apartment dwellers get special consideration if the building is electrically heated, but will continue to pay contractors for installing utilities' water heaters within one week of installation. The installation must be first passed by local utilities engineers.

Charge Youth With Murder Of Mountie

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Melvin Peter Young, 19, of St. George's, Nfld., was charged today with capital murder in connection with the slaying of an RCMP constable at Whitbourne, Nfld., Thursday.

Winston Churchill Noseworthy, 21, of Bell Island, John Snow, 19, of St. John's and James Thorne, 17, of Fortune also appeared in magistrate's court and were charged with being unlawfully at large.

The four had escaped from the provincial penitentiary here early Thursday.

Constable R. W. Amey, 22, a member of the RCMP for two years was shot at Whitbourne, about 50 miles west of here, after he went to a police car to radio for help when four men refused to give themselves up.

Young appeared in court dressed in prison garb and handcuffed between two RCMP officers. He smiled and yawned when the charge was being read. He was remanded to Dec. 24.

SHOW INTEREST

SASKATOON (CP) — John Dolmer, president of the Ontario Farmers' Union, told the National Farmers' Union meeting Wednesday that small Ontario businessmen were showing "great interest" in a proposed march on Ottawa by Ontario farmers. Mr. Dolmer said farmers are planning the march to protest low prices for agricultural products, which they claim are the main reason for inadequate farm income in Ontario. Date of the proposed march is being kept secret.

Senior Citizens Enjoy Party

TRENTON — Around 60 senior citizens were out Tuesday night to the annual Christmas party at the recreation hall. A special guest of honor was William Workman, recreation director.

William Wilson welcomed the club members and their guests and the gathering sat down to a Christmas dinner with all the trimmings, after Mr. Wilson said grace.

Following the dinner, gifts were exchanged and those present were entertained by Eric Smith, piano; Cecil Marchand, violin; Pat Whaley, accordion; Wm. Vancorvinr, harmonica; Mrs. Lena Phillips, Norman Campney and I. Boydell, readings; Mr. and Mrs. M. Tomlinson, songs. Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson also led in a sing-song.

On Dec. 29, the club members will be called for and taken on a drive around the area to see the Christmas decorations by members of the Trenton I.O.O.F. lodge, and will return to the I.O.O.F. hall on Elgin St. for refreshments and entertainment.

Chances of Break in U. N. Money Crisis Seem Slimmer

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Chances of a pre-Christmas break in the United Nations crisis over peace-keeping finances appeared slimmer today following a tough Soviet statement on the issue.

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Fedorenko said any Soviet payment in a stabilization fund would be made only if the General Assembly votes unanimously to set up the fund.

The catch is that the Soviets in the past have insisted that any payment to the fund would wipe out the whole question of the $52,000,000 debt on peacekeeping assessments.

And the United States is reported ready to balk at any such interpretation.

There still is a possibility that the assembly will authorize the stabilization fund next week, although the two big powers will then state opposing views on what the resolution means.

This is not uncommon UN procedure, particularly in sensitive questions of face-saving are involved.

There also is a chance that the Soviets, as they have done in the past, are putting up their hardest front just before striking a deal.

On Dec. 1, the Soviet delegation agreed to open the assembly session on a "no-vote" basis only one day after insisting that the session should go ahead "in accordance with normal procedures."

An Historic Proposal

Efforts to integrate the North American automobile industry, if successful, could be of historic importance, not only to Canada and to the United States, but also to the whole world.

The proposal, arising out of Canada's attempt to encourage the sale of Canadian automobile parts in the U.S. and U.S. objections to this program, envisions some arrangement which would wipe out tariff barriers on automobiles and probably on parts.

U.S. automobiles would be allowed into Canada duty free and Canadian-made cars would receive similar duty free entry into the U.S.

Theoretically, because of the fact that the U.S. market is much bigger than the Canadian market, Canada might seem to be getting the best of any such deal. Actually, because of the size of the U.S. automotive industry, the proposal would be all to the good for U.S. were it not for one fact. Most Canadian automotive firms are subsidiaries of the big U.S. companies and if the plan goes through it is anticipated it will involve the firms arranging that their Canadian plants will make some models and their U.S. plants will manufacture other models. In other words, the same cars will not be produced at two plants, one in Canada and one in the U.S., but the combined U.S.-Canadian market will be divided up between the plants.

There is an obvious danger in any such development. Governments will be anxious to make certain that the division of the market does not result in a reduction in economic activity in their country. Unless it will introduce a new field in which disputes may arise.

However, if the scheme works it will set a pattern which will promise much, not just for Canada and the U.S. but for other countries throughout the world whose economies are also intermeshed.

If some such scheme is not developed, the future will quite probably see economic pressure producing political unification. It is not at all certain that this would be desirable in all cases. Nations which are accustomed to certain political institutions would almost certainly find sweeping alterations would fail to meet the needs and desires of their peoples. If we can enjoy the advantages of economic integration, without the disadvantages of political union, at the very least we shall have acquired a valuable alternative to accepting ever-growing political units. In some cases political union is obviously expedient, for its own sake aside altogether from the economic implications, because existing units are too small, or the boundaries of existing states cut across ethnic or cultural divisions. But in others any enlargement of the body politic would be more likely to make it fat and lazy, than to increase its vigor.

The system of Commonwealth preferences, the European Common Market and the Outer Seven are all efforts to enjoy the fruits of economic integration without the disadvantages of political union. The wholesale integration they involve, however, may prove much more difficult to achieve than would a piecemeal program, patterned after the North American automobile industry proposals.

The Correct Decision

Chief Justice Frederic Dorion, who is conducting an inquiry into charges of bribery and coercion by ministerial assistants of Federal Cabinet members, is to be complimented on his refusal to permit questions aimed at discovering how Conservative M.P. Erik Nelisen obtained his information about the case.

Paul Lamontagne, who says he was subjected to political pressure, bribery attempts, blackmail threats and slanderous rumors, has made it plain that Mr. Nelisen had all his facts before he visited him. Mr. Lamontagne has a perfect right to prevent any suspicions that he might be Mr. Nelisen's informant, if he desired to do so. But it is essential that the sources of information obtained by members of Parliament in the discharge of their duties should be kept secret, if the information so desire. Otherwise we shall make it increasingly difficult for members to obtain information on which to base questions.

The word of an anonymous informant, of course, cannot be taken as truth. But in this case Mr. Nelisen used his information quite correctly, as the basis for searching questions rather than sweeping charges. If his informant wants his identity revealed, he can do so with the knowledge that he has earned the gratitude of the Canadian public. If, for reasons of his own, he wishes to keep his identity secret, he is entitled so do so with a clear conscience.

Reject Foes Of Medicare

Toledo Blade

In what, one may be certain, will not become one of the memorable moments in medicine, 11 of 14 physicians vying for seats in the House of Representatives went down to defeat. Of the three doctor-candidates who won, one is regarded as a supporter of the administration's medicare program.

Those results must have been bitter medicine for the well heeled political arm of the American Medical Association, which is working overtime to anesthetize any form of medical care for the aged that is tied in with social security. The American voter is apparently willing to rely on the sound professional judgment of his physician in medical matters or health problems; but when it comes to politics, he would be more likely to tak lobbyists from the AMA to pack their little black bags and skidaddle.

Ottawa Offbeat
Mixed Emotions Follow Ottawa Closure Proceedings

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — With the major item in the great flag debate ended in the Commons by means of the closure rule, the country's politicians are trying to determine their wounds . . . if any.

Some of the Liberals here, with long memories or long service, feel a touch of concern at the fact closure was used.

It may have been necessary to bring a long, frustrating, repetitive debate to an end, but will it rouse nasty memories among voters who remember its last use in 1956?

Furthermore, will the voters of today agree that it was necessary? Were the two alternatives set out by Prime Minister Pearson — closure or a n e w election — really the only ones?

Conservatives still f i r m l y following Opposition Leader Diefenbaker (and t h e r e are many more of them than the Liberals credit) declare there was another alternative.

The government, they say, could just as easily have withdrawn the motion for the new flag and put it over to the next session of Parliament. The Opposition would have assisted such a move.

This would have allowed a l l parties to give more consideration to the question and to sound out the people in the country's constituencies more thoroughly — in effect, conduct a form of plebiscite without the actual casting of votes.

FREE VOTE?

Out of such a delay and sounding - out might have come greater or lesser opposition to the new flag in the Commons.

MP's, even Liberals, who discovered in the next six months that their constituents actually were opposed to the flag would be almost bound to vote against it in the House, particularly after Mr. Pearson's promises of a free vote.

As it stands now, however, this information may come to them too late and be expressed in an unhappy way at the next election.

This is the definite fear of more than a dozen Liberals from ridings in Ontario, in particular, to say nothing of some of those from the Maritimes.

The mood of Quebec, of course has been made quite plain by the fact that Conservative members from the province have found it necessary to split with Mr. Diefenbaker on the issue if they hope to save their seats at the next election.

One of them — Louis Joseph Pigeon (C — Joliet-l'Assomption-Montcalm) has gone so far than once stated that he promised his electorate in the last election that he would support the maple leaf flag.

He was forced to do so, he states, after Mr. Pearson moved through his riding and in a major speech was h a heartily cheered when he proposed bringing in such a flag.

DIVISIONS

But the mood of the rest of the country is nowhere near so clear and the positions of the minor parties reveal this.

Along the entire route of the flag debate there has not been unanimity in either the N e w Democratic or Social Credit parties, although the slit - Quebec Ralliement des Creditistes have stuck together.

Those of the SC and NDP who have given support to the Conservatives have had more than one chance to state that they did not do so because of personal feelings altogether, but because they knew the feelings of their constituents.

Some members have not paid as close attention to the feelings of their constituents, sticking instead strictly to party lines.

It is these members who now are a bit worried. If they have crossed the feelings of a majority of their electors, they are going to discover in time just how many there are — when they read the results of the n e x t election.

This is not a happy prospect for a man who has devoted himself to politics.

So there are some worried looks mingling in the Commons with those of self-satisfaction at having finally accomplished the change of flag.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1939—the first contingent of Canadian active service f o r c e s reached Camp Aldershot in England; Winston Churchill in a broadcast said a "considerable proportion" of Germany's cruiser strength had been sunk or disabled by British a t t a c k s; twelve German aircraft were shot down during a battle over Heligoland, the biggest air battle of the war up to that time.

Strictly Personal
Don't Confuse Statistics With Facts

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking of statistics, as I was a few weeks ago, reminiscs. me of the classic case of misinterpretation in this slippery field: the life-span of the "average" person in India.

Told that this life-span was about 27 years, as compared to 69 in our country, most Americans immediately assume that there are few old people in India, since most of them die before reaching 40.

Of course, there are just as many old persons per capita in India as there are here; what drags down the "average" life-span there is the high infant-mortality rate. If one out of every two babies dies at or near birth in India, naturally t h e "average" life-span is cut nearly by half.

But, of those surviving into late childhood, scarcely fewer fail to reach maturity and old age than in America or o t h e r Western countries. Except for babies, there is about the same distribution (or "curve," if you like) of age-groups in the Indian population as anywhere else.

Interestingly enough, our own figures for the United States are quite misleading, if we r e a d them on a pure statistical basis. For instance, it is an actuarial fact that the average life-expectancy of Americans has increased to about 70 years since the turn. of the century.

Approximately 25 years have been added to the life-span of new-born Americans — f r o m about 45 years in 1900 to almost 70 years today, mainly because of the conquest of many infectious and deadly diseases.

But what is the life-expectancy today of a person aged 40, compared with a person aged 40 in 1900? The recent 2d National Conference on Cardiovascular Diseases in Washington reported that "for American men, only 4 years have been added."

The report went on: "Adult males cannot expect to live much longer than their counterparts could in 1900." It is principally because chronic diseases like heart ailments and cancers, which hit the middle-age and elderly "persist today largely unabated."

Now we can see the tenuous and tricky nature of statistics if they are considered in isolation, and not in relation to all the facts. A middle-aged American today can't hope to live 25 years more than his grandfather did; he may live just a few years more, or not at all longer. It is the babies born today who have a much higher chance of reaching maturity; they are the ones who bring up the "average" lifespan.

It recalls a small luncheon I attended some years ago, with five other men. As we left the table, one of the men murmured to me, "You know, the average wealth of everyone at this table was about $2 million — five poor men, and the multi-millionaire who was our host."

Cosmetics Considered Best Solution for Spider Veins

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have very thin red veins on my thighs and legs. Is there any way to keep them from becoming more noticeable, as they are in s o m e women? — Miss J. J.

Dear Doctor: I have broken veins in my legs. Would the injection method used with varicose veins be suitable t r e a t ment? — Mrs. L. R.

These are called spider veins. It is not unusual for them to seem to form patterns somewhat resembling spider webs. From the practical standpoint, they are a cosmetic nuisance rather than a medical health problem. All the same, they are the bane of a good many women and of some men, too, although the latter don't care as much.

These are tiny blood vessels, close to the surface of the skin, which have broken or become distended and are visible.

They can be present in lean (as well as fat limbs. They seem to be much more pronounced in people with varicose veins, perhaps because basically such people do not have as tough and resilient a vein structure. Pressure on the vein system from pregnancy can be a factor in development of spider veins, but normally pregnancy does not always have this effect. Some women who never have been pregnant have spider veins.

One scientific observer has reported that these little veins tend to come and go. When some disappear, others can form. But keeping tract of them with exactness makes such studies difficult.

It is possible, although not very widely practised, to obliterate the vessels with injections like those used in shrinking some varicose v e i n s. It is a painstaking task, however, and has to be done with meticulous care. Since the vessels are so tiny, an injection can penetrate one of them and result in a defect more visible than the original one.

The use of flesh-colored cosmetics can help, and is probably the simplest solution.

Avoidance of circular pressure on the thighs (such as tight girdles, panties, or round garters) may be of some benefit in preventing or reducing the number of spider veins.

Dear Dr. Molner: What could cause my gums to bleed? It happens only while I am asleep. A specialist tells me there is nothing wrong with my blood. — F. R.

In that case, why not check with your dentist? It could be evidence of pyorrhea or some other gum ailment. Or it could be a result of brisk brushing before bedtime, or even a sensitivity to your dentifrice.

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has had trouble for over a year with excess saliva. He has had all kinds of stomach tests and X-rays but nothing is wrong. He is 76. What else could it be? — Mrs. J. B.

At his age, the more common problem is too little saliva because of too much. Some of the frequent causes of excess saliva are troubles in the mouth: diseases of the teeth or gums; dentures which do not fit correctly; mouth infections; some materials in dentures which happens to be irritating; other irritants, including tobacco and s o m e medications, especially those containing mercury or bismuth. Occasionally nervous disorders, including Parkinson's disease, and mild strokes can cause excessive salivation. Consult a dentist to see whether tooth, gum or denture problems are at fault.

Three Remanded For Sentence After Break-ins

Three youths charged in connection with a series of breakins were today remanded for sentence until after Christmas by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

In addition, the magistrate rejected their pleas — a formality which keeps them out of custody until after the holiday.

John William Fisher, 18, 22 Strachan St., and Brian Charles Frances, 16, of 5 Strachan Street, both pleaded guilty to four break-ins. Douglas Bruce McKay, 18, was charged and pleaded guilty, to one count.

Aided by juveniles, the burglaries were staged at King George public school and two groceries on North Front St. where cigarettes, candy and petty cash were stolen.

One haul — from Amodeo's Groceteria — amounted to $175, most of which was recovered.

The juveniles are being tried separately.

Nearly All 200 Cardiff Homes Now Purchased

BANCROFT, Ont. (CP)—All of about 200 homes in nearby Cardiff, a community which almost became a "ghost town when three or four uranium mines in the Bancroft area closed, have been purchased, John Bowes, member of a Peterborough real estate firm, said Thursday.

Mr. Bowes said in an interview that 15 persons are waiting for homes which may be resold. The firm took over sale of the houses May 9.

The firm has also obtained possession of 44 Bancroft homes that were once inhabited by employees of Faraday Uranium Mines. Mr. Bowes said 36 of the houses now are rented by Bancroft families who will be given an opportunity to buy.

Cardiff, about 35 miles northeast of Peterborough, was again become a thriving town, inhabited mainly by retired couples, Mr. Bowes said. Even garages are being converted into homes and "renovations are going on everywhere."

Victoria and Grey Reports Good Progress in Past Year

Excellent progress in all departments, and in all branches was reported at the 75th annual general meeting of the shareholders of Victoria and Grey Trust Company, held in Lindsay, Ontario, on December 9.

Addresses were given by H. J. McLaughlin, Q.C., and Hon. Walter Harris, Q.C., chairman of the Board and President respectively commenting on the excellent growth of the company in the past year.

The year 1964 shows continuance of the dynamic growth of Canadian trust companies said Mr. R. G. Thomas, Q.C., in presenting his report.

An increasing number of companies and a further extending by older companies of branches were indications of expansion. Growth in assets continues at a pace of almost 20 per cent each year. Trust companies have brought their services closer to the public by opening branches in smaller communities and in residential areas of the larger urban centres.

CONTINUED GROWTH

Continued growth results from the confidence of the public in the widening scope and quality of their skilled assistance and service.

"Although their functions in estate and trust fields have been traditional and have expanded each year, their greatest growth has been as savings institutions. Your company is the repository for almost $124,000,000 in savings accounts and guaranteed investment certificates for its customers — an increase of 14 per cent over last year. These funds provide the means for loans to our mortgage customers, as well as for investments in bonds and stocks. The mortgage portfolio stands at almost $92,000,000 — an increase of 21 per cent over last year.

PROFITS INCREASE

"The 1964 annual report covers a period of 12 months — the first such period since change of our year-end to October 31st. Profits increased to $1,052,372 after costs of operating and income taxes, a very satisfactory result. General reserves were increased by $1,225,000 to $4,250,000, which increases the value of your share holdings. Mortgage reserves increased to $1,146,527, this being a tax deferred reserve set up out of earnings.

IN SOUND POSITION

"You will note," Mr. Thomas said, "that we have no liability in the balance sheet for real estate held for sale under defaulted mortgages. In loaning on mortgages despite all precautions taken to loan on sound mortgages, we have from time to time borrowers who default mortgage payments. Any losses by this company in disposing of real estate taken over under defaulted mortgages are written off against earnings at the times of sales of such real estate."

BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Members of the Board of Directors elected were: E. N. Cooper, S. A. Travelle, C. C. Fleming, G. D. Fleming, J. G. Fraser, Hon. L. M. Frost, Q.C., Hon. Walter Harris, Q.C., Col. T. A. Kidd, W. B. Lemon, G. D. McLaughlan, H. J. McLaughlin, Q.C., William L. Moore, Q.C., Dr. G. A. Morton, F. G. Perrin, J. R. Sinclair and R. H. Soward, Q.C.

Victoria and Grey Trust Company has offices at Belleville, Cannington, Kingston, Lindsay, Meaford, Orillia, Owen Sound, Peterborough and Whitby.

Hon. Walter Harris, president, was chairman for the meeting and said he was pleased at the number of shareholders present and that more than 60 per cent of the company's issued shares were represented by proxy or by attending shareholders.

Youth Enters Plea of Not Guilty

A young Belleville man pleaded not guilty to perjury today —a charge laid after he testified on his own behalf and won a drunk driving case.

Gary Wayne Thorn entered the plea before Magistrate R. C. Jackson when the case started shortly before noon in Belleville today.

Thorn was charged after he gave evidence along with another youth, October 14, when Thorn pleaded not guilty to the impaired driving count.

Today, detective sergeant Harold Reid testified he was present when Thorn took the oath on his own behalf.

The accused is being defended by city lawyer Tom Lally.

Bank Expects Expansion Will Continue

MONTREAL (CP)—The year-end business review of the Bank of Montreal, published today predicts continued expansion for the Canadian economy as a whole in 1965, perhaps at a somewhat slower rate."

"As the year draws to a close," the review says, "it seems clear that one of the principal sources of strength, capital investment, will remain a major expansionary influence in the months ahead."

The prospects for maintaining a high level of exports are also good, the report says, but the outlook for consumer spending is not so clear.

"Weighing up all the factors involved, insofar as they can be assessed at the present time, the balance appears to be on the side of optimism."

The review says government incentives for winter building, so successful last year, should help to maintain activity this winter in residential construction.

HONOR POWER

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate paid tribute Thursday to Senator C. G. (Chubby) Power on the 47th anniversary of his election to Parliament. Senator Power was first elected to the Commons in 1917 and served continuously until July, 1955, when he was appointed to the Senate.

ate myself from my friends."

The new flag will "bring sorrow and bitterness to tens of thousands of Canadians," said Senate Opposition Leader A. J. Brooks.

Nothing is being taken away, said Senator Connolly. "We are doing something positive, something uniquely Canadian. We are giving to Canadians."

Only a sprinkling of spectators was in the Senate gallery to watch the new flag go through its final legislative process. Many of them were members of Parliament who had walked up the corridors after they had finished dealing with the Union Jack.

Leading off the debate in the red chamber, Senator George White (PC—Ontario) criticized Liberal Senator Jean - Francois Pouliot for saying Wednesday that Royal Canadian Legion leaders are "moneyed imperialists who don't represent the legion's rank and file members.

IT WAS WRONG

"It was entirely wrong for Senator Pouliot to make that statement," he said. The legion was not controlled by imperialists. Its leadership was made up of loyal personalities in the business and professional world.

The government was using the flag as a political issue and forcing down the throats of Canadians a design that tens of thousands would not accept.

Senator White said the legion branch in his home town of Medoc regards the Red Ensign as Canada's flag "and they intend to keep it flying."

Both houses were to meet at 11 a.m. today, the Senate to deal with the Union Jack motion, and the Commons to deal with legislation to provide, on an interim basis, for the opting out of shared - cost programs by the provinces. Liberal House Leader George McIlraith told the Commons he hoped the session would adjourn at 6 p.m. for a Christmas recess.

In the Commons the vote ended a three-day wrangle over whether Canada should give any formal recognition to a second flag, and if so, what that flag should be.

DEFEAT MOTION

A Conservative motion to have the Red Ensign flown was defeated by 113 Liberals, five Social Credit MPs and 12 Creditistes, who easily outnumbered the 96 Conservatives. 14 New Democrats, three Social Credit members and Liberal Ralph Cowan (York-Humber).

No sooner had this amendment been disposed of, than the Creditiste party proposed another that would shelve the selection of a Commonwealth flag until Commonwealth prime ministers took action on establishing a distinctive, Commonwealth emblem.

Opposition members from Quebec argued strongly against a second flag. Gerard Girouard (PC — Labelle) said one flag is enough to represent this country.

"We now have a flag representing our country," said Antoine Belanger (Creditiste — Charlevoix). ". . . This should be the rallying flag for all our people, and we do not need another flag."

Howard Graffley (PC — Brome - Missisquoi) said he is proud of the new flag. "I don't want one flag for Brome and another for Montmorency."

ENSIGN IS LOGICAL

If there had to be two flags, said Harold Winch (NDP — Vancouver East), it is only logical that it be the Red Ensign. It combined the Union Jack with the Canadian coat of arms, while the Union Jack was "wholly and solely outside Canada."

The Creditiste amendment was buried by a vote of 184 to 22. The 12 Creditistes were supported by one Social Credit member, four New Democrats and seven Conservatives.

Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West) said one reason the government wants the Union Jack down is because the Red Ensign would be too much competition for the new maple leaf flag. The Union Jack generally had less attraction for Canadians.

Only one Liberal voted against the main motion—Augustin Choquette (L—Lotbiniere). Also voting against it were 12 Creditistes, seven Conservatives, two New Democrats and three Social Credit members. Support came from 112 Liberals, 93 Conservatives, 13 New Democrats and six Social Credit members.

When the final decision was reached, it ended the 36th day the Commons had spent debating various flag issues.

Guevara Said Starting Visit To Algeria

GANDER, Nfld. (CP)—A Russian airliner took off from here early today carrying Cuban Industry Minister Ernesto (Che) Guevara across the Atlantic. The flight left at 5:08 a.m., an airport spokesman said.

Although only an interim destination of Shannon, Ireland, could be learned from the crew, a Havana radio broadcast monitored in Miami, said Guevara is en route to Algeria where he will visit President Ahmed Ben Bella and tour the country to bring himself up to date on the Algerian revolution.

There was speculation earlier of a possible Cuban - Russian diplomatic meeting here. Guevara arrived here after attending a United Nations meeting in New York.

GM Strike

have had pay cheques in their pockets in time for Christmas shopping. Company pay days come a week after the week worked.

GET UNION CHEQUES

However, union benefit cheques will be distributed to strikers today. Single workers will receive $20, married workers $25 and married workers with children $30.

The strike involves 14,500 workers at the GM assembly plant in Oshawa, 1,150 at the GM transmission plant in Windsor, 1,000 at Frigidaire Products of Canada Limited in the Toronto suburb of Scarborough, 8,275 at McKinnon Industries Limited in St. Catharines and 850 at General Motors Diesel Limited in London.

Settlement of the strike is expected to set the pattern for the Canadian auto-making industry. UAW bargaining now moves to Ford of Canada Limited and Chrysler Canada Limited, where strike votes have been taken.

The union was asking for a reduction in the wage disparity between GM's Canadian and United States employees—said to be 30 cents to $1.40 an hour more in the U.S.

MADE OFFER

The company originally made a wage offer based on a formula it said resulted in settlement of a recent GM strike in the U.S. The union rejected the proposal, claiming it was based on percentage increases which would have left Canadian salaries even farther behind.

Hourly wages under the previous three-year contract ranged from $2.22 for a sweeper to $3.34 for a die sinker.

Other bargaining points have been pensions, benefit programs and the handling of grievances concerning production standards.

The strike brought the second loss of pay in the last three months for some GM workers. During the U.S. strike in September and October against the parent company, General Motors Corporation, 11,250 employees in Oshawa and 2,375 at Motor Products in St. Catharines were laid off.

Pre-strike negotiations have been interrupted Dec. 5 when Oshawa workers began jumping the gun on the union-scheduled deadline of Dec. 8. However, the union approved the premature walkout, over what it claimed was a premature speed up in production. Employees in the other centres marched out Dec. 8.

Filipinos Try To Bomb School On Air Base

MANILA (AP) — Two Filipinos tried unsuccessfully to bomb an elementary school for children of American service men at the U.S. Clark Air Base, a U.S. embassy source said today.

The explosive, a 97-millimetre shell, failed to go off, the source said. The Filipinos escaped.

The source said 750 children were in the school at the time of the incident Thursday.

It was believed the Filipinos were angered by the killing of two of their countrymen who trespassed on American base in recent weeks, one at Clark base and the other at the Subic Bay Naval Base.

U.S. Ambassador William MacCormick Blair conferred today with Foreign Secretary Mauro Mendez on the two shootings. No details were disclosed, but Blair said they agreed to talk further.

kitchen. She was among the survivors.

Dr. Lucian Arata, Shelby County coroner, said 11 bodies had been recovered from the ruins and one man died en route to hospital after he was found lying unconscious inside the front door.

The coroner said five of the dead, all women, were found in the concrete block addition. Others died in their beds.

Little was left of the structure but the walls, a plastic Christmas wreath still hung on the front door.

Shelby County Sheriff Edghill Moore set up command headquarters in the home of William McGraw, owner of the home and whose son, William, operated it.

The sheriff barred reporters from the McGraw residence and sat down with the operators to try to compile a death list from their memories. The home's records were burned.

A stairway fell shortly after the fire erupted, trapping all patients on the second floor.

A staff of two nurses and the operator of the home escaped.

A nurse's aid, Fanny Wicker, in her 60s, said:

"The fire broke out apparently in a linen closet in a first floor hall. We weren't able to reach anyone upstairs because smoke immediately blocked the stairway.

"We smelled smoke, then Frances sent it and screamed, 'Oh God, Fanny, there's a fire!' (Frances is the other nurse).

Nurse Wicker said: "One (patient) fell in the kitchen. I picked her up and dragged her out. I dragged three more out, then they wouldn't let me go back in."

All the rescued patients were taken to hospital in Shelbyville. None was reported in serious condition.

Fire units from a 25-mile radius rushed into this hamlet, 15 miles southeast of Indianapolis. About 50 firemen fought the blaze, which was raging out of control when they arrived. The home was about 300 yards from the Fountaintown fire station.

Officials said most of the patients were from eastern Indiana. They said records were destroyed and it would take some time to identify the dead.

Firemen were hampered by lack of water. They broke ice on Brandywine Creek, a half mile east, to fill pumper trucks.

The survivors were taken to the hospital in ambulances and private cars that ringed the home to aid the injured.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

When a property owner engages the services of a real estate broker, an "Agent and Principal" relationship is established wherein the broker is legally and morally obligated to serve the owner.

Because they provide the money from which the broker is paid, many buyers incorrectly assume that the broker is working for them, rather than the seller. The following example is typical of this confusion:

Dear Mr. Meltzer: When a person pays well for professional services I think he is entitled to receive them in full measure.

I paid $14,500 for a home. The real estate broker got a good commission out of it — and now he refuses to follow through for me.

- It cost me $75 to have all the junk and trash the previous owner left hauled away. I think he should pay for this and I have asked the broker time and again to collect my $75 for me. He was polite at first, but now tells me that he is not required to perform this service for me.

I paid him good money and think he should keep working for me until I am satisfied. Am I right or not? — Mrs. D. H. J.

ANSWER: No — you are wrong. You did not pay the broker his commission, and he is not — and has never been — your employe. The broker was engaged by the previous owner to find a buyer and to represent him (the seller) in the transaction. The $14,500 was the price paid by you to the seller, and he in turn compensated his — not your — agent (the broker).

You do raise an important point, however, that is often misunderstood. When an owner lists his property with a real estate agent, legally and morally the agent's duty is to faithfully, diligently and exclusively serve his principal (the seller).

You should be grateful for the services provided to you by the broker to date, as they were an accommodation to you — not an obligation.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: My husband, who is a very methodical fellow, just got a pamphlet from the Internal Revenue Service and has set up a detailed budget for repair and replacement of the roof, walks, and all the equipment around our house. He says it is based on a schedule of useful life worked out by the U.S. government.

The first thing he plans to replace is the furnace. It seems to be in good shape, but he says that according to the schedule, a furnace has a useful life of 15 years, and ours will be 13 years old next year. The whole thing seems crazy to me, but he says this is the plan followed by the U.S. Government, and if it's good enough for them, it's good enough for us. What do you think? — Mrs. F. T.

ANSWER: Your husband sounds like a genuine planned economy — everything is planned for except the economy.

The pamphlet provides guideline. for calculating depreciation on real estate when paying taxes. -Tell- your husband that even the U.S. Government replaces its equipment only when necessary — not according to that schedule.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: A disadvantage of our area is that we have occasional storms and high winds that rip the asphalt shingles off our roof. We are getting up a new roof now, but the prices for the tile, aluminum, wood and asbestos shingle roofing they say will solve our problem are much too high for us.

Is there any way to solve this problem using asphalt shingles?

— Mrs. A. L. I.

ANSWER: There are two types of asphalt shingles that will overcome the problem of lifting and blowing off in high wind. One type has self-sealing tabs with a factory applied adhesive. The other is an interlocking type with a slot arrangement to link the shingles together. The extra costs for these special shingles is about $1 per 100 square feet, or about $15 to $20 for the average house.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Now that we are nearing retirement age we are planning to move to an apartment near our daughter and grandchildren.

A friend of ours suggested that we sell our house and invest the money in a sound stock with good dividends. However, we do get an income of sorts from our house. We rent the upstairs as an apartment for $125 per month, and could probably get about the same for the part we live in.

Our expenses, however, are about $1,200 per year, and a house is another responsibility. We could get about $16,000 a year if we sold it for money to invest. Which do you think we should do, keep our house, or sell it? — Mrs. A. E. A.

ANSWER: The answer is obvious. If you keep your house, renting both apartments, the return after expenses of $1,200 would be 11.3 percent on the value of your property. If you want to avoid the responsibility of rent collection, etc., you can engage a professional property manager to handle your property. His 5 percent commission would reduce your return to 10.3 percent of the investment you have in your house.

Good grade stocks are currently yielding about 3 percent. A similar grade of preferred stock, or bonds yields about 4½ percent.

In addition, since you will have an investment type property and will be able to take advantage of certain depreciation, a portion of your income would be tax free.

I can think of no secure investment in stocks and bonds that can approach the return your house will provide.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answ. as many letters as possible through his column.

Foundation Wins Suit Against Royal Bank

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario Supreme Court judgment against the Royal Bank of Canada Wednesday awarded $125,506 and about $8,000 interest to the Ontario Woodsworth Memorial Foundation.

The case, heard in June, involved former lawyer Samuel Resnick, 43, now serving an eight-year penitentiary term for stealing $250,000 from clients including the foundation.

Resnick was president of the foundation and acted as its solicitor in the $150,000 sale, in November, 1963, of its premises on Bathurst St. to the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation headquarters in Ontario.

Evidence showed that Resnick forged the signature of a foundation officer — Mrs. Marian Bryden, wife of Kenneth Bryden, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Toronto Woodbine—on the $125,506 certified cheque he received from the purchaser, Mont Blanc Holding Company.

The cheque was drawn on the Royal Bank and delivered to Resnick.

Resnick deposited the cheque in his own trust account in a Bank of Nova Scotia branch and used the money for his Alliance Shopping Plaza development in suburban York Township before fleeing to Israel in May, 1963.

Anchorage Merchants Happy Over Current Business Picture

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Less than nine months ago this booming northland city was stricken by one of the mightiest earthquakes ever recorded.

With its first post - quake Christmas approaching, the city's merchants have taken a close look at Yuletide spending and find the current business picture bright.

The consensus is that business this Christmas season promises to be excellent despite the big shake of March 27.

Vance Phillips, co-proprietor of two large locally owned department stores, said:

"This will be our biggest year by quite a bit. . . . There are just more people around this year and they are not holding back in shopping.

"Everyone appears optimistic about the future. You talk to people and you find that a lot of them have been here just a short time, but they're permanent people; they've brought their families and they've bought homes. They have come to stay."

Mrs. Yvonne Krotke, manager of the state employment service office in Anchorage, said quake reconstruction work has resulted in lower unemployment and a higher than normal level of winter employment.

Among projects continuing through the winter are the reconstruction of two schools and th J. C. Penney Company store as well as new construction on a hotel and office building.

CONSIDER LIST

OTTAWA (CP) — Consideration is being given by the federal government to a system under which it would be mandatory for all pharmaceutical manufacturers to supply the food and drug directorate with a list of the products they manufacture. The statement was contained in a written reply given Wednesday in the Commons to Barry Mather (NDP—New Westminster).

Offshore Radio And TV Station Is Silenced

NOORDWIJK (AP) — The Dutch government invaded an offshore commercial radio and television station near this Dutch community by sea and air Thursday and silenced it.

A loud noise at 9.00 a.m., in the middle of the hit tune Paradise, was the last sound from Radio Noordzee (North Sea), located just outside Dutch three-mile territorial waters off Noordwijk.

A government cable ship and navy helicopters put police, sailors, Public Prosecutor J. F. Hartsuiker and his assistants aboard the still-supported platform housing the station. Hartsuiker ordered the transmitters seized.

Radio Noordzee surrendered without a shot being fired. It went off the air five minutes after a navy helicopter lowered the first policeman.

The station began broadcasting Sept. 1 and during the first month of operation sold $30,000 worth of advertising time.

Dutch law prohibits commercial radio and television broadcasts. Sept. 17, the lower house of the Dutch cabinet voted 114 to 19 to make the law applicable to the artificial island. The Senate concurred early this month.

A recent opinion poll showed 70 per cent of The Netherlands' population was in favor of the station.

Reports said the station was insured with Lloyds for $1,600,000.

Best wishes for a bright and happy Holiday Season

Dear Susann: Here is how I keep our family's hair brushes and combs clean and it only takes a few minutes.

Gather them all up, comb the loose hair out of the brushes, fill the basin with hot water, pour in a little liquid ammonia (you will find it under a trade name on your grocer's shelf for around 25 cents), then put in the brushes and combs.

Let them soak for a while and the soil falls out like magic — even from the boys' combs who use so much cream.

Rinse well and lay them all out on a towel to dry. — B. P.

Now that we have the brushes and combs clean, let's give ourselves a bouffant hairdo for the holiday festivities. Fine and dandy. But how do we keep it fluffed while we sleep? One of the trickiest ideas is to take a long, long strip of toilet tissue (pink or blue looks quite dandy) and wrap it lightly and softly around your hairdo like a turban. Use pipe curiers to fasten it down carefully.

Now toddle off to bed without a worry in the world, safe in the knowledge that you will wake up in the morning looking like Madame DuBarry instead of Sally of our Alley. — SUSANNA

WEDDING

DAVIDSON — SIMMONS

Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of a recent evening wedding when Penny Louise, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Simmons, Belleville, became the bride of Barry Walter Davidson, son of Mrs Dorothy Davidson, North Bay.

The Rev. Canon D. Wright, minister of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride chose a dressmaker suit of nile ribbon brocade and patent leather accessories. Her hat was a white velvet wedding cap with a veil over the face veil. A corsage of Sweetheart roses completed her bridal ensemble.

Mrs. Emory Drisdell, sister of the bridegroom, was the matron of honor. She too wore shades of pale green brocade was accented by beige accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses.

Mr. Emory Drisdell was best man.

A wedding dinner for the immediate families followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Greatrix. A special feature of the reception was the cutting of the pillared wedding cake which centred the dinner table and was made by the bride's grandmother.

Following a short honeymoon to eastern points the bride and bridegroom took up residence at 31 Hillside Dr.

Previous to the wedding a presentation of a sunburst clock was made to the bride by the staff of the Belleville Utilities Commission. A court whist party and kitchen shower arranged by the girls of the Belleville Utilities office was held at the home of Mrs. C. Culkin; also a miscellaneous shower at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. William Richardson.

U.C.W. Meeting

EASTMINSTER U.C.W.

A delicious pot-luck supper was the opening for the December meeting of Eastminster U.C.W.

After the meal, articles from the bazaar were sold. This was followed by a rousing sing-song of Christmas carols.

The devotional part of the program, which was the Christmas Story, both in story and song, was taken by Mrs. I. McClure and Mrs. L. McQuarrie with Mrs. R. Graham at the piano.

"Christmas In Other Lands" was the program theme for the evening.

Mrs. J. Barnett introduced Mrs. Byisma and Miss Vandriel, who represented Holland. They told many interesting stories and how traditions of Christmas there were so different from Canadian traditions.

Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. A. Glover welcomed the guests.

The business portion of the meeting followed, after which refreshments were served.

Successful Living

Early Talks of Adoption Forestall Unpleasantness

DEAR DORIS — I wondered if the mother with the adopted two-and-a-half-year-old child ("American Reader") would be interested in our experience. Four of our five children were adopted. I started out while they were young, telling them stories of how a man and woman had wanted a baby and how glad they were when they were able to adopt children. Also how lucky they were to have these children.

Of course all these stories were made of my own thinking, so nothing professional; but they were not too old before they asked if it was them. Later, when unthinking people would ask, "Which is yours?" I would say they were all mine.

DORIS CLARK

We had many pleasant experiences. Once when they were all small and sitting on the chesterfield waiting for their bedtime story, I started discussing adoption and they decided the child to which I gave birth was not born because she was not adopted. They are all adults now, and they never had any unpleasant thoughts about adoption. —A READER.

DEAR READER — Good for you! Thanks for sharing your story.

DEAR DORIS — One of my fellow workers, a very strong-minded and evangelical church adherent, is continually sounding off in the office about the end and (or) destruction of the world.

He says "The sooner it comes, the better. I'm ready for it. People just hang on to a little miserable thing they call life." And so on . . .

I believe that most people are concerned about the state of world affairs but surely nothing positive can come of negative thinking; also, surely one of the main facets of Christian belief is that "hope springs eternal."

Should I try to pass these discourses off with some ridiculous comment, maintain silence or what?—TRYING TO GET ALONG.

DEAR TRYING — What's the use? You might well counter with your own quote, and tell him that Christ said, "Be of good cheer, for I have overcome the world." But a fanatic doesn't listen and wouldn't hear you.

Positive thinking and cheerfulness are still the badge of strong-minded and well-balanced people.

DEAR DORIS — We have a 15-year-old daughter. I let her out dancing once a week with her school chums. She is in by 12:00 p.m.

My husband thinks once a week is too much freedom. She studies very hard every night. I think one night a week she needs a break. — WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING — And so she does. We might argue a bit about the late curfew. But the main thing is that you know her friends to be reliable and that the outings are chiefly group affairs.

* * *

(Don't just muddle along. Let Doris, a Canadian social worker, suggest the answer to your particular dilemma.)

Women's Institutes

RYLSTONE W.I.

RYLSTONE — Mrs. James Milne was hostess for the Christmas meeting of Rylstone Women's Institute at the Sunday School rooms of Zion United Church, Fetherdeck Corners, on Wednesday evening.

President Mrs. Lindsay Anderson was in charge of the meeting. A new secretary, Mrs. Jack Watson, and treasurer, Mrs. Stanley Kerr were chosen to fill the combined office left vacant by the resignation of Mrs. Ernest Irwin. Barbara Milne gave a reading and Mrs. Ernest Irwin discussed "Women of the Bible."

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Anderson introduced Mrs. Don Pollock, a former resident of Fetherick's Corners, who was guest speaker. Mrs. Pollock's subject was knitting. In a brief history, she traced the origin of knitting back to 800 years B.C., and the first socks were knitted 500 years after the birth of Christ.

"Knitting is far from being new or modern, though the type of knitting, the method and texture of the knitting materials has changed and improved immensely during the years," the speaker said.

Mrs. Pollock gave a demonstration of knitting with an automatic knitting machine, and displayed articles she had made, several of which she sold to the Institute members.

At a token of thanks from the Institute Mrs. Pollock was presented with a driftwood table centre from the display made by Mrs. E. Irwin.

The next meeting will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. E. Lindsay Anderson on the eighth Inn. of Seymour. The guest speaker is expected to be a member of the Provincial Police, who will speak on highway safety. There will be a demonstration on making flowers from plastic foam.

SIR MACKENZIE BOWELL

Mrs. Y. J. Lavigne, president, conducted a short business meeting during which it was decided to unite the Avondale Home and School Association and the Sir Mackenzie Bowell Home and School Association, so so many parents now have children attending both schools. From this area pupils from kindergarten to grade 4 attend Avondale school and pupils from grades 5 to 8 attend Sir Mackenzie Bowell school. Future meetings will be held in either school on alternate months.

Mr. Robert Horwood, principal, introduced some of his students, who voiced their opinions and aspirations in regard to their new premises. The choir delighted the audience with Christmas carols under the direction of Miss Patti Bradford. Staff members guided groups of parents on a tour of the classrooms, and lunch was served by grade 5 and grade 8 room mothers. A successful bake sale was also held during the evening.

U.C.W. Meetings

BRIDGE STREET U.C.W.

The U.C.W. of Bridge Street United gathered at a general meeting, marking the Christmas season.

The worship service was centered in the gospel story of the birth of Christ, read by Mrs. R. White. Mrs. F. Burrows read a Christmas message prepared by Mrs. G. Wishart. This emphasized to U.C.W. members, responsibility, to work earnestly for peace, an inescapable responsibility for every Christian.

In keeping with this theme, Mrs. J. Demeza sang a sacred Christmas song, with Mrs. R. Bird accompanying.

Mrs. Taylor Franklin introduced Miss Jessie Tulle, who told a Christmas story and for the benefit of those in her audience, newcomers to Belleville, told of Mrs. Tuite's contribution over the years to the cultural life of the city and to Albert College in particular. At Albert College, she taught elocution and speech. For some years she was Dean of Women. At the Fall convocation the alumni unveiled a beautiful stained glass window in the chapel in her honor.

Miss Tuite's story was of a small boy who had the bitter disappointment of not receiving the anticipated gift from a church Christmas tree.

Mrs. E. Fairman expressed the appreciation of the members.

In a brief session that dealt with routine business, the president, Mrs. B. Leslie reported a successful bazaar and thanked the many who contributed to its success.

During the social hour refreshments were served from a beautiful Christmas table.

RYLSTONE U.C.W.

Mrs. Ray Stewart was hostess to the Rylstone United Church Women on Wednesday afternoon for their annual meeting.

Mrs. Wilfred Spencer, 1st vice-president, was in charge of the meeting. An impressive candle lighting service was conducted by the president, Mrs. Will Rutherford, with short Scripture passages read by several of the ladies. Reports were given and Christmas carols were sung.

The January meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Appe at the Manse, Springbrook. The program committee will be Mrs. Robert Spencer and Mrs. Jack Spencer, and the refreshment committee will be Mrs. Wilfred Spencer and Mrs. Ray Spencer.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her committee Mrs. Robert Spencer and Mrs. Jack Spencer.

Reader's Friday Column

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION

Do you have a recipe for Melton Mowbray Pork Pies? We like the kind you can buy - but find it very hard to duplicate the flavor. These cold pork pies are so nice for lunch boxes, always a problem to fill.

Audrey R.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Grilled Golden Pickerel; Lemon Wedges; Blushing Rice (cooked in tomato juice); Creamed Onions with Leeks; Shredded Cabbage and Carrot Salad with Mayonnaise; Baked Custard with Fresh Fruit Sauce; Tea.

ANSWER

MELTON MOWBRAY PIE

Notes: 1) If you make this into individual pies you will require more pastry - 1½ times as much. 2) The following amount of gelatine results in a very firm filling. If desired, reduce amount of gelatine to 2 tablespoons.

English Pastry: Three cups unsifted flour, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1½ cups best-quality shortening, ¾ cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 egg yolk. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt and cut in cup of the shortening with pastry blender. To remaining shortening add the boiling water and stir until shortening is the egg yolk and stir. Stir this mixture. Add lemon juice, then into the flour mixture then knead for 3 minutes. Chill for 1 hour so it may be handled easily. Divide pastry into 2 portions. One portion should be about ⅔ of the dough with which line sides and bottom of medium-large baking dish. Reserve remaining ⅓ of pastry for top.

Make Filling: One pound pork shoulder, 1 pound veal shoulder, 1 pound ham (uncooked), 2 small onions, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon sage, 1 teaspoon thyme, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¾ teaspoon salt, 4 hard cooked eggs, 3 tablespoons gelatine, 1 can consomme, undiluted. Cut eggs in half lengthwise and place 4 halves in bottom of pastry-lined pan. Cut meat into small cubes and mix with chopped onions and seasonings. Arrange half of meat mixture over eggs, cover with remaining halves of eggs, then remaining meat. Cover with reserved rolled-out pastry and seal to edges. Cut 2 small holes in top. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. until light brown - about 15 minutes; reduce heat to 250 deg. Fahr. and bake 2½ hours longer, or until meat is tender. When pie is baked and still hot, soften gelatine in ¼ cup cold water. Dissolve in the 1 can hot undiluted consommee. Pour through holes in top of hot pie. Place in refrigerator overnight. Slice to serve.

Ann Landers

Couple of Dumb Bunnies Tie for First Place

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a widow in my sixties and I am going with a widower the same age.

Last Sunday Zeke and I were out for a drive. He suggested going by his home and opening the windows to air the place out. I said, "Fine."

ANN LANDERS

After Zeke opened the windows he sat down on the couch, untied his shoe laces and said, "It's so comfortable here I don't want to move. Why don't you walk home?"

I thought he was joking because we were at least five miles from my house. I laughed and said, "Oh, stop it, Ezekiel." He replied "I'm not kidding" — and took off his shoes. I said goodbye and left

If you don't think five miles in Cuban heels is exhausting just try it. I arrived home thoroughly done in and half sick.

Two hours later Zeke showed up at my place — furious. He said he never dreamed I'd be that dumb. I asked why he didn't come after me. He said he was sure I was sitting in his car. When he discovered I wasn't, he couldn't find me.

I'd like your opinion on who is the dumb one? — KALAMAZOO.

DEAR KALAMAZOO — It sounds like a tie to me. Now that you know what a nutty sense of humor he has — act accordingly.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Today our son, Charles, and his girl friend drove off for a weekend together. They are both of age and we could do nothing to stop them.

I prayed that the mother of the girl would step in at the last moment but I'm sure now she considers Charles a good catch and is eager for her daughter to snag him.

We have not been domineering parents. Charles was an excellent student, attended church regularly and never gave us any trouble — until this girl came along.

My husband feels we should ask him to pack his bags when he returns. Charles has a fine position and could afford to live elsewhere. I'm reluctant to do this, but my husband says me must protest his immoral behavior. We'd like your views. — D.C.

DEAR D.C. — You say the boy is "of age." Is he 21 or 35?

An extra-marital weekend is out of bounds regardless of age, but that's history now. The question is should you kick him out of the house.

If he's 21 — No. If he's 35 he should have been out long ago. Talk to your clergyman.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Whenever my mother-in-law comes to our house she wants to feed our 18-month-old son, Bobby doesn't like vegetables. My mother-in-law is determined to "teach him" to like them. She says, "Look, Bobby — Nonna likes carrots." Then she puts a spoonful of carrots into her mouth, using Bobby's spoon. The next spoonful goes into Bobby's mouth — same spoon.

I've asked my husband to speak to his mother about this dirty habit. He says I'm too finicky — that she did the same with her six kids and nobody died.

Am I a crackpot, as my husband says? Or should he say something to her? — BATTLING BERTHA.

DEAR BERT — Perhaps your mother-in-law's six children survived in spite of an unhygenic upbringing — an amazing number of kids do.

While most children would not die from sharing Granny's spoon, it is nonetheless an unpleasant habit and if your husband refuses to speak to his mother about it you should.

Hand "Nonna" a second spoon when she feeds Bobby and ask her to please use it.

Mother

son's conversation.

She said that during the second call her son was talking to someone named Raymond and said: "no, no, no, I can't accept."

During the third call, her son had said: "I can't accept, you won't get me."

On the fourth call, Pierre had said "no, no, the answer is no."

Mrs. Lamontagne, testifying in a low but clear voice, said her son was distraught. She had told him he must tell her what the calls were about.

Rene Drouin, counsel for the Conservative party, asked whether the RCMP had ever questioned her about the telephone calls.

Mrs. Lamontagne said no.

Earlier, Mr. Guerin contended that Mr. Lamontagne was a "moral debtor" to Mr. Denis and that therefore there was no need for Mr. Denis to offer him money if he had wanted him to intervene in the Rivard case.

Mr. Lamontagne said Mr. Denis had done favors for him on several occasions and had recommended his appointment as permanent agent in RCMP narcotics prosecutions after the Liberals took office in April, 1963. Mr. Lamontagne was appointed to this position in July of that year.

Mr. Lamontagne said others who had recommended his appointment were Lionel Chevrier, then justice minister and now Canadian high commissioner in London, and Industry Minister Charles M. Drury.

He said Mr. Chevrier, a former partner in his law firm of Geoffrion, Prud'homme, relied heavily on advice from the firm in appointing government lawyers.

He testified that he heard about a month after his July 14 meeting with Mr. Denis that the senior partner in his firm, Antoine Geoffrion, was expected to replace Senator Louis P. Cecile, another prominent Montrealer, as secretary-treasurer of the Liberal party.

Mr. Lamontagne said Tuesday Mr. Denis had told him a certain Gelinas was among four persons behind the alleged bribe offer.

When he had told Mr. Geoffrion of this, the latter had said it was absolutely impossible that the Gelinas in question could have been the senator.

The commission has not identified a certain Gelinas who is scheduled to testify at the inquiry.

Mr. Lamontagne testified that he heard soon after Rivard was arrested in Montreal June 19 that "$2,000 was on the line for anyone putting in a good word" for the suspected dope smuggler's release on bail.

He told Mr. Guerin he had not been offered a $3,000 bribe at the Montreal courthouse by a "messenger" a few days before his meeting with Mr. Denis in Mr. Tremblay's inner Commons office.

At another point, Mr. Lamontagne said he had asked Mr. Denis several times to give government legal cases to some of his friends who had worked in the 1963 election campaign for Edmond Asselin, Liberal MP for Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace.

Chief Justice Dorion angrily disallowed a question by Mr. Guerin as to whether Mr. Lamontagne was under the care of a psychiatrist before July 14 when the bribe offer was allegedly made.

Chief Justice Dorion said he will rule next week on Mr. Guerin's request for the production of justice department records showing how much Mr. Lamontagne charged for his handling of the federal government's case against Joe (Banana) Bonnano.

The name Bonnano has cropped up frequently during the rearing. Charges of perjury against Bonnano were dropped in Montreal and he was allowed to return to the U.S. July 30. He was kidnapped on a New York street Oct. 21 and hasn't been heard of since.

Mr. Guerin asked whether Mr. Lamontagne had mentioned a bail figure of $20,000 to Raymond Daoust, a Montreal lawyer for Bonnano and Rivard, who is also scheduled to testify.

The witness said that neither he nor Mr. Daoust had suggested a bail figure of $20,000 for either Bonnano or Rivard. In any case, he said, he would never have consented to bail fo. Rivard.

Mr. Lamontagne said he did not have the faintest idea what information anyone might have to try to blackmail him.

This was in reference to his previous testimony that someone had called him and told him there were things about him which he might not like his wife to know.

Asked by Mr. Guerin whether he was afraid of this threat, Mr. Lamontagne said "absolutely not."

The names of two RCMP members were also dropped into the proceedings.

Mr. Lamontagne said former inspector Maurice Poitras was and still is a "good friend of mine."

There was no indication from the testimony whether this "ex-inspector Poitras" was in any way connected with sub-inspector J. H. M. Poitras, ordered retired Dec. 8 by the cabinet after being convicted by an RCMP court of mishandling funds.

The witness said Sgt. Ronald Crevier, head of the RCMP narcotics squad in Montreal, was present in his office Aug. 20 during an RCMP - monitored telephone call with Mr. Denis.

He said Crevier left the RCMP in September or October and now is a special investigator for Geoffrion, Prud'homme, his law firm.

On Tuesday, Mr. Lamontagne testified he had telephoned Crevier from Chicoutimi July 28 to tell him about political pressures in the Rivard affair but had asked him not to inform the RCMP officially.

The witness said in reply to Mr. Guerin that he "didn't give a hoot" if the Liberal party did or did not accept a contribution for Rivard's release on bail.

"I didn't want Rivard out on bail whether the Liberal party paid or not," he said.

He said that since Nov. 23, when the Rivard case broke wide open with charges in the Commons by Erik Nielsen, Conservative MP for Yukon, of bribery and influence - peddling in lofty levels of government, a good many Montreal lawyers have shunned him.

These lawyers said he had done a "dreadful thing," which he should "never, never, never have done," in going to the RCMP with his account of a bribe offer.

Bitter Cold Grips States

HELENA, Mont. (AP)—A severe pre - winter cold spell gripped much of the United States today, plunging temperatures to below zero in a dozen states and adding snow and freezing rain to stricken areas.

Freezing rain and snow extended from central Texas through Kentucky to the eastern Great Lakes.

In Montana, ranchers estimated livestock losses in the thousands of dollars. Some lost 50 per cent of their herds.

December cold records toppled Thursday, with 38 below zero in Butte and Helena. It was 31 below in West Yellowstone.

Sleet and freezing rain struck northwestern Pennsylvania.

IRRIGATION SYSTEMS — Irrigation has enabled southern Alberta farmers to produce 20 per cent of the province's gross agricultural product on four per cent of the arable land. The once dry land is irrigated in several ways. The sprinkler system (top) is a common and old-fashioned method to water crops. The self-propelled sprinkler system (centre) is one of the newest pieces of irrigation equipment but not many farmers have been convinced the saving in time justifies the $20,000 it costs. Border dikes and controlled flooding of row crops has recently been adopted as an effective method although it requires constant attention from the farmer. (CP Photo)

Future Water Scarcity Threatens Irrigation

By ALLEN SACKMANN

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Water, the life of southern Alberta's expanding $170,000,000 agriculture industry, one day may restrict its growth.

Experts look to the day when water will be rationed to irrigation farmers as carefully as gasoline is metred into the family automobile.

J. H. Graham, manager of the St. Mary and Milk Rivers Development Association (SARM) says: "We'll run out of water long before we run out of land" for irrigation.

More than 750,000 acres are "under the ditch" and the acreage increases at a rate of five to 10 per cent a year. Experts plan to extend irrigation to 200,000 acres of dry land.

Sugar beets, vegetables, cereal crops and ranching flourish on land that, before irrigation, forced many pioneers into heartbreak.

The water, from six rivers on the eastern slopes of the Canadian Rockies, flows into a giant web of irrigation ditches 170 miles eastward to Medicine Hat, transforming the dusty soil into one of the richest agricultural areas in Canada.

More than 7,500 farmers share in the wealth generated by the water and raise 20 per cent of Alberta's gross agricultural product on four per cent of the arable land.

TAP LAST SOURCE

The Waterton Dam, on the Waterton River in southwestern Alberta, will be tapping the last source of water when it is completed. When it and other river systems are completely harnessed, water will be a premium commodity for production of sugar beets and vegetables which couldn't be grown without irrigation.

How important is water? It takes 30,000 gallons to grow a bushel of wheat and 500,000 gallons to raise a ton of hay.

The average householder uses 45,000 gallons of water a year, equivalent to the requirements for 1½ bushels of wheat.

Farmers spend up to $100 an acre to prepare their land for irrigation. Water is sold to them at varying rates. The SARM, for example, charges $3 an acre to deliver the water to fields of 3,000 farmers.

Wally Foss, Prairie Farm Rehabilitation official at Lethbridge, says the day is coming when farmers will be paying a lot more for their water and buying it on an acre-foot basis.

Already farmers are using new techniques and new irrigation equipment to make better use of the water. The old-fashioned flood irrigation is giving way to controlled border dikes and sprinkler systems.

PIPE ROTATES

Two new pieces of equipment have appeared during the last year. One is a self-propelled system that eliminates the back-breaking work of loading and unloading pipe associated with the conventional system that has the pipe strung along the ground. Not only does it cut moving time in half but makes for more even distribution of the water.

Another system has the water source in the middle of the field with pipe connected to a pivot. Through a series of plungers, driven by water, the pipe rotates to water the field evenly without wastage.

The systems cost about $20,000 each.

Land is also being levelled to make more of it available...for irrigation and make better use of the water. Farmers strip off the top soil and then spread it over the levelled ground—at a cost of $15 to $100 an acre.

Another advance that saves money for some farmers; although it has no effect on water consumption, is the use of natural gas for pumping water across the fields. Farmers have found pumping costs cut by half with the use of the cheap natural gas.

While the limitations of water availability will eventually be felt on expansion of irrigation, farmers in the area haven't tapped the full potential of their land.

Dr. I. L. Nonneeke of the Lethbridge Research Station says: "We haven't even scratched the surface of the area's potential."

Many vegetable crops, for example, could be raised on a wider scale to add to the diversification of the area.

Demorestville

DEMORESTVILLE—Mr. and Mrs. E. Gerow, Picton, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Longwell.

Mrs. J. Vanskiver is spending some time in Picton with Mrs. C. Peck.

The Brownies of the Crofton Brownie Pack No. 1 enjoyed a hay ride on Saturday night followed by a lunch of wieners and hot chocolate. Nine of the Brownies live in Demorestville.

The interior of the church has had smoke damage due to a faulty oil burner.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Cole and family of Ottawa were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Gorsline.

On Tuesday evening the Brownies of Crofton Pack held their Christmas party at Crofton when the mothers of the Guides and Brownies were invited. Games and a visit from Santa Claus were enjoyed; also a delicious buffet luncheon.

What to Look for in Russian Boy Friends

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — What are the attributes of an ideal Russian boy?

The newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda posed the question in one of its feature columns and got 1,500 letters from girl readers by fast order.

Komsomolskaya Pravda is the organ of the Young Communist League. If the letters published by the newspaper are any indication, Russian girls have little use for frivolity in a young man.

A girl named Galka wrote that her "splendid boy" was one with whom she liked to discuss world problems, scientific achievements, "what surrounds us."

"Both of us like physics. This helps us to argue. He is for Newton, I am for Einstein, for contemporaneity."

Lelya Lavrova, Komsomol secretary at Donetsk in the Ukraine, wrote that the newspaper's query sparked a "hot discussion" in her class that raged for four days during recess periods.

The consensus, as reported by Miss Lavrova, read more like a sermon than a character portrait. Her advice to boys:

"Respect girls, that is what we ask. . . . And do not try to be older than you really are. . . . Read poems and try to use more good words. We would like to listen to good, very good words and a bit of poetry."

SEEKS GOOD PUPIL

Another girl, who signed her letter simply L. S., wrote that her ideal beau is a good pupil who knows mathematics and physics well, likes to work with his hands, and is a member of the Young Communist League.

"At a mathematics lesson he tries to argue with the teacher. He tries to prove his idea. When he understands he becomes content.

"I envy him because I cannot argue even if I am right."

From Donbass in the Ukraine came a melancholy note. "It is said the splendid boy should be strong, proud, well-read, like sport and music," began K. M. tearfully. "I do not know. Sasha liked music, or was well-read. He was proud. . . ."

Sasha began missing lessons. Finally he left school. "It is already a year since I last saw him," wrote the heart-broken Grade 10 girl. "I will always remember him."

She anticipated a question. "If I liked him so much why didn't I help him?"

"He didn't know about my feelings and I couldn't give them up."

Words Are Ammunition For 1,100 Canadian Soldiers Keeping Peace in Cyprus

By ALAN WALKER

NICOSIA (CP) — Forces formed for war wage peace instead on this uneasy island where goats wandering too far from home can bring a ball of bullets.

Words are ammunition for the some 1,100 Canadian soldiers charged with the ticklish task of maintaining the United Nations cease-fire between edgy Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot factions.

So far the UN force, of which the Canadians form the largest part, has been successful. "Accidental discharges" and "third-hunting" account for nearly all shots carefully investigated and catalogued by UN observers since the Turkish air raid on Greek-Cypriot positions in western Cyprus in August.

Many people here are surprised there hasn't been more trouble. Feeling runs high on both sides in this incoherent war and both Turkish- and Greek-Cypriots are sensitive to the slightest suggestion that the opposition is pulling a fast one. Greek and Turkish positions are constantly manned by well armed soldiers all over the island. Civilians are quick to complain of grievances. Imagined or otherwise.

COOLING EFFECT

UN soldiers speckle the island and their presence is generally recognized to have the any cooling effect on Levantine passions. It is not merely that they have strong forces. Diplomats from the highest level to the lowest is the secret of the UN success.

In the key Kyrenl amountain area north of the capital, Canadian Guards from Picton, Ont. staff strategic posts under the light blue and white UN flag. The men field complaints from both sides and keep careful watch over Turkish and Greek-Cypriot positions to ensure that neither force sneaks in an extra sandbag or an extra weapon—violating the cease-fire agreement.

"We're writing the book on peace-keeping," said Brig Norman Wilson-Smith, 48, of Winnipeg, who recently took command of the Nicosia zone for the UN. "There are no training pamphlets—no manuals for this job.

"We dampen misunderstandings. If both sides want a hill we sit on it. If there's a single shot fired in the zone, we know about it.

"It takes the men three or four days to get used to the idea that there is no enemy. It is a complete reversal of roles—like telling a firemen to light fires."

NIGHT MEANS BOREDOM

Patient and unending negotiation between the UN troops and both Cypriot forces keeps the lid on a potentially explosive situation. Brig. Wilson-Smith often meets with top Cypriot officials and acts as buffer between Turk and Greek. The same system extends down wards through the Canadian Guards' battalion commander Lt.-Col. William Mulherin, 42, born in Grand Falls, N.B., to youthful platoon commanders who meet with minor village officials and soothe rumpled feelings.

That is peace-keeping by day. It has so far been safe and smooth. Peace by night is another matter. "Then the private soldier has one of the most boring, lonely and sometimes dangerous jobs in the world," said Brig. Wilson-Smith.

"They're up there in the pitch dark, between heavily armed antagonists. But they're unfailingly cheerful and satisfied they are doing a significant job. Their pride sustains them."

ROYAL BABIES BORN IN 1964 — 1964 was a quiet year in Royal circles, and was marked chiefly by a rapid succession of Royal births in the spring of the year. Expect Controversy Over Queen's Germany Visit

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — The uncertain world of international politics, which until recently hardly touched the stately round of royal activities, will affect two of the Queen's major engagements in 1965.

One of them, the long-expected state visit to West Germany in May, is likely to provoke as much discussion—even controversy, for different reasons—as the Queen's tense trip to Quebec last October.

It will be the first state visit of a British sovereign to Germany since Edward VII visited his nephew Kaiser Wilhelm II in 1909.

In the 50 years since the outbreak of the First World War Anglo - German relations have veered from open hostility to a lingering suspicion that occasionally still erupts in sections of the British press and public opinion. The 1965 tour will probably be seen as a momentous watershed; the final recognition, 20 years to the month after the Nazi surrender, that the two countries have buried the past.

But there will be controversy. The key to it is Berlin.

Germans apparently hope and expect the Queen to visit West Berlin, their "front-line" half-city set like an island in the hostile sea of Communist East Germany. There are thorny diplomatic hazards here and the British foreign office says no arrangements will be announced until just before the royal tour starts, May 18, in case of any fresh crisis in the divided city.

DELICATE PROBLEM

The East Germans and the Soviet Union might interpret a visit by the Queen as implying Britain recognizes West Berlin as part of the Federal Republic of Germany. Britain's attitude is that the city is a four-power responsibility.

A possible way around this objection would be to announce the Queen was visiting British troops in West Berlin.

There is also the question of her safety flying through the air corridors, which the Communists have repeatedly stated must be used only for supplying Western troops in the city. However, they have permitted normal commercial traffic provided the planes touch down first at West German airports.

The trip is expected to last a week or 10 days. Plans for it were laid as far back as 1958, when West German President Theodor Heuss came to London on a state visit. It is customary for the Queen to pay a return call on a visiting head of state.

In 1965 she has two other visits of this nature scheduled—to Ethiopia and Sudan. The Sudanese trip has also been affected by political developments; in this case, the ousting in November of President Ibrahim Abboud, who publicly invited the Queen to his country on his state visit to London last May. His military regime has been replaced by a civilian government containing several Communists. There has also been recent Negro-Arab fighting in the country.

TRIP IN DOUBT

The upset in Africa's largest country left arrangements for the four-day royal visit in February "all up in the air," a foreign office spokesman said. British diplomats are waiting to see whether the invitation still stands with the new regime.

Originally the trip was scheduled to follow the Feb. 1-8 visit to Ethiopia—also technically a "return call," though Emperor Haile Selassie last visited London in 1954.

It will be the first time the Queen has travelled in northeast Africa, though she has visited west coast Commonwealth countries. Ethiopia, a mountainous, remote kingdom still held in a feudal trance, boasts a monarchy three times older than Britain's 1,000-year line. Haile Selassie, a tough little bearded warrior of 73, claims direct descent from the biblical Queen of Sheba.

The Duke of Edinburgh will accompany the Queen on all her foreign tours in 1965.

Most probably none of them could rouse the controversy—nor the apprehension—that surrounded the royal visit to Quebec last October, part of the eight-day tour of Eastern Canada to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Confederation talks in Charlottetown, Quebec City and Ottawa.

The shadow of John F. Kennedy's death in Dallas lay behind British and Canadian concern at terrorist threats to the Queen, sparked by growing separatist turbulence. In the end the visit went off calmly, if coolly.

The story made a dramatic if disturbing climax to an otherwise quiet royal year in Britain, marked chiefly by a rapid succession of royal births in the spring.

Princess Alexandra, Mrs. Angus Ogilvy, led off with a son on Leap Year Day, Feb. 29. Prince Edward was born to the Queen March 10, becoming third in line to the throne. The Duchess of Kent had a daughter April 28 and Princess Margaret completed the quartet of royal mothers with her second child, a daughter, May 1.

Prince Philip wound up the royal year with an energetic series of tours—to Mexico and South America after the Canadian visit; to Paris and Brussels for brief engagements in late November, and finally to Morocco on a four-day visit to King Hassan.

Remarks Santa Claus Gets Tired of Hearing

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks a department store Santa Claus gets tired of hearing:

"Last year I told you I wanted a bike and ya brought me a pair of roller skates, ya bum. This year I want ya to get it straight. Bring me a bike."

"Let me down, let me down! I want my mama!"

"We like you to show enthusiasm, Roscoe, but don't you think you're overdoing it a bit? Just kiss the children—and let the mothers alone."

"Hey, fellow, I have to play Santa Claus for my kids on Christmas Eve. How about letting me in on a few secrets of the trade?"

"If I catch you smoking a cigar again while on duty, I'll have to ask you to turn in your suit."

"Of course, they ain't real whiskers. When he takes you up on his lap, give them a big pull—and I betcha they'll come right off in your hands."

"Ho, ho, no, Johnny. You mustn't punch Santa in the stomach. He's a nice man."

"Would you mind keeping an eye on my little boy while I go over to the lingerie department, Santa? I won't be gone more than a few moments."

". . . And a doll, and a doll carriage, and a toy piano, and a pink dress, and some grown-up play shoes, and a new coat, and a teddy bear that really growls, and . . . and . . . and . . ."

"Your 'ho, ho, ho' sounds a little hollow this morning, Roscoe. I suggest you'd better practise up on it during your lunch hour."

"I know my little girl didn't mean to get her lollipop stuck in your whiskers, Santa. If we can just find a pair of scissors, I think I can cut it out."

"The kid next door told me that Santa Claus is really your father, but you sure don't look much like my old man to me."

"The toys in this department aren't moving very fast, Roscoe. If they don't start selling soon, you're going to have to take them home for your Christmas pay."

"I'm the fire department inspector. It's my duty to check your beard to be sure it's fireproof. Hold still. Quit squirming. Now where did I put those matches?"

"You ought to have had better sense than to eat a garlic bread sandwich, Roscoe. I'm afraid I'll have to dock you half a day's pay. The kids won't come within a mile of you now."

"How are you fixed for blades, fatso?"

Note of Caution Tempers Chamber of Commerce's Usual Plea for Tax Cuts

OTTAWA (CP) —A note of caution Thursday tempered the Chamber of Commerce's usual pre-budget plea for tax cuts.

The chamber left no doubt in its submission to Finance Minister Gordon that it wants reductions in both personal and corporation income taxes, roughly equivalent to the U.S. cuts last year. But the brief added:

"It is recognized that to obtain optimum benefit for the economy action upon this step should be timed with due attention to the degree of strength being registered in business capital programs and in other sectors of the economy."

But Thursday's submission said indications of a further 1965 step-up in capital spending, while encouraging, "have also raised questions about the possibility of an unduly rapid rate of capital expansion, at least in some sectors of the economy."

The executive council also raised these points:

—Some areas of market "tightness" plus recent labor negotiations and settlements "have given rise to an increasing concern about the possibility of renewed pressure.

—There has been widespread discussion of a late-1965 slowing down in the rate of North American economic expansion; this may bring a note of caution in business and consumer spending plans.

SUGGEST NEED

The chamber said these factors suggest a need for alertness and careful assessment of the balance of economic forces, and argue for a flexible approach to the general lines of monetary and fiscal policy.

The chamber predicted that the federal budget will be close to balance this fiscal year as a result of the strong advance in business and personal incomes and a speed-up in corporate tax collections.

But in the coming year "it would 'not seem realistic" to count on another strong rise in corporate tax revenues or a more cut in direct spending. There also would be another shift of revenues to the provinces.

—Pressures on costs and profit margins.

—Demand for Canadian exports "in overseas markets had clearly begun to moderate.

Minister Opposes Extending NHA Loans to All Homes

TORONTO (CP) — Postmaster - General Nicholson, the federal minister responsible for housing matter said Thursday he is opposed to extending National Housing Act loans to all houses.

Although the building industry and real estate boards have been urging governments for years to make NHA loans available for all houses, Mr. Nicholson told a press conference at a symposium on housing and urban renewal that he could not support such a step.

The loans are available on existing houses in urban renewal areas.

During one of the symposium sessions, Mr. Nicholson told Mayor Hector Dupuis of Sarnia that National Housing Act amendments must be extended across the provinces and they might object to federal action on any local matter.

He later told the press that leading for the improvement of housing is the function of private enterprise. But where, in an urban renewal scheme, it is felt that some houses should be improved, the government might then make loans, said Mr. Nicholson.

"To go out generally and say 'Here is a lot of money' — where to improve houses would be wrong," he added.

WANTS PRIVATE SPENDING

Municipal planning, Ontario's deputy minister of municipal affairs, said that the greatest expenditures for urban renewal should be made by the private sections of the economy. He said it is the duty of the municipality to produce a climate favorable to private redevelopment.

Suburban developers...should be compensated by the provincial and municipal governments spend money to redevelop downtown areas, the urban law professor suggested.

Gerald Alder of the University of Western Ontario said that a suburban shopping centre might become economically desirable if people are drawn back into the core of the city.

"What provision is there in public policy for recognizing that a private investment might be underutilized?" he asked.

Mr. Nicholson said that compensation is intended only for slum properties already reduced in an urban renewal project. No urban renewal program is contemplated, he said. It proceeds only when the municipality approves it.

DIESELS THREATENED

TORONTO (CP)—The Metropolitan Toronto works department and the Toronto Transit Commission disagree on whether diesel buses discharge offensive exhaust fumes, a ruling in favor of the works department could mean that the TTC could operate gas diesel buses in Toronto after Jan. 20. Magistrate Robert Dulepar told counsel for Metro works department to submit written argument by next Monday to show whether the charge was properly laid. The TTC said it is not subject to Metro bylaws.

Monster Sales Are Booming This Christmas

CHICAGO (AP) — Monster sales are booming this Christmas, provoking a controversy in the toy business.

Manufacturers expect horror toy sales will reach $30,-000,000 this year.

Among the more popular toys are a chamber of horror kit and a plastic knife with a battery-operated knife.

Some industry sources predict horror toys may outsell the always popular guns, tanks, space rockets and grenades. But manufacturers can't agree whether the horror toys are good or bad.

"I don't believe American manufacturers should sponsor the idea that war and horror are fun," said Jack Wright, 50 product designer for Tinker Toys Incorporated, makers of the world - famous building toys.

But Kenneth Block, sales manager for the Mattel Toy Company, said "most of the toys are in a humorous vein and I think when you put humor into it, you take some of the horror out of it."

Block said his firm, which until recently limited its output of children's guns and tanks, will begin selling monster toy next year.

"The kids like them," Block said. "It appeals to the bizarre for the same reason the kids like the Beatles."

Children Find Box of Bearings Taken in Holdup

MONTREAL (CP) — Police in suburban Dorval Thursday recovered 11 empty boxes and a box of bearings valued at $6,000 taken in Monday's $105,-000 airport robbery of gold bullion and other valuables.

The boxes were discovered by children playing near a wooded area of the Montreal airport where the theft occurred.

Also recovered were several pieces of costume jewelry taken in the robbery.

No trace of the gold was found.

The early - morning robbery was staged by five armed and masked men in the import shed at International Montreal Airport, Dorval. The men escaped with $81,000 in gold bullion and some $24,000 in gold coins, watches, pharmaceuticals and other goods after handcuffing four employees.

First reports which set the total Air Canada loss at $98,-925.31 were revised when it was discovered the bearings were missing.

Pearson Denies Deceiving House 'Either Inadvertently Or Deliberately' in Case

OTTAWA (CP) — The Opposition failed Thursday to have a prime - ministerial memory lapse become the subject of study by a committee of MPs.

Both Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary North) and New Democratic Leader Douglas complained that Mr. Pearson misinformed the Commons Nov. 24 when he said he had known about allegations of a bribery attempt against a ministerial aide only three Nov. 22.

Their complaint arose from a memorandum made in public Wednesday at the judicial inquiry into bribery and coercion in which Mr. Pearson said he wanted to clarify the Commons statement and say further that he had been told about the case Sept. 2 while flying back to Ottawa from Charlottetown.

Mr. Harkness rose on a point of privilege to call the original statement "an affront to the House" and to ask that Speaker Alan Macnaughton study the matter further. But he made no specific motion.

Mr. Douglas moved that the privileges and elections committee study whether Mr. Pearson failed to inform Parliament "either

DENIES DECEPTION

Mr. Pearson denied he had misled the House "either inadvertently or deliberately."

Mr. Douglas' motion was rejected by the Speaker of the House of Commons this week, on grounds that according to the rules of the House, it had to contain a specific charge.

The Speaker's decision was appealed and he was upheld 122 to 105 with 115 Liberals supported by seven Social Credit MPs. He said that Speaker Alan Macnaughton study the matter further. But he made no specific motion.

Three Convicted Gang Members Again in Court

MONTREAL (CP) — Three convicted members of the so-called Hooded Gang that police say terrorized the south shore of Montreal in 1963 appeared in court Thursday to face more charges of armed robbery and theft.

They were Victor (Pretty Boy) Levesque, 26, described by police as the leader of the gang, Jean-Claude Messier, 35, and Antonio Facchino, 28.

All three have already received long jail terms for crimes blamed on the gang, smashed by police in the fall of 1963.

The trio were charged Thursday with armed robberies at the home of Gerard Picard at Riviere du Moulin, Que. They were also charged with a $1,200 robbery at the Jonquiere, Que., home of Mrs. Roland Simard, and another stickup at the home of Dr. Benoit Fortin in Chicoutimi.

A fourth charge involved an attempted hijacking of a mail truck at Laterriere, Que.

Facchino pleaded guilty to all the charges and sentencing was set for Jan. 23. The other two pleaded not guilty, and their preliminary hearings were set for Dec. 22.

Wilson Given Opportunity To Strengthen Home Appeal

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

International events are providing Prime Minister Harold Wilson with opportunities to bolster strengthen his political appeal at home.

Wilson has had substantial economic setbacks since assuming the British leadership by a hair. But on the diplomatic front at least, he has been more fortunate. He also has been working hard at it.

He travelled to Washington as soon as he decently could after the British and United States elections and seems to have reached a good understanding with President Johnson on a personal and diplomatic level.

He is expected to revisit Washington and Ottawa shortly.

INVITED KOSYGIN

He has invited Premier Kosygin of Russia to London next spring and has an invitation to go to Moscow. He is scheduled to call at Rome, Bonn and Paris.

The discussions about the future of NATO and the Atlantic Alliance as a whole have reopened the door for British proposals which Wilson hopes will be nonlethal alternatives to British military costs at the same time.

In short, while there has been some grumbling and scepticism about the Labor government's handling of its economic crisis, British today seems much more active diplomatically than she has been.

Wilson will benefit politically in selling that impression. Yet it is also a fact of international life that Britain today has to live by her wits now that her empire has gone.

As seen through American eyes at least, Britain must struggle with West Germany and France for eminence although handicapped by a troubled economy whose weaknesses include fat-cat complacency.

WEST-GERMANY ON PAR

The day is gone as far as the U.S. is concerned when the Anglo-American Alliance was unanimically No. 1. West Germany now is felt to have an equal role in the U.S. order of priorities.

France, of course, continues to travel her own independent route with a special West German relationship sought on one hand and a European leader's role on the other.

If is in this atmosphere that Wilson and British sterling face a course of which part must be directed by the fact that another British election seems necessary before the end of 1965.

Briggs Expected to Tighten Operations in New CBC Post

OTTAWA (CP) — Communications are going to be "a bit different" at the CBC ship with W. E. S. (Captain) Briggs in charge.

Mr. Briggs, a wartime naval officer and long - time member of the navy reserve, was confirmed as the man responsible for day-to-day operations of the corporation in an announcement from CBC headquarters this week.

In effect, the 58-year-old first vice-president of the corporation will be functioning as captain of the ship with Alphonse Ouimet, CBC president, acting as the admiral in charge of flagship operations.

Mr. Briggs, a heavy-set man of about five feet, 10 inches, does not still retain a naval officer's bearing, is quick to emphasize that any impression that there will be a "shackling or handcuffing effect" on the creative side of the CBC is "utter nonsense."

The announcement by the CBC Thursday said Mr. Briggs is the position — "in a sense it's the job of a general manager" — he occupied for some time.

It also assigned eight other vice-presidents specific responsibilities.

Allotment of specific areas of responsibility should clarify the communication picture, Mr. Briggs said. He will be "dealing more directly with some people than heretofore" under the system.

"It should simplify things."

Clarification of responsibilities became necessary partly because the publicly - owned corporation has grown enormously," Mr. Briggs noted. In answer to a question in the House of Commons this week, it was stated that the CBC employed more than 8,000 people as of last December.

Writers and producers would continue to get "all the freedom in the world" under the system, Mr. Briggs said. "Nobody is going to stifle our creative people." If this occurred "we might as well pack it up."

However, there is the distinction between freedom and licence," he added. "From the creative side of the CBC would still have to subscribe to corporation policy, as in the past.

Born in St. Catharines, Ont., Mr. Briggs joined the Royal Navy before he started in the advertising field in Canada in 1933.

He joined the RCN before the Second World War and, as commander of the corvette HMCS Orillia, won the Distinguished Service Order in 1941 for his part in helping salvage a tanker with a $1,000,000 cargo. King George VI pinned the decoration on him in a ceremony at Buckingham Palace.

Mr. Briggs started with the CBC in 1937 and returned to it after his wartime service in the North Atlantic.

In his 28 years with the corporation, Mr. Briggs says, he has found the freedom from political pressure "quite amazing."

Any suggestion that there has been an erosion of this freedom is "absolute nonsense. We could not expect to enjoy greater freedom. We have been given a job to do and left alone to do it."

Early in his CBC career, he was an announcer, producer and station manager. After the war he was appointed regional representative for the Maritime provinces, a post he held until his latest move.

Mr. Briggs is well aware of the complexities of CBC operations — providing radio and television programs of wide diversity in two languages across a country stretching more than 4,000 miles from east to west, and into the north.

"We are cognizant of our responsibilities," he says. "We hope to serve the people of Canada to the best of our ability."

Duke Making Fine Recovery After Operation

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The Duke of Windsor, making an excellent recovery from arteriosclerosis, was expected to leave his hospital bed today for the first time since his operation.

"It is expected he will be out of bed for short times," a hospital advisory said.

The duchess has spent most of her time at his bedside. She said she did not plan to leave the hospital until he is well along in his convalescent period.

The 70-year-old duke was operated on Wednesday for the removal of an aneurysm — or ballooning — of the aorta, the major blood vessel of the body. The damaged tissue was replaced with a synthetic tube.

Picton Youth On Probation

SUDBURY (CP) — Three youths who seized a car and threatened a woman during a penknife, Thursday were given suspended sentences and placed on two years' probation.

James Gordon Hall of Toronto, Donald McBeth of Kitchener and Vance Hunter of Picton, Ont., have been remanded after their conviction Dec. 2 for forcibly seizing Erwin Widmeyer Nov. 30 in Waterloo County by the car before a theft.

One of the youths took over the wheel of the car and drove to Barrie and then to Sudbury. They forced Widmeyer to buy gasoline along the way and to give them $10.

Most Unusual 'Explanation' Says Diefenbaker

TORONTO (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Thursday night Prime Minister Pearson has given a "most unusual explanation" of forgetting that he was told Sept. 2 about the bribery allegation against a government executive assistant.

He described the prime minister's statements in the Commons earlier in the day as an attempt to "explain the unexplainable, unscreen the inscreenable and resolve the unresolvable."

In a speech at a party rally, Mr. Diefenbaker noted that Mr. Pearson had told the Dorion commission by letter Wednesday that he first heard of the allegation Sept. 2, although he had earlier told the Commons it was Nov. 22.

His subsequent statement to the House, Mr. Diefenbaker said, constituted "a most unusual explanation that the prime minister of Canada, in the face of allegations heard Sept. 2, had forgotten all about them."

GIVES HIS VERSION

The Progressive Conservative leader said it amounted to the prime minister telling the House:

"What I said, I said, but I don't want it interpreted the way I said. I want it interpreted the way I said yesterday, having thought it over for six long weeks."

"These are things that indicate the degree of carelessness that permeates the present government," Mr. Diefenbaker said to about 300 persons attending a coffee-and-cake testimonial rally for himself and Mrs. Diefenbaker at a west - end Czechoslovakian hall.

Arthur Maloney, former Conservative member of Parliament for Toronto Parkdale and head of a newly-formed group pressing for abolition of the death penalty, was chairman. Mr. Diefenbaker said he has the possibility of achieving abolition now is "not remote."

Addressing an audience of mixed races, he accused the Liberal government of "creating the greatest division in Canadian history by setting province against province and race against race."

Changes in a repatriated constitution that would enable a combination of provinces to reduce the powers of the federal government, such as Mr. Diefenbaker charged the Liberals were permitting, could result in placing peoples of some races in secondary positions.

They would create "associate states" within Canada, "and we don't want in Canada the setting up of provincial associates states."

This situation could come about, too, by allowing provinces to opt out of federal-provincial programs without the opposition was going to examine the opting-out legislation carefully.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

The dour poker-faced bevy of Russian puckchasers tossed the pours of Canadian critics in their faces last night when they handed our Nationals a decisive 6-1 defeat to add to their initial 4-0 shellacking.

The Smythes and others who attempt to save our hockey face by calling the Canadian team "poor opposition" apparently forget that the Maple Leaf—Oops, Red Ensign—ever held a 7-3-1 record with the clubs of the Central Professional League, supposed to be the junior feed-box of the National League.

If what is called our top amateur club is "poor opposition" then so are the minor pro clubs. The Russians, minus their first string line, defeated that pro-junior club after stepping off their plane, then whumped the Nationals 4-0 for good measure.

Last night's game proved beyond a doubt the Soviets can beat anything we've got that totes an amateur tag and can scare the hell out of anything in the minor pro circuits. It is beginning to look like the travelling twerinkes cannot be handled by anything less than a National Hockey League club.

There is no doubt now that the Russian squad is by far the best to leave their native steppes for an invasion of the capitalistic countries. And it could very well prance through the current North American tour without a blemish of defeat, including that six-game tournament in Colorado Springs, unless, as friend Lou Taylor remarks, "they equip the oppodicles with bazookas."

And in case you're interested, Comrade Tarasov's athletes who hold the world "amateur" title, defeated their country cousins from Czechoslovakia, 5-0 and 7-0, then whomped the Swedish team, said to be the second best club in Europe, 4-2 and 4-0.

And if they went out there and pulled out all the stops, but the cookie-pie silver that they would chain Stafford Smythes' "Best Old Men" clean out of the rink—and you can toss in Doug Harvey and Gump Worsley for good measure.

As one fair-minded Canadian hockey man who has travelled extensively through Europe with our world hockey clubs—and knows whereof he speaks, remarks: "This is the finest hockey team the Russians have yet developed. It is better in every respect than any predecessor. The critics who name the Canada hockey might well remember that Ulf Sterner, a Swede, who is rated a sure-fire NHL star and is now doing very well with Baltimore of the American Hockey League, isn't in the same class as half-a-dozen of the Russians."

Canada hasn't made a Russian team say "uncle" since that day in early March, 1961, when the Trail Smoke Eaters upset the Men of Moscow 6-1 at Geneva. And it looks like plenty of changes will have to be made before that lonely red maple leaf on its white background makes its inaugural bow from the world championship pedestal.

"This," writes Lou (Kitchener Record) Taylor, "is a mature, pleasing hockey club. Perhaps they couldn't beat an NHL team, but it would be a tough club to beat against it under European rules in Russia. And it would be a lot better match than a good many pro-ams to believe right here in North America."

"The fact is," he says, "the Europeans are beating us not on rules but on fundamentals like better skating, passing and shooting. They are demonstrating what we used to enjoy in the way of hockey in Canada before we decided that speed skating and roughing in the corner was a better way to excellence."

Fleming Paces Win * * * * * * Tremblay Breaks Leg

Bruins Pluck Wings; Habs, Leafs Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It used to be that Reggie Fleming preserved his place in the National Hockey League by throwing his weight around.

But lately, with Boston Bruins, tough - guy Fleming has been displaying considerable aptitude with the puck around the net.

Reggie's best season in four years with Chicago Black Hawks produced seven goals and nine assists for a slim 16 points. He has already surpassed that mark in the current season with Boston.

Thursday night, as the Bruins defeated the Red Wings 5-3 in Detroit, Fleming contributed to the victory with a goal and an assist, giving him a total of 18, seven of them goals.

In the other NHL game Thursday night, Montreal Canadiens overcame a two-goal deficit to tie the visiting Toronto Maple Leafs 3-3.

The tie was a costly one for the Montrealers. Winger Gilles Tremblay was lost to them for the season with a broken right leg, the result of a crushing end-zone board check by Ron Ellis.

LEAFS TAKE OVER

The first period ended in a scoreless tie. The Leafs took over in the second, firing 16 shots at goalie Charlie Hodge.

Frank Mahovlich finally scored for Toronto on a power play at 18:38. His took a goal-mouth pass from Dave Keon, who relayed the puck from Andy Bathgate at centre.

Leafs went ahead 2-0 early in the third period on a hard blueline slap shot by Carl Brewer. John Ferguson got Montreal's first on a hard, close-in shot at 8:30. Less than four minutes later, Jacques Laperriere clicked on a partly - screened backhander from 25 feet out. The tie left Canadiens with a two-point lead in the NHL standings.

In Detroit the only time the home team held the lead was for seven minutes in the first period after veteran Ted Lindsay opened the scoring at 2:30.

Deal Prentice tied it up at 9:34 and Tom Williams put the Bruins in front six minutes later. The period ended in a 3-3 deadlock after Parker Macdonald scored from Alex Delvecchio and Gordie Howe.

The second period opened with a three-goal flurry, two by Boston, scored within 39 seconds.

Fleming got his at 1:49, but the lead disappeared quickly when Delvecchio knotted the score again at 2:11. Murray Oliver counted their third goal on a power play at 2:46.

Less than five minutes later, Fleming dug the puck out of the corner and flipped it to McDonald, who scored before goalie Roger Crozier could move.

The third period was scoreless.

The victory was the first for the Bruins on Detroit ice in 14 outings.

In weekend NHL action, Chicago visits Montreal Saturday and Boston Sunday. New York Rangers play at Toronto Saturday and are hosts to Montreal Sunday.

In Sunday's third game, Toronto plays at Detroit.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto forward Andy Bathgate was the only one of the National Hockey League's scoring leaders to move ahead in Thursday night's games.

Bathgate picked up one assist as the Maple Leafs tied 3-3 with the Canadiens in Montreal and moved from a seventh-place tie into a tie for sixth with two other players.

Phil Esposito of Chicago and Phil Goyette of New York share sixth spot with Bathgate, all having 23 points.

Bobby Hull and Bobby Hull still holds the league leadership in both goals, with 33, and total points, 59. His teammate Stan Mikita leads in assists with 26.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	PTS.
Hull, Chicago	33	26	59
Mikita, Chicago	8	32	31
Ullman, Detroit	13	15	27
Provost, Montreal	9	17	26

Savoie, Durelle Tonight

MONTREAL (CP) — Veteran middleweight Armand Savoie of Montreal boxed a brisk eight rounds with a sparring partner Thursday to wind up his training for Monday night's 10-round bout against Canadian champion Joey Durelle.

Durelle's camp said the champion will finish his training for the non-title match tonight. Durelle, a native of Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., now fights out of Trois-Rivieres, Que.

Savoie, 33, who once earned a world title shot at Jimmy Carter, feels experience will tell against Durelle.

Winner Meets Chargers

Patriots, Bills Clash For Crown

BOSTON (AP) — The whole season will be wrapped up in one game for two teams Sunday when Buffalo Bills and Boston Patriots meet for the championship of the eastern division in the American Football League.

The winner will oppose the western champion San Diego Chargers for the league title Dec. 26.

The Patriots have been picked as 2½ point favorites by the oddsmakers, primarily because the team will be at Boston's Fenway Park and because the Patriots defeated the Bills 36-28 in their Nov. 15 meeting.

One of the game's highlights will be the meeting of Gino Cappelletti, chosen the league's Most Valuable Player, and Cookie Gilchrist, the hard-charging Buffalo fullback who was the only unanimous choice to the AFL's all-star team.

The last time the two players clashed, Cappelletti was on top, catching three touchdown passes, kicking three converts and grabbing a two - point conversion pass.

Boston (10-2-1) must win Sunday to capture the title. Buffalo (11-2-0) can take it with either a victory or a tie.

Patriots coach Mike Holovak believes the back - to - the-wall situation gives his team a slight psychological edge.

Buffalo coach Lou Saban has not decided who will be his No. 1 quarterback for the climactic clash. Jack Kemp started all but one game but the last-minute hurdles of reserve quarterback Daryle Lamonica have made him a favorite of Buffalo fans.

Gilchrist needs just 71 more yards to become the first player in the AFL to gain 1,000 yards in two different seasons.

In the other games of the quarterback final week of the AFL's fifth season, San Diego closes out at Oakland against a Raider team that's tougher than its record indicates, New York Jets visit Kansas City Chiefs and Denver is at Houston.

Win See-Saw Battle 5-4

Picton Squeezes Past Juniors

PICTON (Staff) — A goal midway through the third period supplied the Picton Merchants with a hard-fought, see-saw 5-4 victory over the league-leading Belleville "B's" in OHA Eastern junior puck play here last night.

Belleville outshot the home squad in every period, 41-30 overall, but never more than one goal separated the clubs in one of the season's tightest battles here.

The "B's" led twice in the first period but it ended 2-2. Picton came up in the second but it was 3-3 game going into the final chapter.

Again the Merchants moved ahead 4-3 but Belleville ripped back to tie. Then came the deciding marker.

George Bulgajewski fired the game-winning goal, on a three-way play with Hopkins and Haddock, at 9:16 while the clubs were playing five aside. The "B's" battled hard for another equalizer but Holmes and his mates hung on to preserve the slight decision.

In the opening period, Carl Boomhower showed the "B's" in front at 1:48, assisted by Bob Boyle and Steve White. Three minutes later it was 1-1 on a goal by Billy Hopkins, assisted by Bulgajewski and Gary Haenbel.

Belleville took a 2-1 lead while the Merchants had a man off at 14:50. Bob Boyle was the triggerman on this one, aided by Jim Rutherford and Grant Hagerman.

It took Picton exactly one minute to tie it again, on Bart Frederick's goal, with Bob Thompson helping.

Merchants took the lead for the first time at 10:58 of the middle frame. Paul Jones scored the goal, assisted by Billy Hicks after the teams had survived a rash of minor penalties.

Belleville's Larry Stewart made it 3-3, on a play with Pete Fleming, at 12:26, to close the second-period scoring.

The Merchants' Riley still had four seconds of a minor penalty to serve when team-mate Gary Haenel completed a play with Doug Pettingill to make it a 4-3 game at 4:41 of the third.

That lead lasted less than three minutes. Pete Fleming zapped home Belleville's final goal, assisted by Stewart, at 7:06.

Stewart and Frederick went off together for roughing at 9:01 and then came Bulgajewski's winner.

All 14 of the game's penalties were minors. Picton picked up nine of the total.

Larry Holmes' strong work in the Picton nets was credited with making the difference, spoiling a good team effort by the Belleville boys.

Merchants play next in Napanee on Saturday night and in Gananoque Sunday evening. The "B's" next game will be in Peterborough on Monday night.

Russians Defeat Nationals 6-1

WINNIPEG (CP) — Russia's national hockey team made the most of its scoring opportunities to hand the Canadian national team a 6-1 defeat Thursday night in their second meeting of the current Russian tour.

The Canadians, beaten 4-0 in Toronto last Sunday, were reinforced by defencemen Paul Conlin and Barry MacKenzie, veterans of last year's Olympic team who missed the Toronto game. But they were unable to cage with the visitors' deft passing and accurate shooting.

"Individual mistakes killed us," said Canadian coach Gord Simpson. "At least two of the goals were scored on man-to-man situations. This is a hockey sin."

Simpson, coach of Winnipeg Maroons, the 1962 Allan Cup champions who form the nucleus of the Canadian team, thought the losers played a better game than in Toronto, despite the wider gap in the score.

"We're not getting the chances we usually do and when we get them we're not taking advantage of the opportunity. But let's not kid ourselves, the Russians are a pretty good club."

HAVE WON THREE

The victory gave the tourists three wins and a tie against a team of Lakehead All-Stars at Fort William Tuesday night—at the halfway point of their eight-game schedule. They defeated Montreal Junior Canadiens, reinforced by six American League professionals, in their first game at Montreal a week ago tonight.

Rev. David Bauer, coach of last year's Olympic entry and an adviser to the current team, commended the accuracy of the Russians' shooting, the most impressive of their tour.

"I would think they had only eight good opportunities to score," he said, "and they got six goals."

Three of them came on hard shots that caught the upper left corner.

The Canadians led early in the first period when Fred Dunsmore scored their only goal. But the Russians tied the score less than two minutes later, led 3-1 at the end of the first period and pulled away comfortably with three more goals in the last period.

Konstantin Loktev and Vyacheslav Starshinov, both veterans of international competition, scored two goals apiece with Alexander Almetov and Viktor Kuzkin getting the others.

Although Russian goalie Viktor Konovalenko had to make 28 stops to 18 for Canadian netminder Don Collins, most of the Canadian shots were fired at long range as the Soviet defence proved difficult to penetrate. The Canadians were able to get at Konovalenko consistently only in the last 10 minutes and they were unable to capitalize on their chances.

They also looked ragged defensively, giving away the puck on several occasions.

The Russians move to Saskatoon today to play the Quakers of the Saskatchewan Senior League before returning for a third meeting with the Canadian team here Sunday. They meet again in a tournament at Colorado Springs, Colo., during Christmas week before going overseas for the world championships at Tampere, Finland, next March.

DeJordy Showing Well

Hawks "Twin Goalies" Pay Off

By JERRY LISKA

CHICAGO (AP)—It isn't exactly platooning, but Chicago Black Hawks have joined the National Hockey League trend towards twin goalies.

This developed last week when veteran Glenn Hall, 33, benched himself for a rest and rookie Denis DeJordy, 26, jumped into the net and preceded for five successive victories.

DeJordy, who played only five full Hawk games last season, allowed just nine goals during the Hawk spurt, but five came in Wednesday night's 7-5 Hawk trimming of Boston Bruins here.

Can a rested Hall get his job back?

"We now have two goaltenders and they're both good ones," said coach Billy Reay Thursday. "Both will make the trip to Montreal and Boston this weekend.

"Whether it will be DeJordy or Hall at Montreal Saturday night is just a toss-up. There is not much difference between them, now. Whoever we have in the net, we're still sure to get good goal-keeping."

Among the six NHL teams, only Detroit Red Wings with Roger Crozier and Boston with Ed Johnston are one - goalie teams.

TORONTO ALTERNATES

Toronto's Maple Leafs have been alternating 40 - year - old John Bower and 33 - year - old Terry Sawchuk, former Red Wing star. The first - place Montreal Canadiens have Charley Hodge, last year's Vezina Trophy winner, being spelled by Gump Worsley, one - time New York Rangers' ace.

The Rangers have Marcel Pailis and Jacques Plante dividing time in the nets.

Reay doesn't like the term platooning.

"I don't believe in alternating goalies just to be alternating," he said. "It's a terrific strain for a goalie to be under the gun for 70 regular season games and then the playoffs and keep alert all the way.

"We like to think DeJordy has developed to the extent of being a good replacement when he's sent to rest Hall."

Hall, in his 10th full NHL season and eighth with the Hawks, had allowed 52 goals in 19 games, for a 2.74 average, before he asked Reay's permission to skip last week's three-game road trip.

DeJordy, a five - foot - nine, 155 - pound French - Canadian, played two Hawk games earlier this season and his over-all yield is 17 goals in seven contests for a 2.43 average.

Spurs Pay Near-Record Sum For Player

LONDON (Reuters) — The news that Tottenham Hotspur spent an estimated £73,500 ($217,200) for Alex Gibson, Scottish international forward, spotlighted the way transfer fees have shot up in England since the Second World War.

A few years ago this sum would have been a record fee a British team, yet it has been exceeded several times recently. Only a few weeks ago Arsenal paid some £80,000 for Derek McClintock, Leicester City wing half.

Gibson is not even the most expensive player on the books of Tottenham Hotspur. Jimmy Greaves, the England inside forward, cost the club £99,000 when he was signed from Milan in 1961.

The record fee paid by a British club has gone up from £14,000 paid by Arsenal for Welsh international Ryn Jones in 1938 to the £116,000 ($348000) which Denis Law cost Manchester United in 1962.

Rich Italian clubs such as Turin, Milan and Juventus have helped to boost fees in recent years, and it seems certain that the present record will be beaten soon.

TO BE JOINED

Gibson will be joined by another former Dundee player when Tottenham meets Everton on Saturday. He is Bill Brown, Scottish international goalkeeper, who returns to the first team.

There was bad news this week for Leeds United, chasing Chelsea and Manchester United for the league title. Alan Peacock, its English international centre forward, enters a nursing home today for an operation on the left injured knee which has kept him out of action all season.

Wolves, struggling at the bottom of the league, parted with Jimmy Mells, their inside forward, Wednesday night for more than £30,000 — a record for second division. Mells went to Southampton, whose manager Ted Bates, said: "I think Mells is just the type of forward we need to strengthen our promotion bid."

Mells plays for Southampton Saturday against another promotion challenging club, Newcastle United.

It was only nine months ago that Mells left Liverpool for Wolves for a fee of £30,000.

Dodgers Sign 4 Stars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers of the National League announced the signing Thursday of four of their star players — pitchers Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale and outfielders Wi.lli e Davis and Tommy Davis.

General Manager Buzzie Bavasi said Koufax and Drysdale will remain in the $70,000 salary area.

Willie Davis, who was reported to have received around $20,000 last year, moved up toward $30,000. Tommy Davis, who had a slump last year after winning the batting championship in 1962 and 1963, apparently took a cut from his previous $42,500.

Secondary Schools Wrestling Tourney Sat.

Under the sponsorship of the Lettermen's Club, Moira students will stage their 2nd annual invitational wrestling tournament on Saturday. The tournament was initiated last year under club president Dave Minion with the idea of developing local interest in this new interscholastic sport.

Already the tournament had been noted across the province and elsewhere as a top notch event. An entry from Watertown, N.Y., high school has already been received for next year's tournament.

This year wrestlers from Toronto, Kirkland Lake, Ottawa and Trenton will vie with grapplers from BCI and Moira for top honors in both team and individual events. Student committeemen Ted Fordham, John Lomes and Don Allin as well as this year's president, George Pugh feel that the level of competition will be much higher than at last year's event and see many close battles will take place.

Each is defend the trophy which they won last year, will be the talented wrestlers from Kirkland Lake Collegiate, and ready to do battle with them will be 1963 runner-up West Hill Collegiate, as well as newcomers Victoria Park from North York; Birchmount College, Scarboro; Bell High School, Ottawa, and Trenton High School.

Belleville Collegiate, entering Maracle, Len King and Ernie will have a team of experienced wrestlers mixed with some fast learning newcomers. Their more experienced boys are Joe for the first time this year, Maracle.

Moira, the host school and third place finishers in 1963, have several returnees ready to defend their school colors and determined to better their standing in last year's tournament. Gone are champions Lewcen, Breeching, King and Fritz, but strong replacements plan to be in top form to meet the challenges provided by the visiting schools. The Trojans will count on such seasoned performers as Jeff Singleton, D. Piperni, Ted Prodham, Keith Martin and Fred Donaldson. They look for assistance from such aggressive newcomers as Larry Young, Dennis Wood and Wayne Mowbray.

Matches get under way at 10.30 with the grand finale any rounds and carry on at 3 p.m. with the semi-final and consolation matches. The finals in all 12 weight classes are scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

Ferguson Big Help Habs' Backstrom Climbing

By JOE DUFUS

MONTREAL (CP) — Left winger John Ferguson is one reason why Montreal Canadiens are getting a lot more production this season from centre Ralph Backstrom.

Coach Toe Blake took Fergy aside early this fall and told him to "get after" Backstrom. 27, a moody third-string centre who scored only eight goals for the National Hockey League Canadiens last season.

Fergy is the team's policeman and Blake reasoned that some of the hook - nosed winger's pugnacious drive might rub off on Backstrom. It did.

The swift, 185-pound centre has already scored nine goals after 25 games. His seven assists give him 16 points, which makes him the fourth best point getter, with Gilles Tremblay, on the Montreal team.

"I'd get after him on the bench to build up his confidence," Ferguson confided. "I'd tell him, 'Ralphie, nobody

Perfect For Passing
1st "Inside" Bowl Game

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Passes should fill the air in Convention Hall Saturday when West Virginia and Utah open the post - season football parade in the sixth annual Liberty Bowl, the first major post-season game to be played indoors.

"It's just fantastic," said Utah coach Ray Nagel after his team worked out in the hall shortly after their arrival Thursday. "No wind. No rain. This is perfect for a good passing game."

West Virginia coach Gene Corum also said the weather conditions in the spacious hall were ideal for a passing attack.

Both teams were getting their first look Thursday at the indoor green grass, the towering 137-foot high ceiling, and the 400 mercury vapor lights which gave a daylight background to the banks of seats in the hall. Some of the players didn't like the lights.

"It's not as bad as the sun," said John Pease of Utah, "but you lose the ball when it gets up high."

Kickers from both teams sent booming punts skyward in an effort to hit the ceiling, 14 storeys above ground level. None succeeded.

The Liberty Bowl was frozen out five years in a row in Philadelphia.

Senior Scoring
Regals' Line Leads Race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Regals continued to dominate the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series scoring race last week with six men in the top 10, including three Regals tied for first place.

The big line of Joe Malo, Dave Luciuk and Don McGregor are deadlocked with 36 points each. Malo leads the circuit in goals with 17 while McGregor is tops in assists with 25. Each scored three points in two Guelph wins.

Joe Hogan of Galt Hornets holds down fourth spot with 29 points, followed by Vance Miller of Welland Burloaks with 28.

Guelph playing - coach Jack McIntyre, a former National Hockey League player, made the biggest jump after missing 11 games due to a broken jaw. McIntyre, who has scored eight points in three games since coming off the injured list, has 22 points and is tied for ninth place.

Regals' goalie Bost Hurley has allowed only 51 goals in 19 games and tops the goaltending department with a 2.68 average. Galt's Dave Dryden is second with a 3.25 average.

Williams Undergoes Surgery

HOUSTON (AP) — Heavyweight boxer Cleveland Williams, who was shot by a highway patrolman Nov. 28, underwent additional surgery Thursday to repair a kidney condition.

His doctor said the surgery at the time of the injury was not satisfactory.

"We are anxious to get him back in the ring," the doctor said. "We think he will make it and he certainly has desire. He's a good patient. I'm confident he will return to normal health but I don't know if he will be strong enough to take the punishment required of a heavyweight championship contender."

BOOSTS TOTAL

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — With the entry of 153 harness racing victories during the 1964 season, William R. Haughton of Glen Head, N.Y., has boosted his career total to 2,256, tops in the United States, the U.S. Trotting Association reported Thursday. Haughton added 20 victories to his previous lead over runner-up Joseph O'Brien, a Prince Edward Island native living in Shafter, Calif., who has 1,970. Only 30 drivers have accumulated 1,000 or more victories since the association was founded in 1939.

SIGN ASSISTANTS

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Lions have signed both assistant coaches for the 1965 season, General Manager Herb Capozzi announced the signing of Frank Johnson and Jim Champion, offensive and defensive coaches respectively of the Western Conference football club that won the Grey Cup this year. Capozzi did not disclose terms of the contracts.

Dec. 12, 1964.

Dear Sir:-

We wanted to write and say "thank you" for the friendly and personal service you have given us.

The wool shirts arrived on the day our young lad was sick in bed with the flu — he was quite cheered. They both fit the children fine and we were all happy with the transaction.

Never expecting to hear from you again, we were quite surprised to receive your letter and the money order. Living this far apart and in different countries, we fully expected you to write the balance off as handling expenses.

We send our sincere good wishes and will stop by your store if ever we go through your city again.

Very Truly Yours,
Mr. and Mrs. W. R.

Dave Steen Wins Men's Shot Put

HAVANA (CP)—Dave Steen of Burnaby, B.C., won the men's shot put with a toss of 59 feet, three inches Thursday night as a two - day international track and field meet with a sprinkling of Canadian talent wound up in the Cuban capital.

Steen, the first Canadian to heave the shot more than 59 feet, easily defeated a mediocre field. The 21-year-old student at the University of Oregon was almost 12 feet better than his nearest rival, Cuba's Carlos Diaz, whose best toss was 46 feet 3¼ inches.

The dark - haired Steen, 6 six - foot - four 216 - pounder who has been working on the shot for a little more than three years, provided the lone Canadian victory of the meet in which 13 countries took part. Jerry Moro of Trail, B.C., barely missed winning a second first - placing for Canada in the pole vault. Moro and East Germany's Wolfgang Nordwig each vaulted 4.50 metres (14 feet, 9¼ inches) but the German was placed first because he took one less try.

MAKES THREE TRIES

Moro reached 14-9¼ on his third try, Nordwig did it on his second attempt. The 21-year-old Canadian was far off his Olympic performance at the Tokyo Games last October when he placed 10th with 15-5, equalling the Olympic mark. Moro's best jump is 15-6.

Jenny Wingerson of Toronto finished third in the women's 80-metre hurdles, well behind East Germany's Karin Balzer, the Olympic champion who clocked 10.9 seconds. 4-10ths of a second off the world mark she shares with several other women.

Irina Press, one of the famed Russian Press sisters, was second in 11.1 seconds. Irina won the Olympic pentathlon gold medal at Tokyo.

Miss Wingerson, who also competed in Tokyo, was clocked in 11.5 seconds. The 21-year-old blonde Canadian also was third in the women's 100-metre dash Wednesday night.

Jets' Snell Top Rookie

NEW YORK (AP) — Matt Snell, New York Jets fullback, collected one title today — the American Football League's Rookie of the Year—and aimed for another.

"I'd like to get that groundgaining title," Snell said. "I'm behind right now, but you never know. One good run and I'll be right in the race."

Snell, with 843 yard son 190 carries, is 57 yards behind Cookie Gilchrist of Buffalo Bills and both have one game to go. The AFL schedule ends Sunday with the Jets facing Kansas City Chiefs while the Bills meet Boston Patriots for the eastern division title.

Snell made a runaway of the voting for AFL rookie with 16 of the 34 votes cast by sports writers and broadcasters from the eight league cities. The runner - up, halfback Sid Blanks of Houston Colts, got six.

Betting Sets New Record

NEW YORK (AP) — More than $4,000,000,000 was legally wagered on horse races in a single year in the United States for the first time in history in 1964, the annual pari-mutuel survey of The Associated Press showed today.

The record combined total for the thoroughbreds and the trotters was $4,318,747,489, up from the 1963 total of $3,869,593,925. The total was wagered by a record attendance of 69,718,540, an increase of more than five million from the 3,367,983 a year ago.

A record $161,1,313 was bet in Canada on the thoroughbreds.

"Willie" Slugging Champ.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Willie Mays, San Francisco's hard-hitting outfielder, captured the National League slugging championship for the fourth time last season, the official averages disclosed today.

Mays finished with a .607 mark on 351 total bases in 578 times at bat. The Giants' star also won the title in 1954, 1955 and 1957.

Mays collected 21 doubles, nine triples and a league-leading 47 homers among 179 hits in 1964. He also extended two NL records: Highest career slugging average, .589, and most consecutive years, 300 or more total bases, 11.

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

Taxpayers who are in receipt of rental income must use the T1 General Income Tax form to show it. The T1 general provides space to show the total rents received and the expenses chargeable as a deduction from this type of income. There is also space to compute the capital cost allowance (depreciation).

I would advise taxpayers to consider carefully any claim for capital cost allowance because if they intend to only rent the property for a short time, the claim for depreciation may not be to their advantage. Any amount claimed for capital cost allowance becomes taxable income in the year of sale, providing the property was sold at a profit.

I have received many letters from taxpayers who have lived in a house for many years, then built a new one and rented the other. They do not know how to determine the cost of the one they are renting. The figure to use in such cases is the fair market value of the house at the time it was first rented. A competent realtor could determine this figure for you.

Confusion often arises between current and capital expenses. It is only the current expenses that are deductible from the rents received and these would include minor repairs, taxes, insurance, painting and papering etc. Any major outlay that increases the value of the property must be added to the new total. Capital expenses are additions to the building, new floors, new plumbing, new wiring, etc.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25 cents in coin for each question you wish answered.

QUESTION: I put in a blacktop driveway and parking lot at the rear of my four apartment building. Can I claim this cost against the rent I receive?

ANSWER: No. This is a class 1 asset which can be depreciated at 4 percent.

QUESTION: I lived in my house for 30 years but now am renting it. How do I determine its capital cost?

Answer: use the fair market value at the time of renting.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"If it's not too late, I think we'd better take out some health insurance on it."

Middle-Age And Santa

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—A middle-aged man believes in Santa Claus just as much as a child does.

But he views the annual visit of the jolly old saint with considerable more misgiving. Experience has taught him a certain distrust of people bearing gifts.

On Christmas Eve the child slips into a heavy-lidded sleep with mixed feelings of terror and delight.

Has he been a good enough boy to please Santa? Will Santa bring him all the bright new toys he yearned for, or merely leave a lump of coal in his stocking to show disapproval?

But he smiles in his dreams, for deep in his small heart he knows he won't be let down.

The middle-aged man, on the other hand, goes to bed on Christmas Eve with a feeling of forlorn apprehension about the gifts he is about to receive and will have no use for.

Sure enough, when the middle-aged man arises on Yuletide morn, his worst fears are confirmed.

MIXED BAG

Without opening his packages, he knows what they will contain:

Six pairs of socks, three of which are of a startling plaid variety that would frighten a scarecrow out of a cornfield.

Two mufflers. (He already has 13 mufflers left over from previous Christmases.)

Three pairs of size 36 polka dot shorts. (Can't anyone remember he hasn't been able to get into size 36 shorts since coming back from the Second World War?)

A 50-cent white handkerchief from the apartment house superintendent, who will expect in return a bottle of scotch and a $10 bill.

Anywhere from two to a half dozen dazzling neckties of the kind bought only to send to middle-aged men at Christmas.

Glumly surveying the loot that Santa has left him, the middle - aged man wonders dazedly what he can do with it.

A practised glance tells him that he can use three pairs of the socks, the handkerchief and maybe half the neckties. But what about the rest?

If he hides it for a year and then mails it to friends next Christmas, they will merely hide it a year and mail it back to him.

If he throws it into the river, it will refuse to sink. If he donates it to a missionary service collecting garments for overseas, it will only start a riot among outraged natives in a foreign country.

Standing there with the packages in his arms and his family looking at him expectantly, the middle-aged man realizes he can do only one thing with his loot—grin and wear it.

"Just what I wanted!" he cries with false gladness, as the tears roll down his timorous cheeks. And the only thing that cheers him is the realization that Santa won't come again for 365 more days.

WILDER'S ART

'Bewitched', ABC Comedy, Is Making Biggest Hit

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The new series that seems to have made the biggest hit with television audiences this season is Bewitched, an ABC comedy about a pretty young witch married to an average sort of young man who disapproves of ma gic.

It deserves its popularity. The principal performers, Elizabeth Montgomery and Dick York, are attractive and adroit. The scripts are ingenious, witty and full of unexpected asides.

Thursday night, Samantha, the young witch who is trying to kick the sorcery habit, meets her in-laws for the first time. The situation is complicated by the unexpected arrival by her elderly Aunt Clara, who is not as competent at witchcraft as she used to be.

Marian Lorne, with her vague ways, makes a perfect Aunt Clara, particularly when recalling sadly how she used to be able to enter homes by way of the chimney "clean as a whistle," and depart through the walls, "just like butter."

IS SATISFACTORY

It was a warm and satisfactory episode—the happiest spot found in an evening of channel jumping.

CBS' Perry Mason was one of those incredibly complicated tales about a maiden in distress and an incidental murder. Perry somehow sifted the culprit out of a large number of suspects although how he made the deduction never was made clear.

Television's other Perry — Como—had one of his occasional specials on NBC Thursday night. The singer travelled to Rome for his Christmas show and most of the program was filmed on location with Perry wandering around the old city.

Como's shows had more pace, spirit and lively dialogue in the old days when he was turning out one a week in a rehearsal hall a block from Broadway.

George Segal Being Hailed As New Dramatic Star in '65

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Money buys happiness," says actor George Segal as he surveys the most important year of his life. He spent years in off-Broadway plays at $45 a week.

"Now my wife and I can afford a girl to watch the baby. We can go out every night of the week if we want to—and sometimes we do.

George Segal is a happy actor, and no wonder. His 30th year has brought him the kind of success an actor's dreams are made of. He has appeared in Invitation to a Gunfighter, and The New Interns. He joined the international cast of Ship of Fools and now is finishing the title role in King Rat.

How did it all happen?

HE'S NOT SURE

"I'm not sure," says George. "I can't say that I was any less prepared for it five years ago than I was this year. Certainly I was just as eager for it to happen. But I guess I had to wait for certain things to happen."

If Segal hadn't had an oddstyle, hard-sell agent, who fell to his knees to plead for a role for his boy in Invitation to a Gunfighter . . . if George hadn't been at a party where he met Robert Cohn, producer of The New Interns . . . if Ship of Fools producer-director Stanley Kramer hadn't also produced Invitation to a Gunfighter . . . and so on.

Anyway, it did happen, and Segal is being hailed as the new dramatic star for 1965.

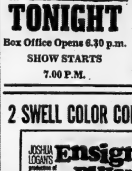
After serving in the U.S. Army, he entered the off-Broadway jungle. He managed to survive economically only because his wife, Marian Sobol, was a story editor for CBS.

Toronto Rabbi Charged With Radio Smuggling

TORONTO (CP)—Rabbi Samuel Malerovitz, 50, of Toronto, and Alois Witkowski, 35, a Buffalo truck driver, were remanded Thursday to Dec. 23 on charges of smuggling radios into Canada from the United States.

Police confiscated 600 Japanese transistor radios from a truck Thursday, and later seized another 700 radios from a Toronto importing firm owned by Malerovitz.

Rabbi Malerovitz said he studied at a rabbinical college in Europe and led a congregation for six years before coming to Canada. In this country he has been without a congregation, but continues his rabbinical duties in the religious preparation of meat for Toronto.



Magistrate Robert Dineper brought assurance that Rabbi Malerovitz would be fed kosher food at the city jail if he is unable to raise $4,000 cash bail.

Lawyer Allan Minz, who was called into the court room, told the magistrate that the Canadian Jewish Congress will deliver food acceptable to the rabbi.

A Revolution Builds Against Stupidities of British Life

LONDON (CP) — The newcomer from abroad, distracted by the other joys of the London life, may hardly notice it at first. When it does eventually creep into his consciousness he perhaps finds it somewhat charming, rather quaint.
But, inevitably, indulgent amusement turns to outright irritation and the honeymoon is over.
It comes when he tries to have a lease drawn up, and finds a hundred and one barriers thrown up to keep him from moving in for a month. It comes when he goes to buy a car, or a refrigerator or a rocking horse—and can't get delivery for weeks; when he first sends a suit to be cleaned, tries to get a faulty tap fixed, an additional electric outlet installed, or buy a loaf of bread after 6 p.m.
"It" is what most Britons rather complacently call resistance to "Americanation" and what most newcomers call plain inefficiency.
After the first few violent collisions they settle down in indifference, a few pick themselves up and fight on for a year or until they develop an ulcer complicated by frequent bouts of near-apoplexy.
But the wise ones quit the battle, their spirit broken, and philosophically, from the British pace of life, their only consolation a growing repertoire of unprintable terms in which they are invariably the goat, outwitted with boring regularity by the quiet consistency of the customer-is-always-wrong school.

ACCEPTED DELAYS

Until recently most Britons, although fatalistic about it, took almost a good-humored sympathy for the complaints of strangers who can't get used to waiting a week for the laundry, six weeks for a suit to be tailored or 20 minutes for a taxi.
But suddenly there is evidence of a creeping revolution in the land. The word "inefficiency" has been added to the English language as spoken by the Egg, and for the Egg, refers to themselves.
Shocked by the recent threat of economic disaster and some down-to-earth criticism from overseas' customers, we are gradually seem to be responding to a campaign, led by the press, unions and government officials, government ministers and peers, to bring home the fact that exports are the life-blood of the nation and that they are losing the battle on all fronts.

ting correspondence and printed instructions in English only.

Journalist Des Wells, who has been waging a one-woman campaign for years, wrote recently that the trouble with Britain is that "we are buck-passing, inefficient bystanders."

The British, she said in an article in The Sun, are clever people with technical know-how and brains, but "on every level, the national inclination is to say 'Yes,' mean 'No,' and duck out for a cup of tea if the customer complains."

She recites a long list of recent shopping adventures, including: Kitchen cabinet delivery in 11 weeks); carpet (got wrong estimate, two selection out of stock for two months); curtains (three months); engraved cufflinks for a next-week birthday (sorry, it takes a month).

"Because I cannot have a new carpet before the end of January, is not, perhaps, a national tragedy," she concludes. "But in microcosm, these things ARE the national tragedy. It is all that sort of work, false promises and customer-cursing is the national malady.

"We may have to accept it. But the rest of the world doesn't have to."

Vincent Mulchrone, recently in the United States as writer for The Daily Mail a delightful article in which he said "the fundamental theory here is that life should be made more simple while we learn to think that it is simple. That is somehow immoral."

What impressed him most was the "brilliant, willing, quick-as-a-flash telephone service" in the United States.

And what depressed him about coming home was the burst water tank facing him.

"Ahead of me lies a mound of correspondence before I get—as I know I shall—absolutely no satisfaction at all."

Mulchrone has a strong ally in Anne Scott-James, a colleague on The Sunday Times, particularly regarding the British telephone system.

"I think people are feeling an absolute hunger for efficiency," she wrote. "I myself feel an affectionate gratitude whenever I find it. Conversely, homicidal rage will come over me when I even think about the telephone."

Why, then, is it that Britain, alone among all the developed countries, has acquired such a bad reputation for inefficiency?

NO COMPLAINTS

One simple answer leaps immediately to the minds of most visitors: It's because the British never complain. Several psychiatrists have even suggested that the turn-the-other-cheek attitude, a hangover from the war years when it was considered not only vulgar, but downright unpatriotic, is to blame.

plied universally since many countries with better export records pay higher wages.

Others suggest it is the culmination of years of bad union-management relations and also bickering among the myriad unions which have long resisted amalgamation.

In Britain it takes 22 unions to build a car, while in North America only one is involved. Union chiefs have openly admit that they compete among themselves for members, jealously guard their little kingdoms and shun attempts at amalgamation.

Novelist C. P. Snow, who became Lord Snow when he was appointed assistant to the ministry of techn.logy, said in his maiden speech that "over a great range of industries the Americans tend to produce per man about two to four times what Britain produces."

The big enemies of efficiency are "overemployment," under which industries in low unemployment areas keep more men than required against a time when they will be needed; and "restrictive practices," under which unions demand job protection for men who have actually been eliminated through automation or for other reasons. The most glaring example is in the newspaper industry where the unions employ literally thousands of production men it has no work for.

The school of thought, with many adherents, is reflected in a letter to The Times in which a reader objects to "Americanese" and points out that unemployment in efficient America was 5 per cent compared with 2 per cent in Britain—where men have jobs even if there isn't any work for them.

Not Caesar, But Christ

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

In 1800 when all Europe trembled at the tramp of Napoleon's armies, a baby was born in a crude log cabin near Hodgenville, Kentucky. Compared to the exploits of Napoleon, the birth of a baby in an obscure frontier village in America must have seemed like unimportant news, but Napoleon's power has long since ended while the words and influence of Nancy Hanks Lincoln's son still bless the world.

Two thousand years ago, Caesar's armies spread out to the ends of the earth. They made Caesar the most feared man in the world. While they were enforcing his edicts, a baby was born in a far-off corner of his empire into an extremely humble home. Yet long after Caesar's throne has crumbled to dust, that baby, called the Christ Child, is enthroned in the hearts of millions.

So often man's way of trying to solve world problems is by battles. God's way is by babies — babies who grow up to be scientists, educators, doctors, nurses, statesmen, prophets, priests, etc. He works through the servants of mankind, not the exploiters. Someone has said that the birth of each new child shows that God has not yet completely despaired of men.

FULFILLMENT AND FREEDOM

Two great ideas stand out in Matthew's interpretation of Jesus' birth. The first is that God Himself spoke through the life of Jesus to answer an ancient hope that God would one day send a Leader who would lead men to peace and goodwill. The second is that God's purpose was to save men from their sins.

Much of this sounds strange to modern ears. Men today do not think of sin as their greatest problem, or of salvation as their greatest need. Yet men's lives today are riddled with hopelessness and fear. They may not fear the wrath of God or the horrors of hell as their forefathers did, but they fear a world without freedom; they fear a world stomized by the solar heat of an atomic holocaust; they fear death, even more, they fear a life that has lost its meaning. They fear what Dr. R. A. Ralston calls "walking along the edge of emptiness."

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for December 20: "The Birth Of Christ," Matthew 1.

But is this not, where millions today are walking? They turn desperately to that which can save them from an empty life. They turn to pleasure, ambition, activity. Still the fulfillment they seek eludes them. They need to learn that complete fulfilment is impossible apart from God.

It was this fact says Matthew, Jesus came to show them. Many doubted then, as many do now, that God could speak definitely through one man, so humbly. "We know where this man comes from." they said, "And when the Christ appears no one will know where He comes from." (John 7:27 RSV)

Yet, as Isaiah saw so clearly (Isaiah 53), God's truth could only be revealed by one who came to serve, not to be served; to change man by compassion, not compulsion; one who came to bring God down to men through acts of healing and love not to hold men up before the wrath of an angry God.

NOT CAESAR, BUT CHRIST

Men still seek a world of peace, a world in which they can live without fear. But such a world must come, through faith, not force. It must come through love and goodwill. It will only come through those who want more to serve than to be served, who experience compassion rather than exercise compulsion, through self-denial, not self-seeking, through turning back to God, not in running from Him.

That God has shown the way through one born as a little child in a humble home is the Christmas message. This is the message that for all Christians has made Bethlehem the spiritual carnival of the world. So God broke — and so He still speaks. Not through haughty might, but through humble dwelling; not through dreaded armies, but defiatated homes; not through compulsion, but compassion; not through Caesar, but Christ

Cyprus Solution No Closer

By ALAN WALKER

NICOSIA (CP)—"If I spit upwards, I spit on my face; if downwards, on my beard."

As Cyprus heads into a new year, an escape from its dilemma Cypriots pose in their own proverb seems no nearer —but no farther either.

Partition, union with Greece, full independence—all are possibilities, but they find objections in either the Turkish or Greek communities of this blood-stained island, ironically the legendary birthplace of the goddess of love.

Meanwhile, the United Nations force presides over an uneasy peace. It came for three months, which became six and then nine, now is heading for 12.

There hasn't been any serious fighting between Greek and Turk since August and, relative terms, normal conditions prevail.

Olives, carobs, lemons and grapes are harvested in respective seasons while grind inexorably past. Shepherds tend their goats and sheep with characteristic Byzantine lethargy.

But barbed wire and sandbags are everywhere. Troops in varied uniforms guard roadblocks and lkily twirl machine-guns—as they sit in the Mediterranean sunshine.

CONCERN FELT ABROAD

Outside the island fingers from many lands nervously prod the Cyprus pie. Greece has her debt to the country's 80 - per - cent Greek population. Turkey is concerned about the 17-per-cent Turkish minority here.

Britain has her sovereign bases to fret about as well as a feeling of responsibility for her former colony, now in the Commonwealth. The United States views with a 20th century alarm the growing strength of communism among Greek-Cypriots and worries about weakening NATO of which both Greece and Turkey are members. The brooding figure of Russia also expresses interest in the island's future—or fate.

Intercommunal fighting between Turk and Greek drew British soldiers out of the sovereign base areas a year ago to quell the chaos, at the request of the Greek-Cypriot president, Archbishop Makarios. Britain asked the UN to take over and the Security Council resolved March 4 to set up a peace force for three months. About 1,000 members of the Royal 22nd Regiment (Van Doos) flown in between March 14 and 28 helped preserve a shaky ceasefire.

Heavy fighting broke out again between Greek and Turk Aug. 5 in northwest Cyprus outside the Canadian area of responsibility, and jet aircraft from Turkey flew in to back up the Turkish-Cypriots, killing an estimated 53.

ESCORT CONVOYS

In September the Van Doos were returned to Canada and the 1st Battalion, Canadian Guards, took over.

The vital Kyrenia Road stretching through Turkish territory was opened to Greek-Cypriots Oct. 26. Canadians provided protective escorts for the daily convoys along the 16-mile route.

What next? Officers commanding the Canadian contingent, which forms the largest single unit of the UN force, take grim delight in quoting the last Cyprus governor Sir Hugh Foot's wry but uncomfortable axiom:

"Anyone who understands the Cyprus situation has been misinformed."

But one can with some certainty foretell the immediate future.

The Greek - Cypriot government will probably strive for peace here; will lull and woo the Turkish minority, hoping to make a good impression on the UN.

Then Makarios hopes for a recommendation by the UN General=Assembly that the island should determine its own future by the democratic "one man, one vote" principle. Makarios and his Greek-Cypriots outnumber the Turks by about five to one. Depending on whether Makarios decides to "implement the General Assembly resolution gradually or immediately, fighting could result.

EXPECT REFERENDUM

But eventually there should be a referendum offering alternatives, perhaps, of independence for the island; complete union with Greece; or partial union with Greece. Enosis—union with Greece—in any form would stir Turkish - Cypriot wrath. Independence without explicit safeguards for the Turkish-Cypriot minority would likely produce fireworks and the Greek - Cypriots seem to have little interest in providing such safeguards.

It would appear, then, that no matter what the outcome of the referendum, Turkish - Cypriots would oppose it. Their leader, Dr. Fazil Kuchuk, insists on partition of the island into two separate communities, yet is separate rule for each.

Many suspect that following a satisfactory UN resolution, Makarios would ease most of the UN force off the island. Then, arguing that overcoming Turkish resistance by force would merely be carrying out the assembly resolution calling for self-determination, he could say the Turkish-Cypriots were terrorists. And if Turkey threatened to come to the Turkish-Cypriots aid—Makarios could appeal to the UN to stop interference in what he would say was a United Nations - sponsored act.

FACES TWIN PROBLEMS

That seems the line of current Greek - Cypriot thinking. But something could go wrong almost anywhere along the line.

There is even the possibility that either Makarios or Kuchuk might step forward and make an offer to generous that the other would accept.

And for all Makarios, apparent superiority, he has two key problems. One is an internal split in the Greek-Cypriot bloc. The other is the possibility of Russians sliding with Turkey in an open dispute over Cyprus.

It is generally said that all Greek-Cypriots want Enosis but this is far from true. Some observers feel that even Makarios himself, for all his public utterances, would prefer an independent island.

Greek - Cypriot complacency was shattered if November when Turkish Foreign Minister Feridun Cemal Erkin went to Moscow and came back with a startling communique signed by himself and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. The communique included the recommendation that the principle of territorial integrity, and observance of the legal rights of the two national communities should be included in any solution to the Cyprus problem.

It sounded like partition to the Turkish-Cypriots and they were jubilant. The Greek - Cypriot press scoffed but officials privately admitted they were worried.

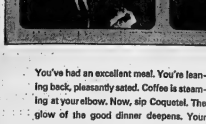
In the end the Cypriot people —most of whom do not care a fig- for the machinations surrounding their island but merely want to harvest their olives or manage their shops in peace—may decide the future of their own island without reference to either extreme position put forth by their leaders.

Before the Cypriot people decide which way to turn, they may examine their leaders and have recourse to another island proverb:

"The head of the fish rots first.

Chemicals Used On Roads Hurt Roadside Trees

OTTAWA (CP) — There has been a "conspicuous dieback" of maple trees in southern Ontario in recent years and one of the reasons has been the use of chemicals on roads, Forestry Minister Sauve said Wednesday.



In a written reply to John R. Matheson (L—Leeds) tabled in the Commons, Mr. Sauve said "the condition is restricted to exposed trees along highways, secondary roads and streets in urban areas and does not extend into natural stands of maple."

There were several factors discovered in studies so far and work was continuing to evaluate them and establish means of prevention.

Man Shot in Thigh, Bullet Washed by Blood Through His Heart, Is Removed From Lungs

ATLANTA (AP) — A 35-year-old man who accidentally shot himself in the thigh has had the bullet removed —from his lung.

The bullet, washed through the blood stream, passed through his heart and into his lung.

Herbert Fowler, manager of a private club at Rome, Ga., underwent surgery last week at Emory University Hospital, two weeks after accidentally shooting himself when his pistol fell out of his pocket.

Fowler, at the club when the accident occurred, received immediate treatment from his doctor. An X-ray showed the .22-calibre bullet lodged in his thigh and it was decided to leave it there where it was unlikely to do any harm.

Fowler then went back to work. Two weeks later he had sharp chest pains. He again consulted his doctor who took an X-ray of his chest. The doctor saw the same .22-calibre bullet, this time in Fowler's lung.

Fowler was then sent to Emory for the operation to remove the bullet.

"The bullet really became a pulmonary embolism — a blood clot," the surgeon said. "But it was small enough not to block off Fowler's entire circulation when it passed through his heart valves and into his lung."

Record Parliament Session Ends With Verbal Eruption

OTTAWA (CP) — With a verbal eruption over the conduct of cabinet ministers, the longest parliamentary session in Canada's history ended Friday. It will be renewed Feb. 16 under the maple leaf flag that kept this session in a bitter, emotional uproar for 32 days.

The 214-day session produced a raft of major legislation, repeated wrangling and high-powered personality clashes. It drew to a close in a typical feuding frame of mind with Prime Minister Pearson and Opposition Leader Diefenbaker tossing quotations from Shakespeare at each other.

The final flurry came with a motion by Russell MacEwan (PC—Pictou) that the final day of the session be devoted to an emergency debate on the "grave doubts and uncertainties" about the "standard of conduct and public morality of those in authority in public affairs."

The subsequent debate on the motion brought the prime minister to his feet calling on Mr. Diefenbaker to "stand up and make a charge of wrongdoing and stand behind it."

Mr. MacEwan said his motion referred to the "admissions" of State Secretary Lamontagne and Immigration Minister Tremblay concerning "relationships between themselves and the Sefkind brothers of Montreal and companies associated with them."

The ministers earlier told the press about purchases of furniture from the now - bankrupt firms with no cover-payment.

The motion was eventually ruled out-of order by Speaker Alan Macnaughton, but not before MPs including the two ministers had an opportunity for a free-wheeling debate.

In the exchange, Mr. Pearson called on Confucius for the advice that "those who digs dirt loses ground." Mr. Diefenbaker retorted with a quote from the same authority: "He who hides wrongdoing is a wrongdoer himself."

Mr. Lamontagne and Mr. Tremblay gave the Commons statements similar to those given earlier to reporters. The state secretary said he bought about $6,000 worth of furniture in the spring of 1962 when he was a $12,000-a-year assistant in Mr. Pearson's office. He has paid back about half the amount, he said, and is paying off the rest on monthly terms to the trustee bank.

Mr. Tremblay described his transactions in similar detail and "at no time did I have the impression of obtaining undue advantages from this company." Any such insinuation "is most malicious."

He said he received four deliveries of furniture between Nov. 15, 1963 and Jan. 10, 1964, but his order was still unfilled when an account was received Feb. 19 this year. He sent the bank $3,341. Feb. 25 and another $240 March 9.

The speaker allowed the ministers to make their statements

Despite All That Talk House Got Business Done

OTTAWA (CP)—It probably will go into the history books as the "flag session," but the current session of the 26th Parliament has also produced some of the most significant legislation of recent years.

Adjourned Friday after a record 214 sitting days, its major items have included establishment of:

1. Youth allowances, paying $10 a month to students aged 16 to 18 in a bid to discourage school dropouts;

2. Ten independent commissions to review the boundaries of federal ridings, taking the job out of politics for the first time;

3. Student loans, providing up to $1,000 a year for five years interest-free to university students;

4. A 12-mile fishing zone, expanded from three miles in 1957 to protect inland fisheries from foreign fleets;

5. A bitter debate March 31 approved the dispatch of Canadian troops to Cyprus, final approval was given to the Columbia River power development treaty and legislation was adopted to implement the integration of the three armed services.

6. A new version of the Canada Pension Plan, regarded as one of the most important social issues ever placed before Parliament, was introduced. A special Senate-Commons committee created to work it out.

The federal labor code, fixing the minimum wage at $1.25 an hour and prescribing a maximum 40-hour work week, was unveiled.

A massive bill was introduced to modernize railway taxation, giving the railways wide powers to abandon money-losing lines and services.

But the bitterness of the flag debate over - shadowed everything. It ragged 33 days in the Commons before the government invoked the closure rule to get a vote. The red-and-white maple leaf design selected by an all-party committee was, 163 to 78,

Pearson, Dinsdale Letters Cause Exchange in Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and Walter Dinsdale (PC — Brandon - Souris) played a game of letter, letter, who has the letter in the Commons Friday.

And, while it engendered a Dinsdale letter words between them, Postmaster - General Hamilton ended it with a flourish by disclaiming any responsibility of the post office department for slow delivery of the letter under discussion.

The fuss developed at the morning sitting when Mr. Pearson suggested Mr. Dinsdale, former Conservative northern affairs minister, should have made a formal charge of wrongdoing based on a broadcast Mr. Dinsdale Dec. 11.

He said he wrote asking Mr. Dinsdale, a former cabinet colleague, to supply the evidence to support Mr. Dinsdale's broadcast statements about a lack of integrity among cabinet ministers.

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Dinsdale never replied to his (Mr. Pearson's) letter.

Favreau Silent On RCMP

OTTAWA (CP)—To shouts of "what have you got to hide," Justice Minister Favreau declined in the Commons Friday to say whether RCMP Commissioner George McClellan recommended dismissal of two commissioned officers of the force.

He agreed to the suggestion of Eric Nielsen (PC—Yukon) to table in the Commons the cabinet order dealing with the case.

It was reported a week ago that the cabinet ordered the two officers — Superintendent Rene Belice and Sub-Inspector J. H. M. Poitras — retired to promote the efficiency of the force.

—However, it was reported that Commissioner McClellan's recommendation was that they be dismissed, not retired.

Harold Winch (NDP — Vancouver East), who raised the matter, asked whether Mr. Favreau or the cabinet changed Commissioner McClellan's recommendation in order to "gag" the two officers.

WASN'T CHANGED

Mr. Favreau said the "decision" in the case was not changed by himself or the cabinet. The cabinet had to take responsibility on the recommendation for disposing of the matter.

In his view, the cabinet acted in a way consistent with fair play and justice. Informants said that dismissal from the force cuts off an officer's pension rights. The officers are said to have been recommended for half pension since the cabinet's order retiring them.

Did the commissioner recommend dismissal, reiterated Mr. Winch.

Mr. Favreau retorted that such a question, if it was in order in the Commons at all, should be submitted in writing. He apparently referred to the usual ruling that communications between ministers and their departments are not normally subject to being produced in the House.

QUESTIONED BY WINCH

"What have you got to hide, minister of justice?" called Mr. Winch.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker suggested Mr. Favreau should reply to Mr. Winch's original question. He acknowledged that the cabinet acts as a final court of appeal in such matters and indeed what the cabinet order said.

Mr. Favreau said such a request should be put in order paper, adding with some heat that because the government didn't answer such questions opposition MPs used this to insinuate the government had something to hide.

Mr. Diefenbaker protested against this comment and Mr. Nielsen asked for the order paper for a copy of the cabinet order.

Mr. Favreau agreed "with pleasure" to table it in the Commons.

The two officers were tried in an RCMP court and convicted of mishandling police funds.

The inquiry into the RCMP inspector, Maurice Poitras, has been brought into the current Liberal party fund - raising allegations of bribery and coercion.

Moscow May Nationalize Santa Because Amateurs Get Drunk

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Father Frost, the Russian Santa Claus, faces the threat of being nationalized — because amateurs were doing the job often are drunk or uncouth.

The provincial newspaper Soviet Latvia, suggests there should be a state body in charge of state control to straighten out the Father Frost business. The suggestion appears in an issue of the newspaper which reached Moscow Friday.

Father Frost is the Russian equivalent of Father Christmas, down to his white robes, red hat and flowing beard. He appears at children's parties at the New Year, handing out gifts and holding youngsters on his knee.

The New Year festival replaces Christmas for Communists.

Soviet Latvia complains reliable Father Frosts, such as actors from local theatres, are booked six months in advance, and some nursery schools have to make do with coarse-spoken drunkards.

Perhaps, Soviet Latvia suggests, a government department could put the recruitment of Father Frosts on a more satisfactory basis.

Lesson for Jailbreakers
Never Lay That Pistol Down When Stealing Co-ed's Car

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—"Dad, said I was either stupid or very brave."

Judy Jerabin, 18, a Wichita State University freshman, was telling how she snatched a jailbreaker's gun and helped capture him Friday.

Richard Lee McArthur, 22, charged with armed robbery, Sedgwick County Jail Dec. 9. Police had described him as "extremely dangerous with homicidal tendencies."

McArthur told police he picked the university campus at random as occasionally, thinking no one would recognize him in student crowds.

Police got a tip, however. Patrolmen Jerry Mellon and Harry Holts entered the Pine Arts Building Friday and spotted McArthur, who bolted. The officers asked students in the crowded hall to help stop him.

"That guy's got a gun," one student said, backing off. Now Judy takes up the story.

"I went on out to my car in the parking lot and had the motor running when I saw this young man running down the sidewalk.

"Then he jerked my car door open and told me to get out. I told him who I was grabbed my arm and started pulling, then he pointed that gun at me and I got out.

"He jumped in. laid the gun down beside him and tried to start the motor, which had died.

"The door was partly open . . . I reached across in front of him and grabbed the gun. I kicked my car door shut as it also and told him, 'now you get out.'

"He just kept trying to start the car, but then the policemen came. They made him lie on the ground while they searched him and put handcuffs on him. They took him away and I drove home."

McArthur's weapon was a .38 calibre automatic, loaded and cocked, and police said Miss Jerabin took a dangerous chance.

May Be Another Month Before Flag Officially Un furled

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson is making no effort to have Canada's new national flag officially proclaimed by Christmas, informed sources said Friday, and it may be a month before the maple leaf design is unfurled on federal flagpoles.

When he promised a flag by Christmas, the prime minister was concerned with the parliamentary process, they said, and the final hurdle — Senate approval—was achieved Thursday night. While it would be possible to have the flag officially proclaimed by Christmas there are no plans to speed up the normal proclamation process.

The first step is for the cabinet to meet to draft and pass an order-in-council. This won't be until the next regular cabinet meeting, probably Tuesday.

The order-in-council will be sent to Buckingham Palace as an "instrument of advice" and the Queen will advise Governor - General Vanier of her decision. Then a proclamation will be drafted by the government and sent to London for the Queen to sign.

The proclamation will be published in the Canada Gazette with the date it becomes effective.

The effective date will be governed to some extent by the supply and distribution of the new flags. The government is said to be anxious to have a "representative quantity" of the flag ready to be hoisted across Canada when the new design is ceremoniously raised for the top of the Peace Tower flagpole.

It still hasn't been decided what form these ceremonies will take.

Meanwhile, details of the new flag are being worked out in the secretive Privy Council office, where the sizes, shapes and colors are being given official designations. The shade of red, used in the central maple leaf and the bars at each side, will be the same as in the Red Ensign.

When this process is completed, orders can be placed by the department of defence production and the flags will be distributed, probably to the far distant points at first, by the department of public works.

The design of the new flag was recommended by the special 15-man committee after the ideas of several members were fused together into a colored drawing. One of the tasks being undertaken in the Privy Council is defining the exact shape of the stylized maple leaf, so it can be reproduced under a definitive formula. The exact proportions of the white centre background and the two red panels must also be set out so manufacturers can turn out identical flags across the country.

Plan Would End Troubles Over Present Treaty
Four Countries Have Potential Canal Routes

WASHINGTON (AP)—A U.S.-presidential order has opened the way for a new Atlantic-Pacific canal to replace the aging Panama Canal within an estimated 10 to 15 years.

The new canal is to flow at sea level through Panama or a neighboring country, and will probably put the old passageway with its expensive locks out of business.

The troubled 1903 treaty with Panama is to be scrapped soon in favor of a new pact which United States hopes will heal old wounds while the original canal becomes a relic of bygone days.

President Johnson went before television cameras Friday to read his announcement that the United States now will "press forward . . . in earnest" to achieve the new — discussed goal. He announced:

1. State Secretary Dean Rusk will start talks with three or four countries which have potential canal sites — Panama, Colombia, Nicaragua and perhaps Costa Rica — looking toward agreements with any interested in obtaining the new route. Then on-the-spot engineering surveys will be made in those countries signing agreements to decide which site is best.

WILL PROPOSE TREATY

2. "An entirely new treaty on the existing Panama Canal" will be proposed to Panama to replace the half - century - old pact that gives the United States canal zone rights "in perpetuity."

The new treaty would retain U.S. rights needed to run and protect the present canal, but it would recognize Panama's sovereignty and would end when the new canal opens. That would mean an end to U.S. control of the 10 by 50 - mile canal zone strip as exercised under the 1903 accord.

Panama's President Marco A. Robles hailed it as "a historic day" for his country.

Johnson noted that 300 modern vessels which the present is being built are too big to pass through the present canal when it is finished.

What the new canal would cost is a matter of guesswork, with estimates ranging from $150,000,000 to about double that amount depending on the route and excavation methods. The old canal cost $380,000,000 and it went into operation 11 years after the treaty was signed.

Gordon Reports Surplus

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal government budgetary surplus of $490,000,000 for the first eight months of the current fiscal year was reported by Finance Minister Gordon Friday night. At the same point last year the government was running a $111,600,000 deficit.

In his March budget speech Mr. Gordon forecast a deficit of $455,000,000. However, he has said since that he expects a much lower deficit and the Canadian Tax Foundation is predicting a near balance.

The treasury statement showed that government tax revenues in the eight-month period, April to Nov. 30, increased by nearly 18 per cent or $632,600,000 to $4,289,500,000 compared with $3,536,900,000 in the same period last year. Non-tax revenues rose by one-third to $407,000,000, due mainly to higher investment returns.

Total government expenditure in the April-November period rose by $131,700,000 or about 3.7 per cent to $3,805,700,000 from $4,054,600,000. Defence expenditures in that period dropped to $338,900,000 from $992,000,000 a year earlier.

The old age security fund, tallied separately from other budgetary transactions, showed a $3,800,000 deficit in November but there still was an accumulated surplus of $15,800,000 for the first eight months of the year compared with a $32,800,000 deficit at that point in 1963.

Two Get Life For Slaying In Arms Raid

MONTREAL (CP) — Gilles Rochon, 29, and Marcel Verdil, 22, were sentenced Friday to life imprisonment after pleading guilty to capital murder in connection with the gunshot killing last August of Leslie Lloyd Mackie.

MacWilliams, 56, vice-president of the International Firearms Company, was killed during an abortive arms raid at that firm and Mr. Alfred Pitsch, 37, a gunsmith, was also killed in the raid during an exchange of shots between police and the robbers.

Saigon Police Ordered on Alert With Threat of Weekend Violence

SAIGON (AP)—Saigon police went on full alert today as a Communist Viet Cong anniversary and counted Buddhist harassment of the Vietnamese government threatened a weekend of violence.

Monday is the fourth anniversary of the official founding of the political wing of the Viet Cong, the National Liberation Front, and authorities feared an outbreak of terrorism.

The Buddhists, who have been campaigning to overthrow the government of Premier Tran Van Huong, were planning a mass rally, police said. Buddhist sources said a monk might commit suicide by burning.

A city of tents mushroomed near the sprawling Buddhist headquarters as thousands of potential demonstrators began arriving, some carrying straw sleeping mats.

Americans in Saigon were advised to exert unusual caution when in the city.

In Hue, several thousand students in the city's 13 high schools made a brief appearance at classes today but told their teachers they would not return until the Huong government resigned. No violence was reported.

Hue, a Buddhist stronghold, sparked the campaign that overthrew the regime of premier Ngo Dinh Diem last year.

In the war against the Viet Cong, a U.S. army officer was killed by guerrilla fire Friday, the army said.

The officer was piloting a helicopter about 190 miles northeast of Saigon when he was hit by a .30-calibre bullet, the army said. The co-pilot took control of the craft and returned it to base.

Manly MacDonald Has Painting Chosen for Bank Calendar

Belleville harbor with a group of youngsters playing hockey is the subject of a Manly MacDonald painting which has been chosen by the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce for their 1965 calendar.

A history of the city is on the reverse of the picture, tracing its development from 1790 when the U. E. Loyalist Captain John Meyers built a grist mill at the point where the Moira River joins the Bay of Quinte to the present.

Belleville is described as a "city that is not dependent upon one large industry, but rather many small ones, manufacturing such widely diversified products as cereals and baby foods, alcohol, cement, locks and builders' hardware, electronic supplies, plastics, optical supplies, costume jewellery, footwear, men's clothing, sports clothes, tools, automobile accessories and fabrics and coloring dyes and soft drinks.

"The pleasant countryside around Belleville is a major dairying area and the city is the principal centre of the Ontario cheddar cheese industry."

Mention is made of Albert College, Ontario School for the Deaf, and the Entomology Research Institute located here.

A brief history of the artist Mr. Macdonald, R.C.A., who was born at Point Anne is given.

ACADEMIC START

Young Santa Found Going Was Tough

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP)—An inquisitive five-year-old boy narrowly escaped serious injury when he tried to discover one of Santa's secrets.

The boy, Barrie L. Norton, had thought quite a bit about how Santa would come down his chimney when he had to be climbed into a chimney in a neighbor's barbecue pit to find out. Friday.

The neighbor came home and found Barrie screaming. Police had to smash the brick chimney to rescue him.

A patrolman said the boy was badly scratched and suffered a cut over his right eye.

Barrie's still wondering how Santa fomes down the chimney.

Jury Finds Teacher Was Negligent

STURGEON FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A coroner's jury ruled Friday that Barrie schoolteacher Gordon Lamar Cow was negligent when he accidentally shot Ronald Clark, 26, of Toronto during an illegal hunting trip Dec. 25.

The jury recommended that Cow should be privileged to suspended and that provincial police be equipped with a four-wheel drive vehicle to take them into isolated areas.

Clark died after being shot in the back through a soft-nosed bullet from Cow's 308-calibre rifle. Clark testified that he shot at what he thought was a deer.

The hunting season for deer had closed a month earlier.

Cow said he, Clark and Ronald MacDougall of Oakville were hunting a deer whose tracks they had seen the day before.

Canned Beer Will Be More Costly

TORONTO (CP)—Beer drinkers in Ontario next summer will discover that cans cost more than bottles.

G. H. Sheppard, chairman of the Liquor Control Board, says beer in cans will appear in Ontario in time for the tourist season.

The beer will be sold only in dozen-pint cartons—at 52 cents more than the price of beer.

The price of beer for a dozen bottles is $2.31, but there is a 25-cent return on the bottles bringing the price to $2.06. Twelve cans of beer will cost $2.58. The cans are not returnable.

START IS GOOD

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell said Friday the winter house building incentive program is off to a good start and is expected to at least match last winter's program in size. Preliminary reports indicate 9,450 dwelling units have passed first inspection under this winter's program. There were 29,580 such units at this time last year.

Some Britons Using Ads Instead of Yuletide Cards

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—Some Britons have begun placing newspaper advertisements instead of sending Christmas cards, with the money saved going to charities.

A popular spot for the mass-publication Yuletide wishes is the personal column of The Times.

Some companies even are expressing their Yule wishes on the printed pages.

"The British Road Federation is not sending Christmas cards this year. Instead it is making a donation to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents."

Another reads:

"Cable and Wireless wish their friends a Merry Christmas and announces that they do not intend to send out company Christmas cards; instead they are making a donation to the Missions to Seamen."

MORE JOHN GAMES

Each day a few more persons join in what has come to be known as the "John" personal card game. The majority appear to be peers and peeresses, fictional generals, admirals and judges.

Why do they do it?

"I may be old fashioned and square," said retired judge Noel Hindley, "but the spirit has gone out of Christmas. If it was a real Christmas we are having I would have gone on sending cards."

Said Lady Aberconway:

"The amount of money spent on buying C r i s t m a s cards and stamps was too much. And the time I spent on writing was considerable. I now send the money to a cancer hospital."

The surprise of this season, however, was the Christmas card of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Muir.

A script-writer and author, Muir's card said:

"Mr. and Mrs. Frank Muir are not taking an advertisement in The Times this year. Instead they are sending Christmas cards to their friends."

Asked why, Muir replied:

"My wife and I grew tired of seeing those stuffy announcements . . . Besides, who pays for these advertisements need sending up a bit."

Sending up is a British expression for taking down a peg or two.

Says Joe Bananas Alive Will Appear Before Jury

NEW YORK (AP)—The lawyer for Cosa Nostra boss Joseph (Joe Bananas) Bonanno says his client, who disappeared during a purported kidnapping on Park Avenue two months ago, is alive and well and will appear Monday before a rackets-probing federal grand jury.

The lawyer, William P. Maloney, held a press conference Friday that he received a telephone call shortly before noon from Bonanno's son, Salvatore (Bill) Bonanno, Jr.

Maloney said he was present shortly after midnight last Oct. 21 when two gunmen forced the elder Bonanno into a car. He said one gunman fired a single shot at him before the auto sped away.

Bonanno disappeared hours before he was to appear before a grand jury investigating organized crime.

Joseph Bonanno disappeared, some officials expressed belief he had been clubbed into submission by crime syndicate leaders. Still others thought it was a hoax on Bonanno wouldn't have to testify before the jury.

Bonanno was in Canada last May in a bid to acquire Canadian citizenship but because of his background he was jailed in Montreal. He was released May 30 and returned immediately to the U.S.

Town Gets $360,000 Grant For Bridge-Building Fund

TRENTON — The people of Trenton received a big Christmas present from the federal government yesterday.

Robert Temple, MP, announced from Ottawa that the Treasury and Privy Council had approved a grant of $360,000 for the town of Trenton's use in construction of a high-level bridge across the Trent River.

The announcement terminated many months of negotiations and discussions.

Cost of the span, to be erected about a quarter-mile north of the present Highway 2 swing bridge, is estimated at over $1,500,000.

The provincial government's share of the new bridge would be the only existing agency that would continue for approximately one year. The spring of 1966 will see traffic moving across the river along the new route said Mr. Temple.

Mayor Ross MacDonald and other town officials taken by surprise by the announcement, in the eve of Parliament's recess, called the news "the best gift that Trenton residents could hope for at this time."

The Boar's Head carol is sung by students of Albert College as they parade around the dining room led by Dean of Studies, J. E. MacKay. This is a traditional rite at the annual Christmas party for staff, students and friends.

Albert College Closes Semester With Dinner, Dance and Carols

It has become a tradition at Albert College Christmas party to open the proceedings with the "Boar's Head Carol." This is a colorful procession around the room, of young men dressed in high white chefs' hats and coats, bearing high on a tray the boar's head decorated and festooned, while they sing a sort of Gregorian chant as they march.

At this party all the kitchen staff and maintenance staff are guests and eat in the dining room, and the kitchen duties are looked after by some of the teachers.

Grace was said by Rev. Francois Gerard, a member of the teaching staff. Principal and Headmaster H. B. Simpson made the introduction of the head table, and acknowledged the efforts of the decorating committee who were responsible for the Christmas decor of the room under the direction of Mr. Walsmith.

Chairman of the Board of Governors Lorne McDougall then briefly expressing his pleasure at being present, and assuring the young people that he had great admiration for the young generation. "I believe you students are going to do a good job in the world of tomorrow, and that the country is in safe hands," Mr. McDougall said.

After the banquet a program of Christmas carols was arranged in Memorial Chapel with the choir and audience participating. Singing of hymns was led by Mr. J. E. MacKay; a piano and organ solo was given by Miss Woodard and Mr. McLeod, and a Scripture reading by Miss Margaret Hurst.

The annual Christmas dance was held in Ackerman Hall with music provided by the Commodore orchestra, and was enjoyed by students, teachers and a number of guests.

Colombia Would Like New Canal To Run Through Its Territory

PANAMA (AP) — President Johnson's announcement of a planned sea-level canal to replace the Panama Canal was welcomed here as the answer to Panama's long-standing complaint against the canal treaty and in Colombia as creating hope the new canal would be built there.

President Marco A. Robles received an official communique from Washington and said it was "an historic day" for Panama that would "create a favorable atmosphere for negotiations."

In Bogota, Colombian Works Minister Tomas Castrillon said the most favorable route for a sea level inter-ocean canal was through his country.

Location of the canal there would provide his country with millions of dollars in annual revenue, as the present canal now does for Panama.

In Washington, an inter-American conference considering admission of new members to the Organization of American States closed with an outburst of applause praising President Johnson's announcement.

Argentine Foreign Minister Miguel Angel Zavala Ortiz said it was "an event highly auspicious" and that the president's action represents "a step of great transcendence, a great step toward the peace of America."

WHAT HE WANTS

Also in Washington, Joseph S. Farland, the former U.S. ambassador to Panama said, "this is precisely what I had recommended in 1962." He said President Johnson's proposal is the answer to the Panamanian problem.

Robles said "President Johnson has accepted the proposal to negotiate an entirely new treaty which would replace the 1903 accord, with its amendments. This will integrally abrogate this accursed treaty.

"Abrogation of the 1903 treaty explicit recognition of our sovereignty over the Canal Zone and abolition of the perpetuity (clause) are the three fundamental demands for which the Panamanian nation and its sons have fought for five generations."

In a radio-TV address replying to President Johnson's announcement, Robles did not mention that alternate routes for the new canal through three other Latin countries were under consideration.

Won Case, Then Fined Sent to Jail

A 22-year-old Belleville man who won a drunk driving case after testifying on his own behalf, yesterday was fined $300 for perjury.

In addition, Gary Wayne Thorne was sent to jail for seven days — the mandatory sentence he would have served on drunk driving conviction.

Thorne and a second youth, Raymond Finkle, were charged after both gave testimony October 14 in the case against Thorne. As a result, Thorne was given the benefit of doubt by the court and released from the impaired driving charge.

Finkle will answer the perjury count against him at a later date.

Thorne was sentenced yesterday after Magistrate R. C. Jackson brushed aside contentions by defence counsel Tom Lally that no proof existed the accused had properly taken the oath in the drunk driving case.

Crown Attorney John Pringle said perjury threatened the whole process of law.

"It is the way out for the coward and weak", he told the magistrate. However, Mr. Pringle did not seek a jail sentence for the accused.

Faces Prison After Stealing Exam Papers

MARSEILLES, France (Reuters)—A 21-year-old girl formerly employed as a clerk in the French education ministry today faced a one - year prison term for allegedly passing on last summer's baccalaureate examination papers to her boyfriend.

The girl, Dany Maurel, is on trial with her parents and 18 other young people. All were charged in the scandal in which examination questions were sold to students.

Men Teachers Will Receive Certificates

MARMORA — On Tuesday evening, December 13, twelve members of the executive of District 4, Hastings and Prince Edward counties) of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation, met in Central Public School, Marmora.

The members of the executive who were present were: K. Gillies (Marmora), J. Reid (Springbrook), J. Holmes (Brighton), P. Kaltwasser (Hastings), M. Hackett and W. Lott (Belleville), G. Stevenson, J. Pilgrim and H. Muskiow (Bancroft) and R. Poste, D. Burke and T. Bedford (Trenton).

A new idea, of interest to all members, was the report of the teacher certification committee. Beginning in January 1965, a "professional teacher certificate" will be issued by the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation, to all men teachers who are in good standing with their professional organization. It was passed that the presentation of certificates to the men teachers in this district will be done at a special certification night, which will be held early in 1965.

As four members of the district will be attending the Provincial Assembly to be held in Toronto on December 29-30, recommendations and notices of motion were discussed and direction was given to the delegates on how the district wished votes on its behalf to be cast.

Of interest from the report of the committee for assistance to developing countries was the recommendation that $2,400 be budgeted to sponsor one teacher to participate in the Canadian Teachers' Federation "Project Africa."

Last year, the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation sponsored a teacher in Africa, presented a professional library to Zanzibar and Uganda, and purchased a record player and oral English records to assist teachers in Nigeria.

Considerable discussion was given to the report of the annexation and amalgamation committee, which had studied the involvements of the consolidation of many rural school boards into township boards. This becomes effective in January, 1965, according to Bill 54 of the Ontario Legislature. This abolishes the present three-man school boards and replaces them with five-man boards for the Township School Area. The committee recommended that O.P.S.M.T.F. go on record as endorsing Bill 54 because it will mean ultimately larger boards, better schools and better teaching conditions.

A budget was presented and accepted detailing how the district will delegate the $630.00 it receives from the Ontario Teachers' Federation.

Report Russians Turn Down UN Financial Compromise

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Soviet Union is reported to have rejected a compromise proposal by General Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana for settling the UN financial crisis.

The rejection was reported by diplomats Friday night, on the eve of another round of talks on the subject between U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

They scheduled a working luncheon at Rusk's New York hotel suite.

The United States "could swallow" Quaison-Sackey's proposal, the diplomats said, but the Soviets were against it. Some African, Asian and South American delegates also opposed the proposal, they added.

It called, for setting up a voluntary fund to overcome the UN insolvency caused by the Soviet Union's refusal to pay its share of peacekeeping operations in The Congo and the Middle East.

A 12-nation Asian - African committee representing the nation Afro - Asian group has been promoting its own plan for settlement of the financial squabble.

INDICATE WILLINGNESS

The Russians had indicated a willingness to contribute to a voluntary fund provided it was not identified with the peacekeeping costs. Their objection to Quaison-Sackey's plan was not outlined by the diplomats.

The U.S. has insisted that the Soviets and any other members delinquent two years or more in paying their dues be stripped of their General Assembly vote unless they pay up. The Soviet Union is more than $32,000,000 in arrears.

The Security Council by a unanimous vote Friday extended the life of the 6,200-man UN peacekeeping force on Cyprus for another three months. The move had been recommended by Secretary-General U Thant.

Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko reiterated his government's position that the cost of the force must be met by voluntary contributions and assessments.

Let's Have a Debt-Free Christmas

Most Canadians, we suspect, share our feeling of approval of the entry of Canada's chartered banks into the small loans field.

The banks are helping to keep down the cost of living by providing credit at a lower cost than it would otherwise be available to most people.

Still, this is a mixed blessing.

We never see an advertisement by a bank urging people to borrow money without an old-fashioned shudder.

There were days when banks did not talk this way, when their theme-song was the value of thrift.

Thrift can be overdone, too, just as, we think, the buy-now, pay-later scheme of living is being overdone today.

But somebody ought to be preaching the advantages of an old-time virtue. The only time in many months we have seen an advertisement praising thrift was from a Rochester bank. This advertisement argued that saving first made it possible to buy more later.

That argument seems to us to be valid. Of course, there are times of the year when a delay in purchasing ceases to be thrifty and becomes just plain stingy. Christmas is one of these times. Still, if it is really the spirit of giving, and not the size of the gift, which makes Christmas the pleasant season it ought to be, there is no reason why we have to gratify all the family desires at this season of the year.

This would reduce Christmas trade considerably, but it ought to improve trade during the remainder of the year, particularly in the dull drum-months of January and February. Nowadays, the only people who buy anything but necessities in those months are the old-fashioned thrifty who are taking advantage of sale prices and those who have been fortunate enough to receive gifts of money at Christmas.

For thousands of others, the post-Christmas season is a period of penny-pinching to pay off bills, the cost of presents plus the cost of buying them before the money was available without borrowing.

For many a harassed bread winner, the best Christmas present he or she can imagine is a debt-free Boxing Day. Most of them could have it if they had the courage to put their foot down and decree that nobody was going to put Santa on the cuff this Christmas.

And what a Happy New Year that would make!

Senate Acts Wisely

We think Senator Norman Patterson had a legitimate point when, arguing against a bill to incorporate the Bank of British Columbia, he said that it is dangerous for any government controlling large natural resources to own part of a bank.

The Ontario Government operates a bank of sorts, the Province of Ontario Savings Branch, but this bank confines itself to accepting the deposits of individuals, makes no loans and cannot be considered in the same classification as chartered banks.

The new Bank of British Columbia would have participated in all phases of banking, as conducted by chartered banks in Canada. To have a provincial government financially interested in one such institution would certainly appear to place other chartered banks under an unfair handicap. The fact that Premier W. A. C. Bennett had offered to reduce the province's proposed investment, from an original planned 25 per cent of the bank's capitalization of $300,000,000 to 10 per cent or less, did nothing to alter the principle involved.

If provincial governments feel that it is essential to get into the banking business in order to exploit undeveloped natural resources and improve the living standards of the people of the province concerned, then it would appear to be preferable for them to do so as sole owners of a bank, and not in partnership with private individuals.

There is little proof, though, that such intervention by governments is essential, or even that it would be in any way beneficial.

Under these circumstances, the Senate banking committee did well to kill the bill for the time being, until Parliament considers the question of provincial government ownership of bank shares.

There is no royal road to anything. One thing at a time, all things in succession. That which grows fast withers as rapidly; that which grows slowly endures.—J. G. Holland.

The gravity suit, a new device worn by P-1 and P-47 pilots, applies pressure to the wearer's abdomen and legs during a pull-out or turn, thus preventing the blood from pooling in the lower extremities and aiding the heart to maintain circulation to the brain. Heretofore, blacking out has limited the pursuit manoeuvres which pilots could withstand. Pressure in the suit, which resembles tight, high-waisted pants with bullish suspenders and girdle, is supplied by air bladders over the abdomen, thighs and calves. The bladders are inflated by compressed air from the aircraft's vacuum instruments.

Running Our Country Is Now a Full Time Job

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Pressure is really growing to put Parliament on a business-like basis.

The latest move in this direction, of course, is the recommendations of the special committee on procedure that committees be reorganized and that the Commons take off two weeks of every five for committee meetings.

Such actions stems from the growing — pretty well full-grown — realization that running the country is now a full-time job.

There was once a day when Parliament sat twice a year for two months or so and managed to get everything done.

The current session is probably the best example of how this has changed. The Commons has been sitting since last January and members are wondering if they will get much time off for Christmas.

For a change, the Parliamentarians have this year put in more time on the job than the taxpayers - - no summer vacation, even.

MPs, naturally enough, did manage to work out some vacations for themselves by simply going home in shifts of half a dozen or so, but this is a poor way to operate.

Yet, if they did not do this, they might lose all contact with their constituencies.

WEAKNESS

This is bad not only from the point of view of the politician, who must depend in part on personal contact to hold or win votes.

It is also bad from the point of view of the voters, who can hardly let their members know how they feel and what they want if they never see them.

So the committee recommends that the House not sit for two weeks of every five. In one of those weeks, half the members would go home while the other half held committee meetings. In the second week the positions would be reversed.

This would seem to be final recognition that the House inevitably is going to sit all year.

Some might argue that the flag debate was the reason Parliament had to sit so long this year but, while it had its effect this is not the real reason.

Even without the flag debate there was more than enough business to keep the House in action - - a great portion has simply had to be left over to 1965.

Debate on government spending estimates also took a great deal of time - - more than the Commons was used to in years past.

But shouldn't there be this much consideration, and maybe more, when more than $7,000,000,000 in taxpayers' money is being dealt with?

SOME HELP

This part of the business would be aided by the committee's recommendations, for the estimates would be dealt with in a large extent in the suggested new committees.

Still, those committees are to be sitting for at least 20 weeks each year and Parliament, in effect, will still be on the job.

Government legislative programs must also be considered for, while the government does rule, the Opposition has a right to question its rule, hopefully in constructive fashion.

A fair example of how this works has been provided this year in the projected Canada pension plan — it was introduced, objected to, withdrawn, rewritten, re-introduced, objected to, withdrawn, rewritten and re-introduced again.

Each time the changes were made along the lines of Opposition objections and there is much less opposition to it now. Constructive criticism really worked in this case.

Still, all of this takes time and, as the years go by and government intrudes more and more into the life of the nation, it will take even more time.

Certainly, then, some sort of reorganization is needed if Parliament is going to be able to do a year's work in a year.

Then the taxpayers will be able to feel he is getting his full money's worth and perhaps even the $10,000 salaries will not look so bad.

To Your Good Health

Sudden Exercise, Illness Cause of Stiff Muscles

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there an explanation for this? After strenuous (now-and-then) exercise, my husband is not bothered with stiff muscles, whereas I am — even after gardening or similar activity for several days in a row, or after less strenuous exertion. In fact, my muscles feel stiff and painful after a ride in the car of a few hours, or after sitting in a chair for that length of time.

We are both in our mid 50's. I am moderately arthritic and rather tense. My husband is in excellent health. — Mrs. D. K. C.

Arbitrary and sudden devotion to strenuous exercise can be harmful. The abrupt (and brief) vogue a short while ago of attempting 50-mile walks was silly. A person in good training could, of course, walk 20 miles without any damage, except maybe blisters.

But for somebody who is not in training, and is old enough to know better, such a walk could be harmful. Exercise (like igarettes, mashed potatoes, TV-watching, or even good advice) needs to be used in moderation. Too much can be disastrous. But a moderate amount, under the right circumstances, can be very helpful indeed.

I can't look at a person and tell him how much exercise will be good for him, or how much is too much. Nobody can anyone else.

This depends on too many things. A bright scientist, aged-40, could be crippled by 60 seconds of participation in professional football. A player in training thrives on a game every week, plus all the practice sessions.

When under stress, the muscles are a virtual cauldron of chemical activity. Exertion produces certain acids which produce fatigue and sometimes aches. This depends on whether your system has the ability to dispose of these acids.

Someone who walks a mile a day, briskly, for years, can tolerate a walk of several times that much on occasion. His chemical balance is in adjustment.

Besides, he knows how to walk easily, without abnormal tension. He doesn't "take every step of it."

Nervous tension (which translates into physical and chemical tension) has a bearing on your personal reaction to the results of exercise. Arthritis, (which you tell me you have) obviously can make you more tense physically.

The general quality of circulation (especially in the legs) can be very important, even while just riding in a car. Defects of the arteries and feet, or even the type of shoes you wear can build tension and fatigue.

Present condition, your past athletic activity over 30 to 50 years ago, your weight, your mental attitude, your shoes, your joints — all these affect the amount of exercise you can tolerate, or reap from a given amount of exercise.

Regular exercise is good. Keep it modest in respect to your limitations. Gradually you can increase it. Remember, however, that it's not what you have (previously)

Stelco Wage Negotiations Break Down

TORONTO (CP) — Contract negotiations at the Steel Company of Canada broke down Friday with labor and management accusing each other of acting in bad faith.

The United Steelworkers of America (CLC), called Sunday and Monday meetings of Stelco's 10,000 Hamilton employees. The meetings could result in the setting of a strike deadline.

In addition to 10,000 workers at the Hamilton mill, Stelco has 3,400 employees in fabricating plants in Toronto, Hamilton, Brantford, Gananoque, Ont., and Montreal.

R. E. Alden, Stelco's industrial negotiations director, said the union had repudiated an oral agreement to accept a mediation report for a package deal on wages and other benefits.

Larry Sefton, Steelworkers' district supervisor, said neither the union nor the company had accepted the recommendations of mediator W. H. Dickie of Toronto.

before ruling on the motion because, he said, other members had their say and it was only fair that Mr. Lamontagne and Mr. Tremblay be given their opportunity.

Mr. Pearson, red - faced and angry, said that if any members were accusing ministers of wrongdoing, they should stand up and say so. He noted that Mr. Diefenbaker, when he was prime minister, had said it ill-became any MP to bring forward such a motion without proof of wrongdoing.

The Opposition leader said the furniture purchases by the ministers had "all the appearances of political upholstery."

The prime minister also protested to Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) about going on television and talking about lack of integrity in high places without making a charge.

The "gag in the Commons hurdled the controversial motion, it whirled to...a finish. In quick order it:

—Gave first reading to a bill subscribing Canada to any other provinces to opt out of federal - provincial shared-cost programs and get an extra slice of the personal income tax pot in compensation; —Passed on bill providing for three additional judges in the Quebec Superior Court and two extra judges for the Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench;

—Approved an 18 - month extension of the moratorium on co-op fish processing operations against the British Columbia fishing industry.

The "gag in the cask" bill comes into effect Jan. 1, even though it still requires Commons and Senate approval. "Naturally, if the bill should not be passed by Parliament, adjustments will have to be made," said Finance Minister Gordon.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the bill could be another step toward the creation of two associate states. His party would debate the measure at considerable length when it again comes before the House.

Meanwhile, as the Commons was polishing off its pre-Christmas program, the Senate gave its approval to a motion — passed Thursday in the Commons—to fly the Union Jack in Canada to symbolize allegiance to the Crown and membership in the Commonwealth.

While the 214-sitting days will be remembered chiefly for the marathon flag fight, and sensational allegations of bribery and coercion by ministerial aides, it was also a session of heavy legislation.

Some of the bills approved:

—Legislation leading to the redistribution of electoral ridings in line with the decennial census;

—Student loan legislation, giving interest - free bank loans to university students.

—Establishment of a 13-mile fishing limit;

—Providing for youth, allowances of $10 a month to those 16 and 17-year-olds who remain at school.

—Approving the Columbia River power development treaty with the U.S.

One of the most important pieces of social legislation in years—providing for the establishment of the Canada Pension Plan — also came before the House. A joint committee of Commons and Senate is to work on the details during the recess.

The statements were substantially the same as those given previously to the press, though Mr. Lamontagne added: "If you ever buy furniture, pay cash."

He said: "If you buy on credit and if later the store goes bankrupt then you and your family will live through an unpleasant time, especially when you feel you're making certain sacrifices to remain in public life."

Mr. MacEwan said it was to the credit of both ministers that they had made statements to the press. But their actions were "inconsistent with the proper conduct of ministers of the Crown."

Mr. Lamontagne said he waited two years before making payments on $6,000 worth of furniture because he could not afford them earlier.

He denied that the furniture was a gift from the Schields or that they obtained favors or contracts from the government.

He said he bought furniture in the spring of 1962 when he was a $12,000-a-year assistant in Mr. Pearson's office.

He had made a $3,000 loan in May, 1963, to a relative who was sick and wanted to buy a house.

He bought more furniture in December, 1963. He now had paid back about half his debt of a bank collecting money owing to the bankrupt firms and was paying the balance on monthly terms.

POUNTAINTOWN, Ind. (AP) — A mouse nest could have caused the fire that destroyed a 60-year-old nursing home, killing 20 elderly patients, a state fire inspector said today.

Howard Boogaholtz, deputy state fire marshal, said the furry nest could have been there an oil furnace where he believed the blaze started.

"This is the mating season," Boogaholtz said, "and the mouse nest idea is a possibility."

The pre-dawn blaze spread through the two-story, brick McGraw Nursing Home so quickly Friday that most of the victims were trapped in bed. Firemen and volunteers from communities surrounding this town of 800, 35 miles southeast of Indianapolis, worked against cold and limited water supplies to control the fire and rescue survivors.

Fourteen patients and three nurses survived, fleeing into near-zero cold. One patient escaped injury, and the rest were taken to hospital with smoke inhalation and exposure.

Boogaholtz was critical of two fireplaces in the home. While they were not working, the fireplaces acted as flues, drawing the fire up into the rest of the home, he said.

The aggravated this fire, but I can't say to what extent they were responsible for causing the deaths," Boogaholtz said. "There never will be any open fireplaces in any nursing homes again."

The inspector said his investigation indicated flames erupted in a medicine closet directly above the furnace. "It was originating at full power be cause of the cold, and it's possible a mouse nest in the walls caught fire because of the intense heat," he reported.

The heating point of wood is 400 degrees; the ignition point of what makes up a nest is 300 degrees."

Alberta PC's Will Wear Black For Red Ensign

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta Progressive Conservative Association will launch a campaign this week to have supporters wear black arm bands to protest Parliament's decision to replace the Red Ensign with a maple leaf flag, President Dr. J. J. Porter said Friday.

Dr. Porter explained: "We are mourning the passing of the only tangible tie with the Commonwealth, our forebearers, ancestors and traditions.

The announcement follows a statement by the Edmonton-based Canadian Constitutional Society which said the group has launched a country - wide campaign to have the Red Ensign draped with black and protest the new maple leaf flag.

C. A. Lazarte, president of the group, said at least 1,000 people in Edmonton will wear black arm bands. He said it was hoped 10,000 Canadians would be wearing the arm bands by the end of the week.

Shooting Fray Kills Woman, Injures Men

HARROW, Ont. (CP) — A mother of 13 children is dead and her husband and another man are in hospital following a shooting incident on a farm 1½ miles north of here early today.

Mrs. Juanita Mulder, 41, was shot in a shack a few yards from her home. Her husband, Howard, 43, and Metropolitan Hospital, Windsor with a shotgun wound which blew away most of his jaw.

Harrow is 17 miles south of Windsor.

Eddie Gene Williams, 41, also of rural Harrow, was in satisfactory condition in hospital. He suffered a gunshot wound to the arm.

Hospital officials said Mulder had a better than even chance of surviving. He was found outside the shack in the home of his brother Judson.

The Mulder children range in age from one to 22.

Pearson

Mr. Dinsdale protested that he replied three days ago.

Mr. Pearson said he received no reply to his Dec. 14 letter.

Mr. Dinsdale protested that the letter left his office Dec. 15.

Later, Mr. Dinsdale sent reporters copies of letters, dated Dec. 14 in Mr. Pearson's case and Dec. 15 for his reply.

The copy signed L. B. Pearson comes from Mr. Dinsdale's broadcast:

"Today, too, we find the nation rocked by evidence of lack of integrity in high places in government."

"This is a serious charge to be made against men in high places in government. It becomes the more serious when made by a privy councillor.

"Will you therefore let me know what evidence you have to support this charge?"

The Dinsdale letter acknowledges having said the quoted sentence and says:

"If you refer to the copy of the transcript . . . you will find that I based this squarely on your own action of writing a letter to your ministers outlining a code of ethics. This suggests that you yourself have become disturbed over the matter. . . .

"The fact, too, that your own parliamentary secretary found it necessary to resign also casts a shadow of suspicion in high places.

"Unhappily there is far too great a reluctance in Canadian government circles on the part of active privy councillors (present cabinet ministers) to resign from positions of public trust when actions have been severely criticized.

"This is in decided contrast to the policy in the United Kingdom where cabinet ministers resign at the slightest suggestion of dereliction in duty."

Two Youths Injured When Car Rolls Over

PICTON (Staff) — Two 17-year-old boys were injured in a single car accident about 4:30 this morning. The car they were driving left the road and rolled over, landing upright on its wheels, opposite the town barns on Church St. in Picton.

Driver and owner of the car, David N. Struthers of Main St. Wellington, received a possible skull fracture, multiple cuts and lacerations. His passenger, Harold McGrayne of 46 Church St. Picton sustained a bad fracture of his right leg below the knee, multiple cuts and possible skull injuries.

Doctors J. Anderson and S. W. Hart attended the youths at Prince Edward County Memorial hospital in Picton. The boys were sent from Picton to Kingston for treatment by Bond's ambulance.

The 1955 Oldsmobile they were driving somehow went out of control and ended up on the east side of Church St. The left side of the vehicle was badly damaged. There was no insurance on the car.

It was assumed the youths were driving up the hill toward the Picton army camp when the accident took place. Charges are pending.

Device Found In Man Had No Part in Death

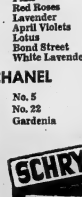
WELLAND (CP) — A coroner's jury ruled Friday night that Dr. Charles Snelling, 37, of Welland showed a lack of judgment by performing an operation for the first time without telling a specialist he was unfamiliar with the procedure.

The jury was investigating the death Oct. 2 of Roy Earl Carpenter, 49, who died in the Welland County Hospital where he had been confined after suffering a heart attack July 15.

The jury found that Mr. Carpenter died from uremia, a malfunction of the kidney, and that he had received competent treatment while in the hospital with one exception.

The exception, the jury found, was the peritoneal dialysis, a procedure in which fluid is injected through a tube into the peritoneal cavity using a trocar —a pencil-like metal tube—performed by Dr. Snelling.

A metal cap or guard which fitted over the dialysis trocar, was later discovered by x-rays in Mr. Carpenter's abdomen. It was found, when removed, to the same position," when a post-mortem was performed on Mr. Carpenter Nov. 17 by Dr. Leon Whitaker, pathologist at St. Catharines General Hospital, following the exhumation of Mr. Carpenter's body.



Dr. Whitaker told the inquest that the guard had "no bearing whatsoever" on Mr. Carpenter's eventual death.

Exotic, Teeming Land of India Most Fascinating to Visitors

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

NEW DELHI, India — Punjab . . Hindustan . . . the Khyber Pass . . . Taj Mahal . . . the vale of Kashmir . . . moonlight on the Ganges . . . Madras and Bengal . . . Mt. Everest and Nepal . . fakirs and palmists and pundits and snake charmers . . .

It will the world, is there a place whose name evokes more magic than India?

We mused on these images, wondering if they would fulfill our expectations, as we sailed effortlessly over the seared plains of northern India. Seven miles high, on the sturdy wings of Boeing and in the competent hands of Qantas, the doughty Australian airline that is the only one flying clear around the world through North America, we watched the Asian dawn break in rainbow striations of orange, pink, red and blue.

The dazzling sun picked out the peaks of moonscape ridges falling away to gouged wadis. Hairlike roads seemed to lead from nowhere to nowhere. Then as we descended we could pick out some of the 567 million villages that are the soul of India. Except for the white crests of the distant mountains, all was the color of grey dust, little changed since it had borne the footprints of Gautama Buddha, Tamerlane and Babar.

REMAINS FROM MONSOONS

Incongruously, a great lake appeared to fill the scene. But they were only the floods remaining from the recent monsoons; if villages were washed away by them, we were told, the government would provide the few hundred thousand persons involved.

Four hundred forty million souls in India; what are a few hundred thousand? This teeming and endlessly varied land is the one transcendant impression to remain with us through our trip. Temples, mosques, bazaars, tombs and palaces, but mostly as exotic and timeless humanity is the true profile of India.

Giant turbaned Sikhs, six feet tall to a man, their beards done up in hairnets and marcelled with "perm" . . . Lean women in burgandy robes, jewelled pins or rings through their nostrils, silver bangles on their ankles . . . elegant dark-eyed ladies in gossamer silk saris of flaming reds, yellows and purples (in all the world, only Indian women wear national dress without exception) . . . businessmen and civil servants in jodhpurs and gaily flaring Nehru jackets, buttoned from throat to knee . . . spindly brown legs bare and arms emerging from volumes of bundled white bedsheets . . .

In the early morning of the capital, traffic began its move under the graceful gestures of cops in puttees and flowing red-and-blue turbans. Brown, naked and half-naked children romped in the streets; one of them, a professional beggar, had dusted his body white, and a spit had pierced his tongue. In front of the stately Ashoka Hotel, a man rattled a tambourine, and a brown bear jiggled in a pitiful "dance." Under a wall of the Red Fort, fakirs and fakes performed a mystifying levitation trick for a few pennies.

At a well, women queued up with jugs on their heads, the world's most universal tableau. Others carried enormous bundles of fagots or baskets of cow dung cakes, the fuel of the poor.

GAILY PAINTED CARRIERS

Painted gaily as caparisoned elephants, the "public carriers" — combination trucks and buses — moved into the market places. A bullock that had been pulling a farm cart all night gazed balefully into our taxi as we stopped at a signal. Out the other window we watched women pounding clothes in a rocky stream.

Half-naked holy men and pilgrims, matted hair hanging down to their shoulders, poked their long staffs a stride ahead of them. Brahmins in marigold robes, pigtails dangling from shaved heads, made way for the scrawny grey cows and black buffalo that wandered everywhere.

The animals had been spotted and their horns vermillioned for the upcoming festival of Divali, India's combination Fourth of July and Christmas, complete with firecrackers and tiny mistletoe! candles to liven the next meaning of Divali is inscrutable to Westerners and varies from region to region. But it is a time of gifts, sweets, and joy.

The markets and bazaars were busier than usual. Even Indian tourists were in town, marvelling at the classic Mogul architecture of the Red Fort, a 17th - century square-mile enclave of sandstone the color of tomato soup. Inside are marbled pavilions, palaces, reception halls and harems, ponds and fountains and canals. In the hall of the Persian Throne, carved from the fabled peacock throne — said to have been worth $80,000,000 — the legendary Shah Jahan had inscribed "If there is a heaven on earth, it is here, it is here, it is here." It must have been.

WHERE CANALS FLOWED

The canals used to flow out of the palaces and bazaars to Chandni Chowk — "Moonlight Square," so named for the reflection in the water of the sweets once sold in the sprawling bazaar. Neither water nor jewels remain, only endless streams of bicycle parts and shoe laces, mahogany chairs, charpoy hand cots where cow dung fires broil sikah and razor blades, braziers where cow dung fires broil sikah kebab, and opulent fat merchants purveying semi-precious stones as they recline on pillowed beds.

Looming above the bazaar is the Jama Masjid Mosque, one of the world's largest, its 122 steps — all occupied by sprawling and crawling bundles of misery — leading to a 100,000 square-foot plaza and a mosque surrounded by 40-foot minarets.

But more to the Westerner's taste is the colorful Birla Mandir temple, a kind of Hindu Disneyland. Hindu worship is informal and spontaneous; people wander in and out, occasionally stopping to listen to a pundit expound from scripture to the accomplishment of arythmic drums and cymbals.

There are literally thousands of dead tombs and towers in the old city — some of them, like Humayun's tomb, imposing yet typically delicate works of marble and latticed screens. But it is the living who, all through India, remain engraved on the memory.

The Junior Farmers' banquet was set for January 2 with Uniondale Women's Institute catering. A Committee in charge will be Mrs. G. Harrington, Mrs. M. Grills and Mrs. E. Anderson.

Current events were given by Mrs. Alton Sine and these told of the finding of iron ore on Baffin Island.

Spirit of Fellowship Shown By Women of Different Faiths

The Catholic Women's League of Holy Rosary Church entertained the United Church Women of College Hill United Church on Monday evening, at the Knights of Columbus hall.

Receiving the guests were the president of the Catholic Women's League, Mrs. E. J. Reed, the first vice-president, Mrs. M. J. Waller and a past president, Mrs. A. Eves.

After signing the guest book the visitors and their hostesses partook of a sumptuous buffet dinner which was capably arranged by Mrs. W. Smith.

The banquet room and tables were decorated in the Nativity theme and in blue, white and gold, the emblematic colors of the Catholic Women's League. Each guest received a small replica of the nativity scene as a memoir of the occasion.

Presiding over the festivities was Mrs. M. J. Waller.

Father Rufus Dobson, O.S.M. Conv. offered grace, after which he set the scene for an informal evening.

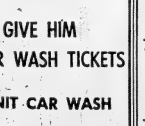
After the dinner Mrs. E. J. Reed welcomed all those present. Mrs. D. Watson, president of the United Church Women of College Hill United Church, responded.

Reverend Father Reginald Sweeney, OSM Conv., pastor of Holy Rosary Church, spoke briefly about this happy occasion.

Father Rufus, Spiritual Director of the Catholic Women's League, pointed out that this gathering was in accord with the Ecumenical movement and spirit instituted by the late Pope John and furthered by Pope Paul. He expressed the hope that it will be the beginning of many such get-together.

ENJOY FELLOWSHIP

Reverend Roy Vessey, B.A., B.D., minister of College Hill United Church, said, "At this holy season it is fitting that we should have fellowship together as Christian people. If we work together and attempt to understand each other we may well find much common ground on which to stand."



"Central in both our faiths is belief in Christ and worship one God, even though there is a difference between the celebration of Mass in the Roman Catholic Church and the celebration of The Lord's Supper in the United Church of Canada. At the Christmas season the theme is "Love," so there is no room for bitterness, pride or deceit. We must have friendly relations and work together to the end that one day all men everywhere may acknowledge the Lordship of Christ."

Following Mr. Vessey's remarks Mrs. Catherine Darlington read a Scripture selection and Mrs. J. McEvoy gave a reading.

SING CAROLS

Games were played and carols were sung, under the direction of Father Rufus, with Mrs. C. Reed at the piano.

Coffee and conversation rounded out an evening during which, in a relaxed and happy mood, all present became better acquainted and in a spirit of love and congeniality each learned more of the aim and outlook of the other.

When purchasing a coat or suit, check the color-fastness of the lining by rubbing a handkerchief over it. If the color leaves, leave it for another.

Quintebelles Have Yule Entertainment

The Quintebelles Barbershop Chorus met recently at the home of Joan Hale for a warm and fun-filled Christmas party.

The newly acquired director, Nora Barber, led the ladies in singing Christmas carols and familiar barbership favorites. For a change of pace Phyllis Chambers led in a few rousing quiz games.

Instead of exchanging gifts this year, each lady brought a toy to donate to the Kiwanis Christmas project.

The chorus will not be meeting during the Christmas season but will commence again on January 5, in the ANAF hall, 187 Front St., Belleville. All ladies are welcome to attend.

Fighting Parents Cause Many Emotional Upsets

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I know you have written about this in your column before but I wish you would mention it again. I'm talking about parents who fight in front of their children. If they only knew the hell they drag their kids through they'd stop it.

About every three or four weeks my parents have a terrible argument which last anywhere from 30 minutes to two hours. Right now they are tearing into each other like a couple of jungle animals. These fights have been going on for two years, and they seem to be getting worse.

After a fight they don't speak to each other for about a week. The tension in the house during the silent spells is awful too. We kids feel like we are living in the middle of a battlefield. My sister had headaches and I get such bad stomach pains that I can't eat dinner half the time. .

Please, Ann Landers, tell fighting parents their kids realize they have to explode sometimes and get whatever bothers them out of their systems. But why can't they do it in private? — FEARFUL.

DEAR FEARFUL — I can add nothing to your letter, but here is a word to parents: If you see yourselves in the above letter I strongly recommend that you go together to a clergyman and learn how to live together.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our son Fred attends college about 350 miles from here. He has a car and comes home once a month for a weekend.

A buddy of his who lives a few blocks away goes to the same college. Last weekend the buddy asked Fred if he could hook a ride home, Fred said, "O.K."

When Fred went by to pick up his buddy he had two fraternity brothers with him.

Fred already had four other fellows in the car. He told his buddy he was sorry but eight people was too big a load and he couldn't take them. The three boys took a bus but not before they called Fred a few names you wouldn't print.

Fred's buddy is mad and so are his parents. We think our son used good judgement. What do you think? — R.C.O.

DEAR R.C.O. — I think Fred's buddy had a lot of gall to spring two freeloaders as a surprise when he himself was a freeloader.

Eight in a car can be dangerous and in some states it is illegal. I agree with you. Your son used good judgment.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — We are the parents of a nine month-old child. When we go out for an evening, we always hire a sitter.

Before the sitter arrives my husband insists that the dishes be done and the house be in order. His younger sister used to be a sitter and he remembers her complaints about women who left their homes a mess and the sink full of dirty dishes.

It is difficult for me to do up the dishes, straighten the house, get the baby ready for bed and be dressed by 8.00 p.m. I'm a nervous wreck from rushing about trying to get everything done.

My husband is stubborn and I can't budge him once he makes us his mind about something. Please suggest a solution — RUN RAGGED.

DEAR RUN — Make a special arrangement with the sitter (for extra pay) to do the dinner dishes. She will probably be happy to make the additional money and it will be well worth it to you — even if it means going out less frequently.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Successful Living

Good Relationships Based On Solid Home Front

HOME FOR CHRISTMAS

Christmas is family time. For the next few days our air lines, trains, bus services, will be taxed to the limit in an effort to bring faraway members of the family home. Businesses, governments, schools, society in general gears its timing to bringing loving hearts together for Christmas day.

Perhaps, then, it is also a time to take stock of ourselves. Are we prizing our family fun right here at home, or do the day-to-day strains and clashes make us behave at less than our best with those we care most about?

DORIS CLARK

A teen-ager writes in, "My parents are a great problem to me. They never let me do anything I want." A mother says, "I can't understand youngsters any more. Mary never wants to be home."

The long-time-marrieds make a fine job of taking each other for granted. Lodge nights, pink tea, stag sociability on the part of both partners or just the basic struggle for survival, may detract in a subtle way from their regard for each other.

The complaint I often hear is that we just don't have any family life any more. Our young people have so many extra curricular activities that: "Our company isn't-enough for them any more. They want to be with their friends."

Not that it isn't good for people to have friends outside of their families. We all do. The man who prays: "God bless us four and no more" is rightly ridiculed. We know that a life without interest in the broader world is a meagre, narrow life. The world is too small for us to remain wrapped up in'ourselves.

All right then. Why not make this holiday time the beginning of some new adventures in friendship? Why not do what our grandparents did — make our homes a meeting place for friends and family, so that our children can enjoy both at once?

A family dinner won't be quite so corny for John Jr. if his special chum is enjoying it with him. The Sweet Sixteen who hangs around the restaurant would glow with the joy of hostessing if she could bring the crowd home for a pass-around supper.

Christmas carols go well on a guitar! And the girl who may at first self-consciously scorn such homemade frivolity will delight in the enthusiasm of a friend exclaiming: "Gosh, Joany, your parents are simply super!"

Even Granny will delight in contributing a pie, a pudding,— and a pal!

If we really believe that our best matches begin with friendship and a delight in simple things — if we really believe that the best marriages blossom and ripen when two partners strive together toward the same objectives — then we have a powerful reason for bringing the family home.

When there is a solid home front, when there are mutual interests and mutual regard, the homespun warp and woof which gradually forms the basic pattern for community and then for national and international relationships can make a stronger, warmer fabric to embrace mankind. — DORIS.

U.C.W. Meeting

JOHNSTOWN U.C.W.

JOHNSTOWN — Mrs. Kenneth Gere was hostess to the Johnstown U.C.W. on Tuesday evening with 17 members present.

The Christmas story was read from the Bible by Mrs. Maitland Harder, Mrs. Clarence MacDonald, Mrs. William S. Harry, Mrs. Earl Stickle, Mrs. Everett Harry and Mrs. Arnold Harry.

During the business session it was arranged to give a gift of money to the minister Mr. Brian Thrasher to buy books for the Kingston Penitentiary Library. A string of lights was also donated to help decorate for Christmas at the penitentiary. Mr. Thrasher requested decorations from other churches of Kingston and as a result had enough to decorate four trees.

A thank-you card was received from Bill Harry for cards received while in Kingston hospital. Mrs. Alec Vandervoort also thanked her friends of Johnstown United Church for their kindnesses while she was ill recently.

Letters were received from World's Illiteracy and Scott's Mission asking for donations.

Christmas carols were sung after which a movie of how "Silent Night" came to be written was shown by Mrs. E. Russell.

Mother's Helper

DO BE careful about letting your child become involved in too many planned afterschool activities. Most youngsters need at least one free afternoon when no obligation must be met. Parents may be guilty of pushing docile children into extra lessons, clubs, social situations, etc., until there's no "growing time" left.

1 egg yolk,
2 tablespoons rum or brandy
2 tablespoons icing sugar,
1 egg white, stiffly beaten,
½ cup cream, whipped,

Beat the egg yolk with the rum (or brandy) and sugar. Add the stiffly beaten egg white and whipped cream, and lastly the grated lemon rind.

QUESTION

At a New Year's party last year we were served some little chicken-filled bouchees. They were made of cream puff pastry but not sweet, of course. Could you tell me how to make these? I want to serve them at a party between Christmas and New Years.

Dorothy R.

ANSWER

CHICKEN BOUCHEES:

Cream Puff Paste: (Choux Paste): One-half cup butter (or ¼ cup butter and ¼ cup good-quality shortening), 1 cup hot water, 1 cup unsifted all - purpose flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 large eggs. Add butter to water, bring to boil and when butter is melted, add flour all at ones and stir hard until mixture is smooth and forms a mass that comes away from sides of pan. Remove from burner and add eggs one at a time, beating between additions until each egg is thoroughly blended in. Drop evenly on greased baking sheets in mounds size of walnuts, making about 24. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes; then at 375 deg. Fahr. for 25 to 30 minutes longer. Do not underbake. Cool.

With sharp knife cut slice from top. At serving time fill with Chicken Salad: One and one-half cups diced cooked chicken, ½ cup chopped stuffed olives, ¾ cup finely chopped inner celery, ½ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, ½ cup best-quality genuine mayonnaise. (The addition of ½ cup grated Cheddar cheese is optional.) Mix lightly

When bouchees are all filled, decorate each with slice of stuffed olive. Dorothy, I should thank you for asking for what I intended to give next week - Chicken Bouchees for Christmas or New Year's Eve party. Readers please note that these are luscious morsels to munch instead of sandwiches or canapes.

ALBERT COLLEGE

(A Story of a Church School)

"The habits of youth are the power of manhood and the crown of age." — Albert Carman.

* * *

We continue with an imaginary letter written by an imaginary guest visiting Albert College sometime during the era of 1884-1914. It reads in part:

"The greatest place for sociability is during meal time.

"Here in the dining hall the boys and girls sit opposite at table. Each boy has his "lady opposite" whom he serves before himself and the same couples are so placed for several weeks.

"At dinner tonight they were begging one of the girls to tell what costume she would be wearing for the 'masquerade Prom' But she refused to tell.

"The Prom, as you know, is the big social event. Said one of the fellows: 'It's the one function that lets you get the closest one can get to a girl — this being half an arm's length! She can lay her hand gently upon your inviting elbow while you join the strollers up and down the hall way . . .'

"It was a very pretty scene with everyone dressed in costume. I went as an Indian chief. We were given cards; "Prom" cards they call them, with spaces for the names of partners for each promenade.

METHODIST PURITANISM

"Methodist puritanism and the wishes of strict parents make fo such rules as: Boys are not allowed to call on the girls without permission and then there's always a teacher present. So with the social event, the "Prom" takes the place of dancing which is not allowed. And I must admit, while strolling up and down it 'less animated skeletically' than some forms of dancing, it calls for more "mental activity' . . .

"One of my partners was dressed as an Indian maiden, and I discovered during the course of our promenade that she was the girl at the table who refused to say how she was going to dress for the masquerade. No one recognized her, she was like a little girl in moccasins, with her hair hanging in two long braids decorated with beads.

"She was very excited over the visit of an evangelist who had spoken at the college that morning. Classes had been released to hear him, but as she said, 'It was a clear gain of mental and intellectual alertness because of his religious enthusiasm and awakening.' She reminded me since the unions of the various branches of Methodism in Canada which formed the Methodist church in the mid-1880's, Albert was now a secondary school. It still had some of the theological courses including Hebrew. Arts and senior theology were transferred to Victoria College, in Cobourg.

"How did you happen to choose an Indian maid costume?" I asked her.

"She told me, a relative of hers had once taught at Albert College who was a botanist. His name was John Macoun, professor of Natural History and Botany. He had been invited to join Sir Sandford Fleming's expedition to the Pacific. This party was to survey the engineering problem of a transcontinental railway. Fleming was also interested in self-sufficiency and agricultural prospects. At that time little was known of the land between the Red River and the Rockies. The verdict was for the great part the work of the botanist.

NAMED MOUNTAIN

"John Macoun used to tell me stories about this excursion into this land before the Northwest Mounted Police were ever there. Where murder and thieving were very common. How they met the Sioux and other Indians. How they followed the route of the Slave Lake and the Peace River. "When he returned he was welcomed with an oyster supper traditional with Albert. Later he compiled much of his research in his book "Manitoba and the Great Northwest (1882). And — in the Rockies, they named a mountain after him — Mt. Macoun, in honor of his memory.'

"The Prom', a huge success, is now over. Up in our room I glance at the Saturday edition of the Intelligencer while waiting for my room mate to come in. The paper gives large place to church news. I read one of the serial stories it carries which has a moral one.

"When my room mate came in we chatted for a bit. There's no dearth of things to do in the College as far as societies are concerned. They have the Athletic Association, the Philomathian Society (for elocution) Mission Band, Intercollegiate Missionary Association, Y.W.C.A. and Y.M.C.A whose secretaries travel about to speak to student groups and keep students in touch with other student groups most of which are of university grade. However there are no secret societies.

BUGGY RIDE

"We might have talked longer but my room mate who is, as I have said, a senior, is looking forward to tomorrow when he may take a girl whom he likes out for a buggy ride. She is also in her senior year. Only seniors may do this.

"I can hire a horse and buggy for a dollar and a half,' he says, 'for an afternoon drive to Trenton or Stirling, as long as I bring her back in time for dinner at the college. . .'

"And so to bed. I've had a full and interesting day, a good time all around — at Albert College. Looking forward to my next visit already."

(The imaginary letter is based on the facts found in "Albert College, 1857-1957" by Dr. Waldo E. L. Smith.)

(TO BE CONTINUED)

May we wish our readers a very "Merry Christmas."

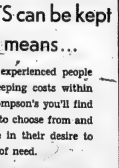
SCOTT'S U.C.W.

6TH SIDNEY — Mrs. Maurice Dafoe was hostess to Scott's United Church Women on Wednesday evening when ten members and two visitors were present.

The treasurer reported that the allocation was met, and a donation sent to the Lay Foundation. Arrangements were made for serving for sales-barn early in January. World Day of Prayer meeting will be held on March 5th.



Slate of officers for 1966 are as follows: past-president — Mrs. Maurice Dafoe; president — Mrs. Cameron Sine; vice-president — Mrs. Edison Sine; secretary corresponding and recording — Mrs. Alton Sine; treasurer — Mrs. Earl Dafoe; pianist — Mrs. Ross Dafoe.

Conveners are: missionary education — Mrs. Alton Sine; citizenship supply social welfare — Mrs. Ross Dafoe; community friendship and visiting — Mrs. Earl Dafoe; press, publicity and program — Mrs. Morley Sine; flowers — Mrs. Greenville Sine; finance stewardship, membership leadership and development — Mrs. Maurice Dafoe; archives — Mrs. Alton Sine and nominating chairman — Mrs. Carman Frost.

Mrs. J. Bergveld, 4th line Sidney, who with her husband came from Holland in 1955 told about Christmas customs in Holland. There the Santa Claus festivities are centred around the 4th and 5th of December when the gifts are given and Christ's birthday is strictly a religious festival with church attendance.

Mrs. K. Powowarski spoke of the Christmas customs in Poland. She and her husband and two children came to Belleville from Stratford in England in 1957. In Poland the four weeks of the Advent season are spent in "concentration" on religion. Father Christmas brings gifts only to children, no older than 16 years of age. Like Holland the Christmas season centres around religious themes: the nativity and events leading up to it.

The hostess and her helpers served a delicious lunch.

Those who sow must sometimes dig, and a rubber sponge will pick up loose, leftover threads quickly.

Christmas Concerts

FREE METHODIST S.S.

FRANKFORD — The annual Free Methodist Sunday School Christmas program was held last Monday evening which was opened by Rev. Donald White, pastor of the church.

The Sunday School superintendent Mrs. Hilliard Morrow welcomed everyone and the program began with a "Welcome" recitation by Randy Moore. The primary classes sang a Christmas number followed by a recitation by Pæl Campbell with other numbers as follows: a number and an acrostic by the juniors; recitation by Mary Ann Davis; questionnaire by the junior Sunday School class and their teacher in dealing with "Signs of Christmas"; a group of juniors in appropriate costumes gave recitations of around the world; a recitation by six girls of the intermediate group; a two-part skit enacted by the intermediates with the narrator Ronald Twiddy; a recitation by Rita McCormick; a reading by Mrs. Artie Haggerty; a Christmas litany by the intermediates; a recitation by Bobby Mcormick and a number by the choral group directed by Mr. Bob Campbell.

Mr. Richard Twiddy assistant superintendent on behalf of the church presented Mr. and Mrs. White with a pair of dresser lamps and a chenille bedspread and a magazine rack for which the recipients expressed appreciation.

Bags of candy were distributed to everyone and Mr. Morrow closed the evening with prayer.

A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Merle Moore, Mrs. Richard Twiddy and Mrs. Bob Campbell for the work involved in practising and planning of the program.

Lines on Life
Family Life Principles Carried into Adulthood

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

In our "Age of Psychology" we have been schooled to see through the overt act and urged to find the real, underlying motives for human behaviour.

Though "practicing without a license," we imagine ourselves as seasoned psychologists, and seem quite capable of dissecting every social and human problem from the point of view of the mental and emotional processes of the individual. And yet, most of us fail to realize that psychology, after all, is based principally on the relationships of parents to children and children to parents.

We forget that virtually every known human relationship is but an extension of our experiences within the family. And so we continue to adhere to a philosophy of family life which, in the name of modern psychology accentuates asociality and discontinuity.

This prevailing doctrine has been so successful in over emphasizing the importance of the private world of the individual that he now acts as if he believed that he needed a family at all!

Far from leading to our human emancipation, these new teachings shackle us to our own raw hides — the conflicting world of our passions and desires — and transpose the role of parents, so that before children ever learn how to be children they are already functioning as if they were fathers and mothers.

The result is no real family, just as there is no real community. Instead of parents allowing love to function as moral responsibility clothed in tender affection, and children willingly permitting it to be expressed in the form of dutiful reverence, in effect, the generations have switched roles. Parents may be looking at their children, but unwittingly, because their love is rooted in a fear of losing their affections, their hearts are turned away from them; they have become a frightful, terrifying burden. Children may seem to be hearkening to parents but because their love has been made into the measure of all things, their hearts, too, are turned away from them.

In earlier days, it was the family which offered young people the supreme opportunity for the achievement of their social identity. Through such a sense of identity they were given the important feeling of continuity; they were the vital means whereby the past, present, and future were merged.

This significant "identity-formation" was derived from the family experience; it helped to fit the rising generation for its future role in a society which looked forward to reproducing itself in the life of its young. "Growing up" meant becoming "socialized" and was not merely something we seem to do, with finding outlets for satisfying self-fulfillments.

PERSONAL AMBITIONS

Our families seem never to work at the job of producing people out of children, for in our zeal to sanctify them, we permit vate worlds as empires not to be invaded by adult standards of moral responsibility, we are denying our children one of the major values of family life — the achievement of a socialized personality. As a result, young people grow into a world with their private, personal ambitions as their paramount goals and increasingly refuse to follow a direction which would involve them too deeply in the wider society.

Private lives are not enough; simply because there is not enough of oneself "to go around." We need to relate to the world, and when we open up our lives to the world, in the laboratory of our homes, we become bigger than we could ever have been before.

MISSION CIRCLE

The executive committee of the Yota Yita Mission Circle of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church entertained the members at a delicious Christmas dinner for their December meeting. Mary Hales thanked the executive on behalf of the members.

An exchange of gifts took place after which carol singing, led by Diana Woolley with Kay Pryor at the piano, was enjoyed.

Mrs. Woodcock gave an inspiring devotional after which each girl lighted a candle symbolic of the light of God's word.

LIGHTING THE WAY

By Walter S. Crowe

THE COST OF DODGING DUTY

The story is told of an ancient King who placed a heavy stone upon a road, then hid himself to see who would remove it. Men of all classes came and worked their way around it. Some of them loudly blamed the King for not keeping the highway clear, but all of them dodged the duty of getting it out of the way.

At last, a poor peasant, on his way to town with his load of vegetables for sale, came along. He looked at the stone for a moment, then, laying down his load, rolled the stone into the ditch by the side of the road. Upon turning around, he saw a purse which had been lying underneath the stone. Upon opening the purse, he found it to be full of gold pieces with a note from the King which stated that it was for the one who should remove the stone.

Under every cross we face, can turn back from our crosses, or try to go around them, but if we do, we are the losers! We cannot dodge our cross without dodging God's blessings. We cannot refuse our cross, without endangering our crown.

FISH EGGS are sorted and inspected by Stewart Snider of Picton, at the Department of Lands and Forests fisheries research station at Glenora. Eggs are of Kokanee salmon, being introduced to Ontario this year.

Landlocked Pacific Salmon, Kokanee From Kootenay, Is Planted in Lake Ontario

Salmon fishing in Lake Ontario? Not as surprising as it sounds. There were Atlantic Salmon in the lake until about 50 years ago. Nobody knows how they got there, and nobody knows for sure why they died, but it may have been because of damming of the streams and deforestation of the lakeshore —both contributing to dirty water. Fishermen in some areas still call some varieties of trout "salmon," probably, according to Jack Christie because people here years after the salmon left did not know they had gone. Christie is marine biologist of the Lands and Forests fisheries research station at Glenora.

Man put some salmon in the lake too. "Chinook" or Spring Salmon were planted in Lake Ontario during two four-year programs, starting in 1878 and in 1919, but neither planting was successful.

Now another attempt is being made, with the Kokanee, a landlocked Pacific salmon. One-and-a-half-million Kokanee eggs were received in Ontario this fall, from Kootenay Lake in British Columbia, and about a million more eggs are coming soon from Colorado and Montana. Half the eggs were sent to the Department of Lands and Forests research station in Glenora, for planting in Lake Ontario; half were sent to Georgian Bay.

Some of the already-received early-spawned eggs have been planted already in this area, in Shelter Valley Creek near Port Hope and in Willmot's Creek near Newcastle. The remainder will be planted during the spring, as "swim-up fry," or minnows just ready to swim up out of the gravel in which the eggs would normally be laid. Late-spawned eggs from Colorado and Montana will also be planted as eggs and as swim up fry.

Requirements for a salmon stream include a gravel bottom and clear, running water. A good trout stream is, in other words. Both the streams selected fill the bill, and both are good trout streams now. A traditionalist, Jack Christie, had planned to plant some eggs in the Salmon River near Shannonville. The plan was dropped, though, when it was learned there is not enough water in the river.

MAY ESCAPE LAMPREYS

Hatching during the early spring, the young Kokanee will swim immediately to Lake Ontario, where they will live on plankton, (minute animal and vegetable organisms), in the middle depths over the centre of the lake. Because of their choice of range, they stand a good chance of avoiding the lamprey eels, which are blamed for the demise of the lake trout. Lake trout, carnivorous fish, lived in the depths and near the shore. Lampreys searching for victims where they once found lake trout to prey on, may never find out what a Kokanee looks like.

There's another advantage to the Kokanee's diet and choice of range too. Part of the problem with Lake Ontario now is a surplus of nutrients in the lake, from sewage and industrial wastes. A problem for other fish, the plentiful supply of nutrients means lots of plankton - food for the Kokanee. If the Kokanee multiplies fast enough, they may help clean up the lake for other fish.

Size of the Kokanee seems to depend mostly on the waters in which they are planted, and ranges between six and 26 inches long at maturity after four years. Largest of the fish weigh about eight pounds.

RETURN TO BIRTHPLACE

Kokanee turn bright orange when they're ready to spawn, and, like all salmon, return to the spawning beds where they emerged from the eggs. In heavy concentrations the fish present a colorful sight as they swim up the shallow streams. Jack Christie, who visited Kootenay Lake this year in preparation for the Lake Ontario plantings, has color slides in which the spawning streams appear as bright orange stripe. There will be no fish and game laws enforcement problems during the Kokanee spawning run, though, because the fish are inedible after they have changed color.

Because the fish has a four-year life cycle, plantings of Kokanee around Lake Ontario will be a yearly event for four years. Success of the venture may be predictable within two or three years from the original planting, but the final test — whether the planted fish will spawn in Lake Ontario, will not be known until the fourth or fifth year.

Native to Japan and the west coast of North America between Oregon and Alaska, Kokanee have been introduced to California and to several states in the New England area. Success of the planting in Lake Ontario could mean a revival of the lake's once-multi-million-dollar fishing industry.

KOKANEE SALMON from Kootenay Lake in British Columbia is inspected by marine biologist Jack Christie of Ontario Department of Lands and Forests fisheries research station at Glenora. The fish are being introduced to Lake Ontario and Georgian Bay this year.

Royal Nursery Crowded, Bumper Baby Crop Forces Move to Windsor for Yule

By LYNNE EDMUNDS

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's bumper crop of royal babies this year has forced Queen Elizabeth to break tradition and move the Christmas gathering of her family from their country home of Sandringham to historic Windsor Castle.

Since the Second World War, the royal family with their cousins, the families of Kent and Gloucester, have withdrawn from pomp and protocol to enjoy a carefree Christmas at Sandringham, isolated rural mansion in eastern England.

But the Sandringham nursery —already bursting at the seams last Christmas with Prince Andrew, second son of the Queen, and the eldest sons of Princess Margaret and the young Duchess of Kent — now is too cramped to cope with four new arrivals.

"The nursery at Windsor Castle is bigger and more suitable," said a Buckingham Palace spokesman. "So the Queen has decided to spend Christmas there for the first time since 1964."

Margaret, her husband, the Earl of Snowdon and their two young children along with Prince Philip, will be there.

Princess Alexandra, cousin of the Queen with her business man husband, Angus Ogilvy, and their young son will swell the family party this year.

The soldier Duke of Kent, with his vivacious Duchess and two young children, will join them. He has been given leave from his regiment, the Royal Scots Greys, stationed at Fallingbostel, Western Germany.

The Duchess of Gloucester, aunt of Elizabeth, is not letting a horse-riding accident keep her away from the family's favorite gathering.

Though hobbling around with one leg in plaster, she is keeping all her official engagements and doing her usual Christmas shopping.

The traditional Christmas dinner will be Norfolk turkey, Christmas pudding and mince pies.

The palace, which has been the home of Britain's sovereigns for eight centuries, overlooks the Valley of the Thames, about 20 miles west of London.

The Queen can be expected as usual this year to go riding with some of the family during the holiday in adjoining Windsor Great Park.

Her husband will be busy continuing his personal Christmas custom of organizing shoots in the surrounding countryside. There will be tramps through the woods and family singsongs around the piano.

GM Workers Okay Contract, May Return to Jobs Monday

TORONTO (CP) — Striking employees of General Motors of Canada Limited voted today on a proposed contract settlement which, if approved, would send them back to work Monday.

General membership meetings were called for 10 a.m. EST in Toronto, St. Catharines, Windsor and London. The huge Oshawa local of the United Auto Worker: (CLC) has called a meeting for 1 p.m.

Details of the three - year agreement reached Thursday by company and union negotiators were released at the meeting. Among main issues in the dispute were union demands for higher pensions on retirement and a narrowing of the wage gap between auto workers in Canada and the United States.

The contract could set the pattern for agreements covering workers at Ford of Canada and Chrysler Limited where negotiations are in progress.

Bargaining on the GM contract began 3½ months ago.

WAS PREMATURE

The strike began officially Dec. 3 but workers at the Oshawa plant walked out prematurely Dec. 1 over claims of a production speed-up.

There are 14,500 employees at Oshawa, 1,150 at the GM transmission plant in Windsor, 1,000 at Frigidaire Products of Canada Limited in Scarborough, a Toronto suburb, 6,275 at McKinnon Industries Limited, St. Catharines, and 650 at GM's diesel plant in London.

Before the strike the UAW claimed Canadian workers received wages 50 cents to $1.40 an hour less than those paid by the parent auto companies to U.S. employees.

GM originally said it would offer Canadian workers the same increases, on a percentage basis, as the parent company recently gave in the U.S. But the union said such a contract would widen the salary gap.

Police Silent About Kidnap Threat Reaction

OTTAWA (CP)—City police and the RCMP were silent Friday night about any steps that might be taken in the wake of a reported kidnap threat by Quebec Separatists to a cabinet minister.

Marcel Joyal, executive assistant to State Secretary Lamontagne, said Friday he had been advised by city police of a report that members of the Front de Liberation Quebecois might be planning to kidnap the minister as a hostage for the release of jailed FLQ members. He said he had conveyed the information to Mr. Lamontagne.

The detective department of the city police force denied knowledge of the report. An RCMP officer said "of course any publication of security arrangements defeats the purpose of the arrangements."

He said the primary responsibility for protection of citizens in Ottawa rests with the city force and added that the RCMP is making no statements in connection with the report.

Mr. Joyal said police told him they were taking precautions in the wake of the report but had not said what they were.

Mrs. Lamontagne and the couple's three children all live in the Ottawa area—two teenage boys at home and a married daughter across the river in Hull, Que.

Mr. Joyal said he had heard Mr. Lamontagne was listed on a sheet put out by the FLQ as "one of the guys who had to be got rid of."

BAIL SET

TORONTO (CP) — Bail was set at $25,000 each Friday for pharmacist Sydney Charendoff, 31, and his wife Janet, 27, after they were charged with trafficking in narcotics. Both will appear in court again Wednesday. Special Prosecutor Hugh Hornsberger said police made three purchases of narcotics — "more than 700 capsules of morphine" — from Mrs. Charendoff.

Indifference Of Public Annoys Coroner

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The public was criticized by a coroner at an inquest here Friday for "indifference" toward police searching for a still unknown car which struck Alois Sadusek, 43, Nov. 7. He died in hospital the next day.

Dr. Gordon W. Powell said he was critical of persons who didn't assist police during their province-wide search for the car and driver.

"I'm sure there must be members of the public who have seen it," he said.

"They have seen it and they know the damaged car. But for reasons of indifference or fear of reprisal, no one has come forward."

Police said they had checked 200 vehicles since the accident.

The jury made no recommendations.

Whitby First To Raise New Canadian Flag

WHITBY, Ont. (CP)— Mayor Warren Mowat hoisted the new Canadian flag accepted by Parliament over the town hall Friday, claiming this town 25 miles east of Toronto among the first in Canada to accept it officially.

The red maple leaf has yet to receive royal assent.

"You are witnessing the first raising of the new flag on our standard," the mayor told a small crowd.

"Why don't you raise the skull and cross-bones instead?" called an onlooker.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. B. Carter, Sports Editor

Much yapping, gurgling and tonsilling has been aired over the difference between hockey's international and our rules.

Canadian hockey players believe the shortest distance between two points is a straight right—the European believing it is a straight line, eliminating body-checking with the exception of the defensive zones.

In the western puck dramas, the zebra-shirted deputies took time—three times questioned "why," answer with a gesture towards the penalty box, "He went thataway."

In the earlier days of international puck warfare, Canadian teams using their shotgun bodies on head-down foreign foemen, earned the wrath of continental journalists and were dubbed in the local blatts as western hoedhums, roughnecks and other affectionate nomsde-glace.

It appeared that perhaps with the exception of the Muscimen from Moscow, European hockeyists bruised very easily, fell easier, while at least in two instances their officials had to retire with St. Vitus Dance acquired from monotonous thumb-wagging.

I recall a night in Bratislava, a lovely city on the Czech-Austrian border overlooking the beautiful "brown" Danube (Strauss must have had the "blues" the day he wrote his famous waltz) when the McFarlands of this city were engaged in tournament battle with the home nationals.

Lammy Lamirande was teamed with Big Al Dewsbury behind the Canadian blueline. At the end of the first period this pair of bumptious Maple Leaf bumpkins had divided eight penalties.

In the dressing room Ike Hildebrand laid down the law. "Whatinell are you guys trying to do, win the Czech wrestling championship? You came here to play hockey—not bounce checks."

The pair of big lugs looked at the coach with the eyes of innocent children. "Aw shucks, Ike," they chorused, "they're coming over that blueline with their heads between their knees. They are just sitting ducks. We've not had so much fun since we played that team from the ladies' college."

"It's within the rules," growled Ike, "but there's a difference between a legal bodycheck and trying to park their arms in one end of the arena and their legs in the other."

Now, and you can see it in the play of the Russian team currently touring the country, the continental squads have been tutored to knock the western badmen down—and they're doing a good job.

Our style of play, one of their observers states, is the "scotch-for-tooth" brand. Gummy smiles in the NHL proves his point in part. But I do not believe that even if the European state-sponsored clubs adapted our rules it would result in the annihilation that has characterized some of our shinny tete-a-tetes.

As the Russian coach, Lieut. Colonel Anatoly Vladimirovitch Tarasov of the Red Army states, "we respect our athletes' health too much."

Shucks, a spot of ticticuffs is the barbecue sauce on the puck spareribs. There wouldn't be any fun at all if a great big hockey heavyweight stood there and took a punch on the klisser without retaliating.

Leo LaBine once said: "If a guy gives you the business you've got to straighten him out. If you don't retaliate, they'll run you out of the league. Besides getting a stick in the face is no fun. I don't know of anybody who likes to eat wood unless he's a beaver."

The iron thumbs of officialdom that rule the hockey clubs east of the Iron Curtain, would never permit the removal of an opponent's molars by deft manipulation of the curved wooden weapon of a player.

If they did adopt our rules they'd probably insert more teeth than you'll find in a dental workshop. The NHL governors put more molars in their rules last spring and that's probably one of the few places in hockey you'll find them.

Minor Hockey Results

High scores featured action in the Belleville Minor Hockey Association's Tyke division last night. The goalies were not quite so generous in the novice section.

TYKE

Wings outscored the Canadiens 6-4. Claude Landry spearheaded the Wing attack with three goals. Single markers went to John Ross, Barry Bessey and Hugh Bennett. Canadien marksmen were Bruce Sutherland, Scott James, Steve Duffy and Tim Barber.

Peter Crawford ran scoring wild to give Leafs an 8-3 victory over the Hawks. Crawford triggered six of the Leaf goals, including the first two and the final three. Doug Barclay and Ricky Culkin added one apiece. Roger Chapman netted two and Richard Sweet one for the Hawks.

Bruins topped the Rangers in a 5-3 contest. Pat Calnan paced the Bruins with two goals. John Ashley, Chris Lachman and Joe Letersky fired the others. Ranger scorers were John Gibson, Barry Martin and Richard Mofina.

NOVICE

Both the novice games ended in 3-1 scores with Maroons defeating the Canadiens and Barons clipping the Leafs.

Russian Avalanche Swamps Quakers

SASKATOON (CP)—The Russian nationals swamped Saskatoon Quakers of the Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League 11-3 Friday with the finest passing display ever witnessed by Quaker coach Doug Bentley.

The former National Hockey League player paid the tribute after the Russian squad took 8-1 and 4-3 period leads for the lop-sided victory.

"I don't think they skate as fast as the national leaguers, or have the individual stars to compare with the big names of NHL, but their team work, especially their passing, would have to rate as superior."

It was the fifth victory for the Russians who dot-trad the Canadian national team twice, 4-0 and 6-1, the Montreal Junior Canadiens 3-2 and held the Thunder Bay Senior Hockey All-Stars to a 3-3 tie.

The Canadian Nationals will add two more members of last spring's Olympic representatives to the Moscow flight Sunday when the teams meet the Russian squad for a third time.

Coach Gordon Simpson, in a Winnipeg Victory-Lyons Friday night, said goaltender Ken Broderick and centre Gary Dineen had checked into camp on their arrival from the University of British Columbia.

He said it is "too early to tell" who would be benched to make room for Dineen should he play.

Both clubs will represent their countries at the world championships March 4-14 at Tampere, Finland, following a round-robin tournament at Colorado Springs, Colo., starting Dec. 27 involving Canada, Russia, Czechoslovakia and the United States.

Still missing from the Canadian team are Brian Conacher, a left winger, and Grant Moore, a forward.

Conacher injured his knee last Saturday in a college game and will not be available for three weeks.

Leading the Russian attack here Friday was Konstantin Loktev, who scored three goals. Two-goal efforts were contributed by Venlamin Alexandrov, Yuri Volkov and Anatoli Firsov. Alexander Almetov and Yuri Paramochkin picked up single.

Saskatoon goals were scored by Frank Kuzma, Tommy Rendell and Jerry Koch.

The game opened on fairly even terms with the first goal, by Loktev, coming at 8:30 of the first period followed by Firsov at 13:06.

Frank Kuzma put Saskatoon on the scoreboard at 14:50 but Volkov and Alexandrov, with a pair, ran the Russian lead to 5-1 before the period ended.

Saskatoon, with Rendall and Koch hitting within one minute midway through the second period, narrowed the score to 5-3. Loktev answered before the period ran out and the Russians ran away with the third period driving home five unanswered goals.

Don Campbell stopped 39 shots for the Quakers while Victor Tolmachev handled 17 for the Russian squad, 12 in the second period and only one in the final 30 minutes.

'We Need Hockey Players'

WINNIPEG (CP) — It's already post - mortem time for Canada's national hockey team following a six-game exhibition losses to touring Russia.

The question: Can Canada come back and beat the precision - plotted squad in the world championships at Tampere, Finland, March 4-14?

One problem is getting the players together.

The team is composed of members of senior Winnipeg Maroons and last year's youthful Olympic team. Some of the Olympic boys are at university here and elsewhere and miss practices and exhibitions.

Bill Jennings, former National Hockey League defenceman and coach-in player-coach of the Maroons, watched Thursday's 6-1 loss to Russia at the Winnipeg Arena.

To beat the Russians, he said in an interview, "we need some hockey players. Perhaps the kids who still haven't joined the club will be the answer."

GOT TO BE TOUGH

"Secondly, we've got to get tougher in our own end. If the Nationals persist in stick-checking as opposed to body-checking, they're beat.

Coach Gordon Simpson felt his club played better Thursday than in the 4-0 loss to Russia at Toronto Sunday, but it was a case of individual mistakes again.

The coach de-emphasized forechecking on Thursday's game in the hope of upsetting Russian patterns. He still thinks this offensive style of play is a good idea.

"We're not going to scrap it," he said. "We only began working on it a couple of days ago and, taking this into consideration, I feel it worked as well as could be expected."

Simpson's immediate problem is Sunday's scheduled match with Russia here.

Fran Huck, high-scoring Regina junior, is available if the Nationals want him, Simpson said, and there's a possibility he may be in the lineup for Sunday's game.

TO TOUR AND RETIRE

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—Peter Snell of New Zealand, world record holder for the mile and double gold medal winner at the Tokyo Olympics, said Friday he plans to make a European track tour next July and then retire. He hinted he will try to improve his marks before he bows out.

John Masterson scored the Maroon markers. Terry Hunt potted the Canadiens' goal.

Joe Edwards, Blake Reeves and Gary White had the Barons' goals and J. Muldoon was given an assist. Tom Rogers fired the Leaf goal.

Hawks Away On Weekend

Hull 22 Games In Front Of Pace

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"I hope it never ends," says Bobby Hull, and plenty of hockey fans will be keeping an eye on him this weekend to see whether it does.

The reference, of course, is to Hull's phenomenal scoring pace.

The Chicago Black Hawks star, an eight-point leader in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race, netted his 16th and 17th goals of the season earlier this week.

He is about 22 games ahead of his pace in the 1961-62 season, when he scored 50 goals to set the record held jointly by Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion, former Montreal Canadiens.

Tommy Ivan, the Black Hawks' general manager, said in an interview that Hull has earned every one of his goals.

"No matter what game he's in, he's the hardest working man on the ice."

Meanwhile, NHL statisticians indicated that some of Hull's scoring success can be chalked up to just plain shooting—and lots of it.

Statistics released Friday showed that Hull led the league in the number of shots on goal, as well as goals scored, in his club's first 25 games.

He got away 150 shots for 21 goals in that period, roughly the first one-third of the schedule.

Hull and Hawks will be on the road for weekend games, visiting Montreal tonight and Boston Sunday.

New York will be at Toronto for tonight's other game. Sunday, Toronto plays in Detroit and Montreal in New York.

Boston, usually a low-scoring club, seems to have recovered the knack of putting the puck in the net.

The last-place Bruins netted five goals in each of their two games this week, compared to an average of two a game in slightly more than two goals a game.

The Montreal Canadiens will meet the Hawks with Keith McCreary at left wing in place of Gilles Tremblay, who suffered a broken leg in a game against Toronto Thursday night.

McCreary, who attended the Montreal training camp last fall, was called up from Hershey, Pa., Bears of the American League.

His appearance tonight will be his second in an NHL game. He was called up by Canadiens for one playoff game in the 1961-62 season.

Gift From Canadian Counterpart

Russ Goalie Wears Mask Made In Trail

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — Viktor Konovalenko, goaltender of the Russian nationals hockey team, wears a glass-fibre mask that was made in Trail, B.C.

The mask helped him here Dec. 23, Konovalenko will face the man who made it, Trail native Seth Martin, and he'll be at the other end of the ice tending goal for the Western International Hockey League All-Stars.

Martin has on his mantel at home two miniature Soviet sputniks, gifts from Konovalenko.

It's an unusual friendship that grew out of previous meetings between the two in international hockey competition.

WOULDN'T MASK

During a chat — through an interpreter — in Switzerland in 1961, Konovalenko said he was dissatisfied with his mask. Martin said he'd see what he could do. He brought the Russian's mask back to Trail, moulded a new one and sent it to him.

Konovalenko has worn the mask ever since.

Martin and Konovalenko have spent considerable time together during the spare hours at international tournaments.

"We've become pretty good friends," says Martin.

Martin, 31, first met the Russians when he was with Trail Smoke Eaters in 1961.

May Have Helped Break Leg

Tossed Change Did No Good

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP)—Did coins thrown on the ice by fans in Thursday night's National Hockey League game here contribute to Gilles Tremblay's sprawl in the boards that ended with a broken right leg for the speedy Montreal left-winger?

Linesman Neil Armstrong raised the possibility Friday when he told of picking up the first-full of coins in the end-zone spot where Tremblay went down and in the third period of the game between Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs.

The game ended in a 2-2 tie.

"Coins of every denomination were being thrown in the ice all during the game," Armstrong said. "In the third period, in the vicinity where Tremblay suffered his injury, it looked as though someone had thrown a whole fist-full of change at one time—Also, in the same spot, there were several candy lifesavers on the ice."

Armstrong said he could not tell whether the coins contributed to the injury. He said the candy was white, the color of the ice, and some may have been missed during the times the game officials had to clear the ice of small debris.

He said his partner, Matt Pavelich, picked up at least 20 coins.

The injury occurred while the Leafs were shorthanded and Canadiens pressing the play in the Toronto end. When the puck curled to Gaisla Mahaffy, Tremblay and Leaf rookie Ron Ellis dashed for it.

Tremblay got there first and the Toronto rookie carried him into the boards. Tremblay tumbled to the ice.

There was no penalty. Tremblay was carried away on a stretcher. Leaf coach Punch Imlach said later the injury was accidental.

Tremblay had his head down, and seemed to be off balance when he and Ellis came together.

Says Fight Will Be Title Bout

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Tony Maceroni, chairman of the World Boxing Association's championship committee, announced Friday night the WBA will recognize the winner of proposed bout between Rocky Machen of San Francisco and Ernie Terrell of Chicago as the world heavyweight champion.

The WBA recognition, Maceroni said, carries with it the proviso that Machen-Terrell winner post a $5,000 guarantee that within 90 days he will defend the title against the winner of the match between former champion Floyd Patterson and George Chuvalo of Toronto, scheduled for New York's Madison Square Garden Jan. 20.

The WBA does not recognize Cassius Clay as heavyweight champion because the WBA says the bout in which he won the title from Sonny Liston carried a return-bout clause, illegal under WBA rules.

Petra Burka Top '64 Female Athlete

Popular Selection

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Two years ago Petra Burka dazzled a huge crowd in Prague with one of the most difficult manoeuvres on ice. The spectators loved it but judges at the world figure-skating championships weren't impressed with the Canadian's performance.

She finished fourth.

That settled it for the young Toronto skater, acclaimed today as Canada's outstanding female athlete of 1964. She would take up ballet and become a more graceful young lady on skates and perhaps reach the top in her chosen sport.

It is paying off. She won the Canadian senior title this year after two years of second rating behind champion Wendy Griner, also of Toronto, followed it with a third - place bronze medal in the winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria and another third in the world tournament.

Now, this 18-year-old Dutch-born skater is considered a serious threat for the North American and world championships to be held in a couple of months.

"I'm resuming my ballet lessons immediately," she said Friday when told she had headed the list in the 30th annual Canadian Press year - end poll of sports editors and sportscasters. "The judges don't want to look at athletic and acrobatic skaters. They want to see more graceful movements."

She termed her poll victory as "perhaps better than winning the bronze medal."

Miss Burka was the first woman in the world to execute the triple salchow—three turns in the air—and the Czechoslovakian crowd went wild. Now she is convinced that ballet is "a big help" in her skating career.

The brown-haired blue-eyed youngster, who came to Canada as a four-year-old and who has been figure skating since she was seven, made it fairly easily in the CP balloting, which was dominated by Olympic athletes.

The selectors were asked to name the three individual athletes in order of preference with three points for a first-place marking, two for second and one for third. The 118-pound Miss Burka hit the top with 312 points.

Nancy McCredie, 19 - year-old southpaw shotput and discus thrower from Brampton, Ont., who finished a creditable seventh in the shot at the summer Olympics in Tokyo two months ago, was second choice with 186 points. This was just three more than the total for golfer Gail Harvey of Toronto, the 1964 Canadian women's close champion.

Miss Harvey, who has been an Ontario's interprovincial team six years and held the Canadian junior title for three years starting in 1955, was the only non - Olympic athlete to place in the top six.

Dianne Gerace of Trail, B.C., earmarked for future greatness in high jumping, was fourth with 141 points. She showed lots of class at the Tokyo games with a fifth - place finish despite an injured left foot.

Two Olympic swimmers filled the next couple of places. Marilay, a native of Vancouver now living in Covina, Calif., was fifth with 43 points on her fifth ranking in the 100-metre freestyle and Jane Hughes, Vancouver, was sixth with 19 points. She also gained points for Canada with a fifth in the 400-metre freestyle.

The one-two athletes in the 1963 poll—golfer Marlene Stewart Streit and Abigail Hoffman, both of Toronto — were bypassed this year. Mrs. Streit didn't receive a mention and Miss Hoffman, who failed to get past the heats of the 400- and 800-metre races in Tokyo, received only one second-place vote.

Ten other women from Ontario and the four western provinces were named on ballots but their individual point totals ranged from two to six.

Included were Olympic sprinters Jenny Wingerson, Toronto, and Irena Piotrowski, Vancouver; golfer Joanne Goulet, Regina; Nancy Greene, Rossland, B.C., who finished seventh in the downhill skiing at the Australia Olympics; Olympic gymnast Gail Daley, Saskatoon; distance swimmer Claudia McPherson, Winnipeg, and Mrs. Ina Hansen, Burnaby, B.C., skip of the Canadian women's curling championship rink.

TORONTO (CP) — Petra Burka, voted Canada's outstanding female athlete of 1964 in the year-end Canadian Press poll, said Friday she was "happy and surprised" to head the balloting by sports editors and sportscasters.

"It's a real thrill and I honestly didn't expect it," the 18-year-old figure skater from Toronto said in an interview.

"I was happy to be able to represent Canada at the winter games in Austria this year and I may have been lucky to win the bronze medal. I guess I won the poll on that performance and I'm grateful to the people who voted for me."

OUTSTANDING FEMALE ATHLETES — Petra Burka, 18, (left) of Toronto, one of the most spectacular and crowd-pleasing free skaters in the world, is Canada's outstanding female athlete of 1964. Nancy McCredie (top right) of Brampton, Ont., the southpaw shotput and discus star was second. Third was Toronto golfer Gail Harvey, the only non-Olympic athlete to crash the top six.

Smythe Answers Soviet Manager
Would Promote Russian-Rochester Game

TORONTO (CP) — Stafford Smythe, president of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, said Friday night he is ready to promote an exhibition game between the touring Russian national hockey team and Rochester American Leafs' American League farm club.

"If the amateur authorities agree, I'll bring Rochester in for a game at Maple Leaf Gardens before the Russians return home" Smythe said in an interview.

He was replying to a statement issued by Viktor Kuznetsov, manager of the touring Russian club, who said in Winnipeg that his team is "tired of all this rumoring and guessing" as to how good they are.

"If it would be possible for amateurs to play the professionals we would be ready for such a game tomorrow," Kuznetsov said.

MUST FINISH TOUR

The Russians are committed to finish an eight-game tour of Canada by Dec. 23 and then travel to a tournament in Colorado Springs, Colo. They are scheduled to return home before the end of the year.

Kuznetsov expressed preference for a game against an NHL team, a contest which would require clearance from the International Ice Hockey Federation.

Smythe said: "I'm not saying Rochester would whip Russia, but our people would at least provide stronger opposition than the Canadian national team."

Smythe said he was basing his contention on an easy win scored earlier this year by Tulsa of the Central Professional League over the Canadian Nationals.

Juniors Trek To Peterboro

Belleville "B's" are off to Peterborough this evening for the third game in their four-game "road stint".

The "B's" have broken even to date, beating Napanee and losing to Picton. Following tonight's game against Gary Darling's Don By squad, the "B's" go to Gananoque next Sunday night.

Belleville's next home start will be against Trenton Apple Kings here on Jan. 8.

Club secretary Don Barclay says the locals are still looking for extra playing help. Jim Pringle recently returned to the juvenile club.

The "B's" suffered a severe loss last week when it was learned that high-scoring Bill Lang is leaving to attend the University of California. Lang, who has scored seven goals and five assists, is said to be accepting a football scholarship at the U. of C.

A heavy work schedule for some players, due to the Christmas rush, has also cut into the "B's" lineup. Barclay says he expects things to "look up considerably" after the holidays.

Toronto Team Failed To Show At Trenton

TRENTON (Special) — Hockey fans here were more than a little unhappy after being subjected to their second consecutive Friday night cancellation last evening.

Toronto York Steel and Trenton Globetrotters were to have played an exhibition game at the Community Gardens.

Globetrotter officials learned yesterday that the York Steel club would not be allowed to play. A week earlier, the Trentons failed to line up opposition on several tries after their original opponents were unable to appear.

Reason for last night's cancellation was given as "suspensions to York Steel players."

Trenton was told that several York Steel players had been suspended by their Toronto league and that they would not be allowed to accompany the team for the exhibition here. Thus the Toronto club would not make the trip.

The Globetrotters and Trenton's junior "C" Apple Kings split up their practice for a workout.

Fans were not charged admission but a silver collection was taken.

A number of the fans were said to have left the arena voicing their disapproval of the whole affair.

Flyers Nip Habs

Rangers Shade Marlies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros couldn't score in the late going Friday but Niagara Falls could. It meant that the Flyers drew closer to the first - place Marlboros in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

Niagara Falls scored two late goals for a 7-5 victory over Montreal Junior Canadiens. Toronto, however, pulled to within one goal of tying Rochester Rangers but came away with a 5-4 defeat and only a two-point margin over the Flyers.

Niagara Falls appeared to be coasting to an easy victory over the Canadiens when the visitors suddenly struck early in the third period with three goals, tying the game 5-5. But the Flyers shook off the sudden shock to score the winning goal shortly after, and got the insurance marker with less than four minutes remaining.

THREE SCORE TWICE

Ted Snell, Bud Debrody and Rosaire Paiement all scored twice for the Flyers, with Jean Pronovost adding a single. For Montreal, Jacques Lemaire and Norm Ferguson scored twice and Serge Savard once.

At Toronto, the Marlboros scored with a rush that caught the Rangers by surprise. Mike Byers scored with a minute and 31 seconds remaining to put the Kitchener lead in doubt.

Two minor penalties to Kitchener players followed and the Marlboros pulled goaltender Gerry DesJardin to gain a 6-3 manpower edge. However John Voss in the danger net denied them.

John Beechy scored twice for Kitchener and Bill Hway, Bob Howard and Fitzpatrick once. Byers with two goals, Gerry Meehan and Wayne Carleton got the Marlboro goals.

Juveniles Beaten By Trenton 11-3

Trenton Legion derailed the Belleville A.C.T. "Travellers" by an 11-3 count in a juvenile exhibition game played at Memorial Arena here last night.

The Legion left no doubt as to the outcome. They scored the first goal at 7.25 of the first period and it was 3-0 by period's end. The "Travellers" got one back early in the second but Trenton led 7-1 going into the third, when they outscored the homesters again, 4-2.

The high-scoring line of Andy Teeple, Al Ferguson and Jim Bonn sparked the winners with seven goals and 17 points in all. Teeple scored three goals and added four assists, Ferguson got two goals and four helpers and Bonn earned two of each.

Fourchette added a goal and two assists, Turner, Holmes and Howard a goal apiece and Reynolds one assist.

Jim Pringle triggered Belleville's initial marker, assisted by Woodcock. Poste set up an unidentified mate for the second goal and scored the final one, unassisted.

In the penalty department, Trenton drew nine and Belleville got six, including a major per side. The five-minuted penalties went to Smith of Belleville and Holmes of Trenton for fighting.

Belleville visits Napanee in an OHA game tomorrow evening at six o'clock.

Two-Point Rule Big Factor

Boston Favored Over Buffalo

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boston Patriots have Babe Parilli and Buffalo Bills have Cookie Gilchrist but the American Football League has a two-point conversion rule—and there is a strong possibility that Sunday's game for the eastern division title will revolve around the seldom-used manoeuvre.

Buffalo leads by one-half game, with an 11-2 record, and can clinch the title with either a victory or a tie. Favored Boston, 10-6-1, must win to duplicate last year's title and earn a return match with San Diego Chargers for the league championship.

And it's not Parilli, the league's leading touchdown passer with 29, or Gilchrist, the League's No. 1 rusher with 929 yards gained, who may become the focal point. It could be the conversion rule the AFL adopted from the colleges when the league was formed five years ago.

"It will affect our thinking," admitted Boston coach Mike Holovak. "Buffalo has a big advantage on being able to win with a tie. Whether we would go for one or two points would depend on the game situation, how we would go for one or two points would depend on the game situation, how we have been moving the ball and the time remaining."

Holovak issued orders to try for a two-pointer against Buffalo earlier in the season. Parilli made it work on a pass and the Patriots moved ahead to stay 29-28 in the final game, snapped the Bills' unbeaten string at nine games.

In other league action Sunday, western champion San Diego closes out the regular season against Oakland Raiders while New York Jets are at Kansas City to play the Chiefs and Denver Broncos play the Oilers at Houston.

BCI Cagers Win Three

By DAVID TEMPLER

BCI cagers swept a triple victory from the visiting Quinte squad last night. The seniors rolled to an overpowering 75-43, the juniors outscored the Quintes 70-48 and the bantams 27-25.

The senior game was dominated by BCI's first five scoring 72 of the 75 points. Murray Swan and Doug Perkes led the scoring with 24 and 21 respectively. After the first quarter BCI's small but powerful team had a 24-6 lead. This was stretched to 40-10 at the half.

In the third quarter Quinte made a strong effort and outscored their opponents 15-12, but it was too little and too late for the BCI squad came back strongly and erased the remotest Quinte hope.

For BCI, Swan had 24, Perkes had 21, Ron Walsh hit for 10, Arthur Mott for 10, Dave Anderson took four, Reddick got two and Deacon a single.

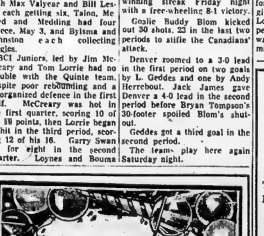
For Quinte, Jack Reppard, playing a fine game, scored 14, with Mac Valyear and Bill Leslie each getting six. Talon, Medred and Medding had four apiece, May 3, and Bylsma and Johnston each collecting singles.

BCI Juniors, led by Jim McGreary and Tom Lorrie had no trouble with the Quinte team, despite poor rebounding and a disorganized defence in the first half. McCreary was hot in the first quarter, scoring 10 of his 18 points, then Lorrie began to hit in the third period, scoring 12 of his 16. Garry Swan hit for eight in the second quarter. Loynes and Bouma got 6, Lucas 5, Sheridan 4, Thibeau and McFarlane 2, and Loynes one.

For the Junior Saints Moon played an excellent game both ways and scored 21 points. The other scorers were Middleton with 7, Bedley 6, Buddle and Dickey each with 4, Stroughton with 2 and Finkel with 1.

The Bantams completed the rout of the visiting Saints by the score of 35-25. The scorers for BCI were: Drumm with 11, Ling 9, Ross 8, Barrie 5, Richardson 2 and Ridley 2. For Quinte Goodfellow got 14, Fraton 5, Shaw 4, and Sheppard two.

Varsity String Cut By Denver



DENVER (AP)—Denver University's hockey team suspended University of Toronto's 11-game winning streak Friday night with a free-wheeling 8-1 victory.

Goalie Buddy Blom kicked out 30 shots, 22 in the last two periods to stifle the Canadians' attack.

Denver roomed to a 3-0 lead in the first period on two goals by L. Geddes and one by Andy Herrebout. Jack James gave Denver a 4-0 lead in the second period before Bryan Tompson's 30-footer spoiled Blom's shutout.

Geddes got a third goal in the second period.

The teams play here again Saturday night.

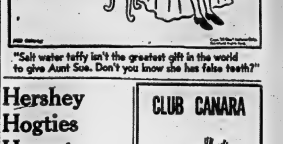
Hershey Hogties Hornets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Pittsburgh Hornet defence rallied around rookie netminder Bob Champoux Friday night and shut out Hershey 3-0 and provide the Hornets' first win over the Bears in more than a year.

Hershey, in second place in the American Hockey League's eastern division, managed only 20 shots at Champoux who was called up from Memphis for his third AHL game.

In other league play, Buffalo Bisons retained their four point edge over Pittsburgh in the western division standings as they edged Baltimore Clippers 5-4 in overtime. Buffalo, with 31 points, is seven back of division - leading Rochester Americans. Hershey and Baltimore stayed in second and third places respectively in the eastern division, well back of idle Quebec Aces.



Duke Harris, Jerry Toppazzini and Murray Hall provided the Pittsburgh goals.

Ray Cullen tipped in the winning goal for the Bisons at 7:16 of the overtime period after Oscar Gaudet of Buffalo sent the game into overtime at 17:03 of the final period. Hank Ciesla, Pat Hannigan and Len Lunde netted the other Bison goals while Dave Creighton got two and Ulf Sterner and Bryan Hextall scored one apiece for Baltimore.

LANDMARK GOES

LONDON (CP) — Londonderry house, a famous landmark in Park Lane, Mayfair, is to be demolished to make way for a luxury hotel. The mansion, built in 1830, was famed in the Edwardian era for brilliant political receptions given by Lady Londonderry. London County Council appealed for its preservation but was overruled by the housing ministry.

Take Time To Warm Entire Car

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Frigid temperatures and impatient motorists usually keep auto service stations busy during the winter season. Most everyone will take time to idle the engine a bit on cold mornings in order to boost temperatures enough (to warm up oil so that it circulates, lubricates and enables prowerip) and get the engine running smoothly. But, how many take pains to fo.by the car for a while until it's been driven several miles? This is just as important.

A severe road bump or pothole can crack a spring or axle when it's stiff and cold. Frame, tires, shock absorbers are also especially vulnerable under such extreme conditions.

And there are more reasons to consider. You should take it easy until transmission, rear axle and wheel bearing lubricants have had a chance to warm up, and provide the protection they are needed for. Like engine oil, they congeal when temperatures really drop and must warm up to be effective.

From O. S.: "Unless I keep my foot on the gas pedal when the engine is idling, it usually stalls. What is wrong here?"

An air leak at the carburetor or manifold will cause this.

R. T. writes: "If I put on four tires which fit my wheels but are slightly larger than standard for my car, will this affect steering? I've been warned that it may be unsafe."

Oversize tires will usually create harder steering.

G. B. asks: "What causes white stains on the radiator body?"

This is evidence of seepage or leakage. When the engine gets hot, water oozes through cracks or small holes and evaporates. The result is it leaves is due to lime in the water.

From L. R.: "What causes the engine to continue to run for a second or two after the ignition is completely switched off?"

Pre-ignition . . . caused by red hot carbon deposits, overheated spark plugs or hot valves . . . which create combustion by igniting the fuel mixture before the spark plugs fire.

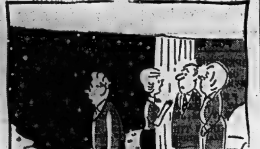
Five Men Held On Narcotics Trade Charges



TORONTO (CP)—Bail of $25,000 cash each was set Friday for Roland Rosamondait, 41, and Fred Ruby, 29, both of Windsor, arrested Wednesday with three other men on narcotics charges.

Both men were remanded until Wednesday when they are to appear in court with Philip Chiampi, 40, Edward Bowman, 31, and Ronald Barron, 34, all of Hamilton.

Cash bail of $25,000 was set Thursday for Chiampi and $15,000 each for Bowman and Barron.

All five were charged with conspiracy to traffic in narcotics after RCMP raided homes at Windsor and Hamilton, ending a three-month investigation.

TV Radio Column

'Fugitive' Has Won Place In Top Reaches of Ratings

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—A matron of middle years went up to David Janssen in a restaurant recently and said shyly, "I just saw a one-armed man outside; maybe you'd better go find him."

Janssen smiled indulgently. It was not the first time he had heard such bandinage, nor will it be the last. But he willingly accepts it as part of his duties as television's highly success-ful man on the run.

The Fugitive has ascended to the upper reaches of the audience ratings in this, its second season, and seems to be in for a long run. As the doctor accused of killing his wife—a one-armed man really did it—Janssen must endure limitless gags.

"The most common crack is that there is a one-armed man nearby or that Lieut. Girard is outside and I'd better get moving," said the actor.

"I don't mind, really. The essence of television is intimacy, and people think they know you, since you come into their living room every week. Or maybe with us it's the bedroom, since we're on at 10 p.m.

"People think nothing of coming right up to the actor and starting a conversation. It's a sign they like you, I guess. Nothing wrong with that."

Many theories have been offered for the success of The Fugitive —realistic production, endless suspense, etc. A strong factor must be Janssen himself and the fact that his screen presence is not dissipated by a team of co-stars.

"Another factor of television is familiarity," he said. "That's why I think type-casting can be a key to stays throughout a series and not disappear while his assistants carry on for him. It gets confusing and frustrating for the viewer."

Bulletins from Birdland

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

HOLIDAY FARE

With a few exceptions, by this date the migrants have left us; however, if we really go looking for birds we will find that besides English sparrows, starlings, pigeons there are a number of residents. Those of us accustomed to participate in the annual "Christmas count" have a pretty good idea of the species we always come across, but are sometimes greatly surprised and pleased to find an unusual lingerer.

Residents require food, and in bard winter weather are very glad to receive help from us. So let us think of which ones may be here waiting for the right kind of holiday fare.

Even in the suburbs of our large cities, provided there are fair-sized trees, we have every chance of entertaining evening grosbeaks, downy and hairy woodpeckers, and nuthatches. If it is possible to get completely away from streets and houses or to a good big park right in the town, we may find purple finches, blue jays, tree sparrows, goldfinches, cardinals, chickadees, and various other land birds. Water birds cannot be included in a list of those to feed. There are sure to be several kinds of owls and perhaps a little sparrow hawk around, but we have no need to prepare food for them; they will eat up our mice.

There are many foods that can be supplied for the other winter seeds, suet, and peanut butter being the prized favorite. One feeder might hold suet with grain, chopped nuts, sunflower seeds, and even dried bread crumbs and dried meat melted into it. Many birds are fond of cooked oatmeal or rolled oats. Some like corn. Mixed bird seed can be bought by the pound.

Some people put out orange skin halves with peanut butter or suet substituted for the pulp. Fasten your receptacle to a tree trunk or a window ledge, otherwise it will be upset or lost. An old corncob with a piece of string threaded through the hole can be tied to a branch, and when the marrow has been used up stuff suet in.

Waxwings and pine grosbeaks are attracted to our gardens by certain kinds of trees bearing fruit that these birds like — berries for the waxwings and seeds of conifers for the pine grosbeaks, with apple seeds and mountain ash berries as extras.

Make a note to plant high bush cranberries, sumac, Manitoba maples or other fruit bearing trees in your garden to entice birds another winter. But right now supply them with holiday fare.

Nightly Bingo Sessions Give Canadian Boys in Cyprus Some Relaxation

By ALAN WALKER

NICOSIA (CP)—"Under the B, three," says the radio, and Canadian soldiers at remote Cyprus outposts scramble for cards as the nightly bingo session starts.

As if that weren't homey enough, one company of the Canadian Guards in the United Nations force here has its own newspaper, radio newscasts and weekly beauty contest.

It might be called Operation Boredom Control. Idle soldiers waging peace on this troubled island can find time weighing heavily, and company commanders strive constantly to keep them amused.

So Lieut. Gerry Heffernan of Smiths Falls, Ont., sat down before a radio on his 23rd birthday recently and delivered the nightly editios of "uninterrupted, unreliable news" Lafat the 13 stations on the network made their half-hourly check with company headquarters by answering a bingo call instead of the old-fashioned stations check in please."

WIN $25

The bingo card costs 100 mils (about 30 cents) and the winner gets a week's play can gain about $25.

Then there's that beauty contest. No. 2 Company, which real girls way up in the Kyrenia mountains of course, so the troops can taste their delis of the moment to a large piece of cardboard and the selection is democratically arouna from platoon to platoon until all men have voted for their favorite. The winning picture is displayed at the company headquarters for a week.

"The contest idea is really just an excuse to let everybody see these dolls," said the company commander, Maj. Capt. Ian Miles, candidly. "It's for those of us with guilty consciences."

CENSORS GO EASY

The company newspaper is called Two's News and Capt. Gerry Wharton, 29, of Ottawa, edits it. Its entertainment is ing between him and Capt. Miles, 32, of Edmonton, well acknowledging the hint:

"You get the significance of this, Gerry?"

"Yeah."

"Well . . ."

"I thought we'd let it through because it's pretty subtly worded." Off to the printer it went.

Sgt. Bernie Strehen, 30, of North River, Nfld., is a regular columnist and showed the problems all journalists face in this area of entertainment by being typed: "At the time of writing yours truly is sitting at the Rock Bay & Kyrenia club but am afraid that it is very difficult to become Journalistically inspired with 95 degrees temperature, the blue Mediterranean and a light sea breeze."

Capt. Miles's company also indulges in more traditional forms of entertainment like swimming in the Mediterranean is the favorite. But even here the Canadians have added a stroke of their own. Now in Kyrenia Harbor, not far from shore, there is a six-foot heap of stones under water with the slogan "2 CDN" around the base to let Cypriots know who has been there.

Liquor Legal At Stag Party In Hotel Room

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto magistrate ruled Friday that a $5 admittance charge to a non-profit stag party in a downtown hotel room is not against the Liquor Control Act.

Magistrate C. A. Fassel dismissed a charge against Thomas Milton McPhail, 42, of Toronto of keeping liquor for sale in the hotel room at a stag arranged for a fellow worker who planned to marry.

The magistrate said that because there was no profit, and because the group in the room could not be considered a society, association or club, the charge did not fall under the Liquor Control Act.

The $5 admittance charge was for liquor, food, room rent for the night and a gift for the bridegroom-to-be. McPhail said the room was registered under his name and admitted bringing half of the liquor to the room. There were 11 men in the room when police raided the party.

MAGISTRATE RULES

Magistrate Fassel said he was satisfied the party was a "bona fide stag . . . with no intention of making any profit from or trafficking in liquor, any money remaining after necessary expenditures to be given to the bridegroom-to-be as a present."

He said he interpreted the Liquor Control Act as meaning that the prohibition against selling of liquor by a society, association or club to one of its members is true in the circumstances is prohibited.

To find that getting together, as a group in a club, cafe, resulted in a society, association or club would be to rule illegal every New Year's party, class reunion and any other meeting where liquor is served, the magistrate said.

He added he did not think it was the intention of the legislature to punish those who had contributed to buying liquor at such meetings.

Wilson Raids Cambridge, Oxford for Economists to Assist in Running Govt.

LONDON (CP)—"No nation, it was proclaimed a century ago, can live half slave, half free. . . ."

"If anyone, at home or abroad, doubts the firmness of our resolve, and acts upon their doubts, let them be prepared to pay the price for their lack of faith. . . ."

"Let these qualities be mobilized, these energies released, and there are no heights of achievement which we cannot scale, for our own good and for the good of the world."

Applause! National anthem! Patriotic breasts swell with pride!

Small wonder if those stirring utterances evoke memories of President Kennedy and his inaugural speech on a snowy January day in Washington. But they were delivered by Prime Minister Wilson on a damp November night in London.

The round-faced Harold Wilson, 48, bears no physical resemblance whatever to the late president, who was 43 when he came to power. But the vigor of his approach to government invites comparison between the two—both superb politicians and men of action as well as intellect.

Arthur Schlesinger Jr., who was a special assistant close to Kennedy, recently came to London to observe the new Labor government's grasp of power.

SAME PURPOSE

He wrote in the Evening Standard that to him the atmosphere in "corridors of power" in Washington in 1961 when John F. Kennedy came to town to get the country moving again:

"There is the same genuine thrust of action and purpose, there is also something of the same auto-intoxication. It is exciting to watch the processes of power, so long untasted, at last being so happily devoured. . . ."

Kennedy's first setback came in the Bay of Pigs Cuban invasion, a fiasco that had been set in train before he came to power. Wilson's first setback is almost immediately with an economic crisis which he blames on the disastrous Conservative government.

Wilson, as expected, has made many innovations in government and appointed experts in various fields in the Kennedy manner. He has described them advisers to the cabinet, rather than enlarging his personal staff at 10 Downing Street.

Some critics used to say the U.S. under-secretary of state, from Harvard. Wilson in turn has raided Oxford and Cambridge in a modern version of emerged with the so-called "B and K" combination, a pair of men who Kennedy might well look like models of orthodoxy.

Dr. Thomas Balogh, 59, now economic adviser to the premier and his cabinet at a salary of £6,300, ($18,900) a year. A former economics professor at Oxford, Balogh has had Wilson's ear for some years.

Dr. Nicholas Kaldor, 58, fellow at Cambridge since 1949, is the new adviser to Exchequer Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, on economic and social aspects of taxation.

Both natives of Budapest, Balogh and Kaldor had advised various governments and the British Labor party in the past, and are known to doctrinal opponents as "Budo and Nicko" as well as "B and K" reminiscent of the former Soviet leaders Bulganin and Khrushchev.

References to "the Thames lane" abound in the comment of financial editors on the new appointments, causing the Earl of Dundee to quip in the House of Lords that the time had come for a "freedom from Hungary" campaign.

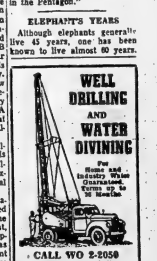
But Edward Heath, former Tory minister of industry, unleashed the harshest blast when, recalled that Kaldor has previously advised the governments of India, Ceylon, Mexico, Ghana, Turkey and British Guiana. Heath said in the House of Commons:

"The next result has been: In two, bitter opposition; in one, the minister resigned; in one, there was a general strike; in one, the government fell; and in the last there was a revolution."

Sir Selby Zuckerman, 60, who formerly served the Tory government, is scientific adviser to Wilson's cabinet at £8,200 ($24,600) a year. His scope runs all the way from defence to disease control, being the chief of technology and civil science.

Professor P. M. S. Blackett 66, of Imperial College, London University, winner of the Nobel Prize in physics in 1948, has been brought in to serve on this control under Frank Cousins, the former union leader who is Wilson's minister in charge of the new technology department.

The socialist government won warm endorsement from the business world for its single statement from business ranks — Frederick Catherwood, 39-year-old tycoon of spectacular success.



Catherwood, a non-smoking teetotalling, Cambridge - educated accountant, became industrial adviser to the new economic ministry headed in George Brown, No. 2 man on Wilson's team.

Catherwood, regarded as the government's main contact with British industry, is as the Tory Daily Mail puts it, "a businessman among politicians and economists, a man with the practical touch and who likes they talk of getting things done, will have been there before."

"Yet he is a socialist. As one of the most significant new personalities, Catherwood is the successor of the U.S. whiz-kids in the Pentagon."

The Golden Years

Weekly Pay Is Thing of Past When You Reach Retirement

By THOMAS COLLINS

Did you know that a goodly number of newly retired couples are winding up a bit hungry about the 25th of each month?

Apparently nobody else did either, until a man named Horace D. Stockmeir started snooping around.

Mr. Stockmeir has come up with a study of the budget problems of people recently retired. He finds some of them serious and says it is because "most people in this country have forgotten how to live on a monthly income."

He explains that most working people and some executives have not been familiar with any kind of income except a weekly paycheque. At least not in recent times. "They cash their cheques on Friday night, buy their groceries on Saturday, have their fun Saturday night and Sunday, then coast down their financial hill until the next Friday night.

"After years and years of this, retirement comes. They are switched abruptly to a monthly income. And some of them are getting into trouble before they learn how to adjust . . ."

Mr. Stockmeir points out that nearly all retirement income — pensions, annuities, etc.—comes by the month.

SPEND TOO FAST

"I find the first month of retirement is usually no problem" he says. "People have a few dollars backed up from severance pay, vacation pay, or savings. These tide them over. But when the first monthly cheques start arriving spending too much too fast. They can't realize how long the money must last."

It seems not to be just spendthrifts whose money burns holes in their pockets. It's conservative people too.

For those on weekly payrolls who are approaching retirement, Mr. Stockmeir has some suggestions:

Switch from a weekly to a monthly household budget as soon as you can. A year in advance of retirement wouldn't be too soon. The switch will take a little money because you'll have to build a monthly income to start. You then will budget this so it will extend over a month, meanwhile using the weekly paycheques to build up the lump for next month.

Understand that a month is not so cooperative as a week. A week is a neat seven days — always. A month can extend from 28 to 31 days. It is best for most people to budget on a daily basis always using 31 days and reaping a bonus when the month is shorter.

Kiss the famous Fifth Week good-bye. About four times a year, workers on a weekly payroll get five paydays in a month. Many of them have always regarded this as a bonus and used it for vacations, motorboats and such. On a monthly retirement income, the Fifth Week is no more.

SWITCH ALL BILLS

Switch all bills to a monthly basis, and if you can, to the date when your pension cheques arrive. Many people have weekly bills for milk, newspapers, groceries, gasoline, etc.

Set out as soon as you can to make some sense out of income you will be getting in addition to the pension. If, for instance, you have money in a bank or savings and loan association, interest payments may come to you once every three months, once every six months, or once a year. If you have money in two such institutions, each may have a different practice. Such income doesn't fit conveniently into a monthly budget, so you might ask the institutions if they could arrange to give you monthly payments. Some will do it.

If you get dividends from stocks you usually get them quarterly, and big corporations can do you a favor. But you can split your stock holdings among three corporations whose dividends fall in succeeding months.

When — before you have to — you start switching from a weekly to a monthly budget, you might also start clarifying your cost of living down to where it'll have to live when the salary stops.

PRIMARILY REFLECTING POOL — A spacious outdoor skating rink, designed primarily as a reflecting pool for warmer months, is part of the $30,000,000 civic square in front of Toronto's new city hall. The 160-by-100-foot skating surface, kept frozen by a modern artificial plant, is flooded three times during the day and two or three times each evening. (CP Photo)

City Hall Skaters

Executives Take Lunch at the Rink

TORONTO (CP) — Downtown Toronto's lunch time cocktail trade isn't really suffering yet, but in a small way it has some new competition — a spacious outdoor skating rink in the shade of the towering twin clamshells of the new city hall.

W. J. Parent, city labor engineer in charge of the big 160-by-100-foot skating surface, says that among the 300-odd skaters each day are a sprinkling of businessmen and office girls, some of whom grab a quick snack and spend the rest of their lunch hour whirling about the ice.

The rink, designed primarily as a reflecting pool for warmer months, is part of the $30,000,000 civic square named for former mayor Nathan Phillips. Located near the intersection of Queen and Bay streets, it opened Nov. 29. There's no charge.

Mr. Parent, a former hockey player and figure skater, says there are no skating instructors but he tries to help inexperienced skaters.

All the comforts have been provided. There are spacious heated changing rooms and modern rest rooms. Benches are placed around the rink and a rubber mat leads to the ice.

FLOODED DAILY

The ice, kept frozen by a modern artificial ice plant, is flooded three times during the day and two or three times each evening.

Strict rules are laid down for skaters. Speedskaters are not allowed unless their skates are equipped with guards. And the first sign of an infringement of rules brings a guard easily identifiable by his red fluorescent vest.

Like the rink in New York's Rockefeller Plaza, the Toronto layout is fairly popular for spectators too. But unlike its Manhattan brother, the rink here is not flanked by fashionable restaurants.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

We have had numerous requests for information on skiing. The following is the latest news on skiing from the Provincial Government Department of Tourism and Information:

Ontario has rediscovered skiing with a passion.

In less than a decade, more particularly in the last three or four years, it has emerged as a first-class playground for the schuss and slalom set, with visitors now coming in droves.

The sport, which achieved considerable popularity in the 1930's then died with World War II, has returned so strongly to this province that, for the second year in a row, government guide books have needed cover-to-cover revision.

A dozen new centres were added this fall, runs and trails extended at existing ones, and all along a 1,300 - mile spread from Ottawa in the southeast to Kenora in the northwest, more than 100 resorts now bristle with the latest in hoisting machinery. Indeed, the craze has spread with such immensity that it is now possible to reach a mechanized slope within minutes of the most populated areas.

Like golfers on the practice range, the more ardent devotees use neighbourhood flood-lit runs for mid-week workouts and head out to the more challenging centres on week-ends over highways kept plowed and sanded all winter.

Using Toronto as an embarkation point (this is best suited for the majority of U.S. winter visitors), you will be within close range of the province's greatest concentration of organized slopes, notably Huntsville and Collingwood which are renowned.

Collingwood, with its lofty mile-long runs and slalom courses, is perhaps the most challenging in the central region and outdraws all the others. This district encompasses Blue Mountain, Craigleith and Georgian Peaks, and although all three are primarily weekend goals, tows are kept busy all week long by enthusiastic holidayers in the area.

In addition to the thousands of cars which converge on Collingwood through January to mid-March, the Canadian National Railway operates a Sunday "Skier's Special" for those who dont fancy the two to three hours' drive. The train leaves Toronto Union Station at 9 a.m. and arrives at Georgian Peaks less than three hours later. The CN package, including transfers between stations and full use of tows, attracts thousands of riders at $7.75 per adult and $6.50 for youngsters under 12.

The railway also offers a week-end package to Sundridge in the Parry Sound district, which includes round-trip fare, full accommodation in a hotel and use of tows for $29.95 from Toronto.

An early morning start from Toronto will give you all the skiing you can handle at Orangeville's Hockley Valley, Owen Sound, Midland, Meaford, Markdale or Flesherton. Notable among this area's new ski centres is Talisman Resorts at Kimberley, a $1,000,000 layout with accommodation for 300 guests.

MUSKOKA POPULAR

Huntsville in the Muskoka district, has long been popular with Toronto-based skiers, and this centre has a choice of 6 top resorts, five of them offering winter lodgings in comfort and quarters.

Those include Britannia Hotel, Cedar Grove, Limberlost Lodge, Tally-Ho and Ski-Jump Inn. The other one, Hidden Valley, offers only skilet service, but there are numerous motels within close range of this lightning-fast slope.

Other notable centres in the Muskoka area are Deerhurst Ridge at Bracebridge, Bala Ski Club, Port Sydney Ski Club, and the Muskoka Sands Inn at Gravenhurst.

Christmastime in a "Rollins Home" with the Hollis Thompson Family

1 Tucked away under the long, low roof, Christmas lights twinkle from a charming bow window. And, the wide door, opening from the Colonial Porch of yesteryear, bids you welcome from the Thompson's dream home of '64.

2 The festive season approaches - assembled here trimming the tree are Mr. and Mrs. Thompson with their four children (left to right) Linda, 13; Donny, 8; Janice, 7; and Debbie 11. There's plenty of room for the tree in this spacious living room.

3 Here the family is grouped around the piano in the pleasant living room. Gas heat keeps a comfortable temperature all the time. The entry hall has a room divider with upright poles giving an impression of open space. Mrs. Thompson likes the bifold doors on the hall closet and other rooms in the house.

4 The Thompson children are wrapping gifts in the dining room which is an extension of the living room giving a spacious appearance to both rooms. It is divided from the kitchen by a decorative grill screen.

5 Debbie gives Janice a hairdo at the vanity basin, in the roomy bathroom. The floor is easy-to-clean vinyl tile and the wall is ceramic tile. A chrome Jonny pole extends from floor to ceiling for holding towels.

6 Mrs. Thompson and daughters Linda, Debbie and Janice prepare their Christmas cake in the kitchen of their new home. The cupboard doors are French Provincial and the arborite counter tops are in matching design. From the kitchen the laundry room is 4 steps down to the basement. The family can hardly wait for the barbeque season when they will have easy access to the patio from the back door. The view from the window over the sink gives a wide expanse of yard and trees.

7 Mr. Thompson arranges the wreath on the front door of 112 Nichet Dr. above the brass knocker which isn't really a knocker at all, but a door chime. "It is quite a conversation piece" says Mrs. Thompson. A roofed veranda makes a sheltered walk to the car or garage, and there is also a sidewalk to the back door.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

... FROM MR. AND MRS. THOMPSON AND FROM THEIR FOUR CHILDREN, LINDA, DEBBIE, JANICE AND DONNY, AND, OF COURSE, FROM MAURICE H. ROLLINS CONSTRUCTION CO LTD. WE ALL HOPE YOUR CHRISTMAS WILL BE THE BEST EVER — THE THOMPSON'S WILL BE, AND IT WILL BE FOR 120 OTHER BELLEVILLE FAMILIES THAT BOUGHT A ROLLINS HOME THIS YEAR.

3 KILLED IN CRASH NEAR WELLINGTON

REBEL LEADERS LEAVE U.S. EMBASSY IN SAIGON — Four Young rebel Vietnamese officers, who came into power Sunday in a bloodless coup, leave the United States Embassy in Saigon after meeting with U.S. Ambassador Maxwell Taylor. From left they are Air Force Commander Nguyen Cao Ky; Navy Commander Chung Tan Cang; First Corps Commander Nguyen Chanh Thi; and Fourth Corps Commander Nguyen Van Thieu. More than a score of South Viet nam's leading politicians were reported in jail after the coup. (AP Wirephoto via radio from Tokyo)

Failed To Obey Orders

By GEORGE McARTHUR

CAIRO (AP) — The United Arab Republic government said today a U.S. oil company plane shot down near Alexandria Saturday ignored orders to land.

Its American pilot and Scandinavian co-pilot were killed. They were identified as Hoyt Williams, 44, of Texas, and Arjel Grup, 35, a Scandinavian.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said the plane, a twin - engined Fairchild C-82, belonged to the John W. Mecom Oil Company of Houston.

The plane was on a flight from Amman, Jordan, to Benghazi, Libya to buy drilling detergent for Mecom's operations in Jordan, a company spokesman said.

The U.A.R. government said two U.A.R. MiG fighters intercepted the plane as it started across the Sinai Desert south of Aqaba, Jordan, and ordered it to land at Cairo airport. - -

RESUMES COURSE

After starting to set down, official reports said, the plane resumed its northwesterly course. It was shot down over Lake Idku, on the shores of the Mediterranean, the government said.

Informed sources said aircraft were banned from parts of the Nile Delta and the Western Desert, scene of the crash, where Egyptian rocket tests were believed to be held.

The pilot apparently filed a flight plan an hour before taking off from Amman. U.A.R. authorities normally take one week to approve a flight plan and there appeared little doubt that officials here were not promptly informed of the impending flight.

The U.S. embassy said it had requested a thorough review of the incident.

Although embassy sources said they viewed the situation with the utmost gravity, both the U.S. and U.A.R. governments are said to be trying to prevent the incident from increasing any strain in their relations resulting from the sacking a month ago of the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library in Cairo by a mob of African students.

David Frittalan, U.S. consul general at Alexandria, visited the crash site Sunday and reported that pieces of the plane were scattered over 800 square yards. Eyewitnesses reported some of the wreckage appeared to be punctured by bullet holes.

SAIGON (CP)—U.S. Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor today was reported to have told the South Vietnamese armed forces chief that the U.S. could not accept the situation created by Sunday's virtual coup.

Reliable sources said Taylor was understood to have expressed serious displeasure at the present situation to Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Khanh.

Young generals belonging to the newly - formed Armed Forces Council pulled off what amounted to a coup when they dissolved the High National Council, the country's provisional legislature, and made a pre - dawn purge of dissident politicians.

At a press conference earlier in the day a leader of the young South Vietnamese military officers said 51 persons had been arrested. Other reports of arrests were higher—one figure was about 70.

A large number of these were believed to have been military and civilian personnel on the staff of the former chief of state, Lt.-Gen. Duong Van Minh.

The American view is that the officers who Sunday proclaimed the dissolution of the High National Council must permit the council or some other equivalent body to be restored quickly, reliable sources said.

American officials were not sure of Khanh's role, if any, in the coup.

Sources said American officials have also refused to accept the position where the legitimate civilian government has responsibility to run the country with the armed forces looking over its shoulder and holding the real power.

At present the U.S. mission in Saigon has reserved its position concerning what pressures —if any—it may use to force a backdown by the generals.

The possibility of some kind of threat or ultimatum was not ruled out by reliable sources, but none has so far been made.

Bitter Session Recessed

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament has finally taken a breathing spell after 10 gruelling months, the longest unbroken stretch in its 97-year history.

It was "the year of the flag," a session that reached new heights of emotionalism, sensationalism, frustration and—at times—utter boredom.

In the Commons, political bitterness built up through the months to a roaring crescendo. It was sharpened by fierce divisions on the flag issue and charges of wrongdoing in high places that rocked the nation.

A string of major legislative items was passed and others of even greater importance were introduced. But the battle of the flags overshadowed these.

SAT 214 DAYS

The Commons sat on 214 days, a record unlikely to be equalled. It was 40 days beyond the previous record set in the 1960-61 session.

It still isn't over, because the same session will be renewed Feb. 16 when the politicians return to complete the Canada Pension Plan legislation, possibly the most significant social development of this generation.

There are other leftovers, too.

The maple leaf flag has'nt yet been flown. That will come early in the New Year after the formal proclamations have been carried out.

A judicial inquiry still is investigating the allegations that ministerial aides tried to bribe or pressure a Montreal lawyer into allowing bail for a man facing deportation to the U.S. on narcotics charges.

Those investigations, levelled in the House during the tumultuous week of Nov. 23, have been built into a major political

Balcer May Quit Conservative Party

OTTAWA (CP)—Leon Balcer, Quebec lieutenant to Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, reiterated today that he is seriously considering leaving the Conservative party to sit as an independent MP but will make no final decision until mid-January.

Mr. Balcer told a press conference initial reaction in his riding of Trois-Rivieres favors his inclination to leave the Conservatives. But he repeated several times, "I'm still a Conservative."

Mr. Balcer said he wants to consult more constituents and confer with the nine other Quebec Conservatives either here or in Montreal on Jan. 15 before deciding on a break with the party.

Paul Martineau, Conservative MP for Pontiac-Temiscamingue and a close friend of Mr. Balcer said he and other Quebec Conservatives would be "very much affected" if Mr. Balcer left the party. They would have to reappraise their positions in the party.

Mr. Diefenbaker told a press conference of his own that he has received no communication from either Mr. Balcer or Mr. Martineau.

Referring to Mr. Balcer he said:

"Some people have a chronic propensity for getting into the press by making statements."

Mr. Diefenbaker objected to references in some newspapers to Mr. Balcer as the deputy leader of the party.

"At no time was he that," he said.

There was no provision in the party constitution for a deputy leader, "He was appointed by the Quebec representatives at the convention as leader for Quebec."

The opposition leader referred to previous cases in Canadian political history where leading Quebec members have split with a federal party.

During the Second World War Mackenzie King at one point had only one French-Canadian member remaining in his cabinet. And in 1910 Sir Robert Borden lost the support of his Quebec Conservative colleagues on a naval bill.

Mr. Martineau told reporters the Quebec Conservatives have split with Mr. Diefenbaker and the rest of the party over the new flag and approval of a new formula to amend the constitution.

Mr. Balcer declined any comment about Mr. Diefenbaker or their differences.

"Until I make a decision, I will not discuss those things," he said.

He added that his decision whether to sit as an independent definitely will come after the Jan. 15 caucus of Quebec Conservatives and before the Commons resumes Feb. 16.

Mr. Balcer, former transport minister, denied suggestions that he is preparing a Conservatiste and Social Credit MPs to form a new right-wing party.

A new party might be considered in the future, he added.

Mr. Martineau, former fisheries minister in the Diefenbaker government, said he still regards Mr. Balcer as leader of the Conservatives' Quebec wing.

He said he had not had a "serious conversation" with Mr. Diefenbaker in several weeks. He declined to say whether he too is considering leaving the party to sit as an independent.

"Perhaps Mr. Balcer is now advanced in his thinking than I am," Mr. Martineau said.

Quebec Is Pressing Probe Of Bankruptcy Rackateering

MONTREAL (CP)—Quebec is pressing its investigation into bankruptcy racketeering and its international connections.

Phoney bankruptcies are costing creditors millions of dollars yearly in Quebec, and racket masterminds are said to deal in cash, jewels and bills of lading mail as well as false insolvency.

The Quebec government's investigation opened Nov. 26, a follow-up to less publicized inquiries that have been going on since mid-1962.

The alleged rackets are said to be linked with vast criminal syndicates as the Mafia' but several rings, with operations under way in places as remote as South America, are reported behind the Quebec develop-ments.

One Quebec official said—an effort at co-operation has been received from Ontario's attorney-general and that similar rackets in the United States.

"Our biggest job so far has been the organizing of evidence previously in the custody of the various agencies," the official said.

Where previously such groups as the RCMP and the Quebec Provincial Police rarely got together on investigations in this field, now they are pooling their resources in an unprecedented extent, he said.

Appointed by Attorney - General Claude Wagner to direct the Quebec investigation was Lucien Mercier. He is being assisted by Gerard Laganiere, a permanent Crown prosecutor.

Quebec's revenue department says there could be "co-incidental links" between the revocation of corporation charters begun in the province earlier this month and the bankruptcy investigation.

The revocations are designed as move against corporations that have ignored the requirements of the Quebec Companies Act, the department said.

The revenue department said its work has been "more and more complicated" by the incorporation of a great number of companies whose goal it to fool the income tax department and the public in general."

An informed source said the inquiry could spread to Europe and South America and involve the international smuggling of gold, jewels and other merchandise.

The banruptcy racket in Quebec is reported to work along these general lines:

An approach is made by a racket representative to an honest businessman with a good credit-rating whose trade is declining. Police said that all three persons died at the scene of the crash. Both cars were badly wrecked.

Mr. Johnston was born in Hillier township and was the son of the late Harold Johnston and Mrs. Arnold Johnston. He had been teaching at Wellington for the past four years.

Mrs. Johnston was the former Margaret Jean Ferguson, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Ferguson, Sha was born in Ameliasburg township.

They leave four young children, Lynn, Trulene, Natalie and Stephen.

Mr. Johnston has three sisters, Mrs. Don (Carol) Smith of Calgary; Mrs. Alex (Theresa) Duncan of Perth and Mrs. Carl (Zila) Marrell of Mountain view. Mrs. Johnston has two sister, Mrs. Robert (Barbara) Fralick of R. 1, Ameliasburg, and Cheryl at home.

U.S. Lowers Demands On Reds

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United States has lowered its demands — by about $9,400,000 — in a bid to settle the Soviet Union's unpaid United Nations peace - keeping assessments.

Its new position is that the Russians gain the right to vote in the General Assembly in 1965 by pledging around $17,100,000.

Its old position was that Moscow could do so only by paying $25,500,000.

That word came Sunday from

Teacher, Wife, GM Worker Are Victims

Believed Cars Met Head-on on Highway

PICTON (Staff) — Three persons were instantly killed late Saturday afternoon in a head-on collision on No. 33 Highway near the village of Wellington.

Dead are Thomas Johnston, 32, of Wellington, his wife, Margaret Joan, 29, and Francis Ferrington, 18 of Milford, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston were returning home from a Christmas shopping trip to Picton when the accident occurred. Mr. Johnston was a public school teacher at Wellington.

Mr. Ferrington, married with a month-old child, was returning to Milford from Oshawa where he was employed by General Motors. He was alone in his car.

Details of the accident are sketchy but Provincial Police at Picton are investigating the possibility that Ferrington may have turned out to pass another vehicle, when he collided with the oncoming car.

Police said that all three persons died at the scene of the crash. Both cars were badly wrecked.

Mr. Johnston was born in Hillier township and was the son of the late Harold Johnston and Mrs. Arnold Johnston. He had been teaching at Wellington for the past four years.

Mrs. Johnston was the former Margaret Jean Ferguson, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Ferguson, She was born in Ameliasburg township.

GM Men Return To Jobs Today

TORONTO (CP) — General Motors of Canada employees in the Ontario cities voted Saturday to accept a proposed three-year contract and to return to work today.

About 23,500 workers at plants in Toronto, St. Catharines, Oshawa, Windsor and London went on strike earlier this month when negotiations that started Sept. 9 broke down.

The strike officially began Dec. 3 but workers at the Oshawa plant walked out prematurely Dec. 1 and 2 claiming a production speed-up.

The contract could set the pattern for agreements covering 16,000 workers at Ford of Canada and Chrysler of Canada Limited, where negotiations are in progress, and could also influence the bargaining between the union's 6,000-member locals in the agricultural implements industry and Massey - Ferguson Limited. The GM pattern will also be felt in bargaining between the union and auto parts firms.

In Oshawa, where about 13,- 000 workers are employed at GM, members of Local 22, United Auto Workers of America (CLC), who voted on the agreement were 98.5 per cent in favor of ratification.

FAVOR CONTRACT

In London, 400 of 450 members of Local 27 at GM's diesel plant voted in favor of the contract and those members of Local 199 of the UAW in St. Catharines who cast ballots were 99 per cent in favor.

Only six workers at Frigidaire Products of Canada Limited in suburban Scarborough voted against the contract proposal at a meeting Saturday. The plant employs about 1,000 workers.

At a meeting of the membership of Local 195 at the McKinnon Industries transmission plant in Windsor, 1,000 members voted 98.5 per cent in favor of accepting the new agreement.

Before the strike the UAW claimed Canadian workers received an average hike of $1.40 an hour less than those paid by the parent auto companies to U.S. employees.

GM originally said it would pay Canadian workers the same increases, on a percentage basis, as the parent company recently gave in the U.S. But the union said such a con-

57 Miners Perish in Peru; Mexico Rail Wreck Kills 41

LIMA (CP)—An explosion in a U.S. - operated coal mine in central Peru Sunday killed 57 miners and injured 34 others.

It was the worst mine disaster in Peru's history.

Reports from the mine, high in the Andes Mountains near Cerro de Pasco 125 miles northeast of Lima, said methane gas and coal dust exploded.

The mine is located 16,000 feet above sea level and is operated by the U.S. - owned Cerro de Pasco Corporation. The mine's output is used to make coke for copper, gold and silver mining operations at Cerro de Pasco.

Throughout the night, rescue teams worked to bring out the bodies of miners trapped hundreds of feet underground.

A company spokesman said 34 miners were brought safely to the surface and 23 still are missing.

VILLAHERMOSA, Mexico (AP)—A speeding freight train rammed—into the back of a halted passenger train in dense fog near here Sunday, killing 41 persons and injuring 75. Three of the injured were American tourists.

The accident occurred at the mountain village of Tacolalpa, 45 miles south of this capital of Tabasco state in southeastern Mexico. The area is about 600 miles southeast of Mexico City.

The Americans were on their way back to Mexico City after visiting the archeological area of Palenque, in nearby Chiapas.

Authorities found the wreck on the fog and lack of attention on the part of the engineer of the freight train. A number of the freight train crew said the engineer, who fled from the scene, had apparently been dozing and did not see the stopped train until too late.

Handcuff Three Priests 6 Thugs Seize Half Million

PATERSON, N.J. (AP) — Police said that a bank truck was held up as it stopped at church rectory today by six gunmen who escaped with an estimated $500,000.

Police said the two truck guards and three priests were handcuffed and left in the church rectory while the truck was looted.

The gunmen entered the rectory before the truck had arrived and took the priests prisoner. They then awaited the guards.

When the two guards entered, they too were seized and handcuffed. The truck had come to the rectory to pick up cash, presumably from Sunday's church collections.

Police said the bandits forced a priest of St. Anthony's Church to open the rectory safe before the guards arrived. The bandits looted the safe as well as the truck, a panel truck of the First National Bank of Passaic County. Police said the loot totalled $511,000.

The bandits made their escape by car.

Roadblocks were set up throughout the area.

More Killings of Hostages in the Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—The wife of a missing Canadian missionary tearfully told Sunday how she was held with 27 other hostages in a single room for three days by rebel Congolese when news of the Belgian paratroop landing on Stanleyville Nov. 24 reached them.

Then when government planes bombed the village near their mission station, the white hostages were dragged out and marched naked to be shot. But some of the group split up and were saved.

Mrs. Helena Burke, 54 of Calgary and Toronto was among 14 missionaries rescued Saturday by white-led Congolese government forces. Her husband, Rev. Chester Burke of the Unevangelized Fields Mission, was among the missing. Mrs. Burke said she believed he was killed.

"The Good Lord only knows why some of us were saved and the rest killed," said Mrs. Burke.

The refugees said that 30 white hostages, all missionaries and their families, believed to have been killed by the rebels.

They include 13 Britons, eight Dutch, four Belgians, an American, an Australian and Mr. Burke. They had been held prisoner for three weeks at the mission station 190 miles northeast of Stanleyville.

Sixteen others were missing from Banalia, 82 miles north of Stanleyville.

Eleven Italian Roman Catholic nuns and two British women missionaries were flown to Bafwasende Sunday, along with Mrs. Burke.

Mrs. Burke told reporters that rebel officers, who had protected missionaries from their own troops, told her the 13 missing persons at Bafwasende were being hidden in the bush.

But when she was asked if

Suggests Report Contents Cause P.M. Statement

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker suggested today that contents of a secret RCMP report on bribery allegations against a ministerial aide may have prompted Prime Minister Pearson to file his controversial statement with the Dorion inquiry last week.

There had to be "a most unusual reason" for Mr. Pearson telling the inquiry that he knew of the bribery allegations Sept. 2 and not Nov. 22 as he told the Commons previously, the Conservative leader said.

Mr. Diefenbaker, speaking to reporters at a press conference, said:

"Certainly at that time he knew Chief Justice Dorion had stated the RCMP report could be produced.

"In the report was a . . ."

Mr. Diefenbaker stopped abruptly at that point and after a pause added:

"I don't know what was in it."

Then he went on to say that "most unusual reason" for the prime minister's letter must have been conducted with the RCMP report.

Mr. Diefenbaker volunteered the remarks without questions from reporters.

He said the prime minister's letter to the Dorion Inquiry "has no equivalent in Canadian history." Its reference to procedural difficulties making it impossible for a statement to be made in the House was most improper.

"He must have known that statement was far removed from the facts of parliamentary life," he added.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he had found no precedent for Parliament refusing to accept a prime minister's word as it had done on Dec. 17. That was the day Mr. Pearson explained his Dorion letter to the Commons and a motion was made to have a committee investigate the matter.

Speaker Alan Macnaughton ruled the New Democrat motion out of order, and his decision was sustained by a 122-to-100 vote.

Belleville Loses Another Chess Match

Ottawa defeated Belleville 6½-1½ in a South Eastern Ontario Chess League match played at the Clark Memorial Recreation Centre at Ottawa yesterday. Belleville managed to salvage only three draws on the eight boards to play. It was the local club's fourth loss in five starts.

Following are the results, with the name of the Ottawa player being given first in each pairing: Dr. Pedersen 1, P. Smedley 0; W. Westfall ½, D. Payne ½, J. Matysis ½, B. May ½, K. Currie 1, R. Snefjella 0, A. Holton ½, W. Hinderer ½, D. Sikenen ½, R. Swanhaven 0, G. Newman 1, R. Kar 0, J. Beaulieu 1, P. McEreavy 0.

Humane Society Organized For District

On Thursday evening a group of interested citizens from Belleville and the surrounding districts met in Christ Church Parish Hall to discuss the formation of a branch of the Ontario Humane Society in this area.

The meeting was addressed by Mr. T. I. Hughes, general manager of the Ontario sector of the society. His topic, "How to set up a branch and why this is necessary," was most enlightening and interesting. Mr. Hughes also spoke of the work being carried on throughout the province of Ontario and across Canada.

The Society is set up under a public act which provides for inspectors with authority to carry out the aims of the society which are primarily the humane treatment of animals and wildlife in general. There are at present 56 inspectors in Ontario and the Ontario Provincial Police, from time to time, aid in the carrying out of humane work. The Society, while Canada-wide, is most active in Ontario and British Columbia, with important work being accomplished in the Arctic and in the northern Highlands and wherever cruelty to animals exists.

The main objective for a branch in this area will be to promote, maintain and maintain an inspector for Hastings and Prince Edward, including cities, towns and townships in these counties. This does not mean that the Society would become involved in animal control which is the responsibility of the local governing bodies.

FORM EXECUTIVE

Following Mr. Hughes' talk and considerable discussion, the pro-tem chairman, F. A. Beeby, called for volunteers to form an executive for the new branch. M. Goslin, Trenton; Mrs. George Leep and Mrs. A. L. Canedinger, Shannonville; Mr. and Mrs. W. Young, Prince Edward County; and T. Rhenius, H. Crowe, Mrs. K. Box, Mrs. E. Phair, Mrs. E. Smith and Mrs. Neil O'Neil of Belleville willingly offered their services. A meeting is planned for early in the new year to assign offices to the above people.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by son, Franklin and daughter-in-law, Mary Ellen.

Incessant Preaching of Mr. K Will Make It Easier for Leaders to Make Changes

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — They call him a hare-brained schemer, and in some ways he probably was a visionary.

But an examination of the record shows that Nikita Khrushchev was not so far removed from reality as the epithet suggests.

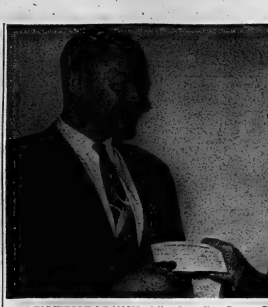
He what appeared to be an unsophisticated, intuitive kind of way, the miner's son from the Ukraine recognized that some fundamental re evaluations were necessary in the Soviet economy, particularly its agricultural sector.

"We have no right to be idealists and dreamers," he said.

Shortly after his overthrow as premier and Communist party first secretary, Khrushchev was accused in the press of "hare-brained scheming, i m n ture conclusions and hasty decisions and actions divorced from reality . . . unwillingness to take into account the achievements of science and practice' experience."

The criticism was heavy with irony, for the things the Soviet press denounced were strikingly similar to those Khrushchev himself had railed at while in office.

MEANT WELL



It may be that the impulsive Khrushchev's failure was an inability to match words with deeds, or to get others to heed the words; combined with well-intentioned rash disruptive attempts to decentralize the economy.

Nevertheless, his incessant preaching will make it easier for the new Soviet leaders to effect necessary changes in economic planning and outlook

Khrushchev often spoke of the need to apply scientific knowledge to industrial and agricultural problems, including scientific knowledge from abroad.

"One should not stand aloof and shut oneself up in one's own shell," he said earlier this year in a speech. "It would be foolish not to study the achievements of foreign science for the simple reason that they have been scored in a capitalist country."

Red tape, bureaucracy and what he called "administration by mere injunction" were frequent targets of Khrushchev shafts. He once told a meeting about a collective farm whose leaders had complained they were forced to sow corn on 6,250 acres even though the farm's structure dictated that it be sown on 5,000 acres. Next year the production management board went to the other extreme and reduced the area sown to 4,000 acres.

NOT PLANNING

"This is not planning but confusion," the farm managers complained, to which Khrushchev added: "The collective farmers are right; this is really confusing."

Though he contrived to praise the general progress of Soviet agriculture he betrayed a deep concern for the bureaucratic malaise that often seems to afflict it. And he could describe it in colorful, down to-earth terms.

"The production board and the party committee, having received instructions from the regional party committee, in their turn send telegrams to the collective and state farms, call conferences, and 'pump' the collective farm cadres full of instructions.

"Those who were 'pumped' then 'pump' their subordinates in a word, everyone pumps everyone else, but little time is devoted to specific problems. . . The cart either goes very slowly or still stands in the same old place."

Perhaps the most celebrated venture connected with Khrushchev's name is the 10 year-old virgin lands project Hundreds of thousands of young pioneers have headed the party call to go east and help develop new farmlands in Kazakhstan Siberia, the Urals, the Volga-River area and the Soviet far East.

"This offensive will go down in the history of our country as Khrushchev's exploit of the people," Khrushchev boasted several months ago.

This year the wheat crop in the new lands has been good following last year's disaster and several disappointing harvests before that. But only the future will tell whether the virgin lands program was a hare-brained scheme from a hare-brained schemer.

Scouting activities

17th BELLEVILLE

The past six months have been busy ones for the 17th Belleville Scout group. The second annual canoe trip in Algonquin Park was the highlight of the summer. A most enjoyable time was had by all under the capable leadership of Scouter George Gibbons.

In early September the Scouters and Group Committee and their wives met at the home of Scouter Lew Kline for a get-acquainted evening of friendship, stunts, songs and a wiener roast. The occasion also provided an opportunity to say "Au Revoir!" to Scouter Gummo who is leaving the group, after seven years of faithful service. Scouter Gummo has been with 17th Belleville since its inception. A Scout statuette suitably engraved was presented to Scouter Gummo.

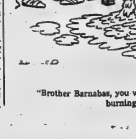
Scouts from A and B troops enjoyed an afternoon of rifle shooting at the Quinte Handgun Range in Prince Edward County. An encouraging aspect of the outing was the number of fathers participating in the shoot.

Prior to the "Jamboree-on-the-Air" B troop was visited by members of the Tri-County Radio Club with their mobile unit. The boys were wildly enthusiastic about talking to each other via radio while on the move. Scouter Dodge has been helping the boys plan and build crystal sets. It is hoped that a few radio man badges will blossom from this venture.

Many of the Scouts and a few of the leaders had the pleasure of viewing Jupiter's moons following an interesting talk on Astronomy by Mr. Ernie Burnham. Plans are forming to enable those interested in star gazing to view the heavens through a telescope in the near future.

Under the direction of Scouter J. Jones the patrol cooks of B troop have been taking theory and practice of cooking in preparation for summer camping. The latest effort, fried eggs, was pronounced an unqualified success by Scouter M. Law. Scouters McLean and Butcher have been recent additions to A pack and are very welcome additions.

B troop is pleased to announce that Bill Graham, Bob Ludolph and Philip Doherty were recently invested as Scouts in the World Wide Brotherhood of Scouting.



To one and all 17th Belleville sends best wishes for the Christmas Season and good Scouting in the New Year.

Court Rules Two Held in Jail Illegally

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada said today that Guiseppe and Rocco Violi, 24-year - old Italian immigrant twins, have been held illegally in Montreal's Bordeaux Jail for eight months under a warrant issued by Immigration Minister Tremblay.

The court in a 6-to-3 decision granted an appeal by the Violi brothers for a court ruling quashing deportation orders issued against them some two years ago. Its ruling reversed a decision by the Quebec Appeal Court.

"The appeal is allowed, the detention of Rocco and Giuseppe Violi declared illegal and it is directed that they be released from detention forthwith," the court's majority judgment said.

The judgment, written by Mr. Justice Ronald Martland, said the minister, after agreeing to permit a person ordered deported to remain in Canada, cannot later change his mind and direct that the deportation be enforced.

HEARD IN COMMONS

The judgment followed charges in the Commons that the rights of foreign nationals have been abused under the Immigration Act. Opposition members said many of these nationals—mainly seamen in Canada illegally—have been kept in jail for weeks and months without real justification.

Toronto lawyer Joseph Sedgwick was appointed by the government to investigate allegations about the maltreatment of aliens held in jail for long periods before their cases were dealt with or before being deported. He has not yet reported to the government.

clining or who is frustrated for other reasons.

Following a spate of high life —dining, wining and women included, courtesy of the bankrupt firm—came an offer of purchase is made at a price many times what the business is worth.

A fraction of the money is paid as a down-payment and the owner, sometimes coerced with blackmail threats on the basis of his recent good times, is eased out of the company.

His name and credit-rating remain, however, and goods are purchased by the firm through a 30-day credit.

Before the creditors, confident of being paid, actually receive any money, a false promissory note against the company is arranged. The note is for such a large amount that its bearer takes a petition of bankruptcy against the firm.

Meantime, in some cases, extra insurance has been taken on the company's buildings and a fire follows, with the destruction of records not the least significant of its results.

The newly - purchased stock of goods, meantime, has been moved to the premises of another company, taken over by the racket in the same fashion as marked the first take-over.

The creditors never see their goods again, and the second company forms a new link in the chain of arranged bankruptcies.

Many Parties Being Arranged For Holiday

TRENTON — Many of the service clubs and other organized groups have substituted Christmas dinners and parties for their regular meetings this week. Rotarians will celebrate Christmas tonight at their weekly dinner at the Gilbert Hotel and listen to a message from Rev. J. A. Payton of Grace United Church. Kiwanians will have a pre-Christmas dinner at noon at the Gilbert Hotel on Thursday.

This week too, the firemen from No. 6 Repair Depot will deliver repaired and repainted toys to the Trenton Salvation Army Corps for distribution to less fortunate families on Christmas eve.

On Saturday, the members of the Trenton Police Association held a turkey shoot at the Quinte Machine range and the proceeds will go to Christmas baskets, packed annually by the association.

Country Club members will gather on the afternoon of Christmas eve to exchange greetings and are promised the traditional eggnog and Christmas cake.

HONOR ARTIST

PARIS (Reuters) — German-born surrealist painter Max Ernst, 73, was awarded the Cross of a Grand Officer of the West German Order of Merit in Paris. Ernst, one of the founders of Dadaism, first came to Paris in 1921, and has spent most of his life here.

Police Will Be Active Over Holiday Period

TRENTON — Trenton and area police will be working full-staff over the holiday and have promised a crack-down on drivers, who mix their driving and drinking.

Accidents in this area were kept to a minimum last year at this season, and from reports from the various departments, police are more than anxious to do a repeat on the performance.

$400 DAMAGE

A two-car collision on Dundas Street East, near the Dutch Mill Inn early Sunday, resulted in property damage estimated by Trenton police at $400.

Drivers of the cars, Jacques Raoul Godin of Elizabeth Crescent, Belleville and Gordon Robert Brown of R. R. 2, Trenton, were not injured.

Mrs. Annette Godin suffered a bump to her head from striking the windshield. Mrs. Evelyn Brown and six-months' old Robert Brown were not injured.

Choirs Hold Candlelight Service

TRENTON — The annual candlelight service by the senior, junior and intermediate choirs of King Street United Church was held Sunday afternoon, under the direction of organist and choir master E. A. Nunn.

The choirs entered the church carrying lighted candles and placed these in candelabra at the front of the church before taking their seats in the choir loft. An organ prelude was played by Miss Jane Simmons.

Highlight of the impressive service was the rendition of exerts from Handel's Messiah by the choirs with soloists Miss Slyvia Miedema, Mrs. Grace Langdon and Donald Eason.

Soloists for the second half of the service were Grant Rathbun, Gordon Little and Miss Elizabeth Rathbun.

The congregation joined in singing the traditional carols and choir selections were lesser known but still carried out the theme of the joyful Christmas season.

The Big Jump

The United Nations Declaration of Human Rights contains the following clause: "Everyone is entitled to all the rights and freedoms set forth in this Declaration, without distinction of any kind, such as race, color, language, religion, political or other opinion, national or social origin, property, birth or other status."

The average liberal will have no difficulty accepting that clause in its entirety. For realists, though, a difficulty may arise when idealists attempt to translate this declaration into the assertion that all races are equal, and give to the word "equal" the meaning "identical."

There is an abundance of evidence that men of various races have differing abilities, physical and mental. The common answer to that is these differences are the result of environment, physical and cultural. The ability of a Chinese peasant woman to resume work in the field a few hours after giving birth to a baby, for instance, can quite reasonably be ascribed to her way of life, which has hardened her to manual labor. Her apparent physical superiority over a white woman is not the product of race. Still, there remain some differences between the races which seem hard to explain on this basis.

The most conclusive "evidence" we can recall of a racial superiority involves an explanation for the superiority of U.S. Negro sprinters a few years ago. At that time it was suggested that a difference in the Achilles tendon of the Negro made him able to surpass his fellow-Americans of the white race.

If there are subtle physical differences, is there any reason to believe that mental differences might not also exist? To believe this one does not need to argue that one race is "superior" to another, only that they are not identical.

This argument, though, seems to be destroyed by the aftermath of an incident which occurred in Paraguay in the thirties. A French ethnologist, in search of a primitive tribe of Indians, was attacked by them. Later his guides captured an Indian baby girl. They were going to sell the baby to a farmer in the district, reports Robert Matthias in UNESCO Features. Out of pity, the Frenchman bought the child. She was brought up by the explorer's mother, exactly like a little French girl. At the age of seven she spoke French and Portuguese and liked to ask questions about Greek mythology. She was usually at the head of her class. A scientist who followed the different stages of her education reported she was "perhaps superior to most white girls of her age."

If environment could produce such results with a child from one of the world's most primitive tribes, can we reach any other conclusion but that only a difference in opportunity separates the average New Guinea head-hunter from the graduates of colleges?

Disillusioned?

In Saskatchewan, Premier Ross Thatcher's Liberal Government has lost its first test at the polls.

Hon. Herb Pinder, Minister of Industries, has been defeated by 814 votes by Robert A. Walker, Attorney-General in the former CCF Government, defeated last April. The final general election Mr. Pinder was first declared elected by 30 votes, a recount showed Mr. Walker the winner by two votes and it was then agreed that sufficient irregularities had occurred to invalidate the result. Therefore, the two rivals renewed their battle, resulting in Mr. Walker's clear-cut victory.

Not unnaturally, former C.C.F. premier Woodrow Lloyd is interpreting the result as a rebuke to the Thatcher regime, for its conduct of the province's business during the past half-year. Premier Thatcher denies this, and he may be right.

Mr. Pinder says that many who voted Conservative in April swung to the CCF. This could hardly be interpreted as a rebuke to the Liberals. But it could be the result of dissatisfaction with the Conservative record in the Federal House. And the fact that these former Conservatives voted for the CCF rather than for the Liberals, whose political philosophy is nearer their own, might be due to the fact they are equally disillusioned with the Liberal record in the House of Commons. Perhaps, Saskatchewan, which was once divided between the Liberals and the CCF federally and then became solidly Conservative, is preparing to become a third-party stronghold once again.

Some people see suburbs as a galloping horse out of control. Perhaps we are not masters of our destiny, but are being taken for a ride.—Sir William Holford, British town planner.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Dec. 22st, 1944

Observance of Boxing Day—it's an old English custom—will make a long weekend for many Canadians this year. Though not statutory in Ontario, more people in that province will benefit by the day-after-Christmas holiday than in any of the other eight.

Boxing Day is a public statutory holiday in British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba and cities in those three western provinces will prolong the Christmas holiday spirit for an extra day. However, the fourth of the western provinces will find Tuesday Dec. 26th almost generally observed as a holiday since the Saskatchewan government will close and all business concerns, except federal offices and banks, will close throughout the province. East of Ontario observance will be slight or not at all.

Mr. Charles W. Yeiegh has resigned as clerk of the municipality of Bloomfield, Prince Edward County, after rendering efficient service in the position for 30 years.

Dr. George Noble has been unanimously elected president, and Mr. Charles A. Cameron has been unanimously elected secretary - treasurer of the United Veterans of Belleville which comprises the two branches of ex-servicemen in this city. Announcement of the acceptance of Dr. Noble and Mr. Cameron to fill the offices mentioned was made by secretary Roy Madden at a joint meeting of the 49th and 21st Battalions club.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Deacon will spend Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. John Deacon in New York City.

The Y's Men's Club held its first regular meeting last night at the Y.M.C.A. and the charter was closed and no new names will be added to the list of charter members; membership will now be accepted in the regular way. Mr. Newton Thompson was appointed treasurer and thereby becomes a charter member. Mr. R. Sole occupied the chair at the meeting and Mr. R. L. Brown was secretary-pro-tem. Mr. Ross Deacon, Jr., will preside at the next meeting.

The weather was mild here in December away back in 1894 according to the following item: "Jot this down I- your diary for future reference: The schooner Two Brothers passed up the bay under sail on the 21st day of December, 1894. She came from Picton coming to Brighton and passed the bridge a little before noon today."

The new organ in Bridge Street Methodist church was used for the first time on Sunday. Prof. Albert D. Jordan of the First Methodist church, London, Ontario, was the guest organist for the day and the choir was under the direction of Mr. Dan Cameron. The members of the large choir are expected for the first time in Geneva gowns and caps. It is of interest to recall that the first organ in instrument used in the service of this congregation in the church in which was then on Pinnacle Street south of the market, was a bass viol which was played by the late Mr. Nathan Jones. The first organ used in the services of this congregation was built by Mr. Benjamin Rutter, whose factory stood near the present Balmoral block on the north side of Bridge St. east. This instrument had wooden pipes and Mr. Nathan Jones became the first organist. The congregation moved to the new church at the corner of Bridge and Church Streets in 1865.

To Your Good Health

Common Sense Key to Happy, Safe Yuletide Festivities

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Let's dispense with medical ailments today—except for emergencies such as burns, sprains lacerations and other possible holiday casualties.

Call me Ole Scrooge if you must, but people still get hurt by sheer neglect on Christmas Day and I don't want it to happen to any of my readers.

The picturesque, foolhardy custom of burning candles on the tree is gone, but some lesser, although real, perils have replaced it. Too many strings of electric lights on the same outlet can overload the wiring and cause a fire. (It can't happen if you keep proper-size fuses in place, though. Don't put higher-rating fuses in if one blows. And don't put a penny behind a blown fuse.)

Worn insulation in strings of lights is an invitation to either shock or fire. Two bare wires don't have to touch to make a short circuit. Once I got quite a shock for what seemed to be no apparent reason until I figured it out. A defective socket in one string was making connections (through me! via the metallic tinsel on the trees to a worn place in another string of lights. So I replaced those strings.

If you've changed bulbs on a tree, you know how hot they can get. Don't have them nestled against something that is burnable.

Turn off the decorative lights when you go to bed or leave the house. Yes, I know. They don't look as pretty turned off, but how about a house on fire? Select a tree stand that can be filled with water, which will add moisture to the tree and will keep the needles from falling too soon. You can also spray your tree with fireproofing material.

If you still smoke, try to quit long enough while the presents are being unwrapped. Smouldering butts and flicks of ashes can sometimes set fire to a snowstorm of wrapping paper.

Most physicians receive emergency calls on Christmas Day from people who could have avoided accidents by using common sense. I very vividly recall a hand, badly cut in the enthusiastic opening of a big package that happened to be a card table which fairly retracting legs. Got the hand smarted up with a sharp corner on the machinery he did.

Remember that chemistry sets should be used with caution. Read the directions. Things that shoot (bows and arrows, guns, toy cannons, etc.) should be fired only in suitable places, and after all the gifts have been opened. Following this simple rule can save Aunt Maxine from getting popped in the car while she is innocently opening that bedjacket with the lavender rickrack.

I'll add this: Fathers of the world, subside! Don't think you can roller skate, ice skate, ski, ride a bicycle, chin yourself or otherwise comport yourself "as well as you ever could." This sort of nonsense perhaps causes more misery than the other slip-pidilies combined.

But I'm not really a kill-joy. Have fun, friends. But if you have a fireplace, when you hang the socks, don't hang 'em where by mere accident they can catch fire. Toasted candy canes are messy. But fire at night is tragic.

Rolltop Desk Is Revived

Financial Post

The old - fashioned rolltop desk, which had apparently vanished with the horsehair sofa and the two-to Victorian sideboard, is again being manufactured in the U.S.

There is a demand for it. Many executives, it is said, find it hard to comply with the clean-desk rule imposed or conventional in their companies. On the principle that an invisible or undetectable offence is no offence at all, the good old rolltop solves their problem.

Another change in the design of office furniture offers an alternative and less dubious way out. Makers are producing desks slanted downward toward the user, with a small ledge at the foot.

As generations of school children have known, a slanted desk is far easier on the arm, eye and neck than a flat one; and confused scatteration of papers on a sloping piece of wood is a physical impossibility.

Of the methods of achieving tidiness, the slanted desk is probably to be preferred. It will cause no twinges of conscience.

Strictly Personal

Unrestricted Donations Required

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I was talking with some hospital officials not long ago, who are about to embark on a fund-raising drive among the general public. "Why do you show a deficit?" I asked. "Don't you have any reserve of funds from past contributions?"

"Yes, we do," one of them said. "We have more than $6 million — but unfortunately, these are 'restricted' donations that have been earmarked for special purposes."

While the hospital has plenty of money for abstruse research or certain expensive forms of therapy, it lacks "bread-and-butter" money for maintaining the plant, for basic salaries, for the urgent every-day needs in running a large, complicated institution.

It seems to me that wealthy benefactors should be made more aware of the necessity for giving unrestricted donations to hospitals and schools. A string attached to a contribution may easily turn into a noose, strangling the very funds it was meant to liberate.

For instance, hundreds upon hundreds of college scholarships are going unused every year, because the specifications are so narrow and rigid that few applicants can be found who are able to fulfill them.

If a college badly needs a new library, it is useless (and most frustrating) to have a large sum earmarked for a new men's dormitory. And if a hospital needs equipment for an overcrowded charity clinic, it does little good to have a generous donation earmarked or X-ray equipment.

What are the factors that prompt such restricted contributions? one is a kind of gratitude. The wealthy benefactor, or someone in his family, may have been cured by a particular treatment — and the donation goes to augment that form of treatment, whether or not the hospital requires augmentation.

A second reason is vanity. A benefactor sometimes wants his name to be associated with the vanguard of medical research, and leaves money for research and facilities in this "glamour" area of medicine. And a third reason is sentimentality — of which polio was a vast recipient in years past, even though its prevalence as a disease was not great.

Polio, incidentally, is an excellent example of the shortsightedness in earmarking donations. It is now no longer regarded as a major medical problem in hospitals—yet funds contributed for polio treatment may not be diverted to other and more crucial ailments, without at least a bitter court battle to set aside the specific terms of the donation. When we give, we should give wholly and unreservedly — letting the recipients themselves decide where our generosity can best be used.

Canada as Viewed From U. S.

By JAMES SCOTT in The Kansas City Star

The people of Canada — 19 million individuals who speak English, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Chinese, and Ukrainian — probably are the best friends the United States has.

About 90 per cent of them live in a 200-mile band along the U.S.-Canadian border and most of these live within 50 miles of the United States.

That border, including the Alaskan-Yukon line, is 3,500 miles long and not an inch of it is defended from either side.

* * *

Right now the people of Canada are in the midst of developments that could lead to a crisis. Such a crisis most certainly would result in change—change of a type deserving the patience and sympathetic understanding of the United States.

The nationalistic surge of the French-speaking Canadians in Quebec province is very real and it is gathering momentum.

Nearly a third of the Canadian people are French speaking. The vast majority of these live in the provinces of Quebec, but there is by no means a united French consensus.

Some talk of forming a new and separate nation. Others want a greater degree of autonomy for Quebec within the Canadian state. Many Quebeckers are opposed to separation. Some simply aren't interested in the issue.

But there can be no question that the matter now is regarded very seriously by most Canadians, including eminent leaders in government and industry. A few years ago this wasn't so. But change has come rapidly.

This, of course, is an internal matter that can be solved only by Canadians. But the outcome will greatly affect the United States. For Canada is far more important to this country than is realized by the average American who lives far from the undefended border.

The people of the United States worry about Russia, Red China, Cuba, turmoil in Latin America and Charles de Gaulle.

The very absence of friction with Canada tends to make us take that nation for granted. Canada is just sort of "up there".

* * *

Some Americans think of it as a vast tundra, somewhat owned by England and peopled with Mounties and fur trappers.

A few years ago Lester Pearson, before he became prime minister, observed:

"It would help if the United States took more notice of what we do do, and, indeed, occasionally of what we say."

He is disconcerting, for instance, that about the only time the American people seem to be aware of our existence, in contrast, say, to the existence of a Latin American republic, is when we do something they do not like or do not do something which they would like."

* * *

Canadians, on the other hand, are very aware of the existence of the United States and sometimes they feel overwhelmed.

One Canadian put it this way: "Suppose there were two billion Mexicans on the other side of the Rio Grande in contrast to your 200 million. Wouldn't you feel the weight?"

* * *

Canadian newsstands are flooded with magazines from the United States. The newspapers give the most thorough coverage to American politics and sports. American television is omnipresent.

Last week the World Series, or La Serie Mondiale if you were watching the French language telecast, was tuned in the length and breadth of the land (the French announcer rolled off the Gallic names such as "Boyer" with obvious satisfaction.

Canadians were talking and reading of the U.S. election campaign with knowledge and interest — almost as if they, too, would be voting.

Canadians always are conscious of developments in the United States and they know that the reverse is not true. Sometimes they brood about it.

* * *

They do not want to be swamped culturally by the United States and they do not want to be considered a U.S. satellite — which they are not! They do not want the world to think that somebody in Washington pushes a button and somebody in Ottawa jumps.

Actually, there is a great deal of interdependence between Canada and the U.S. and an amazing degree of co-operation and mutual concern across the border — far more than most Americans know.

Thousands of Canadians were born in the United States and thousands of Americans are natives of Canada. And there is no way to change the fact of modern transportation: New York is 68 minutes by jet from Montreal; Seattle, 17 minutes from Vancouver.

* * *

The primary theme of U.S.-Canadian relations is friendship, understanding and interdependence.

One U.S. diplomat said that if our relations with the rest of the world were as good as our relations with Canada, State Department personnel could be cut in half.

Yet, beneath the surface, points of irritation occasionally burst forth.

More than half the Canadian extractive and manufacturing industry is owned and controlled by U.S. investors—although the word "control" must be confined to its meaning under Canadian law.

The fact of U.S. ownership is hurtful to the pride of some Canadians. Others say that, without it, the development of resources would be slower and the high Canadian standard of living much lower.

Claims Speeches By Premier "Out of Style"

MONCTON (CP)—Rene d'Anjou, reporter and editorial writer for Moncton's French-language daily newspaper L'Evangeline says recent speeches by New Brunswick Premier Louis Robichaud were "out of style" and would not help to improve the situation of the Acadians in the province.

Mr. D'Anjou, a member of the vigilance committee of the Societe Nationale des Acadiens (the National Society of Acadians), said Saturday in a French-language radio broadcast originating here that the premier was playing "hide and seek" with the real facts which exist in the province.

Mr. Robichaud last week told the Montreal Chamber of Commerce that the French-speaking population of his province had learned how to live in harmony with the English-speaking population, and suggested the same attitude could prevail in Quebec.

Mr. D'Anjou said the premier would have done well to tackle the subject of discrimination which exists towards the Acadians in New Brunswick at all levels of government. The French 40 per cent of the province's population is not recognized, he said.

New Flag Taken Down From Whitby Hall

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Somebody in Whitby didn't want the town to be the first in Canada to accept the new Canadian flag, so he took it down from atop town hall during the weekend.

The incident has added controversy to an already controversial subject and has put police baffled as to the whereabouts of the single-leaf banner.

On Friday, Mayor Warren Mowat hoisted the flag claiming this town of 14,000 was among the first to accept it officially.

"You are witnessing the first raising of the new flag on our standard," the mayor told a small crowd.

Sunday morning, police found the flag had vanished. The rope had been slashed and taken as well. The police station is less than 30 feet from town hall.

LIBERAL ANNOYED

"It was an act of some very irresponsible person," said Sam Hollingsworth, president of the federal Liberal association in Ontario Riding, donors of the new flag.

Councillor Harry Inkpen said Mayor Mowat's action could be termed "a little hasty."

"I'm not unhappy about it," said Vernon McCarl, the Canadian Legion's zone commander. "They shouldn't have acted so quickly in putting it up."

Ed Brush, vice-president of Whitby Branch 112 of the Canadian Legion, said he would like to rip it down.

"We weren't informed about this and I can't understand why the mayor went ahead with it. We're not through yet and we'll keep flying the Red Ensign whatever they do."

Mowat said he would let Monday's council meeting decide whether to return the Union Jack to the town hall pole as a temporary measure.

CHILDREN'S TOLL

Approximately one-half of the 6,000 North Americans killed annually in fires are children.

Mother of 13 Killed by Shotgun Blast

HARROW, Ont. (CP)—Police are investigating a shooting in which a mother of 13 was killed Saturday and her husband and another man injured near this community, 17 miles south of Windsor.

Mrs. Juanita Mulder, 41, was found shot through the heart in a shack near the Mulder farmhouse. Her husband, Howard, 51, was in hospital in Windsor in fair condition with most of his jaw shot away by a shotgun blast.

Also wounded was Eddie Gene Williams, 41, of Harrow. A gunshot wound in the arm necessitated amputation just above the elbow. He was reported in satisfactory condition.

A neighbor, John Harris, 55, said he was talking to Mrs. Mulder about 2 a.m. when a man walked in and fired a shotgun at her.

Provincial police in Chatham released no details.

The Mulder children range in age from one to 23.

Two Confections Quickly Made

By MARY MOORE

To paraphrase "Eat your cake and have it too" — "Make your cake and have your career" — applies to busy mothers.

On November 3rd I gave here a Light Fruit Cake recipe and added that it was easy to assemble for career girls.

Today I am giving you two recipes for simple confections that are Christmassy — Bittersweet Balls and simplified Holiday Macaroons — that busy mothers can make any evening during the last few days before Christmas, which means right now.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Herbed Pork Chops; Buttered Noodles; Creamed Carrots; Tossed Greens; Prune Whip with Nutmeg Custard Sauce; Coffee.

HOLIDAY MACAROONS:

½ cup sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated), 2 cups shredded cocoanut, ¼ cup quartered red candied cherries, ¼ cup quartered green candied cherries, ½ cup coarsely chopped pecans, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix all ingredients together. Drop by small spoonfuls onto well-buttered cookie sheet, about 1½" apart. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 15 minutes or until a delicate brown. Remove from pan at once. While macaroons are hot reshape and mound into little balls. Cool on rack. Makes 2 dozen.

BITTERSWEET BALLS (repeated from December 5/62):

One 6-oz. package chocolate pieces, (or 6-oz. semi-sweet chocolate bars, broken), 2/3 cup (1 small can) evaporated milk flavorings — rum essence, peppermint, cinnamon, 1/3 cup very finely chopped walnuts (preferably freshly cracked), 1/3 cup desiccated cocoanut, 1/3 cup chocolate shot.

Melt chocolate in double boiler being sure boiling water below does not touch bottom of top of double boiler. Stir in evaporated milk and cook, uncovered, for 40 minutes, stirring often. At this stage ours measured 1 cup. Divide into 1/3 cup portions. To one add ¼ teaspoon rum flavoring. To another add ¼ teaspoon peppermint flavoring, and to the third add ¼ teaspoon cinnamon (powdered). Chill 3 hours. Shape rum-flavored chocolate into ¾" balls and roll in the finely chopped walnuts. Shape into 1" patties 3/16" thick and coat with the desiccated cocoanut. Shape the cinnamon-flavored chocolate into 1¼" logs ¾" in diameter and roll in chocolate shot. Place on waxed paper to set. Store these in one layer carefully. If to be kept any length of time refrigerate.

Susanna's Family Fare

GLUB, GLUB

Dear Susanna: My little boy is fond of goldfish, but they keep dying. I have bought nine of them within the past month, and no wonky two are alike—(we just kept two at a time in the bowl). Would you please give us as much information as you possibly can on how to keep goldfish? — Tillie Hasben

I'll do my very best. . .here we go with a splash!

1. Make sure the goldfish you buy are healthy. No chewed or torn fins, no scales missing and no blood spots on the body or fins. His mouth shouldn't be whitish, and be sure he swims rapidly and not sluggishly.

2. Now to choose a container. Ordinarily, many goldfish bowls are too small. Only one small goldfish can safely be maintained in a container with about one gallon capacity and with no less than 96 square inches of surface area. The part about proper air-water contact at the top is important. This is why most stores use tanks as they give maximum top opening space.

3. Fresh, healthy, green plants are also important. These should be rooted in a bed of very fine-textured, well-washed sand. Plants such as Elodea or Cabomba are excellent for the fish to chew on, and since the fish eat them it is foolish to buy anything more expensive. Spatterdock and Amazon Swordplant make fine decorative centre pieces as their leaves are too tough for our aquarian friends to chew and so they remain intact.

4. Most goldfish food is basically the same, but do try to buy a brand that has been screened to remove the tiny particles. The fish cannot eat this fine dust and it will only cloud the water.

5. Only feed them once a day, and then only as much as they can eat within a 15 minute period. More goldfish are killed with kindness in this respect, than from all other causes put together.

6. If you don't overfeed them, there should be no need to change their water. However, if their water does need changing, make sure the fresh water has been left standing in a container overnight so that it is at the same temperature as the water in their tank.

7. Finally, don't ever use chlorinated water straight from the tap. Chlorine in water kills the goldfish and it must be removed from tap water before using. The chap who sells you your fish will have inexpensive little tablets for this purpose.

Just one more thing. Goldfish simply love a once-a-week treat of live food. — SUSANNA

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH GUILD

The Christmas meeting of Christ Church Parish Guild was held recently, taking the form of a potluck luncheon and get-together. Members ou t d i d themselves in providing their most delectable dishes for the party. Tables were bright with Christmas centrepieces and favors for all present. Special guests included, Canon and Mrs. G. B. deH. Wright and Michael, Rev. James Smith, Mr. and Mrs. G. Livingstone and Mr. and Mrs. B. Quinecy, church wardens and their wives, Mr. John Withers, the church organist; Mrs. C. Fursen, church secretary, and Mr. and Mrs. D. Symmons, church sexton and his wife.

PRESENT CHEQUES

Mrs. A. Jordan, president, gave a warm welcome to all and kept business at a minimum, highlighting only the most important items. Three substantial cheques were presented to the church wardens as a result of a most successful Guild year. Some of this money will be used to help reduce the outstanding debt on the parish hall, some will be put toward the restoration fund and some will be used for general purposes of the church. Mr. Livingstone and Mr. Quinecy expressed the appreciation of the wardens to the Guild for their continued work and support.

Canon Wright and Rev. Smith each contributed an encouraging and spirited message to the gathering.

Beeby thanked Mrs. Jordan and congratulated her on a most successful and harmonious term of office.

Mrs. Earl Hickey contributed a most delightful poetical "spoof" on promident officials and members of Christ Church, which was enjoyed by all.

In the spirit of Christmas, each member brought along a gift which is to be used in the Christmas cheer baskets and volunteers will deliver gifts and visit a number of shut-ins during the holiday season. After luncheon, many of the members enjoyed a game of euchre.

Mr. Dodd, the church organist played traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Keyes as she sang two appropriate selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a white floor length peau de soie bridal gown with flocked sachlins outlined with pearls and sequins, and long pointed sleeves. The flared skirt featured a large bow at back of waist. Her shoulder length veil of nylon tulle flowed from a circlet of white blossoms. She carried a spray of red roses mingled with white carnations.

Mrs. Barry Grieve as matron of honor wore a street length dress of gold peau de soie with matching mitts and a circlet headdress of golden flowers with veil. SHORT LIFE

Once it settles on the ground a snowflake loses its crystalline shape and becomes an ice granule—or melts.

Decorative Mosaics Hobby Of Jean Levy of Kitchener

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Jean Levy makes decorative mosaics from broken glass—a hobby that started as a hobby.

She has to buy some of the glass to get special colors, but much of it comes from wrecking companies, wrecked automobiles and discarded pop, liquor and medicine bottles.

Some of the frames for such mosaics as violins and birds were made from wood and wire but most are constructed of imported rattan from Hong Kong or the United States and may cost as much as $5 wholesale plus duty.

Mrs. Levy started making mosaics about a year ago after picking up the idea in California. Friends placed orders for her work and she began to receive invitations from clubs to demonstrate the craft and exhibit pieces. She began making Christmas ornaments two months ago.

She says she gets a good red glass from auto signal lights, a blue from milk of magnesia or seltzer bottles. Her friends have taken to bringing her gifts of old bottles and bits of glass. And she counts it a lucky day when she can get the stained glass window from an old house.

Before she actually begins to make a mosaic, she does a crayon sketch of a pattern and assembles loose crushed glass to match it. As a backing to hold the broken glass, stiff cellophane or a sheet of glass is glued to the rattan frame and left to dry 12 to 24 hours. Then liquid plastic is poured on the frame and allowed to well. Then another layer is applied and the crushed glass arranged on it.

The mosaics are hung in windows, on walls or, at Christmas, on doors.

Codfish Provides Welcome Break in Holiday Season

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Ordinary codfish as a gourmet Christmas dish is the latest suggestion from the home economists at the federal fisheries department, still trying to get Canadians to eat more fish.

While few families are likely to pass up the traditional turkey with all the trimmings for a codfish dinner on Christmas day, the recipe for la brandade de morue (cream of salt cod) does sound appealing.

It could provide a welcome break in the steady holiday season fare of roast turkey, cold turkey, turkey a la king and turkey sandwiches — often the result of ordering too large a festive bird.

The home economists say cream of salt cod, a dish little known on this continent, originated in Nimes in southwestern France. They call it the most famous recipe in the whole repertoire of French provincial cookery.

"Making this dish requires patience and considerable energy, for it is little short of a transformation — a very tough fish product turned into a sort of cream. With perseverance, however, one is rewarded with a delectable and different party appetizer."

SEASONED WITH GARLIC

It consists of freshened salt cod, crushed, pound and gradually blended with warmed olive oil and milk until it is snow white and the consistency of creamy mashed potatoes.

Garlic is the traditional seasoning. For serving, it is usually piled in a serving dish or on a platter, smoothed to a dome shape and surrounded by small triangles of fried bread.

Here is the recipe:

Ingredients: 1 lb. boneless salt cod, 1¼ cups warmed olive oil, 1 cup scalded milk, 1 crushed clove garlic, ½ teaspoon white pepper, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, salt to taste, fried bread triangles.

Cover salt cod with cold water and let stand overnight. Drain. Cut into chunks, cover with fresh cold water and bring to a simmering temperature. Simmer gently for about five minutes, or until the fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Drain.

It is recommended when soaking and cooking salt cod to do so in a porcelain, glazed earthenware, or enamelled pot, for some metal containers discolor the fish.

NOT TOO MUCH HEAT

Have fish, oil and milk in three separate saucepans. Keep all three over low heat so that the contents never get very warm. Mash the fish thoroughly with a wooden spoon and add one cup of warm oil. Blend over low heat until a smooth paste is obtained.

Now, gradually and alternately blend in the milk and remaining oil, two or three tablespoonful at a time, with a spatula, an electric mixer or a rotary beater. Add garlic, pepper and nutmeg and salt, then blend thoroughly.

Mound in a serving dish and serve warm or cold surrounded by dainty triangles of fried bread. If preferred, serve in small puff pastry shells or in tart shells. Makes three cups of cod mixture.

Any type of salt cod may be used, but if using the hard, dried product, freshen sufficiently to remove excess salt. Then after poaching, remove skin and bone before mashing.

Husband Fears Poisoning, Needs Medical Help

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband is 33. I am 30.

My story is so weird I'm afraid to tell anyone, but I'm desperate. Our home was happy until six months ago, when my husband began to complain about my cooking — said he got indigestion after every meal. About six weeks ago he blurted out (in front of the children), "I know what's wrong with the food in this house. You are trying to poison me."

ANN LANDERS

I asked him where he got an idea like that and he said, "I am receiving thought waves through my electric shaver."

Last week he began to buy food for himself at the delicatessen. He brings it home and eats with us.

Yesterday he said he wasn't going to give me any more money because his shaver told him I am interested in another man and that I am trying to get rid of him. (My husband is part owner of a business and draws $1,500 a month.)

I need advice desperately but I'm afraid to discuss this with anyone. Help me, please! — FRANTIC.

* * *

DEAR FRANTIC — Your husband is mentally ill and should see a doctor at once.

Ask him what he hears from his shaver about his legal obligation to support his family. If he doesn't hear anything soon tell him he'll be getting a message from your lawyer.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I was struck by your sound advice to the person who wrote suggesting that any male found guilty of a second sex offence should be surgically altered by the government. The hook line of course is the phrase "found guilty." Adolph Eichmann decided, all by himself, who was "guilty."

I concur with your view, Ann, that sex offenders should be placed under the care of competent psychiatrists. Sex offenders have diseased minds and giving them jail sentences does not solve the problem.

I believe, too, that educating people would go a long way toward decreasing the number of sex crimes. The following rules, if observed, could prevent some of the tragedies we read about daily:

- Parents should not leave children under 12 years of age alone.
- Parents should insist that their children come straight home after school, or they should know where they are going and with whom.
- Children should be trained not to accept car rides, candy or money from strangers.
- Sitters should be instructed to keep the doors bolted and to open them for no one. — C.C.F.

DEAR C.C.F. — Thank you for writing. This is a letter all parents should discuss at the dinner table tonight. Parents who find it difficult to discuss this subject should make an extra effort because their children need the information most.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am visiting in the home of my sister. I am not a frequent visitor. This is my first trip in six years. I plan to stay 10 days.

Last night my sister said, "I was invited to this luncheon and card party several weeks ago — before I knew you'd be here. I hope you don't mind being alone today."

I said nothing, but the more I thought about it the madder I got. I would not have left her alone in my home under similar circumstances. Am I being unduly sensitive? — TWIDDLING MY THUMBS.

* * *

DEAR TWIDDLING — No. Your sister should have telephoned the hostess when she learned you were coming to visit. If the hostess did not suggest that she bring you, your sister should have stayed at home.

Two Injured Youths Taken To Kingston

PICTON (Staff) — Early Saturday A.M. two 19-year-old boys were injured when they lost control of their car and crashed on Church St. in Picton. The driver, David N. Struthers of Wellington and his passenger, Harold McGrayne of 48 Church St., Picton, were both sent to hospital in Kingston for treatment of their injuries. The Wellington accident Saturday evening brings the county's accident death toll to 10 persons since the early part of September.

Christmas Concerts

ALLIANCE CHURCH

The young people's choir presented the beautiful and challenging play "Angels Aware" at the Alliance Church last Friday night. This play, ably directed by the youth sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. W. Rodberg, related by angels in costume, the life of Christ from the time of His birth to His resurrection. The Scriptures were narrated by Mr. F. Mazza. Solos, duets and choir numbers interspersed the Scripture readings and the revelations by the angels. The platforms of the church was decorated with colored lights over the baptistry and blue flood lights shining on the angel scenes.

Previous to the play the children of the lower classes presented their program. The items from the beginner class included two recitations from Ronnie Rodgers, "I Really Do" and "Merry Christmas"; an exercise "We're Just Four Little Tykes"; a recitation by Merry Lynn Brown, "Listen as We Sing"; a song by the beginners, "Jesus, Jesus, This We Sing" and recitation by Lorie Jean Deon on 'Christmas.' The primary department of the Sunday School rendered a song, "Worship Christ the Newborn King" and an exercise "Christmas Bells". The junior department featured a choir number "Ring the Bells" and "The Carols That We Sing." Herbie Hughes gave a recitation, "I Wonder," and this was followed by the exercise "Shepherds." The intermediates lent a missionary flavor to the program as several girls, dressed to represent the different countries of the world, presented "From Darkness to Light."

At the close of the program, treats were given out to all the children present.

VISITORS' SPENDING UP — Visitors to Canada in 1964 are expected to spend more than $650,000,000, an increase of $48,000,000 from last year, according to an estimate by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

In 1963 Canada had a favorable tourist balance of $13,000,000 with visitors to Canada spending $602,000,000 while Canadians spent $589,000,000 in the U.S. and overseas.

A projection based on figures for the first six months of 1964 indicates Canadian tourists will spend about $700,000,000 during the year. (CP Newsmap)

COSTLY BUT A SCUM

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Even a $50,000 home can be a slum, says Paul Roer, this city's traffic engineer. Speaking to the Kiwanis Club he discussed "traffic slums," where children need constant protection from heavy and fast traffic, and even the most "exclusive" district would come in this category. He said traffic difficulties had become significant in ordinary slums, too. Leaving a car parked on a lawn, for lack of anywhere else to put it, contributed quickly to running down a neighborhood.

she thought the 13 had been killed, she replied: "I think so. I have no hope they are still alive."

Miss Louise Rimmer, one of the British missionaries agreed with Mrs. Burke. She said those arriving here, who had been freed by the mercenaries Saturday, also were to have been killed.

"A rebel carrying a note saying the mercenaries were coming and that we should all be shot was caught by the mercenaries just before he reached Bafwasendu and was killed," Miss Rimmer said.

She said the mercenary force of about 40 men under Maj. Hoare surprised the rebels, who fled. The missionaries were taken by helicopter to Stanleyville.

HEAR RIFLE FIRE

Mrs. Burke said she heard "one volley of rifle fire" as she and the others were marched naked from the house where they had been held. But she and the two Britons added that they did not see any executions or bodies.

They said Hoare's men told them that grisly traces of a recent massacre were all that was found at Banalia. Children's clothes, the habits of a nun and a priest and splashes of blood were discovered on the slope leading down to Banila's ferryboat, they said.

Mrs. Burke said the rebels became "furious" after central government planes raided Bafwasende. All the white hostages, who had been crammed for three days in a single room, were taken out on Nov. 28 to be shot, she said.

"They separated us and the nuns from the others," she said. Eight Dutch Catholic priests, her husband, a British family and an Australian and a British woman were in the other party.

They were never seen again.

Mrs. Burke said all the whites were arrested Nov. 24, the day Stanleyville was captured after Belgian paratroopers made their rescue drop.

Italian Sister Argia Tiberi, of the Suore Adoratrici Della Precolosissima Sangue (adorers of the most precious blood) told how the rebels tried to undress the nuns.

CLUNG TOGETHER

"We clung together in a mass," she said. "We told the Simbas (rebels) 'kill us rather than undress us.'"

"They tried to separate the nursing nuns from the teachers," she added. "The four nursing sisters said: 'Kill us all.'"

Sister Argia said the Simbas told them they wanted nurses to look after their sick and wounded.

"They beat us, they wounded us, they did anything they wanted," she said later.

Mrs. Burke said her group spent three weeks in a mud hut under arrest after her husband was taken away. One of her eyes had been blackened.

"I don't know why they did it," she said. "I don't know why they separated us from the others. I just don't know."

"The Lord chose to save us and take the others."

Save 34 Men After Vessel Cracks Seam

NEW YORK (AP)—The German freighter Mathilde Bolten steamed toward San Juan today carrying 34 survivors and four dead crew members from the stricken American merchant ship Smith Voyager, which cracked a seam in mid-Atlantic.

The captain, his third mate and another crew member remained aboard the Smith Voyager after the others took to lifeboats Sunday in rough seas, the U.S. coast guard said.

One man was unaccounted for among the crew of 42 on the 459-foot, 7,900-gross ton cargo ship. It was carrying 10,000 tons of grain from Freeport, the Bahamas, to Cuenta, Spanish Morocco.

The coast guard cutter Rockaway reached the Smith Voyager about 820 miles east southeast of Bermuda, shortly after 7 a.m. today.

Four of the survivors taken aboard the German ship were reported injured. Extent of the injuries was not learned. The Mathilde Bolten has no doctor aboard, the coast guard said.

It could not be established how the dead men had met their fate.

Britons Now Believe Wilson Plans Full Term for Govt. Despite a Slim Majority

LONDON (CP)—The big political question for Britons going into the new year is whether they will be plunged into their second general election in as many years.

Harold Wilson's new Labor government weathered a series of adversities with every sign of energetic confidence and some veterans of the political scene now swear the prime minister plans a full term—or near it—before going to the people.

But simple mathematics caused others to speculate whether Wilson, deeply resentful of the economic problems he inherited from the former Conservative government, may demand a new mandate in the hope of increasing his slim margin of power.

Labor obtained a majority, of only five in the 630-member House of Commons in the Oct. 15 general election. Five by-elections, resulting from appointment of MPs to the House of Lords, will be held early in 1965 in a so-called "little general election" that may provide a pointer.

In any case, political activity in Britain is to be high with the first Labor government in 13 years pledged to plow ahead with controversial measures in both the domestic and the international spheres.

These included public ownership of building land, educational reforms and renationalization of steel, although the timing of the steel action was open.

OPPOSE PLAN

Sir Alec Douglas-Home, the former premier and now opposition leader, was implacably against Wilson's plan to take Britain out of the independent nuclear deterrent business in exchange for greater nuclear consultation with Washington within the Atlantic alliance.

Sir Alec, premier for one year less a day, made this one of the great issues of the campaign and another was the modernization of Britain—the issue on which party was better able to do it.

The election became perhaps the most exciting cliff-hanger in British history and one feature, possibly significant for the future, was the nearly-trebled popular vote polled by the Liberals under Jo Grimond, 51.

But the Liberals elected only two additional members to the House and the final election standings were: Labor 317; Tory 303; Liberals 9. The Tories had held an edge of nearly 100 in the last Parliament.

Sir Alec, 61, received considerable credit for rallying the Tories whose fortunes had been at a low ebb when he took the leadership. His future, however, remains one of the big question marks for 1965. Three likely candidates for the succession have been given prominent roles by opposition — Reginald Maudling, 47, former chancellor of the exchequer; Edward Heath, 48, former trade minister; and Iain Macleod, 50, former House leader.

Wilson came to power with a pledge of a "first 100 days of dynamic action"—a phrase he now may wish he never uttered—and nearly one - quarter of those days fall in the new year.

BEYAARINEN

The 48-year-old Yorkshireman set the pattern for his administration from the first hours of his rule when he revamped the traditional shape of the cabinet to emphasize economic planning and technology in a "new Britain."

The government, however, fell immediately into a financial crisis that threatened the pound sterling because of a huge balance-of-payments deficit—a deficit between the money Britain earned from foreign trade compared with the money spent for imports.

Socialist emergency measures failed to halt the run on the pound and devaluation disaster loomed until Nov. 25, the 41st of Wilson's 100 days, when 11 countries including Canada stepped in and provided $3,000,000,000 to stabilize the pound.

Britain, haunted for months by economic worries, thus returned to a measure of stability before Wilson went to Washington and Ottawa for his first talks as premier with President Johnson and Prime Minister Pearson.

Medical Help May Put End to Fear of Childbirth

DEAR DORIS — I sympathize with these people who fear having a baby, as I am the same way. I am 34 years of age and have been married two years. We have no children yet, but would certainly like to have a baby some day. But this fear I have is the only thing stopping me right now.

DORIS CLARK

I notice you told one reader to talk it over with her doctor. Well, I moved from my home town some eight months ago and I don't have a family doctor. Most people when they hear of this fear just say "Oh, you're silly!" or something like that. Or "There is nothing to be afraid of." As far as I'm concerned this is absolutely no help at all.

I wonder if any of your other readers have any comments on this? — AFRAID.

* * *

DEAR AFRAID — It's true that you simply can't brush away a fear as you would remove dust from a coat. But couldn't you at least reach for a brush — in the form of a nearby family doctor? And is there a reader who would like to offer help?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — Just to settle an argument between my friend and myself, will you kindly answer this question: Is it legal for a 16-year-old girl, who has been working for four months and is self-supporting, to leave home without her parents' consent? — CURIOUS.

* * *

DEAR CURIOUS — Yes.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am a widow and this fall was to have married again. The wedding did not come off.

When I told our department manager she gave me a nice party, with gifts in silver and china from the staff. My oldest daughter's mother-in-law sent me a pretty pair of pillow slips.

What do I do about the gifts? Would it be right to put the cost of the silver and china in an envelope with a note of thanks saying I would like to keep the kind wishes of them still but that since there was no wedding I feel I should return the cost? And what about the mother-in-law gift? — GRATEFUL BUT WORRIED.

DEAR GRATEFUL — The etiquette is specific. You return the gifts. Visit the mother-in-law personally and explain things. Visit the department manager. In each case take the gifts with you.

The donors may urge you to keep them. Or they may take them back and get a refund. That's their business.

DEAR DORIS — I am 16 years old and in grade 12 and am going out with a boy who will be 21 quite soon. His crowd is older, in fact there are two married couples and an engaged couple in the crowd.

My Mum and Dad say that they are too old a crowd for me to go out with. They say I am missing something with not going out with teen-agers around my own age. — CONFUSED TEEN-AGER.

* * *

DEAR CONFUSED TEEN-AGER — And so you are. At the moment you are operating beyond your depth and risk being submerged. With other sixteeners you can really be in the swim on a level at which you can take care of yourself.

tract would widen the salary gap.

The workers won a contract giving an estimated 59-cents-an-hour increase over three years. All non-skilled workers get an immediate 11-cents-an-hour increase while the skilled trades receive 12 cents.

In addition, an incentive bonus, to all but the unskilled trades, will result. In still further increases for many workers; in some cases the total will be as much as 46 cents an hour. There is also a $15 settlement pay in lieu of retroactivity.

Improvement factors of 2.5 per cent and 2.8 per cent will be paid in the second and third year respectively as in the U.S. agreement. Non - skilled workers will receive seven cents and eight cents.

A major change in the pension plan saw the voluntary retirement age cut to 62 from 65. A reduced pension will be available at 55 and a full disability pension is provided at any age. A 30-year man at 62 will be entitled to a monthly pension of $253 instead of the old contract's $138 at 65.

An added improvement in the contract provides that if a widow of a GM employee is 50 or older at the time of the husband's death, she will receive $200 a month until 70 in addition to life insurance of from $6,000 to $9,000. Widows under 50 will be given $100 monthly for two years in addition to the insurance.

PENSIONS RISE

Workers retired prior to Nov. 1, 1963, will receive an increase in their monthly pensions amounting to $1.45 times their years of service. This means a pensioner with 30 years of service, will get an increase of $43.50 a month.

In addition, the company will pay the remaining half of his hospital - surgical - medical care and he would be eligible for the new provision of fully paid drug care. The drug plan becomes effective March 1, 1965.

Also entitled to the drug plan are workers who were separated from employment after 65 with insufficient services.

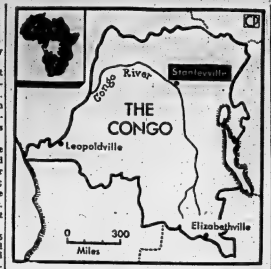
Workers and retired employees after age 65 will receive continued life insurance of $1,500 instead of $750.

Weekly sickness and accident insurance benefits were increased to a minimum of $60 and a maximum of $85, instead of $45 and $80. The maximum duration of benefits is increased from 26 weeks to 52.

"CHANGE VACATIONS"

In the paid vacation schedule an extra week was added. Employees will get two weeks for one to three years service, 2½ weeks for three to five years, three weeks for five to 10 years, 3. weeks for 10 to 15 years and four weeks after 15 years.

Two extra statutory holidays were added—Boxing Day and the remaining half of the day before Christmas and the day before New Years.



Maximum regular benefits in the supplemental unemployment benefit plan will be $50 plus $1.50 for each dependent (up to four). This replaces the dependency allowance.

The scheduled short work week benefit will be computed on the basis of 75 per cent of pay instead of 65.

An improved process for settling production standards disputes was agreed upon and includes the right of the international union to have a time study man in the plant. It also increases the information to which the committee man is entitled.

POPE GIVES GREETING

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI wished a merry Christmas to 15,000 persons in St. Peter's Square Sunday. Speaking from his studio window, the pontiff told the throng: "We wish all of you a merry Christmas. We will pray for children to be good, pure and healthy and that they shall have the fortune of knowing their divine brother.

AFRICAN HOT SPOT — The Congo, since becoming independent in 1960, has been a troubled area. Some 200 white people are still missing in the most recent kidnapping by rebels. The rebels massacred at least 25 whites.

Better Public Services Show No Sign of Letup

By JON NEEST

MOSCOW (CP)—A campaign for better public services which has been going on in the Soviet Union for some time shows no sign of letup.

The new regime led by Communist first secretary Leonid Brezhnev has indicated that it will press the campaign carried on with only limited success under Brezhnev's predecessor, Nikita Khrushchev.

"It is necessary that the people should have better and more efficient services," declared Brezhnev in his major Kremlin address on the eve of the anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

"It is necessary to change the very attitude towards public services and amenities and those working in them."

Not long before this the newspaper Verchernya Moskva — Evening Moscow — carried a couple of items that illustrated what Brezhnev was talking about.

A correspondent for the newspaper, investigating a reader's complaint, went to a telephone office in Moscow's Baumanski region and found 16 women sitting on the other side of the counter. Yet all the service windows were closed except one.

CUT SHORT

A brave man addresses one of the women, "Be so kind. . ." and is immediately cut off with the curt remark: "No information. Get in line."

Called on to explain, the office director attributed staff rudeness to bad nerves, brought on by a heavy work load.

Commented the newspaper sternly: "A customer should not suffer."

Investigating another complaint, about service facilities at Moscow railway stations, a reporter went to check at Kiev-sky station on the city's west side. Inside he found a variety of conveniences, giving "the feeling that you were waited for."

But outside there was no taxi service to nearby Kutuzovsky Prospect. Cab drivers simply could not be bothered taking people on such a short hop.

At Kursk station, there were "a lot of people but not so many lights. Difficult to find a cloak room, telephone . . . Newspaper stand and chemist were closed."

Commented Verchernya Moskva: "When you arrive in Moscow . . . you are excited, you feel like a holiday. A good thing—if this mood didn't leave our guests when they arrive."

WHITE CHRISTMAS SEEN

VANCOUVER (CP)—It's going to be a rare Christmas in Vancouver next Friday. The weather office predicted Sunday that Vancouver probably will have its first white Christmas in 13 years. A blanket of snow that grew as thick as 15 inches in some districts by Sunday will likely ensure that at least some snow is on the ground here by Christmas Day.

Canada's New, Modern Warship Commissioned

HALIFAX (CP) — The Canadian navy's newest and most modern warship, HMCS Annapolis, officially became a member of the fleet here Saturday at a colorful commissioning ceremony marked by traditional naval formalities.

The sleek 3,250-ton ship, whose keel was laid at Halifax Shipyards Limited in September, 1961, was launched in April, 1963. She was built at a cost of more than $35,000,000, and is the 20th destroyer escort built by Canadian yards for the navy since the Second, World War.

Federal Labor Minister Allan MacEachen, special speaker at the function, described the Annapolis as "the latest and one of the most advanced anti-submarine warships in the world."

The Annapolis, which will be based at Halifax, is the same ship of a new class of destroyer escorts which incorporate the latest equipment in anti - submarine warfare including a helicopter landing deck and hangar.

She is also equipped with variable depth sonar for tracking submarines through the ocean's thermal layers. These layers of water often make tracking a submarine with ordinary sonar equipment difficult.

Bitter

crisis that could perhaps plunge the nation into another general election.

OPENED QUIETLY

When the session opened last Feb. 18 there was a hint of the explosive path ahead. The House spent hours arguing aimlessly about unsavory raids on Quebec armories and the security steps the army took to prevent them.

The Creditistes raised a fuss over Air Canada's rejection of the French Carnavale Jetliner but got nowhere with it.

Other minor items dotted the spring calendar. The Conservatives and Liberals exchange insults again and again over which party had coddled Hal Banks, the deposed boss of the Seafarers' International Union (Ind.) who later skipped the country to avoid a five-year prison sentence.

When things got dull, the CBC often saved the day. There were wild and woolly scenes in the House over a controversial Easter TV play, The Open Grave, and a film documentary about Prime Minister Pearson that the CBC had decided not to use.

A historic debate on March 13 approved sending Canadian troops to Cyprus on a UN peacekeeping mission. That same night brought the sudden death of Revenue Minister Jack Garland.

Finance Minister Gordon unveiled his budget March 16 but it had no major tax changes.

TEMPO STEPS UP

Suddenly, without warning, the political infighting stiffened and the tone of the session was set when opposition members dragged out an estimates debate and wiped out a planned Easter recess.

Then came the flag issue and seven long months of turmoil, broken by occasional spurts of action on other legislation.

Somehow these major items managed to get through the mills:

1. A bill setting up 10 independent commissions that will reshape federal ridings in each province in line with the decennial census. This removes the task from politics, ending 50 years of wrangling over redistribution.

2. Student loans legislation, guaranteeing interest-free bank loans of up to $1,000 a year for five years to needy students.

3. Youth allowances, a $10 monthly payment to youngsters aged 16 and 17 who remain at school. This is to discourage dropouts.

4. Approval of the Columbia River power development treaty with the U.S.

5. Establishment of a 12-mile fishing limit, formerly three miles, to protect inland fisheries from foreign fleets.

Some items didn't make it and will be wiped out when this session finally ends, probably returning in the next session after amendments. Among them: The railway bill to modernize railway legislation and the federal labor code with its $1.25 an hour minimum wage provision.

The flag hassle started May 26 when Mr. Pearson unveiled the original government proposal. It was for three red maple leaves on a white ground with a blue bar at each side.

Debate opened June 13.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker immediately served notice that his party would fight for retention of the Red Ensign. A filibuster, made possible by Conservative amendments and sub-amendments to the flag motion, developed.

The debate, an on-and-off affair, went for 22 sitting days before the government agreed to an opposition plan that put the flag question before a 15-member special committee representing all parties.

Before that happened, the government had announced a "free vote" on the flag. NDP Leader Douglas had called for a single red leaf design and—on Aug. 4—milk carton filled with cow's blood was thrown from a side gallery and splashed across the Commons floor. The incident turned out to have nothing to do with the flag controversy.

The flag committee reported back on Oct. 29, recommending one red maple leaf on a white ground with a red panel at each side.

Mr. Diefenbaker rejected it.

The debate was renewed.

After 10 days the government served notice of closure to force a vote on the issue and on Dec. 15 at 2:13 a.m. EST the Commons voted 163 to 78 for the committee's design.

Three days later, the Senate concurred.

A companion resolution recognizing the Union Jack as the symbol of Canada's allegiance to Queen and Commonwealth also won the support of both Houses.

The final Commons statistics on the maple leaf flag debate: 33 days, 279 speeches. The Conservatives made 185 speeches.

At the windup, members on both sides of the House rose to sing O Canada and God Save the Queen. Spectators in galleries joined in the singing, swept up by the wave of emotion.

Thus a flag was born. But another flag had also died and some were openly bitter about it.

The flag was the emotional highlight of the year.

But for sheer shock nothing in recent times has equalled the Nov. 23 speech by Erik Nielsen, Conservative MP for the Yukon, who made detailed accusations of bribery and coercion involving two executive assistants to ministers.

OFFER $28,000 BRIBE

Mr. Nielsen said a Montreal lawyer was offered $20,000 by Raymond Denis, then assistant to Immigration Minister Tremblay, if he would drop opposition to bail in the case of Lucien Rivard, being held for extradition to the U.S. in a narcotics case linked to the Mafia.

The MP went on to charge that Guy Lord, executive to Justice Minister Favreau had later put pressure on the lawyer to get Rivard out on bail. But he added that Mr. Lord was an innocent dupe in the case.

Next day, Guy Rouleau, Liberal for Montreal Dollard, resigned as parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson. Mr. Rouleau said he had been involved in the investigation of the Rivard incident by the RCMP.

Debate on this issue went all week. The government launched a judicial inquiry, broadened to meet opposition demands.

The inquiry report will come in a few months.

He Causes Consternation, But---

Who Would Replace de Gaulle?

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP)—On his halfbig march toward unity, Western Europe enters a crucial testing period in 1965, still dominated by the towering figure of Charles de Gaulle.

At 74, his eyesight dimmed and his health in question, the French leader who seeks to shape Europe under the influence of Paris rather than Washington must decide whether to stand for re-election as president or withdraw from the transatlantic power struggle.

During 1964 the haughty general continued to assert himself, much to the consternation of the United States.

He boldly recognized Communist China, though the American had pleaded with him not to do so.

He toured South America as the Americans trembled lest he cause some new political eruption in a region where U.S. policy-makers have long felt their own influence should predominate.

He continued to bar the door against Britain's admission to the European Common Market.

He forced West Germany to lower its grain prices, threatening otherwise to wreck the trade block that is to be the foundation of his grand design for European unity.

And he shook the Western alliance with a variety of threats about what he would do unless the U.S. backed away from its proposed, German - supported multilateral nuclear force, a device he regarded as a challenge to the leadership of Paris.

But if de Gaulle's actions were the cause of anxiety in NATO, his allies are also anxious about what might happen should he decide to retire.

Could France get along without de Gaulle? Probably not without difficulty. For even his critics agree that a France torn by inner dissension—the pre-de Gaulle France—would shake the pillars of European co-operation and unity.

Also significant to the Continent's future will be the outcome of German elections next September—the fight between the rather conservative chancellor, Ludwig Erhard, and Socialist Willy Brandt, Berlin's famous mayor.

The vote might indicate whether, as some reputable commentators suggest, Europe is moving deeper into socialism, with the British election as the signpost.

Erhard showed in 1964 that he was no disciple of his aged predecessor, Konrad Adenauer, who had sealed a special bond of Franco-German friendship.

While de Gaulle stormed that he was being encircled by his allies, Erhard looked to Washington instead of Paris for nuclear leadership. Friction heated to the point where the 88-year-old Adenauer had to step in to reassure de Gaulle of Bonn's affections.

The British Labor government of Harold Wilson is no lover of de Gaulle. But it's also still suspicious of the Germans who have instigated two world wars in half a century.

Wilson thus tended to side with de Gaulle against the multilateral nuclear force as originally conceived, mainly because he didn't want to see too many German fingers on the Allied nuclear trigger.

Britain itself was in hot water with its own European friends, members of the so-called Outer Seven trading group, who screamed when London suddenly imposed an extra 15-per-cent tariff to stop a hemorrhage in gold reserves.

Beneath all the friction, however, there was some progress in 1964. The West Berlin wall might become a major political issue during the 1965 German election campaign, but with the Communists agreeing to open the wall to more frequent visits, the Berlin crisis seems to be receding.

Within the Western alliance, and particularly the European Economic Community, there was more frequent talk of political unity. The Common Market gained strength, mixed with a little inflation. And the West was still strong enough to mass billions of dollars at a moment's notice to come to Britain's aid when threatened by an exchange crisis.

1964 -- a Lull in Relations With U. S.

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—United States relations with Canada in 1964 were marked by one major accomplishment and—happily in Washington's eyes—little of the political or labor discord of a year earlier.

The main event was a successful conclusion at long last to the Columbia River hydro and flood-control agreement.

Two economic developments, both with ramifications for 1965, were partial Canadian exemption from a U.S. tax imposed on foreign stock and bond issues and efforts to find an alternative to Canada's tariff-incentive scheme for expanding its auto industry.

Generally, 1964 shaped up as a lull, shaded by pressing domestic concerns on both sides of the border, including the U.S. presidential election campaign.

A fuller agenda for 1965 was indicated, aside from the heavy flow of day - to - day contacts on innumerable matters. But again, U.S. officials remained conscious of the minority status of the Liberal government at Ottawa and the possibility of another election, in Canada this time.

One factor influencing general relations with Canada in 1963 was the election of President Johnson in his own right by a thumping margin.

On the record of his interim stewardship after the Kennedy assassination, Johnson lacks the general knowledge about his northern neighbor that New England's Kennedy had.

TWO MEETINGS

But he met Prime Minister Pearson twice, last January and again in September at the final Columbia ceremonies, and has given no cause to fear any cooling in relations or contact.

These were some of the events of 1964 spilling over into 1965:

1. Canadian borrowings in American money markets, rising after tax exemption was granted on new Canadian issues, remained under close scrutiny. Too steep a rise would imperil the exemption as a hazard to the U.S. balance-of-payments troubles.

2. The U.S. indicated it could not accept special Canadian tariff incentives to auto-industry firms who matched imports—chiefly from the U.S.—with an equal value of exports, again largely to the U.S. But the U.S. was well aware that in seeking an alternative, it was protecting the $6,000,000,000 worth of autos and parts sold to Canada annually as part of its large trade surplus with Canada.

3. Plans were laid for a big push in Congress for approval of the Passamaquoddy tidal-power project in the Bay of Fundy, preceding negotiation with Canada and New Brunswick.

4. U.S. officials fingers crossed, hoped the Great Lakes labor truce of 1964 would continue after a rough 1963.

JET FIGHTER TOPIC

In North American defence, fresh production-sharing discussions were taking place, chiefly around the jet fighter Canada needs to buy. The nuclear-arms explosion of early 1963 had burned out with Canadian acquisition of warheads for Bomarc missiles and other weapons.

6. Canadian crude oil sales remained under fire from independent American producers attacking the whole import program, but there was no evidence that the administration planned any drastic change.

7. Still hanging fire, although perhaps destined for more 1965 activity, was the Canadian proposal to work out the framework for North American energy pooling; American sources said tactfully they awaited Canadian suggestions.

8. Internationally, the U.S. remained well aware of continuing Canadian trade with Cuba, mainland China and other Communist - bloc nations. It was aware too of continuing Canadian indications that it favors admission of China to the United Nations, particularly with the explosion of its first nuclear device.

New Book
Canadian Officer Led "Small, Brave Episode"

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—On a grey October dawn in 1942 Capt. Graeme (Gay) Black of Erindale, Ont., and Toronto was shot in the back of the neck by Gestapo officers at Camp Sachsenhausen near Berlin.

This was the abrupt and brutal climax to a small brave episode of the Second World War that has been pieced together after 20 years of difficult research by Canadian journalist Stephen Schofield.

Black was the leader of a 12-man commando force — nine Britons, two Norwegians and himself—that left Britain in a Free French submarine to attack the Glomfjord power station in Norway. The raid—codenamed Operation Musketoon — was a brilliant success.

The commandos landed by dinghy, surmounted a glacier and blew up the power station's generators, turbines and pipelines. They also deprived the Germans of an important aluminum factory.

Four of the commandos escaped into neutral Sweden but only two of them survived the war. One was killed and the other seven, including Black, were captured.

After spending some time in Oflag IV-C at Colditz, Black, 33, and the six other commandos were taken to Sachsenhausen and shot under Hitler's commando order. The fuehrer was furious with the success of this and other British commando raids.

Schofield, 49, who now lives in Surrey, England, has written the first detailed account of the operation. His book, called Musketoon, is selling well in England and will soon be published in Canada.

He picked up the threads of the story after talking to Col. Jack Churchill, former head of No. 2 Commando from which the Musketoon men were chosen.

"Col. Churchill gave me some leads but I soon found facts about the operation were hard to come by," Schofield said in an interview.

"One of the difficulties is that the only two commandos who survived the raid and the war don't know what happened because they were widely separated on a pitch dark night."

Part of Schofield's trouble was that nationalities were involved in the actual raid—Canadians, Britons, Norwegians, French and Germans—and before he could get all the facts he also needed help from Americans, Germans, Swiss, Dutch and Australians.

"I could write another book almost on the research that went into Musketoon," he said. "In the end people pretty well wrote the story and I just put it together."

Schofield first tried the British War Office but was denied access to their records. He then appealed directly to Earl Mountbatten of Burma, former chief of combined operations, with a letter of introduction from one of his old newspaper bosses—Michael Wardell, publisher of the Fredericton Gleaner.

"Mountbatten had the doors opened for me but I found there was very little there for me to work on."

Another big problem was getting German background on the raid. Norwegian, British and American officials couldn't tell him what German units were operating in the Glomfjord area at the time.

Finally he tried a Canadian source in Ottawa and got the answer back by return mail. Next came a trip to Germany and interviews with German veterans of the episode.

In a foreword to the book Col. Churchill writes: "Here a commando force and its German opponents provided more drama and desperate action than was found on many a hard-fought larger battlefield."

Schofield, who has been living in England since 1960, was born in London, Ont., and educated at McGill University. He has worked on newspapers in Sherbrooke, Que., Timmins, Ont., and Fredericton.

He is currently tackling a second book, another true and little known story about a British woman spy who landed in occupied Europe during the war.

diplomats about negotiations that Secretary General U Thant is carrying on to clear up the issue.

Some expected he would succeed before the holiday recess planned for Wednesday. Others predicted there would be no settlement now and the General Assembly would recess till Feb. 8 or 15 to give Thant time for further negotiations.

UN charter Article 19 says any member two years behind in its assessments "shall have no vote" in the assembly. France will reach that point Jan. 1.

REFUSES TO PAY

The Soviet Union refuses to pay the assembly's assessments for financing The Congo and Middle East peace - keeping operations on grounds that only the Security Council is empowered to organize and finance such operations.

Because of such non - payments, the Soviet Union and seven other Communist countries were already more than two years behind when the assembly convened Dec. 1.

To avoid the issue of whether the delinquents should vote, the assembly agreed to take all necessary actions temporarily on a no-objection basis, without voting.

While the Russians refuse to pay the peace-keeping assessments, they are willing to join other countries in making voluntary contributions to clear up the deficit caused by non-payment of those assessments, provided that purpose is not spelled out.

However, the Russians insist that if they make one voluntary contribution, their Congo and Middle East debts shall be wiped off the UN books—something the Americans do not accept.

IS ONE REASON

That is one reason the Russians object to a resolution that the assembly president, Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana, is promoting to settle the matter.

The peace-keeping issue was one of a number discussed here Saturday by U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

But a U.S. spokesman said the discussion had been "inconclusive." Gromyko asked whether any progress had been made, replied: "I would not go so far."

U.S. sources said the two also discussed disarmament, Germany, and Southeast Asia but that "no decisions were reached and no arrangements were made for further bilateral talks.

No Guarantee To End Scandals Says Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Government House Leader George McIlraith said Sunday night the government cannot guarantee an end to scandals but will take appropriate action to deal with any wrongdoing.

Mr. McIlraith said in a television interview that rumor-mongering was mainly responsible for concern about recent charges of scandal in high places in the government.

The minister appeared on the CBC's This Hour has Seven Days to answer questions about alleged bribery attempts and coercion by ministerial aides and the easy credit terms given two cabinet ministers by a Montreal furniture store now bankrupt.

Mr. McIlraith said he did not regard it as inconceivable that Prime Minister Pearson should have forgotten late in November a conversation with Justice Minister Favreau early in September in which Mr. Pearson was told that the RCMP was investigating a complaint.

The complaint was that a minister's executive assistant attempted to bribe a lawyer seeking to have Lucien Rivard extradited to the United States to face a narcotics charge.

As soon as the complaint was made, the aide was sent on leave and the case investigated Mr. McIlraith said. When the case became public, Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of the Quebec Superior Court was appointed to investigate it.

On the furniture purchases, Mr. McIlraith said he could not understand public concern about Citizenship Minister Trembiay when Mr. Trembiay had paid his bill six days after receiving it.

Mr. McIlraith was asked whether he could guarantee that "all this is at an end."

"No, I cannot give that guarantee." Mr. McIlraith said. "But there is a definite responsibility on the government to take all appropriate action when there is any report of wrongdoing."

Thatcher's Political Pot Boiling

By RON MacDONALD

REGINA (CP) — A government pledged to become the greatest friend of private enterprise in North America rules this birthplace of the continent's first socialist administration.

The dramatic change, made last spring in a general election, has kept the political pot boiling in Saskatchewan.

The new Liberal government under Premier Ross Thatcher lost no time in launching an economy drive and other moves in harmony with its election platform after 20 years of socialist CCF government.

The Liberals quickly became embroiled in a controversy involving civil servants and employees of crown corporations—people hired during the CCF era. Other clashes followed between the two major parties.

With the opening of the new legislature—and the unveiling of the government's first legislative program — scheduled for early 1965, the final outcome of the April 22 election has not yet been settled.

The Liberals won 40.4 per cent of the popular vote and the CCF picked up 40.3, the closest result in Saskatchewan history.

On election night the Liberals won 28 to the CCF 25 and the Progressive Conservatives one.

But the battle continued in the courts and a byelection as candidates fought to have water-thin defeats invalidated became of alleged irregularities

SEAT RULED VACANT

The first test of political strength since the upset vote of April was in Hanley riding. The seat was declared vacant after both the Liberals and the CCF made representations under the Controverted Elections Act.

Herb Pinder of Saskatoon won the seat by 30 votes in the official count and was appointed minister of industry but a judicial recount gave it to former CCF attorney - general R. A. Walker by two votes. Mr. Walker won the byelection with a margin of more than 800 over Mr. Pinder.

As premier, Mr. Thatcher set out to attract major private industries to Saskatchewan with a round of out-of-province trips and new regulations governing mining, oil and natural gas operations.

He said he would cut taxes at the spring session of the legislature by about $12,000,000 after streamlining government operations and cutting costs with the help of a commission on government efficiency.

The government clashed with the 25,000 - member Saskatchewan Federation of Labor (CLC) over dismissal of the deputy labor minister and members of the labor relations board. The federation was up in arms over a government proposal to limit checkoff of union dues for political purposes.

Woodrow Lloyd, 51-year-old former school teacher who became CCF premier in 1961, charged the Liberals were harassing some civil servants because they were not Liberal adherents.

He said civil servants were being denied political freedom.

Liberal cabine ministers said resignations an. dismissals also took place after the CCF came to power in 1944.

The government, concerned with the costs of the compulsory provincial medical care and hospital insurance plans, restored personal premiums to the level prevailing before they were reduced in 1963 by the former CCF government, which had pioneered both plans.

Mr. Thatcher mapped plans for increased farm credit and repeal of some "compulsive" laws such as those requiring auto owners to purchase vehicle insurance from the Crown-owned Saskatchewan Government Insurance Office.

U.S. Must Soon Decide Whether to Offer India Guarantee Against China

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. policy-makers soon must face up to the question of whether the United States should offer some non-nuclear countries — notably India and Japan — scientific protective guarantees against China's developing nuclear power.

The problem, officials say, is primarily one for President Johnson's committee on nonproliferation of nuclear weapons, headed by Roswell Gilpatric, former deputy defence secretary.

A major objective of any guarantee system would be to make it unnecessary for India, Japan or any other country which came under the U.S. nuclear umbrella to build its own nuclear force.

The Johnson administration already has given assurances both public and private to the governments in New Delhi and Tokyo that the question as to whether some more permanent kind of nuclear shield should be provided.

The problem of how to provide assurances to India and Japan is posed within the U.S. government immediately after the Chinese tested their first A-bomb last October.

The initial move was to give assurances through diplomatic channels and to do so in explicit public statement. The statement was contained in President Johnson gave in the latter part of October.

It stated that do not seek national nuclear weapons," the president said, "can be sure that if they do not seek such support against some threat of nuclear blackmail, then they will not get it."

Such a presidential declaration, while a firm statement of policy, does not have the permanent binding effect of a formal treaty. But the negotiation of the terms of the treaty brings up a variety of complicated problems, including the question of defence commitments, their acceptability of foreign governments and their acceptability to the U.S. Senate.

In the case of Japan, the U.S. already has an extensive security commitment in treaty form. There is none in the case of India, although the United States, Britain went to India's assistance with arms when China invaded India's northeastern territories two years ago.

Pending a thorough study of the problem, administration authorities appear cool to British, France and Russia join in giving non-nuclear countries what British Prime Minister Harold Wilson Healey calls a "solemn and effective guarantee" against nuclear attack or blackmail.

SAID IMPRACTICAL

At the moment, a joint guarantee by the Soviet Union is regarded here as probably impractical.

Diplomats say such a guarantee was first suggested to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru by Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri who met with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin a week ago.

The complicated issues involved in any kind of new guarantee system are understood to have been discussed when Johnson and U.S. officials met with Wilson and his top advisers both policy matters in London and U.S. policy-makers here two weeks ago.

The situation apparently creates a trying dilemma for the Wilson government. The difficulty arises from the fact that Wilson went into office in October with a pledge to get rid of Britain's own nuclear force.

His effort to fulfil that promise has taken the form of a proposal to turn British nuclear weapons over to NATO, subject to the condition that NATO be reorganized and given a new nuclear command in which Britain would play a major role.

MANY COMMITMENTS

Such a solution, however, would obviously leave the British without the capacity to function as a nuclear power outside the NATO area. Yet they have many commitments, particularly in the middle east and far east, ranging from Aden on the Arabian Peninsula to Arabia and Hong Kong.

A radical new element was introduced into the Asian and Far Eastern power balance in October—about the time the Labor Party took power in Britain—by China's test explosion.

U.C. Minister Will Appeal to Have Fees Paid

CHATHAM (CP)—Rev. Russell D. Horsburgh, United Church minister awaiting an appeal of his conviction on five counts of contributing to juvenile delinquency says he will go to higher church courts if necessary to get his former Park Street Church to pay his legal fees.

Mr. Horsburgh said Sunday he will outline his appeal in a letter today to Rev. Charles Plaskett, interim moderator of Park Street United Church.

Mr. Horsburgh was sentenced last month to one year in jail on each of five charges of contributing to juvenile delinquency, with sentences to run concurrently.

His church in July agreed to pay his legal fees. This month it passed a motion to discontinue the payment.

EXPLAINS CONCERN

"The concern expressed is based on the fact that the resolution of the Board of Decembe 1, 1964 (reversing the earlier decision) does not rescind the motion to pay the legal fees," he acknowledges that motion and resolves to take no action." Mr. Horsburgh said.

He said he will ask Mr. Plaskett to urge the official board either to rescind the July 1 official board motion or pay the fees.

"If the motion is rescinded, I can take this matter to the higher courts of the church where it can be settled on an ethical basis," he said.

He added that he is confident that a fair and equitable solution can be found.

25 Deaths Attributed to Violent Storms

CHICAGO (AP)—Fresh snow, rain and freezing temperatures stung the northeastern and northwestern United States as winter made its official debut today.

At least 25 deaths were attributed to violent storms that followed a coast-to-coast cold wave.

With eight inches of new snow today, portions of the Montana-North Dakota area were still digging out from the storms in an effort to save thousands of stranded cattle and sheep.

Hundreds of head of cattle suffocated as ice formed on their nostrils and mouths. North Dakota Governor William Guy called a meeting with civil defence, Na tional Guard and highway department officials to determine what can be done to help the snowed-in ranchers.

ARE DISASTER AREAS

Some portions of the state were declared disaster areas.

The air force planned to airlift 65 tons of hay to stranded cattle and sheep.

The state's 2,690,000 head of cattle outnumber the 700,000 human population almost four to one.

The agricultural stabilization and conservation service estimates that freezing weather and lack of forage caused the loss of 25,000 cattle and 75,000 sheep valued at $3,400,000.

NAB ESCAPEES

SUDBURY (CP) — Two men who escaped from Burwash Industrial Farm here Friday while they were on their way to Bible classes at the farm chapel were apprehended Saturday in Coniston, six miles east of here. Walter Tourville, 37, of Kenora, Ont., and Gene Larry Morgan, 20, of Orangeville, Ont., were arrested by Coniston police.

BEACHED BY SEAWAY FREEZE-UP — Lin Hu, deckhand on the Nationalist Chinese ship Vanfu, is lost in thoughts of his homeland as he gazes at the barren and frigid Toronto waterfront. His ship is one of three foreign vessels which have to remain in Toronto over the winter because they missed the St. Lawrence Seaway's closing deadline earlier this month. Almost all the crew of Vanfu will be transported to another ship at Halifax for flown to Formosa. The remainder face a cold winter in an unfamiliar city. (CP Photo)

Blood Samples Will Be Sent To Toronto

KINGSTON (CP)—Police decided Sunday to send samples of blood taken from the body of a seaman to the attorney-general's crime laboratory in Toronto before making a statement on how he died.

The body of James Edward Thomas, 46, of St. Catharines, was discovered Saturday by Ernest Barlow, a shipkeeper, tucked beneath the side rail of a ship in harbor here. A postmortem was conducted Sunday at the Cox funeral home.

There was a gash on the back of his head. About 20 feet from his body was a blood-stained wire.

Police said they found glasses, a wallet containing a cheque for one month's work and a hat. All were found Dec. 15 outside Thomas' cabin on the Coalfax, a coal-carrying vessel, on which Thomas worked as a second cook.

Police said his body was found on the vessel Keyabey, which is moored beside the Coalfax.

Thomas was paid off Dec. 9 when the Coalfax tied up. He was last seen Dec. 14.

Snap Election May Be Called By Wilson

LONDON (Reuters) — The continuing British economic crisis sparked fresh speculation here Sunday on the prospects of a new general election, possibly in February or March.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson was believed to be considering an early call to the electorate for a stronger mandate for his policies.

Wilson's Labor Party won the Oct. 15 general election with an edge of only four seat s in the 630-seat House of Commons.

Government sources said Wilson is still thinking in terms of at least a three-year term in office.

But political observers said Wilson's hand may be forced in order to end business and investment uncertainty which would damage the administration's economic planning.

The government at present has a 10-per-cent lead over Sir Alec Douglas Home's Conservative opposition party in electoral favor, according to the latest public opinion polls.

If this big lead is still recorded in the spring, and is confirmed in a "little general election" due next month, some observers believe Wilson may seize his chance of going to the country with a prospect of his biggest to his majority.

Six House of Commons seats, four Conservative and two government-held, are at present vacant, five because of peerages and one caused by a death.

24 of U.S. Navy's Attack Carriers Too Big to Use The Existing Panama Canal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The vital importance of the Panama Canal was underlined Sunday in connection with the proposal for building a new sea-level waterway across Panama or by adjacent areas to replace the 50-year-old, lock-bound Panama Canal.

A U.S. Navy spokesman said 24 of the navy's attack carriers cannot get through the existing canal but added that "it can hardly be said that the true strategic importance of the canal is less today than it has been in the past."

He noted that modern nuclear submarines, the new missile cruisers and frigates and anti-submarine warfare vessels, which include rebuilt carriers, can transit the canal.

A sea-level route, with wide channel and no locks, would open the transit-limits rule to all U.S., naval craft and cut hours off the time for transiting it, canal.

"The demonstrated value of the Panama Canal in military operations during World War Two and the Korean emergency reinforces the defense forces of this nation in peace and war," the spokesman said.

Another defence official said he believes the primary military reason for building the sea-level canal is that it would not have the vulnerability of the present canal to sabotage.

An essential component of the canal is Gatun Lake which stands between the locks and the Atlantic and Pacific ends. That lake, 82 feet above sea level, is created by a multiple earthdam impounding the waters of several rivers and small streams.

An ordinary conventional explosion, not a nuclear blast, is all it takes to be selected to sabotage the whole canal system. The official said it would take two years to refill the lake to navigable level if the dam were destroyed.

HAVANA (Reuters) — El Mundo Sunday termed President Johnson's statement on building a new inter-ocean canal "a trick, a bloody hoax" aimed at forcing Panama to negotiate under pressure.

In the first Cuban comment on the news, which was reported briefly in the government-controlled press, El Mundo said:

"The U.S. president . . . is threatening Panama. He wants to force her to negotiate under pressure, wants to impose on her in disguise the same formulas of the old treaty against which the Panamanian people have risen more than once."

Stelco Workers To Vote on New Contract Terms

HAMILTON (CP) —Workers at the Steel Company of Canada Limited here will vote within the next 10 days on new contract terms disputed Sunday night by union officials.

About 5,000 members of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) were told that if they turn down the new offer in a plant-gate vote, a strike deadline will be set for Jan. 15.

The remaining 5,000 employees of the company's Hilton works will meet to discuss the contract today.

William Mahoney, the union's nationa l director, and Larry Sefton, District 6 director, were booed at the general membership meeting as they recommended that the latest terms be approved. John Morgan, Local 1005's president, urged members to reject the proposal.

The offer, accepted by the union bargaining committee Sunday, was described as in excess of a previous proposal rejected when negotiations broke down in Toronto Friday night. Talks began seven months ago.

OFFERS PACKAGE

The company said it had offered Friday a 40-cent hourly wage and benefit package over a two-year period. One change in the new terms was the inclusion of a fifth week of vacation after 30 years' service. Other terms were not disclosed.

A settlement at the Hamilton works is expected to set the pattern for contracts at Stelco's fabricating plants in Toronto, Brantford, Hamilton, Gananoque, Ont., and Montreal.

Stelco said its offer Friday was for a 10-cent hourly wage increase retroactive to Aug. 1 with a further raise of from five to 10 cents an hour Aug. 1, 1965 The present base rate is $2.05.

It said sickness and accident payments would be extended to 26 weeks from 26 weeks and the amount increased to $55 from $50.

Workers would receive two weeks' holiday with pay after one year's service, three weeks after 10 years and four weeks after 20 years, the company said. An extra week's vacation would go to employees aged 60, rising to six more weeks at retirement age of 65.

The amount deductible in the present major medical plan would be lowered to $25 from $50 for an individual and $75 fo a family.

Premiums for afternoon and night shifts would be increased by two cents an hour to nine and 11 cents respectively, said the company. The premium for Sunday work would be raised to 125 cents an hour from 15 cents.

U.S. Policy Caused Germany To Fight Longer -- Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower says he believes the "unconditional surrender" policy in the Second World War was a mistake and that it caused the Germans to fight longer.

Eisenhower, supreme commander of the forces fighting the Germans and later the 34th U.S. president, gave these views during an interview with the Washington Post.

The main thing wrong with President Franklin D. Roosevelt's slogan, Eisenhower said, was that it seemed to be directed at people instead of at the warlords who led them.

"Germany was defeated after the Battle of the Bulge," he said. "By Jan. 16, 1945, it was all over, and anyone with sense knew it was over.

"But then there was this statement that President Roosevelt made about unconditional surrender in 1943. This certainly had some influence. The whole spring campaign should have been abandoned."

Eisenhower said Adolph Hitler "used something from the past to get our own leader and persuaded the Germans to fight longer than they might have."

"I have always believed that the war should have ended 60 or 90 days before it did," he said.

Eisenhower emphasized, however, that his views were speculative and that he had no proof.

Why did Eisenhower delay so long before expressing a judgment about the slogan?

"Nobody ever asked me," he replied.

Two Gunmen Get $6,000 in Oshawa Robbery

OSHAWA (CP)—Two hooded gunmen escaped with $6,000 Saturday in a daylight robbery. Police said the men, with nylon stockings pulled over small caps and wearing topcoats and eyebrow makeup, walked into the cash-and-carry division of National Grocers Company Limited, one hour after closing.

They flipped a telephone from the wall and escaped in division manager Ewart Carswell's car, after ordering him to put the money in a paper bag.

WORKS FLAT OUT

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Elizabeth Agg, a housewife here whose spinal operation has confined her to a body cast for seven months, has learned to manage her home and her family from her bed. She cooks the family meals on a bedside hotplate, and manages to operate her sewing machine by lying on her stomach.

Shastri Seeking Protective Atomic Umbrella to Counter Chinese Nuclear Arming

NEW DELHI (AP)—Worried by China's nuclear arming, Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri is trying to slip India beneath somebody's protective nuclear umbrella.

In vague pronouncements here and abroad, Shastri has proposed that the United States and the Soviet Union provide nuclear protection for nations without atomic armories.

Few in New Delhi, even in Shastri's government, expect Moscow and Washington to leap at the idea of publicly committing themselves to nuclear war in defence of India.

Although President Johnson has told Asians nations of his readiness to help them repel any Chinese attack, not many in this capital expect Washington to rattle nuclear rockets on India's behalf.

Shastri makes it clear that India, even in return for nuclear protection, would not sacrifice its non - aligned foreign policy and would not commit itself to any military pact.

CRITICIZE METHODS

The vagueness of Shastri's proposals and the generally disappointing reception turned critical eyes within India to the prime minister and the way he does things.

After six months in office, he is coming under increasingly heavy criticism, often on grounds he makes decisions on policy as he goes along and doesn't bother to inform even the inner circle of aides of some moves.

For Shastri, however, the nuclear move may be politically sound.

Pressure is being brought on him by opposition parties, countries and by members of his own Congress party who want India to match China in the nuclear race.

Shastri sees this as economically unsound because it would detract money and effort from India's No. 1 problem, feeding its 480,000,000 people. Also, he fears the spread of nuclear arsenals would increase danger of war.

His proposals to the nuclear powers, vague as they are, force his political foes at least for at least to stop talking for a while to think over his new ideas.

In Indian politics, that can be a victory for Shastri.

President in Perfect Health Says Doctor

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson approaches his inauguration in excellent health and with a good chance of weathering the next four strenuous and demanding years, says one of his personal physicians.

"I'vsee is no health reason why he should not continue an active, vigorous life for many years," Dr. James W. Cain said in a weekend telephone interview. Cain, with the Mayo Clinic of Rochester, Minn., said he examined Johnson in the White House within the last two weeks.

The 56-year-old president not only shows no adverse effects from the recent vigorous political campaign, but also "I think he's in better—health than I've seen him in years," Cain said.

The campaign ended with Johnson's election Nov. 3 for a five-year term. He will be inaugurated as president next month.

Cain is one of several physicians who periodically see the president in addition to Rear Admiral George C. Burkley, personal physician to Johnson who has been president under 1955:

"I see no reason why he should not stand it (the job) very well. His job is very demanding—physically and mentally—but I see no reason why it should be any more dangerous (to health) in his case than in that of anyone else, because his health is excellent. . . .

"His heart is in very, very well. All signs of the old heart attack are gone."

American Ear Specialist Asked To Cancel Visit

PEKING (Reuters) — An American ear specialist who had been invited here next winter to demonstrate his pioneering surgical methods has been asked to cancel his trip, it was announced Sunday.

The New China news agency said the Chinese Communist Medical Association had cabled the surgeon, Dr. Samuel Rosen of New York, asking him to cancel the trip "for the time being."

The association said the request was made "in order that science and friendship may not be contaminated by the U.S. government's hostile policy toward China."

Dr. Rosen, whose operation to cure otosclerosis has restored the hearing of thousands of deaf persons, received permission by the U.S. government last week to make the trip.

The New China news agency said state department officials had made "a big fanfare" over the validation of Dr. Rosen's passport, while not changing the normal ban on American visits to China, saying the trip was "in the national interest."

Charge Youth Had Explosives

TORONTO (CP)—Donald G. Smith, 19, was charged Sunday with two counts of possessing explosives in connection with the Dec. 7 bombing of the home of Lloyd Dickinson, defeated mayoralty candidate in suburban Leaside, and an explosion Dec. 17 which damaged an outdoor skating rink.

Queen Protests Invasion of Her Privacy

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth has complained to the Press Council about attempts by press photographers to intrude upon the privacy of herself and her sister, Princess Margaret, the council said Sunday.

The council, a watchdog on British newspaper ethics, examined two complaints, condemning the actions of one photographer and strongly censuring another.

The council said: "Her majesty the Queen has drawn the attention of the Press Council to attempts by individual press photographers to intrude upon the private lives of herself and the Princess Margaret. These culminated in the publication of photographs in The Sunday Express and The People."

The Sunday Express pictures were two of Princess Anne helping the Princess to don a water-ski suit over her riding suit, a third showing Princess Margaret dressed for water skiing with the Queen standing on the ground near her and a fourth, a full-length picture of the Princess with a broom sweeping a wharf.

Pictures in the other Sunday paper, The People, were confined to Princess Margaret, showing her in the water, in a swim suit with rubber top for water skiing and dressed, barefoot, carrying her wet bathing suit.

A letter from the Queen's press secretary a Daily Express photographer, Robert Haswell, and a freelance photographer, a Mr. Willmot, were discovered lying in the undergrowth in Sunning Hall Park with their cameras trained on a hut where Princess Margaret was changing her clothes to go water-skiing.

The palace officials's letter said that Haswell and Willmot were escorted from the private property and prevented from taking any further pictures

The council said Robert Edwards, editor of The Daily Express, expressed he regret that there had been need to complain about the conduct of Haswell. He described him as having been "over-zealous."

Study Western Marsh As Wildlife Reserve

By BOB TRIMBEE

SASKATOON (CP) — To the naturalist the reckless plunder of prime wildlife habitat in the name of civilization has proved his toughest problem.

Agriculture pressures and wanton slaughter by sportsmen previously crippled many plans to protect and support wildlife. Victims of civilization's encroachment upon nature include the buffalo herds, once common to the Prairies, and the stately whooping cranes, once a familiar sight throughout the mid-continent.

More recently, waterfowl populations have suffered through such acts as drainage of Prairie potholes. This destroyed natural breeding grounds and, combined with droughts, endangered several waterfowl species.

Against this backdrop, a three-year study of the Cumberland marsh country of northeastern Saskatchewan has taken special significance. It is intended to uncover the region's wildlife and agricultural potentials before any action is taken in either sphere.

A federal team will handle the wildlife aspects because the senior government is responsible for wildlife services in Canada. The provincial government established a special committee to investigate the possible agriculture and other resource development in the marshlands.

FLOODED BY DAM

The Cumberland marsh, 200 miles northeast of Saskatoon, is the 1,000,000 - acre section of the Saskatchewan River delta which lies in Saskatchewan. Much of the delta in Manitoba was lost to wildlife when the Grand Rapids dam was built and the region flooded as a reservoir.

The numerous creeks, rivers and tiny lakes provide unlimited miles of nesting area for waterfowl. The marshland vegetation is ideal for moose and deer as well as many fur-bearing animals.

Because it never dries, even in droughts, the marsh is a safety zone for waterfowl which normally breed on the Prairies. In dry years the birds use the marsh. For this reason Cumberland marsh has been eyed by federal people as a possible wildlife management region.

"You can't create a management region in pothole country where water levels fluctuate," said Herman Dirschl of the Canadian Wildlife Service and head of the federal team working in the marsh.

"What we hope to discover is how much wildlife the marsh now supports, its potential and the potential of the various regions within the marsh. We want to grade the marsh according to its importance to wildlife."

Many potential wildlife regions in Canada have been lost because development was permitted before the effect on wildlife was studied, said Dirschl.

'HORSE BEFORE CART'

"Such was the case in the Manitoba portion of the delta. The loss of wildlife resources was not considered before the dam was built. Now nothing can be done. As far as the Cumberland marsh is concerned we have finally put the horse before the cart."

Provincial interest in resource and agriculture development of the marsh is a result of heavy welfare costs now required to assist 1,000 residents, most of them Indians and Metis. Much of the population lives at Cumberland House, situated on a small island on the south shore of Cumberland Lake.

The residents depend upon fishing and trapping for a livelihood, and depressed conditions in both have necessitated a welfare assistance bill of about $80,000 annually.

The province hopes expansion of the economic base of the region will not only eliminate welfare costs, but convert it into a revenue - producing district. Weather conditions make agriculture a possibility. There are more hours of sunlight in the marsh than in some southern areas.

In 1963 the Saskatchewan River Delta Development Committee was established and its work includes a soil survey and an engineering study of drainage costs. A Prairie Farm Rehabilitation survey in 1956 estimated it would cost $20,000,000 to drain the marsh for agriculture.

Both the federal and provincial groups will complete their reports by late 1966 and after this the governments will decide the marshland's future.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

(Letter to the sports editor: "Who is this guy Santa Claus? I see him on the street, in the stores, at Christmas parties and in parades. Last Christmas I peeked and saw him put the presents around the Christmas tree. Then hugged and kissed my mother and they went into the kitchen. I found his beard on the floor next morning."—Tommy D.)

Believe it or not, Tommy, the original Santa Claus was a pious Turk, the son of a wealthy capitalist who gave the old man's plastres away to the poor—and who later became the patron saint of all the Russias.

He was born Nicholas in Asia Minor—what is now Turkey—in the early fourth century. He was a very pious child who undertook a pilgrimage to the Holy Land and later settled in Myra, Turkey.

When he inherited Poppa Turk's vast wealth he made a name for himself as a benefactor of the poor. He originated the later Christmas custom of anonymous gifts by tossing bags of gold through an impoverished nobleman's window so he could get husbands for his three daughters who could not marry without a dowry.

He became the patron saint of seamen and was made a bishop, an unusual procedure since he had no religious training. After his death they built a church (St. Nicholas) in him. Some 600 years later the Russian emperor Vladimir came to the church to be baptized, heard about St. Nicholas' exploits and took home the legends which led to Nicholas being proclaimed the patron saint of his country.

When the Saracens conquered Asia Minor and laid waste to the city of Myra, the Church of St. Nicholas was damaged. Later it was a ruin. In 1807, religious Italians brought relics from its grave and built a great church in their country. Thus did St. Nicholas and his legends come to the western world.

Later he was adopted as patron saint of Bari, Freiberg, Belgium, France, Austria and The Netherlands and soon became known as the patron of youth. The date of his death, December 6th, became known as Children's Day, with festivities and the practice of giving gifts for good behavior.

The St. Nicholas Day celebrations spread into all Christian countries, each adapting the festivities to their traditions.

In Norway and Sweden the reindeer became the bearer of St. Nicholas rather than a horse. In Switzerland a young child accompanied him to help distribute the gifts. And so today there are as many customs as there are countries.

When the Dutch and Irish settlers came to North America, the Dutch ship carried a figure of St. Nick as its bowsprit. It was the first to anchor at Manhattan Island so St. Nicholas became the patron saint of the settlement now known as New York City.

The Irish had no objections. They stayed and started the Gotham police department while the Dutch moved to Pennsylvania, where they opened a chain of bakeries and became fat and prosperous.

The Hollanders called the patron saint Santa Nikalaus, which became shortened to Santa Klaus and finally Santa Claus.

In Europe, St. Nicholas was a lean figure with a pale asthetic face. He looked out of place in Pennsylvania among the jolly fat Dutch burghers so they made him a counterpart, plump and rosy as an apple who looked more like a mischievous rogue than a saint.

Gone were his bishop's robe, mitre and staff. Instead he became gowned in red, trimmed with white fur and wore a belled cap. His grey mare had been replaced with a team of reindeer hitched to a flying sled. They changed the date of his visit to the evening of December 25th.

Now with his reindeer headed by a new red-nosed edition called Rudolph, he flits over the housetops on Christmas eve. For further information you are referred to the Rev. Clement Moore's beloved poem of 1822, The Visit of St. Nicholas.

But times moves on and soon this symbolic figure of Christmas will arrive not only by sleigh but by airplane, and helicopter. His suit, once woollen will probably be nylon with plastic trim.

However changed the red-coated figure may be, he started out as the pious St. Nicholas who gave of himself and his wealth to those less fortunate.

That answer your question, sonny?

Steve Monteith notched the Toronto goal at 3:54 of the third period, beating Buddy Blom after taking a pass from Bob McClelland.

Defenseman Wayne Smith paced the Pioneers with a goal and two assists. Denver scored four goals in a little over three minutes of the final period.

Weekend games in the National Hockey League jumbled standings near the top of the heap.

Montreal Canadiens still held on to first place with 34 points. But Chicago Black Hawks started nudging the Habs by defeating Montreal 6-3 Saturday night and winning again Sunday 3-2 over Boston Bruins.

That gave Chicago 15 games won this season, one ahead of the Canadiens; and it put the Hawks into their own way tie with Detroit Red Wings, at 32 points each, in second place.

Bobby Hull scored three of the weekend goals for Chicago and assisted on two more. He now has a total of 28 goals in 28 games. Phil Esposito scored two, and Stan Mikita got four assists. It was Esposito's goal, on assists from Mikita and Pierre Pilote, that broke a 2-2 tie with Boston and gave Chicago the victory.

The Canadiens, after their loss to Chicago, moved down to New York where they edged but the Rangers 3-2 Sunday night.

For the Rangers, the weekend brought double defeat. On Saturday night, Toronto Maple Leafs scuttled them 6-3. New York now has been winless for six straight games.

For the Leafs, the weekend was a split. After taking the game from New York, they went on to lose Sunday night when the Red Wings beat them 3-1. Ted Lindsay, back from retirement, scored two goals against Toronto—his sixth and seventh since his return.

The Bruins managed to hold on to their position in the cellar, but they gave Chicago a fight on Sunday night. After a first-period goal by Hull, Reg Fleming equalled the score early in the second. The Bruins held Chicago back until late in the stanza when Hull's brother, Dennis, scored for the Hawks. Johnny Bucyk knotted the score at the third, but Esposito's won the game. It was the only weekend game for Boston.

BOTH HULLS SCORE

In the Chicago-Montreal game Saturday, Bobby Hull and Ken Wharram scored two goals each. Singles came from Dennis Hull and Esposito. Bobby Rousseau, Dave Balon and Claude Larose mustered the goals for Montreal.

DENNIS HULL

On Sunday night, Balon, Jean-Guy Talbot and Ralph Backstrom got the Montreal markers against New York. Rod Gilbert and Don Marshall scored for the Rangers.

Jean Ratelle, Camille Henry and Vic Hadfield scored the New York against a Toronto onslaught from Bob Pulford, Dave Keon, Frank Mahovlich, Tim Horton, Carl Brewer and George Armstrong.

The onslaught looked more like a retreat when the Leafs got to Detroit. Only Andy Bathgate scored for Toronto on Sunday night. Apart from the two by Lindsay, the Red Wings had a third by Gordie Howe.

In the penalty bracket, Bob Baun of the Leafs increased his lead for the season, adding 11 more minutes on the bench for a total of 93.

DUMPED — Keith McCreary of Montreal went down under two Chicago defenders when he made a lone charge at the Black Hawks' net during Saturday night's National Hockey League game at Montreal. Checking him are Al MacNeil (19) and Eric Nesterenko, while goalie Denis DeJordy keeps his eye on the puck. (CP Photo)

Seattle Wins Pair, Ups Lead

Seattle Totems gave themselves a 10-point margin atop Western Hockey League standings with two weekend victories — 4-1 over Portland Buckaroos and 5-1 over Vancouver Canucks.

In other games, the fifth-place San Francisco Seals took a 6-3 win over Victoria Maple Leafs and tied Portland 3-3 while Los Angeles Blades dumped Victoria 5-1 Sunday.

Bob Barlow scored twice and Chuck Holmes and Chuck Mantha once each in Totem's Saturday win over second-place Portland. Arnie Schmaut contverted a rebound for the only Portland goal.

Sunday night Totems got two goals from Bill Maréland and others from Larry Hale, Don Ward and Guyle Fielder to swamp Vancouver. Only Hoyle Hughes replied for Canucks.

Unionville Rink Wins 'Knockout'

TORONTO (CP) — Murray Roberts' Unionville rink went undefeated in eight games of a double - knockout playoff series during the weekend to win the right to represent Ontario in the Tournament of Champions bonspiel to be held here Jan. 5-8.

Roberts defeated another Unionville rink, skipped by Ray Grant, in the final match Sunday night.

Bob Mann's Hanover rink, 1964 Ontario champion, was knocked out of the series after losing its first two games.

Roberts will meet rinks skipped by Lyall Dagg of Vancouver, 1964 Briar Cup champion; Ernie Richardson of Regina; Hersh Lerner of Winnipeg; Bob Magie of Duluth, Minn., 1964 United States champion; Hec Gervais of Edmonton; Bob Ash of Kirkland Lake, current Canadian schoolboy champion; and Doug Cameron of Charlottetown.

The eight rinks will compete for more than $10,000 prize money.

Because of an Ontario Curling Association ruling, however, Robert's rink is eligible to receive maximum prizes of only $150. If they win more, they have agreed to donate the rest to charity.

Meet Chargers For AFL Title

Bills Collect Eastern Crown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Sid Gilman, whose San Diego Chargers have lost two games since they won the Western Conference title, has a realistic assessment of his prospects for the American Football League's championship game against Buffalo Bills next Saturday:

"We'll try to contain Cookie Gilchrist the best we know how. If we don't, they'll beat us."

Boston Patriots have none for Gilman. He might succeed in bottling up Gilchrist and still lose.

Cookie, the AFL's leading ground-gainer this season with 981 yards on 230 carries, was held to a relatively modest 52 yards by the Pats Sunday in their battle with Buffalo for eastern honors. But quarterback Jack Kemp, a bench warmer only a week ago, passed them dizzy and the Bills won 24-14.

Meanwhile Oakland Raiders made amends for a losing season by coming from behind twice to nail San Diego 21-10, in two other games that didn't affect the standings. Kansas City Chiefs walloped New York Jets 24-7 and Houston Oilers overpowered Denver Broncos 34-15.

KEMP IS WHOLE SHOW

Kemp, who has given way to young Daryle Lamonica in the late stages of recent games and sat one out entirely last week, was the whole show for the Bills Sunday, passing 81 yards to Elbert Dubenion for their first touchdown and sneaking across for the other two after setting them up with passes.

Boston's chances faded in the first quarter after they had narrowed the gap to 7-6 on Babe Parilli's 33-yard pass to Tony Romeo. Parilli tried another pass to Gino Cappelletti under the AFL's two-point conversion rule but it rolled when Cappelletti slipped and fell on the snow-covered turf.

By halftime, the Bills had put the game out of reach with Kemp's first touchdown and a 12-yard field goa. by Pete Gogolak.

The victory avenged a 26-8 loss to Boston in a playoff for the division title last year and gave the Bills a 12-2-0 record this season against the Patriots' 10-3-1.

Clem Daniels rushed for 120 yards in Oakland's first-quarter comeback against the Chargers, which was climaxed by a 12-yard touchdown pass by Tom Flores to Billy Cannon. Mike Mercer's convert provided the winning margin.

George Blanda set season records for pass attempts, 505, and completions, 282, in the Oilers' victory and Chuck Hennigan caught eight for a season total of 101, another record.

Len Dawson tossed two touch down passes for the Chiefs as they handed the Jets their seventh straight road defeat. Matt Snell ran for 103 yards for the losers to set a rookie rushing mark of 945 yards for the season.

Tulsa, Utah Win Bowls

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Tulsa Hurricanes, led by passing wizard Jerry Rhome, clawed their way to a 14-7 victory Saturday over the Inglewood Rebels in the Blue-Bonnet Bowl game, a football contest that snatched outstanding spring ability against a sterling defence.

And at Atlantic City, N.J., in the first college bowl game ever played indoors, the speedy Utah Utes zipped to a 32-6 victory over less-agile West Virginia in the Liberty Bowl, played in spacious Convention Hall.

Rhome ignored a series of hard knocks from Mississippi defenders to upset the rugged Rebels, who went into the contest 11 - point favorites. The game was played in 40-degree weather before 50,000 fans in Houston.

Tulsa showed a stout defence after a shaky second quarter during which the Southeastern Conference Rebels drove 37 yards for a TD.

Mississippi enjoyed the lead for less than five minutes as Rhome, using only one pass, directed a 72-yard surge to tie the score and then turned to long passes for the 74-yard go-ahead drive in the third quarter.

Reds Thump Aces For Second Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds are anything but impressive in the American Hockey League this season except when they meet Quebec Aces.

The Reds have won only eight of their 29 games but two of those victories were against the eastern division leading Aces, who have lost only nine times in 32 starts.

Providence, the division's tail enders, picked up the second win Sunday in their third meeting with the Aces, defeating Quebec 4-2.

But the loss failed to endanger the Aces' hold. They had edged the second - place Hershey Bears 4-2 Saturday to bring their points total to 45. Hershey trails by 11 points.

In only a weekend action, Cleveland Barons defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 5-3 and Springfield Indians shut out Buffalo Bisons 5-0 Saturday.

But Buffalo edged Baltimore Clippers 3-2 Sunday, while Pittsburgh trounced Cleveland 7-2 and Hershey defeated Rochester Americans 3-1 in overtime.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Russia's well-drilled hockey team has three victories in as many starts against Canada but coach Gordon Simpson of the Canadians says he's encouraged.

Simpson saw a "definite improvement" in the Canadians when they lost 4-1 to the Russians Sunday. They had been beated 4-0 in Toronto a week earlier and took a 6-1 lacing from the smooth-skating Soviets here Friday.

"The trend is getting better and this is satisfying," Simpson said.

"This time the Canadian club, which will face the Russians in the world tournament in Finland next March, made a game of it for two periods before running out of gas. Russia led 2-1 after the first period and 3-1 after the second, capitalizing on Canadian errors for their goals.

The team, a composite of last year's Canadian Olympic entry and Winnipeg Maroons, the defending Allan Cup champions, was bolstered Sunday by goalkeeper Ken Broderick and centre Gary Dineen, two Olympians who were kept out of the first two games by their studies at the University of British Columbia.

But Dineen's arrival was offset by the absence of team captain Fred Dunsmore, who suffered a broken left collarbone when he collided with a goalpost in a practice Saturday.

Veteran Reg Abbott put the Canadians ahead by carousing a backhand off the stick and pad of Russian goaltender Vik-tor Konovalenko but two goals by Vyacheslav Starshinov, the first on a power play while Dineen was off for slashing, gave the Russians the lead at the first intermission.

The other Russian goals, by Viktor Jakushev and Anatole Firsov, came in the dying moments of the second and third periods.

Although outshot 27 to 22, the Canadians were more successful than in previous games in working their way close to the Russian goal and gave Konovalenko considerably more trouble than they had previously. Broderick also was called on to make some outstanding saves.

Dineen, playing his first game this season for Canada and his first in three weeks, praised the Russians' speed. He worked on a line with Al Johnson, who once played with Detroit Red Wings of the National League, and Jim McKenzie.

Two of the Canadians will get another look at the Russians tonight. Broderick and centre Roger Bourbonnais, another Olympic veteran, will join Edmonton Oil Kings of the Central Alberta League for their game against the Soviet squad.

The Russians, still unbeaten and tied only once in Canada, complete their eight-game tour against the Western International League All-Stars at Trail, B.C., Wednesday night.

Then they join the Canadian and Czechoslovakian teams in a double - round - robin international tournament at Colorado Springs, Colo., Dec. 27-30.

Aces, Americans Versus Russians

'Now, Dey All Wanna Get In On D' Act'

LONDON (CP)—President J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne of the International Ice Hockey Federation said Sunday the federation probably would permit the Soviet national hockey team, currently touring Canada, to play professional teams in Canada, the U.S., providing the IHF North American executive also approved.

Ahearne said he wrote to the North American federation members three weeks ago, but has yet to receive a reply.

Stafford Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto, sent a wire to Viktor Kuznetov, manager of the Soviet team, challenging him to meet Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League.

He suggested dates when Rochester, a Maple Leafs' farm club, would be available to meet the Russians at the Gardens.

Punch Imlach, Leafs' coach and general manager, said in Toronto the Russians should "play Rochester first and prove they rate a shot at an NHL team."

NO OBJECTION

NHL president Clarence Campbell said in Montreal he has no objection to a game between the Russians and one of the six NHL clubs, but it would have to be played under professional rules.

"I don't think the Russians could get permission from the IHF to play a pro club," said secretary-manager Gordon Juckes of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, "and they do not have an open date on their tight schedule for such a game.

SERIES EVEN

BERNE, Switzerland (Reuter)—West Germany beat Switzerland 7-2 here Sunday night in the return match of their world hockey championship qualifying round. In the first match at Augsburg last Friday, Switzerland won 8-2. The third and deciding match will be held in Geneva Jan. 2.

Balfour Helps Hornets

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Earl Balfour wasn't quite good enough to stick in the National Hockey League but he is good enough for Galt Hornets of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series.

Balfour, reinstated as an amateur this year after failing to make it with Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks, picked up two goals and added an assist Sunday to help the Hornets whip Oakville Oaks 6-2 in Oakville and move to within two points of first-place Guelph Regals.

In Sunday's other game, Woodstock Athletics handed Welland Blacks their 15th loss in 19 games this year by defeating them 5-3.

Saturday night, Jim Dahmer accounted for both Galt goals as the Hornets turned back the Regals 2-1.

Nine Arrested in Breakup of Narcotic Ring

MIAMI, Fla., (AP) — Two expensively dressed Cubans, one of them described as a kingpin in one of the largest U.S. narcotics rings, were arrested Saturday.

Federal narcotics agents, who had secretly flown with the pair from Honduras, snapped on the handcuffs when the men stepped off a plane in Miami.

With the arrests, nine of 11 men accused of being part of the ring are in custody.

"Undoubtedly, this is one of the largest narcotics operations we've seen in many years, said Eugene Marshall, head of the Miami narcotics bureau. "You can safely say it is a multi million dollar business going on in several northern cities."

The ring smuggled cocaine from Latin America, Marshall said, and heroin from Europe, distributing it in New York and westward as far as Chicago and Cleveland.

The men arrested here were wearing $100 suits and one of them, Alberto Meurice, 36, was carrying $800.

They were arrested in Honduras, with the co-operation of Interpol, the international police agency, and deported as undesirable aliens.

Meurice is wanted in connection with a shipment of 22 pounds of cocaine—estimated to be worth at least $1,000,000—seized at Kennedy Airport in New York Dec. 5 in false suitcase bottoms.

The other man arrested was Vicente Casas, 44, wanted for sales of narcotics to undercover agents.

Mining Industry Faces Excellent Prospects in '65

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's mining industry, braced by record production in 1964, is facing excellent prospects for the next year, says V. C. Wansbrough, vice - president and managing director of the Canadian Metal Mining Association.

In a year-end statement on the industry he sees the principal exceptions to the generally bright picture as gold and uranium mining.

"Under the combined influence of strong demand and high prices, base metals should continue to experience a further period of growth as new properties are brought into production.

"A further very substantial increase is to be looked for in iron ore output."

Mr. Wansbrough also predicts a rise in asbestos production and a substantial increase in potash output.

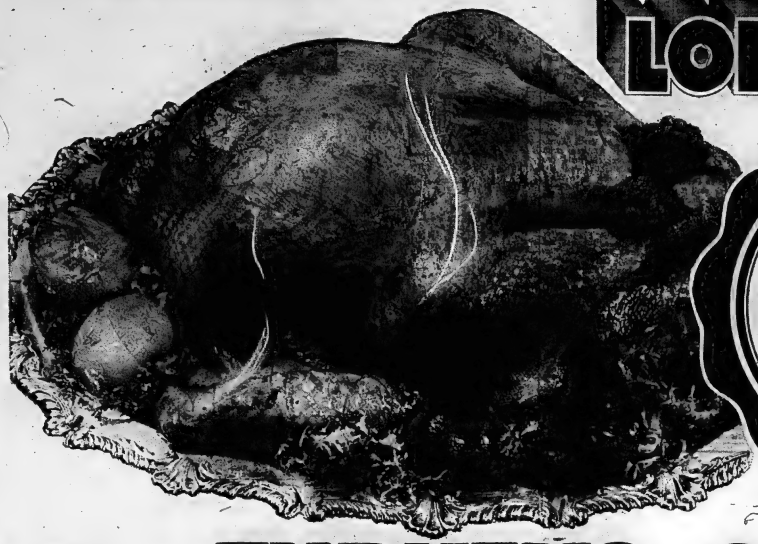
Much depended, however, on the industrial activity of major export markets, including the United States, Europe, Britain and Japan.

MENTIONS TIMMINS

Mineral exploration was greatly increased during 1964 by major discoveries, the most important being the rich zinc-copper-silver find near Timmins, Ont.

"Such exploratory vigor is in itself an indication of the confidence with which the mining industry enters the new year."

On the darker side, Mr. Wansbrough says gold output "must inevitably decline as more producers exhaust their reserves of ore."



"Nothing but a substantial increase in the price of gold will succeed in reversing this trend.

"While the short-term outlook for uranium producers is not good, the long-range picture is considerably brighter."

'How Long Can We Wait?'
Turk Cypriots Pose Ominous Question

By ALAN WALKER

NICOSIA (CP) — Two tears rolled down the tough Turkish fighter's face as he passed a lone flower among impressive wreaths.

He turned curved bitterly and said: "Freedom or death."

He was quoting Kemal Ataturk, founder of modern Turkey, for whom the flowers lay in the part of Nicosia where Turkish-Cypriots are restricted.

"We have fallen to rain," the fighter said. He pointed to men sitting in a small park nearby.

"They are there all day with nothing to do. See him? The man in the green trousers near the date palm? He's a taxi driver. The Greeks won't let him have any petrol so he's out of business.

The old man with the three dogs had a shop half a mile from here in the Greek area. He can't go there now. They've all got stories like that. It's been the same way since last Christmas."

DEFEATED INVADERS

The fighter commemorated the death 26 years ago of Ataturk, the republic of Turkey's first president, who brought the country out of medieval darkness and into the modern age. In 1922 he led the forces that defeated invading Greeks. Now that Turks and Greeks are opposed again in Cyprus, the annual anniversary of Ataturk's death takes on a new significance.

The Turkish daily newspaper Hakkin Sesi said Turkish-Cypriots are fighting "against the same enemy, under the same conditions, for the same purposes — freedom, honor and prestige."

The fighter calls himself Pazar which means Sunday. Asked why, he replied: "Why not? Most fighters all answer as one is as good as another.

"The Greeks call us terrorists and we don't. Some our real names in case there are reprisals later."

Pazar, 24, sat in the park with other young fighters and talked of the future.

"The United Nations is all very well, but they don't seem to be getting anywhere," said one youth in French.

"Yes," said another, in English. "How long can we wait? Ataturk taught that we should act quickly and dramatically. Our leaders tell us to wait but many of us are impatient."

MAN OUTPOSTS

All the young men were fighting in the Kyrenia mountains before Canadian troops arrived last March to enforce the UN ceasefire there. Now the men do part-time duty manning outposts in the hills. As far as they knew, none ever killed a Greek-Cypriot. "But you fire in the dark a lot," Pazar said, "and then you never know if you're hitting.

"Now we don't shoot at all of course. We just sit there and some Greeks sit across on the next hill and some of your Canadian boys sit above us, or in the middle, on a third hill.

"It's all a bit stupid. With our bayonets we open tins instead of people."

He prodded a picture of Ataturk pinned to his chest for the Remembrance Day service.

"He knew how to get what was best for his people." he said ominously. "We too better get what we want before the 27th anniversary of his death comes."

Moscow Power Shifts
Who Runs the Country? -- Just Watch the Posters

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—When someone here asks you where a certain member of the Communist party presidium stands, there's a chance he means it literally.

Probably in no place else in the world is so much avid attention devoted to the way a ruling group lines up to face the public, as in the Soviet Union.

Veteran Moscow hands claim to be able to sniff power shifts within the hierarchy by observing shifts in the way it is displayed on the people—or the cameras—are looking.

For gala occasions huge portraits of the 10 presidium members sprout in different parts of the city, to become the objects of casual interest by Muscovites and almost morbid curiosity on the part of foreign observers.

"The ordinary people are really not much interested," said a Soviet diplomat wearily.

EYED CLOSELY

Foreigners, however — and perhaps some of the more politically minded or politically involved Russians — pay close attention to the displays.

The eagle-eyeing occurs with particular intensity around the two biggest fixed holidays in the Soviet calendar, May Day and Nov. 7, anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

For the anniversary just passed, portraits began going up at least five days ahead of time. Their arrangement was minutely observed for any clue it might give as to the relative importance of surviving presidium members now that Nikita Khrushchev has been unceremoniously dropped.

When Khrushchev was party first secretary, the presidium numbered 11.

Khrushchev's face of course was conspicuously missing from this year's lineup. It appeared that whoever plans such displays tried hard to give at least some semblance of fluidity and to avoid the appearance of frozen positions within the power elite—possibly because of his new emphasis on collective leadership in the Soviet Union.

POSITION CHANGES

For instance in some groups Mikhail Suslov, the party's chief theoretician, appeared in fourth position from the left, while in others he appeared fifth, behind Nikolai Podgorny.

The first three places were almost invariably occupied by Leonid Brezhnev, new first secretary; Premier Alexei Kosygin and President Anastas Mikoyan.

In many displays a portrait of Lenin, larger than all the others, was included.

Climax of the phenomenon came on Nov. 7 itself when portraits of the top 10 were paraded into Red Square, bobbing and weaving above a densely packed crowd, while the presidium members themselves looked on admiringly from atop Lenin's tomb.

Naturally, the keen observers were watching solicitously to see how the 10 looked in the flesh—that is, how they stood.

Peewees Win
Napanee Nips Juveniles, Ties Midgets

Napanee shaded Belleville's A.C.T. "Travellers" 4-3 in Napanee last night in OMHA Juvenile play.

Belleville's midget Oddfellows fought to a 3-3 deadlock with their Napanee counterparts in the same rink on Saturday.

A first-period goal made the difference in the Juvenile tilt. Napanee scored the lone marker in the first heat while each team tallied once in the second and twice in the third for the 4-3 score.

Post triggered two Belleville markers with Dickey notching the other one. Smith earned two assists and Fleming got one.

Wager, Smith, Hollis and Leary scored in that order for the winners. Marks, Miller, Vallup, Wager and Jocko drew assists.

Oddfellows fought from behind to get the midget tie on Saturday. Napanee led 1-0 after the period and 3-2 going into the final 4period. The visitors bagged an unanswered pair to get the split in points.

D. Muir, L. Moore and D. Duval scored a goal each for Belleville. T. Boulter, Muir and J. Holgate collected single assists.

Jocko and Hartwick each had a goal and assist for Napanee. Evans scored the other goal.

The game was rough in spots with Napanee drawing eight of the 12 penalties assessed.

Meanwhile, in Gananoque on Saturday, Belleville Rollins whipped their hosts 10-3 in an OMHA peewee encounter.

Rollins led 2-1 after one period and 6-2 going into the third.

Terry Meagher and Cliff Jantzeh had big point performances for Rollins. Meagher scored four goals and assisted on another, while Jantzeh fired three more goals. Mario Venutti had a pair of goals and Bill Buchanan got the other one. Rick Meagher drew two helpers, Brian Cousins and Rick Adamson one.

Dailey scored two Gananoque goals and assisted on the other, scored by Leroy. Bullock also got an assist.

Belleville's Oddfellow bantams defeated Napanee 8-3.

Excellent Review of Year Given in CBS Specials

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—It shapes up, as they all do, to be quite a year, this passing 1964. And CBS, in two Sunday afternoon hours, looked back on its choice of the most "memorable sights and sounds."

There were the "long, hot summer" troubles in Harlem, Rochester and Philadelphia, Miss. There was Dora, the hurricane, and the Good Friday earthquake that shook Alaska. There was the vacuum into which Khrushchev disappeared and the troubles in Viet Nam and The Congo.

CBS recapitulated them all, along with the presidential election, the Jack Ruby trial and the Warren commission report on the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

But narrator Harry Reasoner also pointed up some of the happier, lighter events—the Olympic Games, acute "Beatlemania," Lurl Haines Johnson dancing what Reasoner said was the Frug—my informant insist it was the Watusi — topless bathing suits and lace stockings.

CBS continues to have troubles in remodeling its schedule. The most recent decision leaves Password and Baileys of Balboa in their same old Thursday night spot. Opposite ABC's very popular Bewitched and Peyton Place). On Broadway Tonight, originally announced as going into that troublesome spot, instead will last Jan. 8 in the Password time vacated by The Entertainers, which moves to Saturdays on Jan. 2.

Recommended tonight:

The Andy Williams Show, NBC, 9-10 EST—the Williams Brothers reunited for some holiday singing; Christmas in Appalachia, CBS 10-10:30 — news special.

B.C. DROPS NEWSPRINT PRICE — A mid-November $10-a-ton cut in the North American price of newsprint by British Columbia producers may shatter a complex coexistence and uniform prices by Canadian producers. The B.C. producers reduced the newsprint price to $124 in U.S. funds. The national price has been at $134 since 1958. The reduction was the first since 1934 when the price was dropped to $40 a ton from $41.25.

Turkish-Cypriots in Temblos Cannot Harvest Their Olives For Fear of Being Shot

By ALAN WALKE

Ripe black olives thick with dust hang in the sunshine Own trees near the tiny village age can't harvest their crops for fear of being shot.
Barefoot, grubby children wander with nothing to do. Adults and stare at dusty roads. An elderly man crouches before an idle tractor and whittles aimlessly on a piece of bamboo. It's been this way for many months.
Before grave hostilities broke out here last December between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots, Temblos had a population of about 150. Greek Cypriots burned villages to the west and the Turkish-Cypriot population is about 600 Many still live in tents on a compound east of here.
An air of forced lethargy and sullen patience hangs over all The men who draw pictures in the white dust with their bamboo stalks would much prefer to be out harvesting. Greek-Cypriot soldiers in slit trenches surround the village, however, and decline to move.
You turn left at what the locals call the "dead green car" to reach the olive groves. That rusting steel hulk has been there as long as anybody can remember. Brown and dusty goats, looking very wise as they chew their cud, lie by it.
Canadian soldiers hai somehow managed to persuade Greek Cypriots to allow villagers to inspect their crops, so the muktar, or mayor, an interpreter and a Canadian officer off into hostile territory recently with Lieut. John Gilbert, 22, of Camp Borden, Ont.; Sgt. Earl Pearson, 33, of Wellington, Ont.; a pistol; and a machine gun.
A few yards into Greek-held territory, a young khaki-clad soldier with a Sten gun appeared and said: "No farther." The bargain hadn't been reported to all sectors. Tl e Turkish-Cypriots faded behind the Canadian soldiers.
"I'm not going anywhere near your trenches," Lieut Guitar said, "but we have an agreement with your superiors to inspect the olive trees."
The Greek-Cypriot said: "No No. No." And he drew a line in the choking white dust with his staff.
OFFICER INTERVENES
It was a tense moment. Then a higher Greek-Cypriot officer appeared and suddenly every thing was all right again. For the next three days Canadian officers and Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot officers greeted each other with cordial relations prevailed-the. Greek - Cypriot officer greeted the muktar of the village and asked after his family.
For two hours the party wandered through burnt, fiery and dust. Muktar Ahme Assan Cambur squeezed olives into one hand from the Belleville Gen- for ripeness and counted the crop with a practised eye. Other Greek - Cypriots appeared and walked with the party.
A small concrete-block building had once held a Turkish-Cypriot water pump used for irrigating the olive trees. Now the lock lay broken and rusty on the ground and the pump was gone. Angry words flew between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots and finally feelings were smoothed a little when Greek - Cypriot Capt Pipinos Theodorous promised to investigate thoroughly.
The Turkish - Cypriots didn't say it outright but later confirmed they were sure the Greeks had taken the pump and had no intention of giving it back. They also thought it odd that none of the Turkish Cypriot trees had as many olives as equivalent Greek - Cypriot trees in the area. Could it be that some of the disgruntled Greek-Cypriot shook hands bravely and parted. Back in Temblos among his own people Ali Riza, 32-year-old ousted Turkish-Cypriot police officer, signed and left drinks and insisted that the lack of shooting lately is no reason for claims removed from the war between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

Cross-Canada Survey
Manager of Retail Merchants Predicts Big Christmas Sales In All Parts of the Country

By PAT USHER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quality and quantity tell the story of Canada's Christmas shopping habits in 1964.
"Christmas sales this year will outdistance anything we've known in the past," says David A. Gilbert, national general manager of the Retail Merchants Association of Canada.
"No weak spots are evident this year. Shoppers are showing discrimination as they look for quality and luxury items."
Sales volume should set a record at most points in the country, a cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press showed.
The advertising manager for a company which operates 14 department stores in British Columbia says it appears to be "the biggest Christmas season ever" in that province.
One Vancouver department store offers "breakfast with Santa." Each morning for 35 cents youngsters are given breakfast in the store and children band plays and balloons and novelty hats are handed out. Then Santa appears from a chimney set up on a stage and talks with the children.
A spokesman for an Edmonton department store says "buyer resistance isn't very heavy this year." Luxury items are going well, including furs for women. Another department store spokesman says pool tables are selling well.
BETTER THAN YEAR AGO
Calgary store spokesmen note sales are running ahead of last year over 1963 and attribute the situation to "a general buoyancy in the Alberta economic picture."
Retailers in Regina report Christmas sales are "up over last year, which set a record. "It's in the process of being the best Christmas we've ever had," one department store spokesman says.
By early December Christmas shopping was 10 per cent ahead of sales at the same time in 1963, says M. M. Wocks, secretary-manager of the Manitoba branch of the Retail Merchants Association. Quality rather than quantity was the big factor in the increase.
"They're even buying more expensive toys—big trucks, big tractors, lots of trains. They're spending up to $15 each on toys."
Winnipeg downtown stores are experimenting with a park-and-shop program under which shoppers will receive stamps good for 30 minutes' parking with each $3 purchase. Shoppers riding by bus will receive free transit trips with $3 purchases.
A Toronto department store spokesman describes sales as strong and buoyant.
RUN ON POOL TABLES
Ottawa reports strong demand for home furnishings (especially stereo and hi-fi record players), clothing of all kinds and toys. In addition there's an unprecedented demand for pool and billiard tables selling for more than $200. "We just can't keep them in stock," one store representative said.
Spokesmen for two Montreal department stores predict a "fantastic" year. A spokesman for a third store says it expects a better season than last year, although not a record.
One Montreal department store started a nursery this year so mothers can do all their Christmas shopping done without interruption.
A department store in Saint John, N.B., describes November sales as "tremendous" and says if sales keep up the pace, volume for the last two months of the year will be almost 10 per cent ahead of 1963. Luxury items such as stereo equipment and furs are reported in demand.
Charlottetown retail stores say Christmas shopping is slightly heavier than last year.
In Halifax department stores report business good generally but are hesitant to predict last year's figures will be topped. Items such as stereo equipment are selling well.
In Halifax the longshoremen's strike, St. John's, Nfld., reports stores well stocked and buying brisk with sales higher than a year ago—and more expensive gifts in demand.

'Mixed Blood Children' In Japan Have Rough Time

TOKYO (AP)—The name on the employees' roster of the Tajima Precision Manufacturing Company reads Toshikazu Sato. It is a name as a Japanese as any of the 200 others on the list.
But Toshikazu Sato is no ordinary 19-year-old Japanese. His father is a Negro, his mother Japanese. He has known neither since birth.
He is one of Japan's "mixed blood children" — illegitimate children fathered by American soldiers, both white and Negro, in the early days of the Second World War occupation and left by their Japanese mothers either didn't want to or couldn't afford to keep them and left them to be brought up in orphanages.
ESTRANGED AT 5,000
While exact figures are not available, best official estimates place the number of mixed-blood children at about 5,000, of whom about 1,000 were born to parents who were legally married after the birth of the child.
Of the remaining 4,000, perhaps as many as half have been adopted by families ranging from the poor to the well-to-do. Most of the rest have grown up in orphanages.
Toshikazu was among the lucky of the orphaned mixed-blood children. He was placed with the Elizabeth Sanders Home run by Mrs. Mikl Sawada, the daughter of a millionaire, one of whose estates near Tokyo she remodelled to care for "the babies no one wanted."
MOST WENT TO U.S.
Mrs. Sawada has so far placed 700 children for adoption, all but four with families in the United States.
The home now has 138 orphans, some of whom will go to Brazil. Mrs. Sawada has purchased a tract of land on the banks of the Amazon river for them to farm.
But life hasn't been easy for Toshikazu since he left the protection of the orphanage last year to get a job. Neither has it been smooth for others of the oldest mixed-blood age group. Few, if any, are expected to go on to a university, although some are continuing three years of schooling in high school.
One day, soon after moving into the employees dormitory at the Tajima factory, Toshikazu went with some fellow workers to the public bathhouse.
He told me about it later," Mrs. Sawada said. "He said that when he took off his clothes to enter the bath, everyone in the bath jumped out, and that he had to be scrubbed until his wash basin, they cleansed it as if it had been contaminated."
Until then, Toshikazu had not wanted to go to Brazil.
"But that incident changed his mind," Mrs. Sawada said.
Toshikazu himself prefers not to talk about such things.
"Sure, some people turn around to stare at me, but otherwise I don't feel any discrimination," he said.
BLEAK FUTURE
Despite the place the children, the future looks bleak.
The largest home for mixed-blood children in Tokyo itself is the Catholic Seiyu (Holy Friends) Home.
Run on its own neighborhood, the people have become accustomed to the mixed-blood children and have developed an understanding of the problem, but newcomers to the neighborhood "I'm afraid it's a different story," said Tomiji Sugimoto the home's director.
But from the long-term viewpoint, Sugimoto sees hope.
"Marriage may be rough at first, but as the years go by, most of them will probably find a place in society. Society must accept them, for they are the responsibility of all of us."

COMPLETE FLIGHT

EDMONTON (CP) — Helped by good flying weather, the RCAF Sunday completed the annual Christmas supply to Arctic outposts after three days of flying. Four weather-washed-out a landing at Mould Bay, a weather station 1,500 miles northeast of Edmonton, but two other ice runway landings and the dropping of supplies at 18 other points were carried out on schedule by a giant C-130 Hercules.

Twinkling Lights, Soft Snows, Add Touch of Magic Canada Lights Up For Christmas In White

When the whispering winds of winter deep-drift the first gentle snows across the vastness of the land, then is time for a myriad twinkling, colored lights to sparkle frostily over another Christmas scene. For Canadians in general, Christmases are always white. The fresh falls of winter's magic mantle have already muted big-city traffic, gilded brightly-lit shopping centres, hushed silent the open countryside with a soft, firm embrace. Suburban residential districts, transformed into white, translucent wonderlands of sugar-candy houses, come aglow each early evening with milky-ways of shimmering, multi-colored, artificial stars, and illuminated messages from folks within bid good cheer to passers-by without. Far from the winking reflections of Christmas lights strung through ornamental garden trees and under roof-top eaves, the snows are deeper yet. Where the lone wolf treads with careful delicacy the thin supporting crust atop the powder snow, where the big pine trees and fir loom dark against a moonlit sky, where undulating barrens roll endlessly towards the polar star, where high mountain peaks sit in timeless solitude—there too, the Christmas snows of Canada command the silence. For, here and there among the majestic expanses of wild land, small groups of Canadians link thoughts of goodwill across the sparkling snows, to join with a nation once more aglow with a Christmas in white.

Strings of multi-colored lights festoon shopping centres, churches, residential districts and city streets against a background of fresh, white snow, give Christmas in Canada a scene of enchantment.

NATIONAL FILM BOARD PHOTOTTORT

Houses of Parliament in Canada's capital city, Ottawa, add their own touch of festivity to national scene.

Garden trees, set aglow on snow-covered lawns, take on new beauty during Christmas season.

Suburban residences become a fairyland vista as doorways, chimneys, windows, roof-tops and gardens come ablaze with millions of sparkling colored stars and illuminated figurines.

Away from the city, deep snows spread a mantle of whiteness to make another Christmas scene.

Color Bar Fades Rapidly From Schools, Lunch Bars

WASHINGTON (CP)—Death, blood and bombs continued to scar the American Negro's fight for equality in 1964 but in a legal sense the year broke the back of segregation.

For 1965 and onward, the emphasis would lie in one thousand and one smaller skirmishes on political, social and economic fronts.

It remained to be seen how each would be waged, against what sort of opposition—and for how long.

But this much had been done: 10 years after the historic Supreme Court decision to desegregate schools, the color bar was fading rapidly from the classroom and the lunch counter.

As 1964 ended, there were divisions within the Negro leadership and signs of a militancy gaining fresh strength from progress. But it had been a notable year—cruelly so with the slayings of three young civil rights workers in Mississippi, the last redoubt of the white racist. Two gains stood out for the country's 20,000,000 Negroes.

A well-toothed Civil Rights Act framed by the late President Kennedy was approved by Congress after a long futile filibuster by southern Republicans and Democrats.

LAD NEGRO SUPPORT

President Johnson, winning a smashing presidential election victory over Senator Barry Goldwater's appeal to those elements, restricted the Goldwater southern strength to five states by drawing nearly 100 per cent of the growing and increasingly vital Negro vote.

Significantly, the five states won by Goldwater in the south had the fewest Negro voters and there were signs that Johnson might have lost five more had it not been for Negro help.

It pointed up the key issue of the future for the Negro and for the embattled civil rights workers planning a second vote-education season in Mississippi. The ballot box is the Negro's weapon now.

White "backlash" — northern resentment against the accelerating current of Negro demands and gains—flared sharply in July and August as Negroes rioted in their areas of New York, Rochester, Jersey City and Philadelphia. But it eased as leaders called for a truce before political harm was done.

Legislation against poverty, stressing more education and job training in Negro and other areas particularly vulnerable to economic pinching, assumed major importance for the future.

But the Civil Rights Act had fractured the last big segregationist barrier. It had four main parts, including enforced desegregation of public places and greater power for enforcing school desegregation. There was provision to help extend voting rights to Negroes, many of whom through state gimmicks have never voted.

There was also, taking effect in 1965, machinery for hearing of complaints about discrimination and segregation in the factory, the labor union and other areas.

UPS AND DOWNS

There were some other high and low lights:

Martin Luther King, Jr., a new brand of Negro leader threatened himself by the pace of Negro evolution, won the Nobel Peace Prize.

Every level of education in each of the 11 deep-south "Dixie" states now has admitted a Negro student, although not necessarily all in 1964.

A Mississippi all-white jury readily freed three men, one of whom had confessed, for the highway shotgun slaying of a Washington Negro travelling through.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, while saying it knew the identity of the killers of the three civil rights workers shot near Philadelphia, Miss., held off arrests apparently in hope of getting evidence too strong even for a Mississippi jury to ignore. Finally, it arrested 21 men.

Against the national Democratic party trend, California voted for a Republican senator and threw out a recent state law forcing home owners to sell to anybody. Attacked by powerful real estate forces, the anti-segregation measure was swamped.

It was this event which forecast the areas of future struggles and posed a question for the Negro leaders on what weapons to employ in continuing their battle.

Jagan Assails Burnham Govt.

GEORGETOWN (Reuters) — Former prime minister Cheddi Jagan of British Guiana Sunday night called the new government of Forbes Burnham "the bastard premature child of colonialism."

Jagan spoke in a speech spearheading a country-wide rally by his People's Progressive Party.

Addressing thousands of supporters at east coast Indian strongholds, Jagan said Burnham's government was totally unacceptable, should be removed from office as quickly as possible and would have no support from the PPP.

The governor of this British colony invited Burnham to become prime minister when Jagan refused to resign after failing to gain a legislative majority in the island's elections. Jagan was dismissed following a British order-in-council changing British Guiana's constitution.

Khrushchev Was Architect And Symbol of Better Life To Millions of Russians

MOSCOW (CP) — Nikita Khrushchev may be on his way to oblivion as far as Soviet officialdom is concerned, but it will be a long time before he's forgotten by the Russian people. For them he was the architect and symbol of a better life.

In a material sense this improvement is reflected in rising living standards the drive for which Khrushchev identified himself more closely perhaps than with any other policy while premier.

One of his most telling arguments against China was that, while the Soviet government stressed peaceful coexistence and a better lot for the people, Peking emphasized war preparedness to the detriment of the people's welfare.

Chief manifestation of improved conditions in the Soviet Union is the ever-increasing quantities of consumer goods. For the first time people are offered a choice in many lines.

Watching them exercise their newly discovered privileges and savoring their new-found status as consumers makes a visit to a Russian department store these days an exciting experience.

There is still a long way to go. Prices tend to be out of proportion to the average wage earner's modest resources, and quality often leaves much to be desired. But a start has been made.

CURBED FEAR

The bouncy, 70-year-old Khrushchev pursued his economic improvement gos. to the end. Earlier in October he told a meeting of the Communist party presidium and the U.S.S.R. council of ministers that "we must put to the forefront" the task of satisfying the "growing material and spiritual requirements of man."

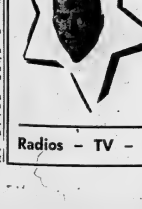
In another way he made life easier for Soviet citizens by banishing the atmosphere of fear that prevailed during Stalin's time. Under Khrushchev's leadership, police powers were curbed and thousands of political prisoners released.

By attacking Stalin as vehemently as he did, Khrushchev discredited the things Stalin stood for: absolute dictatorship, police excesses.

Democracy as it is known in the West does not exist in the Soviet Union, but compared with 12 to 15 years ago life is much less sinister and more physically secure.

Khrushchev, a miner's son who always remained somewhat rough at the edges, may have sensed instinctively that a relaxation of controls was necessary to both domestic and international aims. He was immensely popular with the masses. But this made little difference to those who opposed him within the party hierarchy. Russia hadn't changed that much.

Still, Khrushchev's quick removal must have come as a shock to the Soviet people. For a while he didn't have as much personal power as Stalin, he had apparently manoeuvred himself into a position of such strength that he seemed able to decide for himself, in his own good time, when he should step down.



Nor could they be expected to believe, as the central committee said, that he had asked to be relieved of his duties "in view of his advanced age and deterioration of his health." At 70, he was apparently in excellent health.

The job of dismantling a titan began a few hours after the announcement of his removal Oct. 16. Shortly after Moscow shops opened, all publications with Khrushchev's picture on the cover or with his statements inside were removed from newsstands.

Workers could be seen removing portraits from public billboards and replacing them with others.

By that evening you couldn't find a picture anywhere of the man who had dominated Soviet life for 12 years.

But independent observers still wonder, in the light of pressures from some Eastern European Communist governments and in the face of his great personal popularity, whether the new leaders will succeed in their campaign to erase Khrushchev.

A Year of "Co-operative Federalism"

The Fruits of Compromise

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — This was the year of compromise in federal-provincial relations.

"Without compromise," Prime Minister Pearson told a labor - management seminar, "we could no more have a workable federalism than you gentlemen could have union contracts."

Compromise achieved this in 1964:

—Brought before Parliament the Canada Pension Plan.

—Facilitated agreement between the federal and provincial governments on a formula for domiciling the constitution in Canada.

—Resulted in the establishment of a tax study committee to make a thorough investigation of the division of taxing powers.

—Implemented a student loan plan.

—Gave the provinces a bigger slice of income taxes.

And compromise, or more specifically Mr. Pearson's "co-operative federalism," ignited and maintained a bitter political feud that will certainly spill over into 1965.

There now is greater division, cleavage and fissure in Canadian Confederation, never equalled since 1867," Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said at one point in reference to the prime minister's co-operative federalism.

MUST COMPROMISE

"You cannot make a federal constitution work . . . without compromise," Mr. Pearson said. "They are essential. . . . I am not going to say I go so far as to hope to make political capital by claiming that compromise is capitulation, and pretending to see in every general agreement, however useful, evidence of some individual surrender. . . .

"Co - operative federalism, then, means protection of both the federal and provincial interests. It means the closest possible co-operation between the central government and the provinces in the general — the national—advantage."

In putting co-operative federalism to work, Mr. Pearson held three meetings with provincial premiers during the year, and more than a dozen federal-provincial meetings were held at the ministerial level.

The most enthusiasm and the biggest headlines came out of an October meeting in Ottawa when, after some 37 years of trying, all governments agreed on a formula under which the Canadian constitution would be brought under the final authority of the Canadian Parliament. Amendments to the British North America Act now must be approved by the British Parliament.

The price of this agreement was federal willingness to limit Parliament's existing power to make amendments to the act without first consulting the provinces. The section—91 (1)—which gave the Canadian Parliament sole jurisdiction in certain fields would be abolished and its contents subject to the various amending formulas in the agreement.

ACHIEVED AGREEMENT

It took Justice Minister Favreau and the 10 provincial attorneys-general four days to work out agreement on this after the premiers had met in Charlottetown in September to give approval in principle to the over - all amending formula drawn up in 1960 by former Conservative Justice minister Davie Fulton.

Under the formula, no section of the constitution granting legislative powers or rights to the provinces can be altered without the unanimous consent of the provinces. Sections affecting only some of the provinces can be changed with the agreement of the affected provinces. All other parts of the constitution can be changed only with the consent of two-thirds of the provinces having half the population of Canada.

"An event of historic significance," was Mr. Pearson's reaction to the agreement.

"A day of great achievement," said Premier Lesage of Quebec.

"Some big step forward and the culmination of many years of work," said Premier Robarts of Ontario.

But the reaction was not unanimous.

The Fulton - Favreau formula, as it must be known, is a formula for constitutional futility and absolute rigidity," charged Andrew Brewin, New Democratic Party member for Toronto Greenwood, in the Commons. The Toronto lawyer was joined by some Conservatives, including Mr. Diefenbaker, who were critical of a section that allows any four provinces, with Parliament's approval, to enter federal fields of jurisdiction.

Outside Parliament, lawyers, college professor and assorted laymen formed up on both sides of the argument. It will still be a lively subject in 1965.

RAN INTO SNAG

While the constitutional question caused the most excitement and controversy, it was the Canada Pension Plan, third edition, that was considered by many to be the greatest accomplishment in compromise.

The plan got off to a shaky start when the first bill was withdrawn and a redrafted version was offered to the Commons. Then Quebec announced plans to establish its own plan, shattering the hope of one national scheme for all Canadians.

Behind closed doors, federal and Quebec officials went to work on the plans. With some give and take by both sides, the two plans were described as that when and if the two programs get legislative approval all Canadians will receive identical benefits at the same cost.

Early in the year, the government announced plans to guarantee bank loans to university students. Mr. Pearson went to the Quebec premiers conference in March to be told by Mr. Lesage that he wanted no part of such federal financing in education and he might even take it to the courts.

The compromise on this was establishing the right of provinces to "opt out" of the scheme if they would prefer to establish their own plans. Quebec did. The federal part now is operating in nine provinces.

On Sept. 10, Mr. Pearson announced the 10 provinces and listed 12 federal - provincial shared - cost programs from which they could contract out. There were 18 others from which there could not. Not unexpectly, Quebec announced its intention of leaving the 12.

SEEK BIGGER CUT

Meanwhile, led by Quebec pressure was mounting on the federal government to make more tax dollars available to the provinces. The demands reached a peak at the Quebec conference when Mr. Lesage said his province possibly freed double taxation unless a bigger slice of revenue were returned by the federal government.

The premiers accepted a federal proposal that a joint committee be established to take a thorough look at the whole tax picture, defining the revenue needs and responsibilities of each level of government.

But this would take at least two years, and it did little to solve the immediate problem.

So within three weeks of the conference, the prime minister wrote to the premiers.

He told them of a new tax-sharing deal that would give the provinces an extra $60,000,000 in 1965 and double that in 1966. Under the new plan, the provincial governments—then getting an 18-per-cent share of personal income taxes—will receive 21 per cent in 1965 and 24 per cent in 1966. Under the existing arrangement, that share would have risen only to 19 per cent in 1965 and to 20 in 1966.

"An immense step forward," said Mr. Lesage. The immediate threat of double taxation in Quebec had ended.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the prime minister's decision was "as voluntary . . . as a shotgun marriage." But New Democratic Leader Douglas and Social Credit Leader Thompson welcomed the move, which they said staved off a crisis in national unity.
